CLEMENT V. (5TH JUNE, 1305–20TH APRIL, 1314.)

Clement V., by remaining in France, and by fixing his see at Avignon from the year 1309, introduced a dilemma into the political position of the Papacy, which could not but be very prejudicial to its authority among the faithful. In their dealings with other states, the French pontiffs from their safe retreat promulgated, with increasing arrogance, the principles of a universal Papal monarchy; in France, on the contrary, they not only had to see these principles continually set aside, but, in their whole sphere of operations, they were so dependent upon the nod of the French court that they never ventured, except by stealth, to act against its policy.

Clement V.¹ was not only obliged to revoke in form the pretensions of his predecessor, Boniface VIII., against France (1306),² but also to allow proceedings to be instituted against him, which wounded the Papal dignity to the quick.³ Thereupon Philip the Fair began the persecution of the Templars in a highly arbitrary manner (13th Oct. 1307): Clement pardoned the past, and sided with the persecutor.⁴ The Pope ventured to oppose nothing but

¹ Giov. Villani hist. Fiorent. viii. c. 80 (in Muratori, xiii. 418), puts the following conditions in the mouth of King Philip, as those which he made with Clement, when he helped him to mount the Papal throne: Le sei spetiali gratie, ch'io voglio da te, sono queste. La prima, che tu mi riconcili perfettamente colla Chiesa, e facciami perdonare il misfatto, ch'io commissi per la presura di Papa Bonifatio. La seconda di ricomunicare me, e miei seguaci. La terza, che mi concede tutte le decime per 5 anni del mio Reame, per ajuto alle spese fatte alla guerra di Fiandra. La quarta, che tu mi prometti di disfare e annullare la memoria di Papa Bonifatio. La quinta, che tu renda l'onore del Cardinalato a Messier Jacopo, e Messer Piero della Colonna (comp. Div. 2, § 59, note 14) e rimetteralli in stato, e facci con loro insieme certi miei amici Cardinali. La sesta gratia e promessa mi riserbo a luogo e a tempo, ch'è secreta e grande. Clement had promised all, per sacramento in sul Corpus Domini. It is as certain that Philip did impose conditions on the Pope, as that this detailed dramatical account of Villani can not be verbally correct: see Donniges Kritik d. Quellen f. d. Gesch. Heinrichs VII. s. 125. Schlosser's Weltgesch. IV. i. 24.

² Clementin. lib. iii. tit. 17: Quoniam ex constitutione Bonifacii P. VIII. praedecessoris nostri, quae incipit Clericis laicos, et ex declaratione, seu declarationibus (see Div. 2, § 59, note 6 and 9) ex illa postmodum subsequitis nonnulla scandala, magna pericula, et incommoda gravia sunt sequuta, et ampliora sequi, nisi celeri remedio succurra-

tur, praesumitur verisimiliter in futurum: nos de consilio fratrum nostrorum constitutionem, et declarationem, seu declarationes praedictas, et quidquid ex eis sequutum est vel ob eas, penitus revocamus, et eas haberi volumus pro infectis, volentes et firmiter statuentes, illud contra quoscumque laicos, exigentes seu extorquentes ab Ecclesiis ecclesiasticisque personis tallias seu collectas,—inviolabiliter observari, quod super his a praedecessoribus nostris in Lateranensi, et generali conciliis (see Div. 2, § 63, note 15 and 16)—salubriter est provisum. Extravagant. commun. lib. v. lit. 7, c. 2: Meruit carissimi filii nostri Philippi, Regis Francorum illustris, sincerae adfectionis ad nos et Ecclesiam Romanam integritas, et progenitorum suorum praecella merita meruerunt, meruit insuper regnicalorum puritas ac devotionis sinceritas, ut tam Regem quam regnum favore benevolo prosequamur. Hinc est, quod nos Regi et regno per definitionem et declarationem bona memoriae Bonifacii P. VIII. praedecessoris nostri, quae incipit Unam sanctam (Div. 2, § 59, note 26), nullum volumus vel intendimus praejudicium generari. Nec quod per illam Rex, regnum, et regnicalae praelibati amplius Ecclesiae sint subjecti Romanae, quam antea existebant: sed omnia intelligantur in eodem esse statu, quo erant ante definitionem praefatam, tam quantum ad Ecclesiam, quam etiam ad Regem, regnum et regnicalas superius nominatos. According to the contemporary Bernard Guido (Quarta Vita Clementis V. in Baluzii Vitae PP. Aven. i. 64), both Bulls date from the 1st February, 1306. The Bull Unam sanctam was not at any rate hereby repealed; it even at this time was furnished with a gloss by Johannes Monachus, in which all its claims were defended, demonstrated, and commented on. Comp. also Alvarus Pelagi, De Planctu Eccl. i. c. 60, below, § 99, note 15.

In the year 1306 the Grandmaster, James of Molay, came from Cyprus to France at the Pope's invitation to consult about a new crusade (Raynald. ann. 1306, no. 12): but although he was honorably received even in Paris (Raynouard, p. 17), Philip nevertheless already entertained secret designs against the order, comp. Clementis Ep. ad Philippum dd. 24. Aug. 1307 (in Baluzii Vitae PP. Aven. ii. 75): Sane a memoria tua non credimus excidisse, quod Lugduni et Pictaviis de facto Templariorum zelo fidei devotionis accusens nobis tam per te quam per tuos pluries locutus fuisti, et per Priorem monasterii novi de Pictavo aliqua intimari curasti. Et licet ad credendum quae tunc dicebantur, cum quasi incredibilia et impossibilia viderentur, nostrum animum vix potuerimus applicare; quia tamen plura incredibilia et inaudita extunc audivimus de praedictis, cogimur haesitare. Quia vero magister militiae Templi ac multi paeceptores—a nobis, nedum semel, sed pluries cum magna instantia petierunt, quod nos super illis eis false impositis, ut dicebant, vellemus inquirere veritatem; nos—diligentis inquisitionis indaginem infra paucos dies—propter hoc instanti die Veneris civitatem Pictaviensem intratur proponimus inchoare, etc. The result of this Papal inquiry was without doubt in favor of the Templars: however Philip, supported by a requisition from the Inquisitor, William of Paris, his father-confessor (secret order of the 14th Sept. 1307, in Ménard, Hist. de la Ville de Nismes, t. i., Paris, 1750. 4., Preuves, p. 195), gave orders for the general arrest of the Templars in France on the 13th Oct. 1307, and then allowed the inquiry to begin at once. In the articles, subjoined to this order, the secular authorities were instructed: cum eis [templariis] primo per se inquirant, commissariis inquisitoriis subsequenter vocatis, et veritatem examinent omnimodo quo poterunt, etiam ubi faciendum viderint per tormenta. The errors of the Templars, against which the inquiry was to be directed, were thus stated: Illi, qui recipiuntur, petunt primo panem et aquam illius Ordinis, et postmodum Praeceptor vel Magister recipiens eum ducit secreto post altare, vel in sacristiam, seu locum similem, et eis ostendit crucem cum effigie Domini nostri J. Chr., et facit eum qui recipitur negare prophetam, scil. Dominum J. Chr., cuius est illa figura, et hoc ter, et qualibet vice spuere supra crucem; et postea exiutus suis vestibus qui recipitur, et recipiens osculatur eum in capite spinae dorsi sub balteo, et secundo osculatur eum in umbilico, tertio in ore; et dicit ei, quod si quis frater Ordinis velit se commiscere sibi concubitu, hoc sustineat, quia hoc tenetur facere juxta statuta Ordinis, et quod ob hoc plures ex eis super sodomiam ad invicem se commiscent; et cum recipiuntur, singulis cordis lineis cinguntur, quas toto tempore vitae sue portare tenentur, et dicitur quod in quadam idolo quod adorant involutae fuerunt; item quod Presbyteri illius Ordinis non conficiunt sacramentum altaris; item quod habent quoddam idolum in forma capitis hominis, quod in capitulis provincialibus adorant, sed hoc nesciunt omnes fratres, sed antiqui. (In some examinations the name Baffometus, i. e. Mohammed in the Provençal dialect, as Mosques are called Bafomairia, appears for this idol. Thus in the examination at Carcassone in Raynouard, p. 291: Gauzerand de Montpézat—dit, que le chef, qui le recevait, lui montra une idole dorée, ayant la forme d'homme avec de la barbe: ce chef lui déclara, qu'elle était faite in figuram Baffometi. Raymond Rubei dépose, que celui qui le recevait lui montra un bois où était peinte figura Baffometi, et illam adoravit osculando sibi pedes, dicens yalla, verbum Saracenorum. In a trial at Florence it was deposed, in Raynouard, p. 295, that one Templar had called aloud to the rest: adorez cette tête: istud caput vester Deus est et vester Mahumet.) The inquiry was conducted with cruelty: many confessed (Continuator Guilelmi de Nangiaco in d'Achery Spicil. iii. 60: eorum nonnulli sponte quaedam praemissorum vel omnia etiam lacrimabiliter sunt confessi. Alii quidem, ut videbatur, poenitentia dueti, alii autem diversis tormentis quaestinationi, seu communione vel eorum aspectu perterriti, alii blandis tracti promissionibus et illecti, alii arcta carceris inedia cruciati vel coacti, multipliciterque compulsi. Multi tamen penitus omnia negaverunt, et plures, qui confessi primo fuerunt, ad negationem postea reversi sunt, in ea finaliter persistentes, quorum nonnulli inter ipsa supplicia perierunt); in several places all confessed (thus did 45 in Aigues-mortes, 15 in Nismes, see the minutes in Ménard, l. c. p. 197): only the greater part knew nothing of an idol, and of the unconsecrated host. Even the Grandmaster confessed repeatedly (Clementis V. vita i. in Baluzii Vitae Paparum Avén. p. 10; again in October 1307, congregazione generali omnium magistrorum et scholarium cujusque Facultatis facta apud Templum, Magister transmarinus adductus et quidem alii coram omnibus confessi sunt quosdam articulorum praedictorum, et dixerunt aliqui eorum, quod credebant, hunc modum professionis sue maledictae coepisse jam erant quadraginta anni et amplius, et hactenus fuerat occultatum. Item in alia congregazione coram Universitate Magister et alii plures totum simpliciter sunt confessi, et Magister pro toto Ordine. p. 11: Parisiensis Universitas, praecipue Magistri in theologia requisiti—mittere confessionem Magistri Templi et

The Pope was at first roused to anger by this proceeding (see Letters to all French Bishops and Inquisitors of the 5th July, 1308, in Guilelmi Majoris Episc. Andegav. gesta, c. 49, d'Achery Spicileg. ii. 199: Dudum Templariorum subitam captionem, quam ad nostri apostolatus et fratrum nostrorum pertulit vulgatus rumor auditum, quia rationes et causae, quae—Philippum Regem—induxerant ad hujusmodi captionem, tibique Guilermo suggesserant Regem super hoc requirere, nostram—latebant notitiam, non immerito nos et fratres ipsi dolentes suscepimus, cum per te Guilermum praedictum nobis, quibus quodammodo vicinus eras in januis, nihil intimatum fuisse; ac praecipi festinatione processus per vos contra ipsos habiti, et ut timebatur habendi, super quo inaudita publica referebat assertio, grandis suspicionis materia in nostra et fratrum ipsorum mentibus exstitit suscitata. Propter quod omnem quae habebatis in negotio potestatem de praedictorum fratrum concilio suspendentes, ad nos negotium ipsum totaliter duximus revocandum. The minutes of the examinations were then transmitted to him: Multa per eosdem processus contra ipsos apparent fuisse reperta, de quibus modicam habebamus verisimilem conjecturam, nec ad illa credenda nostraræ mentis opinio poterat inclinari). However, after that 72 Templars had repeated their confessions before him, and the Cardinals at Poitiers in June, 1308 (see the Bull Regnans in caelis of 12th Aug. 1308, in Mansi xxv. 371: Multos de Praeceptoribus, Presbyteris, Militibus et aliis Fratribus dicti Ordinis, reputationis non modicae, in nostra præsentia constitutos, præstito ab eis juramento, quod super praemissis meram et plenam nobis dicenter veritatem, super praedictis interrogavimus, et usque ad numerum septuaginta duorum examinavimus, multis ex fratribus nostris nobis assistentibus diligenter. Eorumque confessiones per publicas manus in authenticam scripturam redactas, illico in nostra et dictorum fratrum nostrorum præsentia, ac deinde interposito aliquorum dierum spatio in Consistorio legi fecimus coram ipsis, et illas in suo vulgari cuilibet eorum exponi. Qui perseverantes in illis, eas expresse et sponte, prout recitatae fuerant, approbarunt), likewise also the Grandmaster and five Praeceptors before a deputation of three Cardinals at Chinon in August (l. c. and the report of these Cardinals on the proceeding in Du Puy, p. 240. The Grandmaster acknowledged only the abnegatio, all asked and received absolution): Then Clement appointed ecclesiastical commissions of inquiry for all Christian realms, by the Bulls, Regnans in caelis and Faciens misericordiam, dd. 12th Aug. 1308 (Du Puy, p. 242 and 252. Mansi xxv. 369.) To these Bulls 127 articles of Inquisition were affixed (in Du Puy, p. 262. Michelet, p. 89), in which some additional charges, for instance the worship of a cat, are brought forward. The Papal commission appointed for France, carried on the inquiry at Paris from 7th August, 1309, to 26th May, 1311, in a very humane manner. The minutes may be found translated in Moldenhawer's Process gegen den Orden der Tempelherren, Hamburg, 1792, in the Latin original in Michelet, Procès des Templiers, t. i. Paris, 1841. 4., belonging to the Collection de Documents Inédits sur l'Hist. de France. The minutes of the inquiry carried on in England may be seen in the Concilia Magnae Brit. et Hiberniae, ii. 329. [Compare Redslob, in Zeitschrift f. hist. Theologie, 1855, s. 595, on the Figura Baffometi, that it was a cabalistic sign, meaning the Key of the House of Jéhovah, and numerically significant.]

⁷ Bernardus Guido in Vita Clementis (Baluz. i. 58) records that the Pope, in privato consistorio, on 22d March, 1312, had decreed the suppression of the Order, and at the second session of the Council, 3d April, announced this decree, praesente Rege Franciae Philippo cum tribus filiis suis, cui negotium erat cordi (comp. Contin. Chron. Guil. de Nangis in d'Achery Spicil. iii. 65). The Bull of suppression Ad providam (in Mansi xxv. 389. Rymer-Clarke II. i. 167) is dated 2d May, 1312. Here we find: Dudum siquidem Ordinem domus militiae templi Hierosolymitani propter magistrum et fratres—variis—infandis—obscoenitatibus, pravitatibus, maculis et labe respertos,—ejusque Ordinis statum, habitum atque nomen,—non per modum diffinitivae sententiae, cum eam super hoc secundum inquisitiones et processus super his habitos non possemus ferre de jure (to wit, as the Contin. Guil. de Nangis, l. c., declares, cum Ordo ut Ordo non esset adhuc convictus : the acknowledged crimes of individuals were regarded as proved), sed per viam provisionis, seu ordinationis apostolicae, irrefragabili et perpetuo valitura sustulimus sanctione. With regard to the possessions of the Order it was decreed, ut Ordini hospitalis s. Joannis Hierosolymitani—in perpetuum unirentur : exceptis bonis—Ordinis—

Clement seemed to wish to recompense himself for this humili-consistentibus in regnis—Castellae, Aragoniae, Portugalliae et Majoricarum regum illustrium (in Aragon the Order of Montesa, founded in 1317, received these possessions, in Portugal the Order of Christ, founded in 1319; see Havemann's Gesch. d. Ausgangs d. Tempelherrnordens, s. 336). That the Order of St. John, notwithstanding the payment of vast sums over to the Pope and King, still did not come into possession of all their property, may be seen in Raynouard, p. 197. Havemann, s. 333, Wilcke, ii. 63). It is remarkable that even after this Papal Bull of suppression, the Council of Saragossa (10th Aug. 1312 ff.) pronounced the Templars of this place guiltless, after a previous examination, and decreed them a maintenance (Mansi xxv. 516: The publication of the minutes of this Council, promised by Peter de Marca, was never accomplished). The Grandmaster, James of Molay, was sentenced to imprisonment for life; when, however, he revoked his confession, he was burned to death on 11th March, 1314, together with another chief of the Order. (Cont. Chron. de Nangis in d'Achery, iii. 67. Villani, viii. c. 92. Raynouard, p. 205, ss.)

Dyversement de ce l'on parle
Et au monde en est grant bataille;
Mais je ne sais que vous en die.
Li uns dient que par envie,
Li autres dient autrement.

Villani, viii. c. 92. Jo. Boccacius († 1375) De Casibus Virorum Illustrium (see Bulaci, Hist. Univ. Paris. iv. 110). Especially Albericus de Rosate, Jurist about 1350, in his Dictionarium juris ed. Venet. 1601 s. v. Templo: Templarii erant magnus ordo in Ecclesia, et erant milites strenui b. Mariae. Et destructus fuit ipso tempore Clementis Papae ad pro-curationem Regis Franciae. Et, sicut audivi ab uno qui fuit examinator causae et testium, destructus fuit contra justitiam. Et mihi retulit, quod ipse Clemens protulit hoc:
etsi non per viam justitiae possit destrui, destruatur tamen per viam expedientiae, ne scandalizetur carus filius noster Rex Franciae. Thus also the historians, F. Closerer († 1384, Bibliothek d. literar. Vereins in Stuttgart, i. 51 f.), Detmar (1385, Grautoff's Lübeckische Chroniken, i. 190), Antoninus Florentinus († 1459 in Raynald. ann. 1307, no.
12), and Joannes Trithemius († 1517), maintain the injustice of the condemnation of the Order. On the other hand, all French writers of the 14th and 15th centuries, and from the 16th century onward, for a long time, almost all historians, have taken for granted that the guilt of the Templars was proven. Later writers recognize the irregularity of the proceeding; but their opinion as to the guilt of the Order is divided. Nicolai (Essay on the Charges brought against the Order of Knights Templars. Berlin, 1782) was the first to discover, in the idolatry attributed to the Templars, an esoteric mystery of Gnosticism, into which men were initiated in the three degrees of the Order; he explained Baffometus, the supposed idol of the Templars, to be $\beta\alpha\phi\delta\mu\eta\tauov\varsigma$, a gnostic symbol. V. Hammer (Mysterium Baphometis Revelatum, in the Fundgruben des Orients Bd. 6. st. 1. Wien, 1818) concluded from some imagery, which he considered to belong to the Temple, that the Templars were Ophites, and their idolatry a worship of the powers of nature, especially the power of procreation. Wilcke (Gesch. des Tempelherrnordens, i. 342. ff.) considers the mystery of the Temple a Mohammedan gnosticism; Leo (*Gesch.
d. Mittelalters*, i. 364), a frivolous Deism, which secured the secrecy of its followers by a disgraceful initiation: in like manner, Rehm (Gesch. d. Mittelalters III. i. 235) and Schlosser (Weltgesch. IV. i. 192): Michelet (Revue des Deux Mondes, x. 318) considers it as a symbolical denial, an imitation of St. Peter's. Defenders of the Order: Herder, historic doubts on Nicolai's book, etc. (in the Deutsche Mercur, 1782, March, etc., with additions in Herder's Works on Philosophy and History, Carlsruhe edition, xiii. 266); Munter on the principal charges brought against the Order of the Temple (in Henke's Neue Magazin, v. 351); Raynouard, Monumens Historiques relatifs à la Condamnation des ation to France by an extension of his power abroad. Against

Chevaliers du Temple, Paris, 1813, and his later treatises in refutation of Hammer, in the Journal des Savans, Mars et Avril, 1819, Biblioth. universelle, x. 327, xi. 3, especially the note in Michaud, Hist. des Croisades éd. 4. v. 572; W. G. Soldan über d. Process der Templer (in Raumer's Hist. Taschenbuch, 1845, s. 389); W. Havemann's Gesch. d. Ausgangs d. Tempelherrnordens, Stuttg. u. Tübingen, 1846; G. J. Rooijens de Beschuldigingen tegen de Tempelorde (in Kist en Royaards nederlandsch Archief voor kerkelijke Geschiedenis, vii. 5). It can not but be allowed that Philip desired the condemnation of the Templars from ambition and self-interest, and compelled the Pope to this measure; that the confessions of the Templars are as unworthy of belief as all others extorted by torture in the inquisitorial trials of the day; that many Templars under torture had confessed what was manifestly false and preposterous (thus two stated at Alais, that the devil appeared as a cat, and fiends as women in their chapters; that the cat and an idol-head had spoken, Ménard, Hist. de Nismes, i., Preuves, p. 211, 212); that the Templars who confessed at first, could not revoke their confession even before the Papal commission of inquiry without fear of being burned alive as relapsed (for the Papal commissaries declared repeatedly, e.g. Michelet, Procès des Templiers, p. 43, quod non intromittebant se de facto singularium personarum, sed de facto ordinis, comp. p. 28, accordingly they delivered over all proceedings against individuals to the customary inquisitors); and that in fine many depositions of the Templars, which assert their innocence, carry with them a high degree of moral probability (e.g. Amerius de Villaribus in Michelet, p. 276, Johannes de Pollencourt, p. 369). But, on the other side, the following considerations also must be thrown into the scale. 1. Of all who confessed, by far the greater number acknowledge only the denial of Christ, and in spite of all torture repel the rest of the charges. Thus Gerardus de Pasagio (Michelet, p. 212) confesses the denial, says that on this account he had retired from the Order five years before, but he pleads innocence of sodomy and idolatry, and says, p. 218, quod propter dictos articulos, quia non confitebatur eos coram baylico regio Matisconensi, fuit quaestionatus ponderibus appensis in genitalibus suis et in aliis membris quasi usque ad examinationem. 2. Many declare that they had already made confession of this denial to priests, who did not belong to the Order; they mention their names, and give their expressions, and the penances which they had imposed upon them, comp. Michelet, p. 273, 303, 361, 523, 526, 528, 533, 545. 3. Baldwynus de s. Justo, Praeceptor, says in Michelet, p. 241, that he, vi et metu tormentorum confessus fuit plura coram ipsis Praedicatoribus quam postea Parisius coram domino Episcopo,—et plus quam non deponat coram dominis commissariis. Still he continued to acknowledge the denial; he believed, however, p. 244, quod abnegationes ab aliquibus et in aliquibus locis fierent, sicut ipse fecit: scit tamen bene, ut dixit, quod in aliquibus locis non fiebant dictae abnegationes. 4. Others who were not Templars asserted, that even before the investigation, intimations had been given to them by friends of their own who were Templars, of secret abominations in the Order, without any more accurate statement. Thus Radulphus de Praellis in Michelet, p. 175, Antonius Syci de Vercellis, public notary, p. 644. 5. The Grandmaster and several officers of high rank, who must have retained a lively sense that it was their especial duty to defend the honor of their Order, who also as knights were accustomed to look death in the face, confess directly and repeatedly, but only to the denial. The after-declaration of the Grandmaster, before the Papal commission, by no means contradicts, as has been often supposed, his former confessions. When the Bull Faciens misericordiam, and in it his deposition taken down before the Cardinals, was read over to him (Michelet, p. 34), producendo bis signum crucis coram facie sua et in aliis signis praetendere videbatur, se esse valde stupefactum de his, quae continebantur super praedicta confessione sua et aliis in literis apostolicis supradictis, dicens inter alia, quod si dicti domini commissarii fuissent alii, quibus licaret hoc audire, ipse dicceret aliud. Et eum fuisse responsum eidem per dictos dominos commissarios, quod ipsi non erant ad recipiendum vadium duelli, subjunxit dictus Magister, quod non intendebat dicere de hoc, sed placeret Deo, quod illud quod observatur a Saracenis et Tartaris observaretur contra tales perversos

Venice, with which he had begun a quarrel about the possession in hoc casu, nam dicti Saraceni et Tartari abscondunt caput perversis inventis, vel scindunt eos per medium. He does not here declare that the statements with regard to his former avowals were false, but his reproaches are aimed against the Commissaries before whom he was standing. His avowal was employed as evidence of the guilt of the Order, and the Commissaries explained to him, that their investigation was concerned only with the guilt of the Order, not with that of individuals: he, however, had expected that the guilt of individuals would be punished, but the innocence of the Order be recognized. To attain the latter end he needed the assistance of counsel, which he as well as many other Templars had demanded; he did not require it for the explanation of his own confession. Accordingly, as a miles illiteratus, he declined the defense of the Order (p. 42), but he recalled to their recollection its services to the Church. Also the last words of Molay before his death, with regard to which, at any rate, we can look for no more trustworthy statement, neither in Villani (Muratori scriptt. xiii. 430) nor elsewhere, are to be explained by his grief at the disgraceful end of his Order, and besides by the fact that he had been made to contribute to it by his confession: accordingly he refused to repeat his confession, and asserted the innocence of the Order. 6. It has been concluded from the manner of the suppression, that Clement acknowledged the innocence of the Order, but could not escape from Philip's importunity. However, it is much more consistent with the foregoing circumstances to conjecture that the Pope wished to avoid a public inquiry and condemnation, by means of which the hidden abominations existing in the Order would have been brought to light in an incontrovertible manner, because it might easily exercise an unwholesome influence upon public opinion with regard to all ecclesiastical orders. Accordingly, we must believe that the charge of apostasy was better grounded than the other charges brought against the Order. It is in the highest degree probable, that it was a common occurrence in the Order, that sometimes immediately after the statutory initiation, sometimes after an interval, the initiated person was required, either by one officer, generally the officiator at the ceremony, or by more than one, commonly without further witnesses, to deny Christ and spit upon the cross. Stephen of Stapelbrugge states for this reason (Conc. Magnae Brit. ii. 383): duae sunt professiones in Ordine Templi, prima licita et bona, et secunda est contra fidem: Geraldus de Causso in Michelet, p. 379, et Mattheus de Tilleyo, p. 358, describe both forms of admission with the greatest minuteness. It was given as the reason for the denial of Christ that it was, de punctis Ordinis (Michelet, p. 222, 475), quod ita servabatur in Ordine (p. 194), quia sic erat in Ordine consuetum (p. 335). On the other hand, the brethren were very far from taking this in earnest: the cross which they denied was afterward regarded with the greatest reverence by the initiator and the initiated (p. 361): all the Templars who avow the denial, assert at the same time their orthodoxy, and declare that they believe their brethren also to be orthodox. When Egidius de Rotangi refused the denial (p. 464), quia erat bonus Christianus, the initiator answered him: talem vos reputamus et esse volumus, sed oportet vos abnegare, quia hoc est de punctis Ordinis nostri. To an initiated, surprised by the denial, another Templar declares it to be pro trufa (p. 510). On the other side, many who had themselves denied Christ, assert that the denial was not universal in the Order; so Baldwynus de s. Justo, p. 244; see above, Geraldus de Causso, p. 392; Guido Delphini, p. 415. Therefore Ponzardus de Gysiaco, p. 36, denies, ipsum Ordinem abnegare Jesum Christum et spuere super crucem: the Order was guiltless, though some members were guilty. With regard to the origin of this evil custom no satisfactory information is furnished by the minutes. The serving brother, Mattheus de Tilleyo (Michelet, p. 361), believed that the denial was required of him, ut esset eis (superioribus) magis subjectus et in maiorem confusionem suam, si vellet erlgere se contra superiorem suum. But this gives us no clew to the reason for its first introduction. Probably some Arabian charms, which were supposed to make men victorious and strong, but which had no effect upon a man unless he renounced his allegiance to Christ by denial, were known to many Christian knights during the Crusades, and were appropriated especially by the ambitious Templars, always with the understanding that they would afterward be able to reconcile themselves to the Church in time enough for the salvation of their souls. The unfortunate issue of the Crusades was frequently ascribed to the magic arts of the Saracens. Even a Roger Bacon, Opus majus ed. Jebb. p. 253, writes: Et ideo Tartari procedunt in omnibus per viam astronomiae, et in praevisione futurorum et in operibus sapientiae. Cujus signum est evidens, quod cum sit gens habens parvos et debiles homines,—jam totam latitudinem mundi prostraverunt. Similiter Saraceni multum utuntur astronomia, et sciunt sapientes inter eos facere haec opera. Et nisi Ecclesia occurrat per sancta consilia ad impediendum et destruendum opera hujusmodi, aggravabitur intolerabiliter flagellis Christianorum. Si igitur Christiani scirent haec opera auctoritate papali facienda ad impedienda mala Christianorum, satis esset laudabile, et non solum propter mala repellenda, sed ad promotionem quorumcunque utilium. This opinion naturally took a rude form among rude soldiers. The Sirvente of the Troubadour, le Chevalier du Temple, Div. 2, § 56, note 23, shows with how great resentment the Knights Templars regarded the fruitlessness of their efforts in Palestine. Christ seemed to sleep, the great wizard Mohammed to rule alone, so whoever wishes for good luck and success must borrow of him. The rude soldiers were too much wanting in education to adopt the mysterious sciences of the Saracens, as Bacon would have it; but they found among them certain charms and talismans to keep them unwounded and victorious in battle, to win them kingdom, honor, and might, and so forth, the use of which was easily learned (with reference to the magic of this age, see the Bull of John XXII., Super illius specula, in the Bullarium Romanum; Meiner's Comparison of the Manners of the Middle Ages with those of our Century, iii. 182): the advantage of the Order, which they had been long wont to prefer even to the interest of the Church (Div. 2, § 72, note 13), covered the guilt. That the Templars were often united in very close connection with Mohammedan princes is well known. Frederick II. relates, that two sultans were received into a stronghold of the Templars and allowed to celebrate their worship. (Div. 2, § 72.) Afterward a Praeceptor in Sidon concluded a treaty of alliance with the Sultan of Babylon, with the ceremony of mutually drinking each other's blood (Michelet, p. 645). The denial of Christ may have been a preparation for the reception of a magic charm, which perhaps consisted in the peculiar fashion of the neck-lace which the Templars wore. After the close of the war the tradition of the magic charm was lost, but the denial was retained in a large part of the Order, for those who had themselves denied Christ found some relief under their guilt in imposing it as a custom of the Order upon those who were admitted. In consequence of this one impious custom, the mysterious rites, as they were then practiced in many ways upon novices, might easily assume an impious form, and gradually be accepted by many in real earnest. Thus may the filthy kisses, which next to the denial were most frequently avowed, be easily accounted for. Thus also the charge that the Order enjoined sodomy; the frequent representation of two Templars upon one horse, furnished their coarse wit with a handle for this assertion; and thus the tale of the head of Mohammed, what was originally a metal saint's head with relics, such as are still found sometimes upon (Roman) Catholic altars, may have been misinterpreted as such by military profane ness. That the apparition of fiends in the chapters was afterward added by popular superstition is self-evident. [Cf. Hammer Purgstall, D. Schuld, d. Templer. 8. Wien, 1855, from the fourth vol. of the Memoirs of the Vienna Academy, defending the accusation of Manicheism.]

tain absolution only by submission (1313).¹¹ He demeaned himself no less imperiously toward the German monarch, Henry VII.¹² When this young and gallant prince, on his march to Rome (1310 sq.), vindicating once more the long-forgotten imperial rights in Italy,¹³ acted toward Robert, king of Naples, who had immediately met him with hostilities, as toward a vassal, the Pope was not satisfied with merely asserting his own feudal authority over Sicily, but also ventured, by setting up the Papal right of universal monarchy in opposition to the Imperial claim founded on the fundamental principles of the Roman jurists,¹⁴ to attempt to mediate peace, as if between two of his own conflicting vassals.¹⁵ Henry's

Besides there is also the statement (ibid. no. 7), Venetos in servitatem addictos, occupantibus bona direptioni sive in Italia sive in Graecia exposita, and the injunction on all princes and bishops to spoil and enslave the Venetians found in their dominions.

Schardt Syntagma Tractatum de Imperiali Jurisdictione. Basil, 1566, and Argent, 1609, fol. p. 80), when he endeavored to prove, Monarcham Romanum de jure esse Monarcham mundi, et immediate a Deo dependere, non ab aliquo Dei vicario vel ministro, quem Petri successorem intelligo. Henry himself decidedly asserted this idea in a law issued at Pisa in 1312 (Extravagantes, quas nonnulli xi. Collationem appellant, Tit. I. at the end of the Codex Justin.): divina praecepta, quibus jubetur, quod omnis anima Romanorum Principi sit subjecta.

¹⁵ Clement wrote to Henry and Robert (Raynald. ann. 1312, no. 44), quod cum ipsis Reges, ejusdem Ecclesiae specialissimi filii, sibi juramento fidelitatis et alias multipliciter essent adstricti, ipsius Ecclesiae debeant esse promptissimi defensores. Henry, on firmness gave reason to expect a wide-reaching struggle,¹⁶ when sudden death carried him off at Buonconvento, in the territory of Siena (24th August, 1313);¹⁷ and now Clement could publish the

the other side, caused a declaration to be made in public instruments, se non fore cuiquam ad juramentum fidelitatis adstrictum.

¹⁷ According to common report he died of poison, which is supposed to have been administered to him by the Dominican Bernardino of Montepulciano in the Lord's Supper. True, the Italian historians of the time mostly allow him to have died of disease (Albertinus Mussatus, the Dominican Ptolemaeus Lucensis, Ferretus Vicentinus, Giov. Vilani), and some contradict expressly the tale of the poisoning: only Giovanni di Lelmo, likewise a contemporary, in his Chronicle of S. Miniato (in Lamii Deliciae Eruditorum, Florent. 1740, p. 106), records it in plain language. On the other hand, among the German retainers of the Emperor, the story was generally believed; and from this circle the author of the Gesta Baldiuni, lib. ii. c. 17 (Gesta Trevir. ed. Müller et Wyttensbach, ii. 230), who was closely connected with the Emperor's brother, Baldwin, archbishop of Trêves, reports it in a decided and circumstantial manner (viz. postea sui prudentissimi intelligentes medici ipsum nulla infirmitate alia, quam intoxicationis materia graviter laborare, sibi indicarunt, devotissime supplicarunt, quod hanc intoxicationis materiam sineret eos per inferendum sibi vomitum radicitus revocare. Quibus fertur respondisse: malo migrando ad Dominum diem claudere extreum, quam generare scandalum in sacrum dominicum et detrimentum Christianorum); and Henry, high-steward of Diesenhofen, canon of Constance, and chaplain to Pope John XXII., states in his additions to Ptolemaeus Lucensis (comp. Docen in Büchler's u. Dümge's Archiv d. Gesellschaft f. altere deutsche Geschichtskunde, ii. 26): intoxicatus fuit per quendam Fratrem de Ordine Praedicatorum in speciebus corporis Christi, ut a suis audivi, qui secum fuerunt. Thus all the German chronicles of the 14th century and many poems (Romantiae, chronicæ et cantilena ac moteti, in the so-called Diploma of King John of Bohemia) record this story of the poisoning; in some it is further stated that the instigators of the poisoning were the Pope and certain Italian cities (Closener, s. 52), or only the cities hostile to the Emperor (Vitoduranus, p. 20), or Engeranus de Marigny, Thesaurarius Regis Franciae (Chron. Corn. Zantflet in Martene et Durand Ampl. Collectio, v. 163). The Dominican Order afterward endeavored to clear itself of this disgrace by evidence, for instance by the evidence of John, king of Bohemia, son of the Emperor Henry; this evidence, however, was first brought forward in Hermanni Korneri (a Dominican at Lübeck, about 1438), Chronica Novella (in Eccardi Corp. Historic. Med. Aevi, ii. 984), who had discovered it as copied in the archives of his monastery. In the 17th century it was published from the Dominican archives at Luxemburg, in Bertelli Histor. Luxemb. p. 49, from those at Verdun in Baluzii Miscell. i. 162. As it is, now, quite incredible that the originals, being of such vast importance to the Dominicans, should have been lost, and that these witnesses should not have been brought forward in the 14th century, if they had been in existence; so, besides, their spuriousness is manifested even by the difference of the copies from each other. The evidence of John of Bohemia is dated 1326 in one copy, in the other 1346, and, nevertheless, is authenticated in Körner by John, bishop of Strasburg, in 1314. The way in which these evidences arose is explained by a passage of a manuscript in the Vatican Library, which Höfler (Münchener gel. Anz. February, 1846, s. 222) contributes. After the mention of a report of poisoning, it proceeds: Quod tamen falsum esse asseruit illustrissimus Rex Bohemiae, Heinrici praefati Imperatoris filius, plenissime Praedicatorem habens excusatum. Similiter illustrissima domina Beatrix praefati Imperatoris genitrix vivae vocis oraculo excusat publico coram civibus Metensibus intra Missarum solemnia praedictum confessorem cum multis aliis, quod Imperatori erat cordatissimus; omnes Imperatorem affirmant sinc omni suspicione toxicí naturali morte quiete vitam finivisse. Quae omnia publice praedicari praecepit Episcopus Johannes Argentinensis in eadem dioecesi, de quibus literae sunt sane sigillatae in conventu Ordinis Praedicatorum in Nürenberga. Thus, at first a document from John, bishop of Strasburg, was shown, in which this evidence was stated as given by word of mouth; afterward the evidence of John, king of Bohemia, and others, was drawn up in writing, which must have been authenticated by John, bishop of Strasburg. The question whether Henry was poisoned could only have been solved by an inquiry instituted immediately after his death, but now it can not be decided at all. As it was wrong to maintain the affirmative, first out of hatred to the Order, with a view to make the misdeed of an individual member the crime of the entire society, afterward to use the charge in the Protestant controversy against the (Roman) Catholic clergy (see especially Mart. Dieffenbach, De Vero Mortis Genere, ex quo Henricus VII. Imp. obiit. Francof. 1685. 4.); so, on the other hand, it does not admit of absolute denial with Barthold (Römerzug K. Heinrichs v. Lützelburg, Th. 2, Beil. s. 3), and Böhmer (Regesta Imperii from 1246 to 1313, s. 311). Either way it is a fact of less historical importance, whether the Dominican did commit this crime or not, than that general opinion, in Germany, attributed it to him with great consistency, and in part even accused the Pope of instigating the deed.

¹⁸ In the first place he repealed the sentence of outlawry pronounced by Henry upon Robert, by the Bull Pastoralis (Clementin. lib. ii. tit. xi. c. 2: the ancient text is in Doenniges Acta Henrici VII., ii. 241; cf. praef. p. xlvi.), not only because the king, as, noster et Ecclesiae Romanae—notorie subditus homoque ligius et vasallus, was not subject to the Emperor, but also, tam ex superioritate, quam ad Imperium non est dubium nos habere, quam ex potestate, in qua, vacante Imperio, Imperatori succedimus, et nihilominus ex illius plenitudine potestatis, quam Christus—nobis—in persona b. Petri concessit. These two bold assertions were again vindicated in two special Bulls. The first (Clementin. lib. ii. tit. ix.: the ancient text is in Doenniges, ii. 237; cf. praef. l. c.), Romani Principes—non reputaverunt indignum,—Romano Pontifici, a quo approbationem personae, ad imperialis celsitudinis apicem assumendae, nec non unctionem, consecrationem, et Imperii coronam accipiunt, se adstringere vinculo juramenti. Then, as Henry had denied that this juramentum was an oath of fealty; nos,—ne quis in Romanum assumptus Principem, vel in posterum assumendus, an juramentum hujusmodi—fidelitatis rationabiliter dici possit, in dubitationem ducere audeat, vel super hoc contrarium adstruere veritati: auctoritate apostolica de fratum nostrorum consilio—declaramus, illud juramentum fidelitatis existere ac censeri debere. The other, dd. ii. Id. Mart. 1314 (in Raynald. ad h. a. no. 2), ad Robertum Regem Sicil.: Nos, ad quos Romani vacantis Imperii Regnum pertinere dignoscitur, attendentes, quam avide Italiae partes, praesertim quae ad Imperium ipsum pertinent, rectorem exigant. Te de fratum nostrorum consilio in partibus ipsis—vicarium in temporalibus usque ad sedis apostolicae beneplacitum constituipus generalem, etc.

JOHN XXII. (7TH AUGUST, 1316–4TH DECEMBER, 1334.)

After a long, interrupted, and stormy election,¹ John XXII. became Pope; notwithstanding his former promise, he likewise abode at Avignon.² Dependent upon France, and haughty toward the Empire as his predecessor, he quickly found, in the contested imperial election³ between Lewis of Bavaria and Frederick of Austria, a favorable opportunity for vindicating the newly-devised sovereignty of the Pope over the Imperial throne. He was a quiet spectator of the contest between the two candidates for the crown, that in the mean time he might rule as an arrogant administrator of the Empire, especially in Italy,⁴ and afterward hand over the

Petri terreni simul et caelestis imperii jura Deus ipse commisit, imperii praedicti jurisdictione, regimene et dispositio devolvantur, et ea, tempore durante ipsius vacationis imperii, per se vel alium seu alios exercuisse noscitur in imperio memorato, nonnulli tamen in Italiae partibus—vicariatus seu alterius cujuscumque nomen officii, quod Imperatore vivente ex ipsis commissione gerebant,—post decessum ipsius absque nostra—licentia retinere sibi—prae-

As Robert, king of Sicily, was not a fit match for him, Philip of Valois was appointed second vicar (Raynald. 1320, no. 10), but Mattheo pronounced a heretic, cum illi Ecclesia auctoritas sacrorumque religio ludibrio esset (ib. no. 13).—The Pope's attempts to interfere as Viceroy in Germany also may be seen in Olenschlager, s. 102.

sentium tenore monemus, eidem sub virtute sanctae obedientiae, ac excommunicationis poena, quam ipsum, nisi cum effectu hujusmodi monitioni nostrae paruerit, incurrire volumus ipso facto, auctoritate apostolica nihilominus injungentes, ut infra trium mensium spatium, a data praesentium computandum,—ab administratione, fautoria et defensione praedictis prorsus abstineat ac desistat; quodque gesta per eum post praesumptum ab eo titulum memoratum circa praemissa, quatenus processere de facto (cum de jure non teneant, velut ab ipso, cui jus faciendi non com-

petebat nec competit), attentata, curet infra praedictum terminum, quantum patietur possibilitas, realiter revocare. Then follows a command to all vassals of the Empire, sub poenis excommunicationis in personas, et interdicti in terras eorum, neconon privationis privilegiorum quorumcunque Apostolicorum et imperialium, ac fendorum, quae ab Ecclesia vel Imperio obtinent, to render Lewis neither obedience nor assistance. Lastly: Ut autem hujusmodi processus noster ad ipsius Ludovici—notitiam deducatur, chartas sive membranas processum continentis eundem in Ecclesia Avenionensi appendi vel affigi ostiis seu superliminaribus ejusdem Ecclesiae faciemus, quae processum ipsum suo quasi sonoro paeconio et patulo indicio publicabunt; ut idem Ludovicus et alii, quos processus ipse contingit, nullam possint excusationem praetendere, quod ad eos non pervenerit: cum non sit verisimile, quoad ipsos remanere incognitum,—quod tam patenter omnibus publicatur. As to the method of publication introduced by Boniface VIII. see Div. 2, § 59, note 33.

⁸ The Protest of Lewis before a notary and witnesses at Nuremberg, 16th December, 1323 (in Herwart, i. 248, in Olenschlager's Urkundenb. s. 84).—A tempore, cuius non est memoria, circa electos Romanorum Reges et Principes sic est de jure et consuetudine observatum,—quod Romanus Rex eo solum, quod electus est a Principibus Electoribus—omnibus vel majori numero eorundem, et coronatus corona regia in solitis locis et consuetis, Rex est,—ac jura Regni libere administrat.—Nec concedimus, ita simpliciter, ut proponitur, ad sedem apostolicam examinationem, admissionem et approbationem electionis et personae nostrae, [aut] repulsionem et reprobationem pertinere, sicut asserit. Sed si, quod non credimus, pertineret, hoc unum demum sibi locum vendicare forte posset, si per querelam, vel per viam supplicationis, appellationis vel provocationis, vel alio modo ad ipsam sedem fuisset devolutum ipsum negotium vel deductum; quae locum non obtinent in praesenti: vel si forte, petitis per nos insulis imperialibus vel denominatione nostra, ex causis legitimis jure scriptis, quas ad nos locum non credimus habuisse, personam nostram contigisset exigente justitia refutari. Denominatio quippe personae vel electionis admissio habitae subsequenter nobis non jus, nomen vel titulum tribuissent, quae jam ex ipsa electione sortiti sumus, sed ea potius detexissent, approbassent, et latius commendassent.—Quod vero adjunxit, nos Galeazio de Vicecomitibus et ejus fratribus de haeresi condemnatis—defensionem exhibuisse, penitus nihil scimus. Nam si dicti Galeazi et fratres sui sunt de haeresi condemnati, nobis non innotuit.—Imo quem favorem aut defensionem eis—exhibuimus, et quomodo sint vel fuerint rebelles Ecclesiae, non videamus; aperte conjicimus, et per effectum operis cognoscimus, nonnullos rebelles nominari Ecclesiae, qui per fidem devotionis suaे molientibus contra statum et jura Imperii renuntur.—Sed—nos astringimus et offerimus—legitime probaturos, quod ipse est dissimulator, defensor et fautor haereticae pravitatis ejus, quae totam s. Ecclesiam inficit et conturbat, et a confessione retrahit poenitentes.—Nam cum ad ipsius summi Pontificis audientiam gravibus et frequentibus Archiepiscoporum, Episcoporum—querimonis sit deductum—contra—Frates Minores,—quod ipsi sint secretae confessionis proditores, et peteretur ab eo, ut hoc—emendaret; ipse tanquam tergiversando, dissimulando et celando morbum hujusmodi—curare—non curavit, dictis Fratribus in hac parte s. Romanae Ecclesiae et fidei catholicae inimicis constituens se fautorem. Caeterum—ipse contra divinae dispositionis ordinationem, per quam in firmamento Ecclesiae militantis duo magna luminaria Deus fecit, pontificalem videlicet auctoritatem et imperatoriam maiestatem, illud ut praeesset diei, spiritualia disponendo, alterum ut praeesset nocti, temporalia judicando, manifeste nititur luminaris alterius, potestatis scilicet radios saccularis suffocare: unde in confusione et errorem sancta reponetur Ecclesia, causabuntur haereses, ingerentur lites, suscitabuntur scandala, et Ecclesia Romana, carens praeposito advoco, resistere non poterit insurgentibus ex adverso. Nos igitur,—sentiens, nos et jura Imperii et nostra, sanctam professionem catholicam, sanctam Romanam Ecclesiam ex praedictis processibus—graviter et enormiter—aggravatos esse;—a processibus dicti

nounced sentence of excommunication upon him (21st March, 1324).⁹

Thus the insatiable Papacy began once more the war against the Empire, in order to rob the German crown of its remaining lustre by means of newly devised rights, and to crush one of the best of the German Emperors. Public opinion, once the most dangerous ally of the Papal See, was now, however, especially at first, rather against than for the unrighteous usurper. The jurists were the natural allies of the Emperor;¹⁰ not all even of the can-

Pontificis manifeste inquis—sanctam sedem apostolicam—appellamus.—Cum vero propter praemissos articulos—opus sit convocatione concilii generalis, instanter et cum omni devotione ipsum, quam primum commode poterit, ad locum communem et aptum petimus congregari.

⁹ The Processus secundus of 9th January, 1324 (in Martene et Durand Thes. Anecd. ii. 647), contains nothing more than a confirmation of the first, and a further respite of two months. The Processus tertius of 21st March, 1324 (in Martene, l. c. p. 652. Olen-schlager, in the work quoted above, s. 96): Nos adhuc volentes cum eodem electo uti potius mansuetudine quam rigore,—per infra scriptum modum duximus ordinandum, vide-licet quod ad publicationem sententiae excommunicationis,—in qua idem electus propter suam in praedictis inobedientiam et contemptum incidisse dignoscitur, procedentes, ab aliarum poenarum publicatione, in quas similiter incidit, supersedeamus ad praesens. Then Lewis was ordered, sub pena privationis omnis juris, si quod sibi ex sua electione —quocumodo competit, to render obedience within three months: ac insuper infra dictum terminum per se vel procuratorem—compareat coram nobis, super dictis excessibus —definitivam sententiam et beneplacitum, quantum officium nostrum patitur, auditurus, ac alias facturus et recepturus quod justitia suadebit. The threats issued in the first process against his adherents were repeated. Et licet contra civitates, communites, universitates, et singulares personas alias, quae in praedictis vel circa ea forsitan deliquerint,—ad debitam impositionem poenarum propter hoc fuisse meritio procedendum, tamen de apostolicae sedis gratia adhuc providimus expectandum. All persons, how-ever, who from this time forward should continue to render obedieuce or assistance to Lewis, were, ipso facto, to incur excommunication or interdict, from which the Pope only could absolve them.

¹⁰ The great jurist, Bartolus de Saxoferrato (in Bologna, † 1356), in his Comm. super secund. partem ff. novi (in Dig. lib. xlix. tit. 15, de captiv. et de postlim. l. 24), demon-strates in detail the universal monarchy of the Emperor, and concludes: si quis diceret, dominum Imperatorem non esse dominum et monarcham totius orbis, esset haereticus: quia diceret contra determinationem Ecclesiae (comp. Div. 2, § 59, note 31), et contra textum s. Evangelii, dum dicit: Exiit edictum a Caesare Augusto, ut describeretur uni-versus orbis, ut habes Luc. ii. vel. iii. cap. et ita etiam recognovit Christus Imperatorem ut dominum. But comp. ad Dig. lib. xlviij. tit. 17, de requir. reis l. 1, § 2. Praesides: Dantes—in uno libro, quem fecit, qui vocatur, monarchia—disputavit tres quaestiones, quarum una fuit, an imperium dependeat ab Ecclesia, et tenuit, quod non: sed post mor-tem suam quasi propter hoc fuit damnatus de haeresi. Nam Ecclesia tenet, quod Im-perium dependeat ab Ecclesia pulcherrimis rationibus, quas omitto, tenendo istud, quod imperium dependeat ab Ecclesia. The following passage is characteristic; it is on the question, whether Henry VII. could summon Robert, and on the Bull Pastoralis (§ 98, note 18): Cynus (Bartolus's teacher, † 1341), disputavit istam questionem Senis, et di-cit, quod ista citatio potest fieri.—Sed ad illam decretalem dicit ipse: non potest dari re-sponsum in pace, sed pertranseat cum aliis erroribus Canonistarum. Ita dicit ipse. Ego consuevi tenere illam decretalem, tamquam existens in terris Ecclesiae, dicens eam esse veram de jure. Nam, etc. Thus the Papal jurist makes the universal monarchy of the onists were able to keep pace with the bold encroachments of Papal claims.¹¹ The sense of justice among the German people

Emperor to be dependent upon the Pope, as Boniface VIII. did (Div. 2, § 59, note 31).—Albericus de Rosate is worthy of consideration (from Bergamo, † 1354). In his Lectura super Cod. he argues indeed very rationally against the universal monarchy claimed by the Emperor, ad Cod. lib. 1. t. 1. 1. 1, no. 7; but afterward, ad l. 7. § Gloriosissimo, no. 6, he declares: Quidquid ergo dicatur, credo potestates esse distinctas, ut unus praesit in spiritualibus sc. Papa, alter in temporalibus. He enlarges most fully on the relations of the Papal and Imperial power, ad Cod. lib. vii. tit. 39: De quadriennii praescriptione, 1. 3, Bene a Zenone. Here are some remarkable reminiscences from earlier times, e. g. omnes Clerici et Ecclesiae antiquitus suberant Imperatori.—Eodem modo posset dici de electione Papae, nam olim eligebatur per Imperatorem.—Et ista forte privilegia perdidit Imperium de facto potius quam de jure, propter longam vacationem ejusdem et potentiam et prudentiam summorum pontificum et aliorum praesidentium Romanae Ecclesiae. In fine: Nunc illam duram et subtilem quaestionem aggredior, utrum Imperator ex sola electione concordi vel a majori parte facta dicatur verus Imperator, et omnimodam administrationem et potestatem habeat circa privilegia concedenda et omnia alia, an vero indigeat confirmatione, unctione, examinatione, coronatione Papae. After unfolding in detail the reasons for and against, he proceeds: Quid ergo in tanta jurium Doctorum et glossarum varietate tenebimus? Dominus Olradius (de Ponte, Advocatus consistorialis, and much employed by John XXII. † 1320), sequebatur opinionem, quod administrare non posset.—In eadem opinione fuit Ostiensis (Henricus Card. Ostiensis, canonist about 1260), and other canon-lawyers. Contrarian opinionem tenuit Jacobus de Arena (about 1280, Prof. juris in Padua), qui hanc quaestionem publice disputavit, et cuius disputationem inseruit hic Cynus (jurist at Bologna and Perugia, † 1341), qui eandem opinionem clare hic sequitur. Eandem opinionem sequitur Guilelmus Naso (from him are glossae ad Decretales; see Savigny's Gesch. d. Röm. Rechts im Mittelalter, iii. 583, 585),—qui dicit quod eligendo confirmatur, sicut dominus Papa,—quia sacerdotium et imperium parum discrepant. Et tenet, quod privilegia per eum concessa valeant etiam si cassaretur ejus electio. Hanc etiam opinionem sequitur Innocentius (IV. who had written a Comm. in Decretales Pontificum), d. c. Venerabilem (Decr. Greg. i. 6, 34), in glossa art. quod sicut potest, ubi haec verba ponit: Credimus tamen, quod, si Imperator coronam in loco debito recipere non possit, nihilominus auctoritate ministrandi ab Archiepiscopo Coloniensi posset recipere, vel sua auctoritate, quam habet ex electione. Haec ibi. Et hanc opinionem veriorem puto per jura et rationes ad hoc adductas, et maxime auctoritate dicti domini Innocentii et aliorum hoc tenentium. Alias sequeretur maxima absurditas, quod cum Imperium et Imperatores fuerunt ante Papam,—et multo etiam tempore Papae fuerunt non confirmati nec coronati ab eo, immo eligebant Papam, ut praedictum est, videretur, quod gesta per eos non valuerint, et sic leges civiles et multa subverterentur. Hanc etiam opinionem sequitur quidam magister Joannes Parisiensis (Div. 1, § 59, note 36), et Dantes de Florentia (above, § 98, note 14).—De hoc fuit magna concertatio tempore Joannis XXII. et successoris sui Benedicti XII. inter eos et dominum Ludovicum de Bavaria, electum in Imperatorem. Et me existente tunc in Romana curia, audivi magnos Praelatos et etiam laicos, utrosque juris peritos, in hanc opinionem inclinare tamquam veriorem.—Praesidentes Romanae Ecclesiae eorum astuta et sagaci prudenter secundum temporum varietatem sua variaverunt statuta, modo Imperium sublimando, modo pauplatim deprimendo de tempore in tempus: sed considerato initio cuiuslibet puto potestates fuisse distinctas, et si quaelibet fuisse contenta suis limitibus, et una alteram coadjuvasset, sicut facere tenentur, puto, quod pax esset in universo orbe.

decided more readily for Lewis,¹² as it continually became more plain that the Pope had no other end in view than the elevation of the King of France to the Imperial throne.¹³ But the taint of heresy had no less influence upon popular feeling: the active Minorites, persecuted by the Pope, and seeking refuge under the Emperor, cast this imputation upon the former.¹⁴ The authors who now came forward on the Emperor's side, Marsilius of Padua († after 1342), physician in ordinary to the Emperor, and John of Jandun († after 1338),¹⁵ advancing far beyond the empty formal-

VI. Legislatorem humanum solam civium universitatem esse, aut valentiorum illius partem. VII. Decretales vel Decreta Romanorum aut aliorum quorumlibet pontificum, communiter aut divisim, absque concessione legislatoris humani constituta, neminem obligare poena vel suppicio temporali. VIII. In humanis legibus solum legislatorem vel illius auctoritate alterum dispensare posse. X. Cujuslibet principatus aut alterius officii per electionem instituendi, praeceps vim coactivam habentis, electionem a solius legislatoris expressa voluntate pendere. XV. XIX. Conjugia—divina lege, nova praesertim, prohibita per mortalem neminem dispensari posse; humana vero lege prohibita ad solius legislatoris vel per ipsum principiantis auctoritatem pertinere. XXI. XXXIII. Generale Concilium aut partiale sacerdotum et Episcoporum ac reliquorum fidelium per coactivam potestatem congregare, ad fidelem legislatorem aut ejus auctoritate principantem in communitatibus fidelium tantummodo pertinere, nec in aliter congregato determinata vim aut robur habere. According to Concl. XXXII. a general council alone could constitute and abolish metropolitan sees, and, according to Concl. XXXV., canonize saints; thus also Concl. XXXVI.: Episcopis aut Presbyteris aliquique templorum ministris si uxores interdicere convenient, reliqua quoque circa ecclesiasticum ritum, per generale solum fidelium Concilium id statui et ordinari; et illud solum collegium, aut personam in hoc cum praedictis dispensare posse, cui data fuerit ejus auctoritas per Concilium supra dictum. Concl. XXXVII. A judicio coactivo, Episcopo vel sacerdoti concesso, semper ad legislatorem contendentem (leg. concedentem) licet appellare, vel ad ejus auctoritate principantem. Concl. XL. The historical elucidations of the origin of the hierarchy are remarkable, cf. P. II. c. 15, p. 239: Haec nomina, Presbyter et Episcopus, in primitiva Ecclesia fuerunt synonyma, quamvis a diversis proprietatibus eidem imposita fuerint. Nam Presbyter ad aetate nomen impositum est, quasi senior; Episcopus vero a dignitate seu cura super alios, quasi superintendens. Proofs are given from Jerome. Phil. i. 1, etc.; see vol. i. Div. 1, § 30, note 1.—Post haec autem Apostolorum tempora numero sacerdotum notabiliter aucto ad scandalum et schisma evitandum elegerunt sacerdotes unum ex ipsis, qui alios dirigeret et ordinaret, quantum ad ecclesiasticum officium et servitium exercendum et oblata distribuendum, ac reliqua disponendum convenientiori modo, ne istud quolibet pro libito faciente oeconomia et servitium templorum turbaretur propter affectionum diversitates. Hic siquidem electus —ex posteriorum consuetudine retinuit sibi soli nomen Episcopi, quasi superintendentis. —Verum jam dicta electio seu institutio per hominem—nihil amplioris meriti essentialis seu sacerdotalis auctoritatis—tribuit, sed solum ordinationis oeconomiae in domo Dei seu templo potestatem quandam, alios sacerdotes—ordinandi et regulandi, quomodo Priori datur potestas in monachos.—Et ideo secundum veritatem et intentionem Hieronymi non aliud est Episcopus quam Archipresbyter. Cap. 16 demonstrates, Apostolorum neminem ad alias habuisse preaeminentiam from Luc. xxii. 19; Jo. xx. 21, 22; Gal. ii. 6-9. Nullam ergo potestatem, eoque minus coactivam jurisdictionem habuit Petrus a Deo immediate super Apostolos reliquos, neque instituendi eos in officio sacerdotali, neque segregandi eos seu mittendi ad officium praedicationis, nisi quod hoc sane concedi potest, ipsum fuisse priorem alii aetate vel officio fortasse secundum tempus, aut Apostolorum electione, qui eum propterea reverebantur merito, quamvis hanc electionem ex Scriptura nemo convincere possit. Signum autem, verum esse quod diximus, est, quoniam b. Petrum nullam sibi assumpsisse singulariter auctoritatem supra reliquos Apostolos invenimus ex Scriptura, sed magis cum ipsis aequalitatem servasse. For proof see Acts xv.—Sicut Petrus Antiochiae legitur electus in Episcopum per fidelium multitudinem, aliorum Apostolorum confirmatione non indigens, sic et Apostolorum reliqui praefuerunt in aliis provinciis absque Petri scientia, institutione, vel consecratione aliqua: fuerant enim per Christum consecrati sufficenter. Propter quod similiter opinandum, horum Apostolorum successores non indiguisse aliqua confirmatione successorum Petri: quinimo multi successores aliorum Apostolorum fuerunt electi et instituti Episcopi rite, ipsorumque provincias sancte rexerunt absque alia institutione vel confirmatione de ipsis facta per successores Petri. Et extitit hoc sic legitimate observatum usque quasi ad tempora Constantini Imp.—Quod si tamen Apostoli b. Petrum tanquam sibi Episcopum elegissent; non tamen ex hoc sequeretur, quod ipsius successores in Romana sede vel alia, si alibi fuit Episcopus, hanc prioritatem habeant super aliorum successores, nisi a reliquorum successoribus eligerentur ad hoc: majoris enim virtutis fuerunt aliqui successores aliorum quibusdam successoribus Petri.—Rursum cur magis conveniret hoc successoribus ejus in sede Romana, quam in Antiochenia vel Hierosolymita vel alia, si Episcopus in pluribus extisset? Amplius quilibet Episcopus quantum ad intrinsecam dignitatem—indifferenter successor est cuiuslibet Apostoli, et ejusdem meriti sive perfectionis quantum ad dignitatem praedictam sive characterem, quoniam omnes hunc eundem ab uno efficiente—Christo, non ab eo qui manus imposuit.—Jam dictis autem audiri desuetis mirabilius est, quia desuetum amplius et inopinabile fortassis videbitur, si non falsum: quod ex certo Scripturae testimonio convinci potest, Romanos Episcopos magis esse successores, quantum ad provinciam et gentem, Apostoli Pauli quam Petri.—Cum per Scripturam constet evidenter, Paulum Romae fuisse biennio, et ibidem omnes suscepisse gentiles converti volentes,—constat ipsum fuisse Romanum Episcopum specialiter.—De beato vero Petro—dico per Scripturam sacram convinci non posse, ipsum Romanum Episcopum, et quod amplius est, ipsum unquam Romae fuisse.—Sed per Scripturam sacram indubitanter tenendum, b. Paulum fuisse Romauum Episcopum, et si quis alter cum ipso Romae fuerit, tamen Paulum singulariter et principaliter—fuisse Rom. Episcopum, b. vero Petrum Antiochiae, ut appareat ad Gal. ii: Romae vero non contradico, sed verisimiliter teneo, ipsum in hoc non praevenisse Paulum, sed potius e converso.—Cap. 18, p. 251. Unde Romanus Episcopus et Ecclesia—super caeteros sibi quendam primatum assumpsit.—Nemo Episcoporum per omne tempus illud (until the time of Constantine) in alios Episcopos coactivam jurisdictionem exercuit. Quamvis tamen aliarum provinciarum Episcopi plures, in quibus dubitabant, tam de Scriptura sacra, quam de ritu ecclesiastico, non audentes se publice congregare, consuluerunt Episcopum et Ecclesiam fidelium existentem Romae,

propter majorem ibidem forte fidelium multitudinem et magis peritiorem, eo quod studia scientiarum omnium tunc multum Romae vigebant.—Unde etiam provinciarum aliarum fideles, sufficient personarum carentes, ad ipsorum Ecclesias gubernandas ab Episcopo et Ecclesia Romana fidelium postulabant personas sibi ad episcopatum praeficiendas, eo quod Ecclesia fidelium Romiae personis talibus, ut jam diximus, amplius abundabat. Episcopi vero et Ecclesia Romanorum sic requisiti—charitatively atque fraterne subveniebant in his; ordinationes, quas super ecclesiasticum ritum sibi fecerant, aliis communicando provinciis, et quandoque etiam in aliis provinciis contentionem aut schisma fidelium inter se audientes charitable monendo. Haec autem aliarum provinciarum, Ecclesiae grate suscepiebant.—Hoc etiam modo vel consimili quasi suscepit a Graecis Romanus populus, gratuite non coacte leges quasdam vocatas decem tabularum. Ex jam dicta vero quasi consuetudinaria prioritate, aliarum Ecclesiarum consensu spontaneo, Romanorum Episcopi—auctoritatem quandam decreta—constituendi super universalem Ecclesiam—sumpserunt usque ad tempora Constantini.—Constantinus vero—primus fuit Imperator, qui fidem Christi, ministerio b. Sylvestri tunc Papae Romani patenter adeptus est, et—Ecclesiae Romanae ac ipsius Episcopo tribuisse videtur auctoritates et potestates super alios Episcopos et Ecclesias omnes.—Cap. 22, p. 268: Post tempora vero Constantini I. et praecipue imperiali sede vacante hanc sibi deberi prioritatem quandoque lege divina, quandoque vero concessione Principum suis epistolis expresserunt Rom. Episcopi quidam.—Hanc etiam extendentis auctoritatem in omnes Episcopos et Ecclesias, populos et singulares personas, ad sententiam excommunicationis et interdicti divinorum officiorum—in supradictos fideles ferendum.—Sic etiam suis epistolis expresserunt, sibi convenire temporalium omnium ecclesiasticorum dispensationem.—Quibus etiam modi—niores excessibus non contenti suis expresserunt epistolis sive decretis, auctoritatem sive jurisdictionem coactivam supremam super omnes mundi principatus—sibi lege divina deberi; propter quod etiam ad suam auctoritatem pertinere dicunt, omnia mundi regna et principatus conferre ac auferre licite posse Regibus—ipsorum mandata transgredientibus, quamvis impia sint secundum veritatem et illicita saepe. Hoc autem inter caeteros Romanos Episcopos—octavus Bonifacius in tantum expressit et asseruit, ut hanc Romanis Episcopis deberi potestatem decreverit ab omnibus credendum et contendum esse de necessitate salutis aeternae (Div. 2, § 59, note 26). Cujus sententiam assecuti sunt successores ejus Clemens V. et—Joannes,—quamvis hoc solum explicite videantur dicere de solo imperio Romanorum. Quod quia id asserunt innisi titulo supradicto, plenitudinis videlicet sibi datae potestatis a Christo, indubium est, potestatem hanc sive auctoritatem, si qua talis ex hoc sibi conveniat, omnia mundi regna et principatus ex aequo respicere. Cap. 26, p. 281, is on the origin of the Papal encroachments upon the empire: Voluerunt Romanorum Principum quidam citra tempora Constantini electionem de se factam amicabiliter signare Romanis Pontificibus, ut—per Pontificum intercessionem ampliorem benedictionem et gratiam ad suum gubernandum imperium obtinerent: eodemque aut consimili quasi modo—Romanorum quidam Imperatores diadema regium imponi sibi fecerunt per Romanos Pontifices: quam siquidem impositionem Pontifici Romano plus auctoritatis tribuere super Rom. Principem, quam Remensi Archiepiscopo super regem Francorum, quis dicet? Non enim conferunt hujusmodi solemnitates auctoritatem, sed habitam vel collatam significant. Ex hac quidem igitur reverentia sic sponte per Romanos Principes exhibita, quaerentes saepius quae sua non sunt, Episcopi Romani induxerunt consuetudinem et abusum verius, propter Principum simplicitatem, non modo dicam ignaviam, laudationem electae personae ac benedictionem, quam super illam mittebant, vocaliter aut in scriptis vocare confirmationem electionis praedictae. Nec attendentibus olim Romanis Principibus, quae sub hac appellationis figura praejudicialis latebat intentio, sic ipsam successive subinduxerunt latenter, nunc vero patenter Romani Pontifices, ut nullus quantumeunque convenienter electus in Romanorum Regem Rex vocari debeat, neque Regis Romanorum auctoritatem habeat aut exerceat, nisi per Romanum Episcopum fuerit approbatus.—Non esset hoc aliud quam Romanum solvere principatum, et Principis creationem perpetuo prohibere.

—Quid ergo aliud sibi tribuit auctoritatis Principum electio, quam nominationem, ex quo ipsorum determinatio ab unius solius alterius voluntate dependet? Tantam nempe septem tonsores aut lippi possent Romano Regi auctoritatem tribuere.

¹⁷ Summa de potestate ecclesiastica ad Joh. P. XXII. (ed. Aug. Vind. 1473, Colon. 1475, Romae, 1582, fol.), divided into three Parts and 112 quaestiones. Qu. 1, art. 1: Sola potestas Papae est immediate a Deo.—Habet omnem potestatem saecularem judicare et deponere, si non bona est.—Et si inveniatur, quandoque aliquos Imperatores dedisse aliqua temporalia summis Pontificibus, sicut Constantinus dedit Sylvestro: hoc non est intelligendum, quod suum est, sed restituerunt, quod injuste et tyrannice ablatum est (cf. Qu. 43, art. 3).—Omnis potestas Imperatorum et Regum est subdelegata respectu potestatis Papae. Qu. 18, art. 1: Major est jurisdictione Papae quam cuiuslibet angelii.—Papae totius mundi jurisdictione et cura commissa est,—quod super caelum et terram jurisdictionem accepit. Qu. 22, art. 3: Magis tenetur laici subditi obedire Papae, quam Imperatori vel Regi.—Tota machina mundialis non est nisi unus principatus: princeps autem totius principatus mundi est ipse Christus, cuius Papa vicarius existit iuxta illud Dan. vii.—Si aliud mandat Papa, et aliud Imperator, obediendum est Papae et non Imperatori. Qu. 23, art. 1: Pagani jure sunt sub Papae obedientia.—Vicarius Christi est Papa, unde nullus potest se subtrahere ab eius obedientia de jure, sicut nullus potest de jure se subtrahere ab obedientia Dei. Qu. 35, art. 1: Papa per se ipsum Imperatorem potest eligere.—Imperator est minister Papae eo ipso quod est minister Dei.—Est autem principaliter agentis, eligere ministros et instrumenta ad suum finem.—Unde puto, quod Papa, qui universos fideles in praesenti Ecclesia ad pacem habet ordinare, et ad supernaturalem finem consequendum derigere et destinare, justa et rationabili causa existente per se ipsum possit Imperatorem eligere: ut propter diligentium negligentiam et discordiam, aut propter electi bonitatem et condecorationem, vel propter populi Christiani pacis providentiam, seu propter coercendum haereticorum, paganorum et schismaticorum potentiam et audaciam. Posse enim Papae fulcitur debet esse veritate, justitia et aequitatem: non enim potest adversus veritatem sed pro veritate, ut dicit Apostolus II. ad Cor. ult.—Art. 3. Sicut a sede apostolica potestas eligendi Imperatorem Electoribus est concessa, ita a predicta sede potest eis auferri. Art. 6. Papa potest Imperatorem facere per haereditariam successionem sicut per electionem.—Qu. 37, art. 3: Auctoritate Papae Imperium a Romanis est ad Graecos translatum.—Constantinus hujusmodi translationem fecit auctoritate summi Pontificis, qui tanquam vicarius Dei filii, caelestis Imperatoris, jurisdictionem habet universalem super omnia regna et imperia.—Propter imperium ad Graecos post tempus Constantini translatum, Ecclesia ibi potestate et dignitate multum vigebat. Et ideo quatuor Concilia fuerunt ibi celebrata, quibus Imperatores sic se subjecerunt, quatenus per summum Pontificem approbarentur. Art. 4. Auctoritate Papae Imperium est translatum a Graecis ad Germanos. Art. 5. Auctoritate Papae Imperium potest a Germanis transferri ad alios.—Conditio Imperatoris a tempore Constantini multipliciter variata est. Nam tempore dicti Constantini Imp. eligebantur.—Qui modus servatus est usque ad tempora Michaelis Imp. et Caroli M. Postea institutio Imperii processit per successionem ad tertiam generationem puta usque ad tertium Ottонem, qui fuit nepos primi et filius filii. De istis enim non invenitur facta electio, sed sola provisio per summum Pontificem.—Gregorius V. convocatis Principibus Almaniae ordinavit electores Imperatoris officiales ipsius imperialis curiae. Qualitercumque tamen institutio

Imperii sit variata: nulli tamen dubium esse debet, quin summus Pontifex—Imperatorem possit eligere, quemcunque et undecunque sibi placet in auxilium et defensionem Ecclesiae. Qu. 38, art. 1: Per Papam Imperator electus debet confirmari.—Ad illum pertinet immediate Imperatoris confirmatio, ad quem pertinet Imperii immediata jurisdictione. Postquam enim Constantinus cessit Imperio occidentali nulla sibi reservatione facta,—plenum jus totius Imperii est acquisitum summis Pontificibus, non solum superioris dominationis, verum etiam immediatae administrationis, ut ex ipsis tota dependeat imperialis jurisdictione, quantum ad electionem et quantum ad confirmationem: ita ut ex tunc nullus de jure poterit se intromittere de regimine occidentalis Imperii absque expressa auctoritate et mandato sedis apostolicae, nisi usurpativa et tyrannice, sicut fecit Julianus Apostata et multi alii. Art. 4: Papae Imperator electus debet fidem jurare.—Imperator assumitur in defensorem et protectorem Ecclesiae, potissime in partibus Italiae et in occidentalibus regionibus, in quibus Ecclesia non solum temporalium habet universalem jurisdictionem, sicut in toto orbe noscitur habere, verum etiam habet mediante ministro, quem elegit, immediatam administrationem. Talis ergo minister in tribus tenetur Ecclesiae fidelitatem servare: primo in ipsis Ecclesiac exaltatione, ut per rebelles et infideles Ecclesia non deprimatur, sed potius illis expugnatis juxta posse suum supra candelabrum ponatur; secundo in Ecclesiae pastoris et rectoris defensione; tertio in temporalium per Constantimum concessorum Ecclesiae conservatione, ut in talibus non praetendat aliquam immediatam jurisdictionem, sed solum immediatam administrationem. Et ista tria ponuntur in juramento fidelitatis, quod ipse Imperator summo Pontifici praestare tenetur. Qu. 39, art. 1: Imperator per solam electionem non potest administrare, nisi beneficium confirmationis recipiat. Qu. 40, art. 1: Papa potest Imperatorem deponere, art. 4: Imperatoris subditos a juramento fidelitatis absolvere. Qu. 41, art. 1: Ad Papam spectat Imperatoris electionem examinare. Qu. 44, art. 1: Absque Papae auctoritate Imperator non potest leges condere.—Omnis justa lex (quae secundum Augustinum si justa non est, non est lex) dependet a lege divina.—Illo ergo jure lex imperialis dependet ab auctoritate Papae, quo jure dependet a lege divina, cuius ipse Papa est vicarius et minister, potissime cum secundum Dionysium lex divinitatis hoc habeat, ut ejus influentia non transeat ad inferiora nisi per media. Medius autem inter Deum et populum Christianum est ipse Papa, unde nulla lex populo Christiano est danda, nisi ipsius Papae auctoritate; sicut nec aliqua lex fuit data populo Israelitico nisi mediante Moyse. Art. 4: Papa potest sua auctoritate leges imperiales corriger. Qu. 45, art. 2: Papae subjiciuntur omnes Reges, quantum ad temporalium recognitionem.—Dicentes, Papam, vicarium Christi, in toto orbe dominium habere solum super spiritualia, non autem super temporalia, similes sunt consiliariis Regis Syriæ, qui dixerunt, iii. Reg. 20: Dii montium sunt dii eorum, etc. Sic hodie mali consiliarii adulazione pestifera seducunt Reges et Principes terrae, dicentes: dii montium, puta spiritualium donorum, sunt summi Pontifices, sed non sunt dii convallium, quia temporalium bonorum nullum habent dominium: ideo in campestribus et in potentia bonorum temporalium pugnemus contra eos et obtinebimus. Sed quid dicit eis divina sententia, audiamus: quia dixerunt, inquit, Syri, deus montium est dominus, non deus vallium, dabo omnem multitudinem hanc in manu vestra, et scietis, quia ego sum Dominus. Qu. 46, art. 2: Papa potest omnes Reges, cum subest causa, deponere. Art. 3: Papa potest in quolibet regno Regem instituere.—Sicut Deus est factor omnium regnum et provisor, sic Papa vice Dei est omnium regnum provisor. Unde cum causa rationabilis subest, in quolibet regno potest Regem instituere, sive sit causa ipsius Regis nequitia, ut dictum est supra de Rege Francorum, sive ipsius populi fraudulentia malitia, ut si in Regis mortem conspirarent, vel eum ejicerent,—vel quoconque alio modo causa justa et rationabilis subest ad Papam spectaret, illi regno de Rege providere. Qu. 61, art. 3: Papa non potest aliquos eximere a se ipso in temporalibus.—Apostolus ii. ad Tim. 2, dicit: Deus fidelis est, et seipsum negare non potest. Negaret autem seipsum, si eximeret aliquos a suo dominio temporali vel spirituali, quia tunc negaret, se esse dominum omnium tam temporalium quam spiritualium. Cum igitur Papa verus vicarius Dei sit, si aliquos eximeret a seipso in jurisdictione temporalium vel spiritualium, negaret, quod non esset verus Dei vicarius, et talis negatio in errorem Manichaeorum ipsum induceret, ponentium, ab alio principio spiritualia et ab alio temporalia esse producta. Unde non est dubium, quod si pro tali veritate testificanda Papa pateretur, verus Christi martyr esset censendus. To the plea: consuetudo servanda est, et longo tempore approbata pro lege tenenda est, ut jurisconsultus dicit. Sed ab antiqua consuetudine fuit observatum in Ecclesia Gallicana, quod Praelati Franciae non recognoscunt temporalia a Papa sed a Rege, et ipse similiter Rex a nullo temporalia recognoscit, he answers: consuetudo veritatis et rationi contraria, quanto diuturnior tanto perniciosior et periculosior, nec consuetudo sed abusio dicenda est. Non enim dixit Christus, ut dicit Gregorius: Ego sum consuetudo, sed: ego sum veritas. Si vero potentia regalis vel imperialis allegatur, videatur, ut dicit Aug. quod factum sit de Nabuchodonosor, quomodo a regno depositus est et inter bestias connumeratus est, donec recognosceret, Deum caeli esse dominum universorum. Qu. 73, art. 3: Papa alicui potest concedere decimas Laicorum.—Jus naturale propria facit communia in necessitate, jus vero divinum ex caritate, et jus civile ex reipublicae utilitate. Planum est autem, quod Papa est omnis juris interpres et ordinator, tamquam architector in tota ecclesiastica hierarchia vice Christi, unde quilibet jure potest, cum subest causa rationabilis, decimas laicorum, non solum subditorum, verum etiam Regum, Principum et Dominorum recipere et concedere pro Ecclesiae utilitate, ac eos, si noluerint dare, compellere.

faithful subjects, produced the desired effect in Germany.²¹ The Pope's anger rose higher when Lewis was reconciled even to Frederick (March, 1325),²² and when the latter, in defiance of all requisitions to the contrary,²³ fairly redeemed his plighted word;

ret in partibus Alamanniae exactores et collectores pecuniarum pro ipso, quibus hoc committere sine aliquo suo onere potuisset, si voluisset, vel sibi de hoc cura aliqua fuissest, ostendens se per hoc facere contra doctrinam et vitam et exemplum Christi, cuius vicarium se mentitur et dicit. After the rights of the Emperor, and the unfounded assumptions and political injustice of the Pope have been demonstrated, there follows a long and zealous refutation of the Papal assertion, Christum et Apostolos habuisse bona temporalia in communione eo modo, quo alia collegia habent, quod dictum est notorie haereticum, et profanum et contra Evangelii sacrum textum, which evidently proceeded from the pen of some persecuted Minorite. In conclusion: ad generale Concilium, quod instanter et cum instantia repetita in loco tuto nobis et nostris convocari petimus, et ad verum legitimum futurum summum Pontificem, et ad sanctam matrem Ecclesiam et apostolicam sedem, et ad alium vel ad alios, ad quem vel ad quos fuerit appellandum, provocamus et appellamus.

now the pretended vicegerent of Christ avenged himself by causing the March of Brandenburg, with which Lewis had shortly before enfeoffed his son,²⁴ to be laid waste by the neighboring tribes, chiefly by the heathenish Lithuanians.²⁵

Lewis meanwhile established his ascendancy in Germany so firmly that he was able to turn his thoughts to an attack upon the Pope in Italy, his most assailable quarter (1327). John advanced in vain to the Fifth Process.²⁶ The outcry of heresy raised nihilominus—in virtute sanctae obedientiae ac sub excommunicationis poena—districtius inhibentes, ne ad ejusdem Ludovici Rebellis et excommunicati quoquo modo redire carcerem, aut sibi—obedire praesumas. He declared also that Frederick's rights rising from his election were restored (Raynald. l. c. no. 5): however, he proceeded secretly in his endeavor to procure the imperial crown for Charles IV. King of France. He wrote to him dd. 30th July, 1325 (l. c. no. 6): res sic sunt dispositae, ut regium possit ad prius desiderium adimpleri.—Tepiditas regia multum negotio obfuit, quia et nos reddit et reddit tepidos et morosos.—Executiat circumspectio regia quaeo hunc torporem, et operetur, dum ad hoc intendat, dum dies est.

²⁵ Jo. Vitoduranus in Thesaur. Hist. Helv. p. 32: De Johanne Papa execrabilis factum fidelibus in perpetuum displicibile praecedentibus subnecto.—Nam in quibusdam Christianitatis, ut fertur, extremitatibus, Teutonicis cruciferis diffuse dominantibus, paganorum truculentam rabiem eos contingentium coercentibus et refraenantibus, ne persas invasiones et incursions pestiferas fidelium terris, quantum gliscunt, nocere possint, dominus Papa in mandatis districtissime dedit, quatenus ipsos per terram suam liberum transitum habere sinerent, ut in vindictam et injuriam Imperatoris ad terram filii sui demoliendam, vocatam Brandenburg, accessum habere possent. Qui iussioni papali contraire pertimescentes, inviti cum ejulata, ut ita dicam, amarissimo paganis transitum pro suo libitu indulserunt. (Quidam ajunt, Papam haec demandasse Regi Graagogiae (i. e. Cracoviae), et quia sibi in hoc paruit, Regem eum fecit, qui ante Dux unus Poloniae fuit). Qui venientes ad terram prae nominatam immanissimam scelera auditu horribilia commiserunt. Armati enim in multitudine incredibili ex insperato ad terram memoratam supervenerunt bestiali mente, indomito ac agresti more ipsam vastantes: nec in hoc eis sufficit, quin etiam mulieres certatim temerarent coitu nefario; ipsis quoque mamillas absciderunt, Ecclesias diruerunt, Altaria destruxerunt, corpus Christi in scriniis super aris reconditum sustulerunt, et sibi lanceas suas infixerunt, blasphemando dicentes: Ecce Deus Christianorum in nullo se defendere valens.

by the Minorites blunted his ecclesiastical weapons;²⁷ Lewis overran Upper Italy victoriously;²⁸ and while the Pope was ordering a crusade to be preached against him, he received the Imperial crown at Rome (17th January, 1328),²⁹ pronounced upon John sentence of dethronement,³⁰ and appointed a Franciscan to be Pope under the name of Nicolas V.³¹

³⁰ 18th April, 1328. See Villani, x. c. 68. Ludovici IV. Imp. processus contra Jo. XXII. in Baluzii Vitae PP. Aven. ii. 512: *Ludovicus Dei gratia Romanorum Imp. et semper Augustus ad perpetuam rei memoriam. Gloriosus Deus—nos, Ludovicum IV. Romanorum Imperatorem,—in Principem super haereditatem suam inunxit, ut de manibus inimicorum suum populum liberemus. Eapropter ex imperialis celsitudinis debito excessus enormes Jacobi de Caturco, qui nunc se Papam Johannem XXII. licet mendaciter asserere non veretur, dissimulatione diuturniori nullatenus sufferre valentes—celeri cursu in Italiam venimus ad sedem nostram praecipuam, Romanam videlicet, properantes. Then the Pope’s offenses were enumerated, simony, instigation to rebellion (Ex quibus profecto evidenter agnoscimus, sacrum Imperium—per hunc mysticum Antichristum, qui se Papam nominat, si quod absit effrenis ejus rabies ultra procederet, irreparabiliter exterminali), the devastation of Brandenburg by heathens, especially usurpation of the chief temporal power against the doctrine of Christ (eui etiam Decretistae asserunt, dicentes, Papam non habere utramque jurisdictionem), non-residence at Rome. Quapropter cum hic praevaricator nefarius divinae dispositionis ordinem sacerdotio et imperio praestitum publice impugnaverit, statu sui vicarius abutens enormiter, dum gladio sanguinis nti praecipit pro gladio spiritus, quod est verbum Dei; hinc est, quod zelo justitiae atque reipublicae,—auctoritate nobis in hoc casu caelitus ordinata contra quoslibet fidei et veritatis sanctae matris Ecclesiae turbatores, praedecessorum nostrorum, videlicet Ottonis primi, qui cum clero et populo Romano Johannem XII. depositus de papatu, et cum clero et populo de alio pastore urbi et orbi providit, et aliorum quamplurium Imperatorum vestigiis inhaerere volentes, ipsum Jacobum in haeresi deprehensem, cum ex facti evidentia, quia haeresim publice praedicat, perfectionem altissimae paupertatis in Christo penitus denegando,—quam ex confessione propria, ut liquet ex ini quis et temerariis vocatis processibus ab ipso contra sacrum Imperium in nostra persona factis,—eo quod indigne gerit et gessit vicarius officium,—a Christo privatum esse—denunciamus, nostraque imperialis auctoritatis sententia episcopatu Romano et universalis Ecclesiae Dei seu Papatu tenore praesentium privamus, et ab eodem deponimus in his scriptis, sententia lata de communi consilio—cleri et populi Romani, nostrorumque Principum et Ecclesiae Praelatorum, tam Alamannorum quam Italiorum.—Unde et saepedictum Jacobum omnis ecclesiastici ordinis praerogativa nudatum—subjicimus saecularis nostrorum ministrorum arbitrio potestatis,—ubicumque deprehensus fuerit, velut haereticum*

But Italy was fatal to Lewis also, as it had been ere now to many a German emperor. The insufficiency of his resources, and the inconstancy of the Italian people, compelled him to withdraw from this country (1329):³² the Pope's party regained so strong an ascendancy that the forsaken Imperial Pontiff was quickly delivered over to his antagonist.³³ Fresh anathemas³⁴ followed the Emperor on his return to Germany, and now that public feeling was alarmed by many of the foregoing events,³⁵ they made a stronger impression than before, even in Germany.³⁶ animadversione debita puniendum. In a second Sententia of the same day (l. c. p. 522), after a long refutation of his idea of the poverty of Christ, John was declared to be, haereticus notorius et manifestus et excommunicatus.

³⁶ Jo. Vitoduranus, l. c. p. 29: Ex tunc plures civitates—abstinuerunt se a divinis, et interim Clerus graviter fuit angariatus et compulsa ad divina resumenda, et plures annerunt, non verentes latam sententiam, nec ultiōnem divinam. Multi etiam erant inobedientes, et ob hoc de locis suis expulsi, et sic tandem facta fuit lamentabilis disformitas Ecclesiarum: quaedam enim immunem se existimans ab interdicti censura in laudes divinas celebrando imperterritac secure laxavit ora; quaedam vero e contrario interdicti poena se plexam reputans organa Domino canentia suspendit. Et illae mutuo se sinistre judicabant, et quod mirabilius est, tacentes in divino cultu habitu clausis januis mutuo sibi non communicabant, sed frequenter se excludebant, cantantes etiam se alterutrum vitaverunt.—Haec autem diversitas lamentabilis causabatur non solum propter diversitatem conscientiarum,—sed etiam ex eo, quod Jurisperiti in iis requisitis diversimode canones juris ecclesiastici interpretabantur. Jacob v. Konigshoven Elsass. Chronicke, s. 128: Hievon wart' grosse Irrunge und Zweyunge in der Pfaffheit in des Riches Stetten, und in den frigen Stetten, die disen Ludwig fur einem Keyser hettent. Wan etliche Pfaffen und das Mereteil die woltent des Bobestes Briefen gehorsam sin, und wol-

Wearied out with so obstinate a persecution, Lewis tried fresh negotiations for peace. But the Pope, so entangled with the ambitious Philip VI. of Valois, since 1328, King of France, that he was obliged to yield to his most extravagant demands,³⁷ haughtily rejected the proposals of submission, which were first brought before him by the Emperor's friends (in 1330),³⁸ and afterward re-tent nüt singen, noch Gottesdienst han. Also die Agestyner und vil bi alle Orden zu Strosburg und anderswo in frigen und Riches Stetten, die woren XVII. Jor one singen. Aber die Brediger und Barfussen zu Strosburg die sungen vil Jor an der erste wider des Bobestes Briefe, Hünden noch liessent die Brediger abe, und woltent auch nyne singen: do sprochent die Herren von Strosburg, sit das sü hettent vor gesungen do soltent sü auch fürbas singen, oder aber us der Statt springen. Do zugent die Brediger us der Statt, und liessent ir Closter lere ston IV halb Jor. Ouch zweiete sich die Pfafheit un-derenander so sere, das die Pfaffen uf einre Stift, und die Müniche in eime Closter ire etliche sungent und die Andern swigent. Der Keyser was so gut und tugenthalft, das er keinen armen Pfaffen det derumb kestigen; doch twang er die Bischove und Prelaten, das sü mustent ir Lehen von ime emphohen.

³⁸ Viz. by John, king of Bohemia, and Baldwin, archbishop of Trêves, with whom afterward Otto, duke of Austria, united himself. Compare the Pope's two answers of.

newed by the Emperor himself 1331 and 1332:³⁹ so that, for a short time, the persecuted monarch was quite resolved to resign the crown, which was no less grievous than glorious.⁴⁰ A second accusation of heresy with which the Pope was charged⁴¹ put new the 31st July (in Raynald. ann. 1330, no. 29 ss.; more fully in Martene Thes. ii. 800) and the 21st September (in Raynald. l. c. no. 34 ss.). The proposals were (Raynald. l. c. no. 35. Martene, l. c. p. 801): Primo quod (Bavarus) cum effectu deponet suum haereticum antipapam. Secundo quod penitus recedet ab appellatione. Tertio quod omnia, quae fecit seu attentavit contra sanctam personam domini nostri Papae Ecclesiamque Romanam, revocabit cum effectu. Quarto quod recognoscet, se excessisse et sententias excommunicationis ipsum ligasse. Quinto quod gratiae nostri Papae se offeret ad misericordiam.—Haec omnia sic intelliguntur, quod Bavarus in honore et suo statu remaneat, scil. in regno et imperio. The Pope's answer: Nescitis quid petitis!—Impossible enim est ipsum remanere in honore imperiali et regio sine novi juris acquisitione, cum honorem et dignitatem non habeat.—Offerimus, si ad gremium Ecclesiae redire voluerit idem Bavarus, sicut debet, ipsum benigne recipere nos paratos, eique tantam et talem impartiri gratiam, quod tu et Principes supradicti poteritis merito contentari.

⁴¹ So early as the first Sunday in Advent, 1331, he had publicly preached (Cont. Guil. de Nangis in d'Achery Spicileg. iii. 95), quod animae decedentium in gratia non videant Deum per essentiam, nec sint perfecte beatae, nisi post resumptionem corporis, an opinion which agrees indeed with the earliest fathers (vol. i. Div. 1, § 52, note 23), but had been abandoned ever since the fifth century (Münscher's Dogmengeschichte, iv. 414), and, together with certain other opinions, had been condemned by the University of Paris in 1240 (d'Argentré Collectio Judiciorum de Novis Erroribus, i. 186). The greater part of the Court bowed to the Pope's opinion: only the English Dominican, Thomas Walleis, stood forth to oppose it on the 27th December at Avignon (see Guilelmus Thorn Chron. de Gestis Abbatum s. Augustini Cantuar. in Scriptt. X. Hist. Anglicanae. London, 1652. D'Argentré, i. 316), but he was thrown into prison. Now, in 1332, the Pope wished to vindicate his doctrine in Paris also by means of two Dominicans (Cont. Guil. de Nangis, l. c. p. 96); here, however, it encountered great resistance: the King desired the opinion of the theologians of the University: on the 2d January, 1333, they decided (d'Argentré, l. c.), quod a tempore mortis Domini nostri Jesu Christi, per quam pretium redemptionis humani generis extitit persolutum, omnes animae ss. Patrum, quas idem salvator noster ad inferos descendens eduxit de limbo, caeterorumque fidelium animae, quae de corporibus exierant, nihil habentes purgabile, vel quae jam in Purgatorio sunt purgatae, ad visionem nudam et claram, beatificam, intuitivam et immediatam divinae essentiae et benedictissimae Trinitatis,—quam Apostolus 1 Cor. xiii. nominat visionem facie ad faciem, erunt assumptae, ipsaque Deitate beata perfecte fruuntur; et jam quod crediderunt videntes, quod speraverunt tenentes, non in spe sed in re sunt beatae. Quamquam dicta visio, quam nunc habent, resumptis corporibus minime evacuabitur, alia succedente, sed ipsam in eis, cum sit earum vita aeterna, perpetuo remanebit: at the same time, in order to leave the Pope a way of escape, they assumed that he had pro-

pounded the contrary opinion only, recitando, not determinando, asserendo seu etiam opinando. The King sent this decision to the Pope (Cont. Chron. Guil. de Nangis, p. 97), mandans sibi a latere, quatenus sententiam Magistrorum de Parisius, qui melius scunt, quid debet teneri et credi in fide, quam Juristae et alii Clerici, qui parum aut nihil scunt de theologia, approbaret, et quod sustinentes contrarium corrigeret. According to the statement of Petrus de Alliaco, in Concil. Eccl. Gall. ann. 1406, the King even caused an intimation to be made to the Pope, qu'il se revoquast, ou qu'il le feroit ardre (Bulac. Hist. Univ. Paris. iv. 238). The Pope's answer of 18th November, 1333, is very characteristic of the relations of the age (in Raynald. ad h. a. no. 46): he had heard that the King had instigated certain Magistros in theologia, ut, quod animae sanctae ante suorum resumptionem corporum videbant clare divinam essentiam, praedicarent; some even said, quod illos qui hoc facere renuebant, capitulaveras satis dure. Ab aliis vero audivimus, quibus fidem prorsus adhibemus, quod praeceptum tale seu inductio ab ore regio non processit; sed ut princeps zelator veritatis—aliquibus, qui forsan dicebant seu fingebant, se propter metum aliquem non audere talia praedicare, dixisti, quod metu cnjusquam personae non suerent veritatem—praedicare. Hoc profecto dicere decebat et decet regiam majestatem. Cum autem hanc quaestionem b. Augustinus interdum in scriptis suis reputaverit valde dubiam, et circa eam variasse dicatur, et nedum ipse, sed et multi doctores alii circa istam materiam varient; propter hoc, ut veritas possit melius aperiri, nos interdum in nostris sermonibus mentionem habuimus, non proferendo verbum de nostro capite, sed dicta Scripturae sacrae et Sanctorum: multique—coram nobis—pro et contra de ista materia sunt locuti.—Et quia, fili dilectissime, forsan tibi dicitur, quod nos non sumus in theologia magister, audi quid unus sapiens dicat: Non quis, inquit, sed quid dicat, intende. He offers to the King his collections upon this subject from Holy Writ and the Fathers. Profecto, amantissime fili, si quae circa istam materiam aliqui scripserint et dixerint, sciret tua magnificentia, merito miraretur. Many had stated of the King that he had declared himself for the contrary opinion, multisque comminati sunt religiosis et saecularibus sub umbra tui culminis, si partem illam, quod animae separatae divinam essentiam non videant [defenderent],—quod illos capi facerent per inquisidores haereticæ pravitatis. The Pope did not believe this: quia scimus, quod in his vel aliis ut elucidetur veritas intendes, rogamus benevolentiam regiam, ut—magistris in theologia Parisiis legentibus facias nunciari, quod—quilibet dicere et disputare et praedicare valeat, quod sibi juxta doctrinam evangelicam—disputandum videbitur et etiam praedicandum, donec aliud ordinatum per sedem fuerit apostolicam: sic enim ad veritatem quaestio[n]is praedictæ poterit promptius perveniri. The stubborn old man held his ground without regard to Philip. For the recantation, which he is said to have published on the day before his death, 3d December, 1334, but which was first divulged by his successor, 17th March, 1335 (Raynald. ann. 1334, no. 35 ss.), was held in suspicion even by contemporaries. Cont. Chron. Guil. de Nangis, l. c. Joannes Papa—errorem de beatitudine animæ, quam ipse diu tenuerat,—insufficienter tamen, ut aliqui dicunt, moriens revocavit. Accordingly, Benedict XII., 29th January, 1336, was obliged to issue an express dogmatical decision on the subject (in Raynald. ad h. a. no. 3).—Compare, on the whole question, Bulac. Hist. Univ. Paris. iv. 235. D'Argentré Collectio Jūdicatorum de Novis Erroribus, i. 314.

(7TH MAY, 1342—6TH DECEMBER, 1352.)

Benedict XII., a well-meaning monk, but bound with monastic fetters, and not equal to his lofty place, now mounted the desecrated chair of St. Peter.¹ He had the best intentions of shaking off the shameful bondage of France;² but Philip of Valois contrived still, as before, to overpower him by means of the preponderance of French Cardinals.³ Thus he frustrated the Pope's intention of returning to Italy:⁴ thus, too, his hearty desire to be reconciled with Lewis.⁴ With the latter the Pope himself opened negotiations; Lewis met them with ready humility; but Philip von Frangrich nüt gestatten, wan es verdros den König von Frangrich, das der Keyser sich über in schreip.

⁵ Albertus Argent. p. 126. The first imperial embassy (April, 1335) inquired, qualiter et sub qua forma redire deberet, et sub quibus articulis absolutionem et gratiam petere, and returned from the Emperor cum illis articulis et mandatis sufficientissimis. The Pope welcomed them with the friendly assurance (2d Oct.), se et fratres suos de hoc, quod nobilis ramus Ecclesiae, Alemannia, qui se in persona domini Ludovici laedi per Ecclesiam aestimans, jam ab arbore Ecclesiae separari coeparat, eidem arbori cum tam magno honore sedis redintegraretur, plurimum gratulari: multum commendans Alemanniam et dominum Ludovicum, quem nobiliorem mundi dicebat: conquerens regi Italiam per tyrannos, ac regnum Armeniae capi a paganis,—ac terram sanctam propter Imperatoris carentiam occupari: unde merito dixit absolutionem eidem impetriri se debere, quae et dari crastino sperabatur. Verum praedictus Rex Franciae, et Rex Siciliae—omnes quasi Cardinales a proposito averterant preeconcepto. Venerant enim ad impediendum factum ad curiam duo Archiepiscopi, duo Episcopi et duo Comites ex parte Regis Franciae, et totidem ex parte Regis Roberti, proponentes erroneum esse, tantam haeresiarcham preeponere dominis eorum Ecclesiae fidelissimis; Papamque cavere debere, ne fautor haereticorum diceretur. (During the troubles Philip had drawn over to himself certain cities of the Empire, which he would have had to resign, if a reconciliation had been effected. Raynald, ann. 1335, no. 7. Jo. Vitoduranus below, note 15.) Papa vero dicente: quid volunt domini vestri, quod non sit Imperium? illis vero proterve dicentibus: Pater, non impingatis hoc dominis nostris vel nobis, quod non dicimus; quia contra imperium non loquimur, sed contra personam Ludovici damnatam: cumque dicerent, Ludovicum multa contra Ecclesiam fecisse, Papa dixit: immo nos fecimus contra eum: ipse enim cum baculo venisset ad pedes praedecessoris nostri, si voluisset, sed ipse noluit eum recipere: et quicquid ille fecit, quasi provocatus fecit. Quantumcunque autem Papa assenseret, se meliora pacta ab ipso Ludovico pro praedictis Regibus, eorum reguis et posteris extracturum, quam si eum in turri tenerent, penitus nil profecit. Rex Franciae etiam in terra sua undique bona et redditus Cardinalium interdixit et occupavit. Scriperant etiam illis diebus ad Curiam Joannes rex Bohemiae et Heinricus dux Bavariae, gener ejus, quod de auxilio Hungariae et Cracoviae Regum et aliorum alium vellent constituere Regem Romanorum potenter. Et sic Cardinales Papam pro tunc ab absolutione Principis retraxerunt, dicentes, cum sui in partibus suis vellent eum destituere, inconsultum esse Sedi, si propter impotentem et inopem tot Principes offensaret. Sic dato alio termino deliberationis nuncii Principis infecto negotio sunt reversi. (Compare the Pope's letter to the same, delivered at the same time, in Raynald, ann. 1336, no. 29.) When Lewis afterward gained the victory over his enemies, the good Benedict rejoiced, gloriabatur—dicens ad Cardinales: isti dicunt eum esse destitutum, sed quis adhuc ingressus est locum suum? He himself resumed negotiations: misit autem Papa solennem legatum ad Ludovicum, Episcopum, Magalonensem, qui mores et motum Principis erga Ecclesiam indageret. Accordingly, Lewis sent a new embassy to Avignon in Oct. 1336, with the fullest powers, to profess repentance for every thing, and promise every thing that the Roman Court could require (see in Raynald. ann. 1336, no. 31, ss.), viz. ad deponendum—nomine nostro et pro nobis titulum imperiale Romae per nos receptionem,—ad promittendum,—quod super omnibus praedictis excessibus—faciemus confessionem plenam, propria in persona petemus humiliiter veniam, ac offeremus et suscipiemus emendam.—Item ad supplicandum vice et nomine nostro—pro absolutione, et pro nostra assumptione et in integrum restitutione ad famam, honorem et statum, et interdictorum in Alemanniae partibus remotione, et singularium personarum absolutione.—Item ad promittendum—vice et nomine nostro,—quod nomine satisfactionis, poenae, et emendaie, ac poenitentiae per nos commissorum effectualiter assumemus passagium ultra-marinum, prout vestrae Sanctitati videbitur expedire, et quod ibi manebimus, quantum vestra Sanctitas duxerit ordinandum.—Item ad promittendum, nos ecclesias et monasteria aedificaturos, prout vestra Sanctitas ordinabit.—Item quod suscipiemus et perficiemus poenitentias alias quascunque atque poenas, quas vestra Sanctitas pro dictis excessibus nobis duxerit injungendas. At the same time, in order to remove all hinderances, Lewis concluded a treaty with Philip (see the deeds in Leibnitii Cod. Jur. Gentium, p. 148, ss). But, nevertheless, Alb. Argent. p. 127: Quantumcunque Benedictus Papa ad absolutionem Principis niteretur, in praedictis tamen Franciae et Apuliae Regibus, et quasi omnibus Cardinalibus, seductis per eos, assensum habere nequivit. Unde tandem legatis Principis saepe ad Curiam venientibus, quibus et legati Regis Franciae plures in Curia verecundias (insults) inferebant, in tantum quod nullum poterant habere finem, respondit, asserens sibi hoc non a homine sed a s. Spiritu inspiratum.

⁸ Their letter to the Pope of 27th March, 1338, is in Olenschlager, Urkundenbuch, s. 186.

¹⁰ Jo. Vitoduranus, p. 49: Qui discutientes causas et motiva singula tam Papae quam Imperatoris, diligenterque examinantes, et acumine intellectus luce clarius omnia speculantes et perscrutantes per se, principaliter vero per Imperatoris Legistas et Canonistas valentissimos, principalissime autem per fratrem Bonamgratiam, almarium seu scrinium totius juris, consequenterque per cunctos Praelatos, caeterumque Clerum ibidem congregatum, repererunt, Imperatorem cuncta, quae debuit, sufficienter peregisse, et sibi adiutum et accessum omnis gratiae et justitiae interclusum, et obstructum, et indiscrete temereque penitus denegatum. Sententia ergo matura et unanimi Principes etiam jure-jurando praestito determinaverunt, omnes processus, a Domino Papa contra Dominum Imperatorem latos, indebitos, et prorsus nullius fore roboris vel momenti, sed eos irritos drew to Rense (First Electoral League, 15th July, 1338), in order to make a solemn declaration that the Roman king receives his rank and power solely from the choice of the Electoral Princes.¹¹ This declaration was immediately confirmed as the law of the empire.¹² Now again learned men, such as William Occam and Leopold of Bebenburg, came forward with heightened courage to defend the Imperial cause.¹³ Public opinion was general in behalf et inanes, et ab aequitatis lance penitus alienos. Adstruxeruntque eodem jurejurando sententia diffinitiva, per totam terram Imperii—divinum cultum, diu indebite—interdicatum et suspensum, legitime liciteque omni scrupulo conscientiae deposito debere resumi. Decreverunt nihilominus, totum Clerum ubilibet in regno seu imperio Imperatoris constitutum, qui adhuc non resumpsisset divina, compellendum ad resumendum cultum divinum diu intermissum, et si renueret, et contumaciter parere despiceret, tanquam hostis Reipublicae esset acriter puniendus.

¹¹ The first Churverein (Electoral League) (in Gewold, p. 146. Olenschlager's Urkundenbuch, s. 188): Wir—han uns des vereint, das wir dats egenant Rich, und unser fürstlich Er, die wir von Im haben, nemlichen an der Kur des Richs, an sinen und unsern Rechten, Friheiten, und Gewonheiten, als von Alter an uns, und an des Richs Kurfürsten herkommen und bracht ist, handhaben, beschurn, und beschirmen wollen, nach aller unser Macht und Craft an Geverde, wider aller meniglichen, nieman aussgenommen, wan es unser Er und Aid anget, und wellen das nit lassen, durch dheinerley Gebot, von wem oder wie es chöm,—und geloben an disen gegenwertigen Brief bi unsern fürstlichen Eren, und haben es auch gesworen zu den Heiligen, für uns und unser Nachkommen, stet und vest zehalten.—Und geloben,—das wir—uns dawider nit behelffen mit dheiner dispensation, absolution, relaxation, abolition, in integrum restitutione, deheinerleie beneficio, wie das genant sie, wann es chum, oder wie es chum,—und solten Got und der Werlt erlos, tewloss und maineidig sin und heissen, wo oder wie wir darwider teten, etc.—The Electoral Princes announced this to the Pope (see the letters in Herwart, p. 744. Olenschlager, Urkundenbuch, s. 190), and declared to him at the same time that, in contravention of the—sententiae et processus, quos Joannes P. XXII. de facto contra Deum et justitiam et juris ordinem fulminavit, they had determined,—quod vacante Romano Imperio is, qui eligitur concorditer, vel a majori parte Principum Electorum, pro Rege Romanorum ab omnibus est habendus. Et quod nec nominatione, approbatione, confirmatione, consensu, vel auctoritate sedis apostolicae super administratione bonorum et jurium Imperii indiget, sive titulo Regis assumendo, quodque jura et bona Imperii administrare et gubernare poterit, et de jure et consuetudine, nulla sedis apostolicae super hoc licentia habita vel obtenta. Upon this meeting of the Electoral Princes compare Pfeffingeri Vitriarius illustratus, i. 667.

¹³ There appeared in particular, Guil. Occam Compend. Errorum Joannis P. XXII. (in Goldasti Monarchia, t. ii. p. 957 ss.), and Lupoldi de Bebenburg (now Bemberg on the Brettach, of the noble family of the Küchenmeister v. Rotenburg and Nortenberg; see Bensen's Untersuchungen über Rotenburg, s. 441, Doctor decretorum and archdea-

of Lewis, and the clergy who wished to maintain the interdict were banished.¹⁴

But the posture of affairs was quickly changed by Lewis's inconstancy.¹⁵ First, he allowed himself to be induced by the incon at Würzburg, after 1352 Bishop of Bamberg, † 1362), Tract. de Juribus Regni et Imperii ad Balduinum Archiep. Trevir. (in Schardii Syntagma Tractatum de Jurisdictione Imperiali, p. 167); compare his Lib. de Zelo Christianae Religionis vett. Principum German. ibid. 208, and Rhythmicum Querulosum Dictamen de Modernis Cursibus Imperii Romanorum in Böhmer's Fontes Rerum Germ. i. 479.

¹⁵ How little support he gave to the English may be seen in Olsenschläger, s. 300. Jo. Vitoduranus, ad ann. 1339 et 1340, p. 55: si Imperator promissum suum exhibitum Regi Angliae servasset,—contra Regem Franciae proeliaturus procedendo, et regnum ejus intrando, procul dubio, ut verisimile est, regnum Franciae cum Rege suo penitus debellasset, et civitates imperiales Imperio recuperasset, et consequenter Papam Benedictum XII. tunc Ecclesiae praesidentem benevolum et propitium ad perficiendum omne voluntatis suaे desiderium invenisset. Nam Rex Franciae—Papam sibi subactum, quam diu in Avenione demoratur, cohabet et refrenat, ne Imperatori aliqualiter condescendat, ne bona Imperii surrepta et sibi usurpata (see above, note 5), eum amittere contingat. Cum autem Ludwicus, ut supra dixi, remissus et negligens, pavidusque existat ad proeliandum contra suum adversarium,—bonum taliter suum et Imperii consequenter neg-

trigues of the French king, who now seemed to rule over the keys of Peter, to forsake his allies, and seek afresh the Pope's absolution (1341).¹⁶ When, however, he saw himself once more deceived, he seemed to wish to cut himself off from all hope of future reconciliation, by encroaching upon the Pope's unquestioned rights; in order to win the Tyrol for his family he dissolved the marriage of Margaret Maultasch by his Imperial power;¹⁷ and upon her second marriage with his son, Lewis, margrave of Brandenburg (February, 1342), he granted the dispensations necessary, because of their being too near akin.¹⁸

Notwithstanding all the support of learned men,¹⁹ Lewis lost for his cause the confidence of the people by this encroachment upon ecclesiastical privileges,²⁰ as much as he awakened the dis-

lexit: maluit enim in Alemania sibi valde subdita confessor esse, quam in Francia, ut timuit, martyr fieri. Fortunatus enim valde erat, et multa bona sine proelii certamine adeptus erat, etc.

²⁵ Albert. Argent. p. 133: Missisque iterum per Principem literis et nunciis ad Curiam et ad Francum ad sciscitandum causam impedimenti reformationis, cum ipse paratus esset omnia facere, quae sibi injungerentur a Papa: datoque responso per Francum, quod diceretur per Papam, quod non peteret eo modo gratiam, quo deberet; nunciisque (prout in mandatis habebant) dicentibus, quod daretur eis forma procuratorii Papae placens, secundum quam, qualisunque esset, se petituros dicebant: conceptum est procuratoriorum turpissimum et rigidissimum (see the same in Gewold. p. 181. Olenschlager's Urkundenbuch, s. 226), quod non credebant Ludovicum sigillaturum, etiamsi captus fuisset. Dabatur enim in eo potestas Humberto Delphino, avunculo Principis, item Augustensis et Babenbergensis Ecclesiarum praepositis, item M. Ulrico, cancellario suo, in solidum confitendi omnes errores et haereses; item resignandi Imperium, nec resumendi, nisi hoc fieret de gratia Papae, et se ac filios suos, ac bona ac statum suum in manus et voluntatem Papae ponendi, et multa insolita faciendi. Verum Princeps mandatum hujusmodi non solum sigillavit (see the documents of 18th September, 1343, in Gewold, p. 173. Olenschlager, s. 234), sed etiam coram tabellione, misso per Papam, se servaturum nec revocaturum juravit. De quo Papa ipse et Collegium mirabantur, dicentes intra se: iste homo diffidentia est perplexus. Illisque quatuor procuratoribus juxta formam mandati jurantibus, ac pro articulis injunctionis et poenitentiae denuo instantibus, nec sine articulis abire volentibus, tandem Papa de consilio Collegii articulos, the Diet at Frankfort (September, 1344), that these demands violated the rights of the Empire;²⁶ but instead of readiness to make the Emperor's cause their own, a strong dislike now rose in the minds of many against him, whose person alone interrupted the peace of the Empire.²⁷ Thus Clement could count upon support even in Germany, when the Emperor, in conjunction with Lewis of Hungary, who wished to avenge the murder of his brother, Andrew of Naples († 1345), upon his widow, Joanna, aimed at the restoration of his imperial rights in Italy. While the Pope took the murderer Joanna under his protection,²⁸ he launched quos Principem facere voluit, qui non tangebant personam ejus, sed statum Imperii, assignavit. In these articles the following statements occur, among others (see, in Gewold, p. 195. Olenschlager, s. 241): Concedit suis Procuratoribus potestatem pronunciandi, confitendi, nulla et falsa—omnia dicta et gesta sub imperatorio aut regio titulo; item ejusmodi facta et negotia omnia, et unumquodlibet horum, tanquam injuste facta et gesta, revocandi, annullandi; item promittendi sua vice, et nomine ejus et pro se, quod nihil faciet, ordinabit, aut mandabit sub imperatorio titulo aut regali, aut quivis alius illius vice, absque speciali concessione sedis Romanae; item promittendi sua vice,—quod non veniet, nec intrabit in terras Italiac, nec quidquam in illis mandabit nec ordinabit—sine speciali concessione sedis Romanae; item dicendi ac promittendi, quod si in praescriptis articulis—aliquid esset dubium aut incertum,—quod tunc V. S. et successorum vestrorum interpretationem admittet, et sicut V. S. intellexerit et pronunciabit, quomodo intelligi debeat, huic inviolabilitate et cum effectu stabit.

²⁷ Immediately after the diet at Frankfort the nobles assembled at Rense to concert further measures (Albert. Argent. l. c.): there, however, some voices were raised against Lewis. Jo. Vitoduranus, p. 75: Alii famant, quod Principes magnam displicentiam propter nimiam sui (Ludovici) humiliationem erga Papam conceperunt, quia culmini regalis imperialisque celsitudinis derogaret: et ideo expresse sibi in faciem restiterunt non assentiendo sed contradicendo aperte suae excessivae ac indebitae erga Papam humiliationi. Fertur quoque, quod iidem Principes aegre ferentes, et amaro animo sustinentes remissionem et negligentiam Imperatoris, tanquam causam destructionis Imperii, ab eo seriose postulabant, ut filium Regis Boemiae [Carolum Marchgravium Moraviae] sibi subrogaret in Regem Alemaniae. Quem recusans, filium, Marchgravium Brandenburgensem, pro Rege praesentavit: quem ipsi similiter abjicientes ab eo indignanter discesserunt. Regnum tantum periti et debilitatum est sub te Bavaro, dixerunt ad invicem, quare summopere praeacavendum est, ne deinceps ad Bavaros transferatur. Tamen, antequam ab invicem divellerentur, quemadmodum fama communis me instruxit, decreverunt concorditer cum Imperatore, quod ultra a Papa gratiam quaerere non attemptaret, quam totiens irrationaliter sibi senserat denegatam.

²⁸ General opinion laid upon Joanna the guilt of the murder, or at least a share in it: compare the contemporaries, Dominicus de Gravina, de Rebus in Apulia Gestis (in Muratorii Script. Rer. It. t. xii.), Jo. Villani, lib. xii. c. 50. Heinr. de Rebdorff, ad ann. 1345. See de Sade Mémoires pour la Vie de Fr. Pétrarque, t. ii. (Amsterdam, 1764. 4.) Notes, p. 21.—Albert. Argent. p. 130, even states: De quo crimine non solum uxor et Princeps Taranti, sed et Papa et aliqui Cardinalium tenebantur suspecti; and Martinus Minorita (in Eccard Corpus Hist. Medii Aevi, i. 1635): Hoc flagitium multi aemuli Papae et IV. Cardinalibus suis impingunt; Papa vero in die sanctae Coenae publice in Consistorio se de hoc crimine expurgavit, etc. The Pope had drawn this suspicion upon himself by his own behavior. During the inquiry enjoined by him, Joanna had taken some of the accused under her zealous protection, and the Pope himself complained, praetermissum aliquorum soutium supplicium (Raynald. ann. 1346, no. 51); Clement promised the King of Hungary to set on foot a strict investigation about Joanna, as being her feudal lord. But when a Papal legate made his appearance with this view, he was sent back by Joanna (no. 58), yet Clement did not launch against her the ever-ready thunder-bolt of his excommunication. On the other hand, he threatened the King of Hungary with the ban, when he thought of invading Naples (no. 56).

but at the same time nominated a partisan of his own, the son of John, king of Bohemia, to be Roman Emperor, under the name of Charles IV. (22d April).³⁰ In order to win the majority of voices at the approaching election, he deposed Henry of Virneburg, archbishop of Mayence (7th April), and appointed in his place Count Gerlach of Nassau.³¹ Measures of all kinds were tried to gain the rest of the electors;³² and so Charles was actually appointed by the voices of five electors at Rense (11th July).³³ This unworthy transaction could not fail to react upon the rest of the estates of the realm purely in favor of Lewis.³⁴ He gained so strong an ascendancy in the Empire that the priest's Emperor³⁵ was obliged to fly into France.³⁶ Even after the death of this bold Emperor (11th Oct. 1347),³⁷ Charles did not at once reach the end he had in view. The Pope's absolution, which he brought with him into Germany to win the people's favor, only made him contemptible in their eyes.³⁸ The most pious men considered the temporis religiosi et saeculares Clerici, qui divinum cultum in locis imperialibus vel aliis interdicto suppositis resumperant, absolutionem ab hoc a Romana Curia impetrarunt, aliis Clericis in eisdem locis libere et absque pavore in celebratione persistentibus. Hujusmodi autem absolutio pro uno floreno facilime obtinebatur. O quam lamentabilis et execrabilis scissura et difformitas Ecclesiae illis in temporibus facta est! Hoc verbum Evangelii: gratis accepistis, gratis date, irritum visum est.

³⁷ It is worthy of note that several popes of later times, e. g. Eugene IV., Innocent VIII., Alexander VI., also the Council of Basle, speak of him with honor as, Divae memoriae Ludov. Rom. Imperatorem, see Herwart, praef. p. viii. He is worst abused by Bzovius, Ann. Eccl. I. i. 412 ss., who provoked the refutations of Herwart and Gewold, and was forced to recant by Maximilian, duke of Bavaria (see Bayle, Dict. art. Bzovius). But also Raynald, and even Muratori Annali d'Italia t. viii., designate the years from 1314–1346 as—vacante Imperio.

peratorem, Papam deponere, et alium creare, sed hoc haeresim esse damnatam: et quod nullum pro Imperatore habebunt, nisi per sedem apostolicam probatum, nec relictae (the widow) et liberis ipsius Ludovici favebunt, nisi cum Ecclesia reformentur, et Carolo Romanorum Regi per sedem approbato parebunt; ab hujusmodi sententiis et poenis absolvias, etc. (Cf. Raynald. ann. 1349, no. 15.) Visa autem forma hujusmodi dura omnibus displicente, aliqui consuluerunt, eam non acceptandam esse per Regem, sed occultandam, et pro alia forma Papae scribendum. Sed quia timor erat, Basilienses non juratuos Regi, nisi reformarentur divina, rescriptum oportuit exhiberi. Cum autem cives nec errores vellent fateri, nec secundum formam jurare; clerus autem, quasi poenitens quod cessavit etsi non tam [leg. etiamtum], occasionem quaereret celebrandi, animo nunquam mandata similia receptandi: ecce comparuerunt Magistri et Consules Basilienses coram Rege, et praedictis Episcopis;—coram quibus Chunradus de Berenvels, magister civitatis, nomine universitatis vulgariter coram tabellione proposuit in haec verba: Domine Bambergensis, sciatis, quod nec fateri nec credere volumus, quod quandam dominus noster Ludovicus Rom. Imp. unquam fuerit haeticus. Quemcunque etiam nobis dederint Principes Electores, vel major pars ex eis, pro Romanorum Rege vel Imperatore, illum pro tali habebimus, etiamsi nunquam Papam requireter: nec quicquam aliud faciemus, quod sit contra jura Imperii quovis modo. Sed si habetis potestatem a domino Papa, quod vultis nobis remittere omnia peccata nostra, placet. Et convertens se ad populum, dixit: datis mihi et Chunrado Monacho potestatem petendi, ut absolvamini a peccatis vestris? Qui dicebant: placet nobis. Nec aliud procuratorum habuerunt. Qui duo milites seorsum coram Secretario Papae, Joanne de Pistorio praesente, juraverunt secundum mandati formam, sicque relaxatis processibus divina publice sunt reassumpta, civesque Regi solitum praestiterunt juramentum.—Civitates autem, praesertim Argentina, exasperatae fuerunt propter formam hujusmodi.—When Charles came to Worms where the interdict had not been hitherto observed, the clergy received absolution, and now refused to celebrate Divine service for the people: but factus est tumultus, clausisque portis omnibus populus ad hospitium Regis, ad quod Bambergensis confugerat, armatus accessit, ipseque Bambergensis mandante Rege territo omnem clerum et populum Wormatiensem sine omni conditione et juramento absolvit.—Post haec Rex ivit Moguntiam, ubi sub pacto, ne introduceret Gerlacum provisum Papae, vel alias legi literas permitteret, honorifice est receptus.

the priests, but one to drive them back within their original limits.⁴⁰ The Bavarian party raised up Günther of Schwarzburg to dass man unschuldige arme Leut, die etwan den Schuldigen nit kennen noch gesehen haben, ja ganze Lander, Städte, Dörfer, alles ohn Unterscheid verbanne und verdamme. —Dass aber alle die dem Papst müssten Ketzer sein, die ihm die Füss nit wollten küssen, oder dass solchs ein Artikel des Glauben, und ein Abtrünniger von der Kirchen, welcher durch ordentliche Wahl der Churfürsten sich ein König oder Keisser nennt u. sein Amt versehe, auch alle die, als ihm von Gott verordneter Oberkeit Gehorsam leisten, wider die Kirch sündigten u. Ketzer wären, kunute mit göttlicher Geschrift nit beibrocht werden. Oberkeit ist ein Stand von Gott, dem man in weltlichen Sachen solle gehorsamen, auch die Geistlichen, es sey wer es wolle. Der Keiser ist die hoste Oberkeit, darum ist man ihm Gehorsam schuldig; regiert er nit recht, muss er Gott Rechenschaft darum geben, un nit der arme Underthane. So wenig als Gott von den—Underthane—wird Rechenschaft fordern, also wenig kann man arme unschuldige Underthanen von wegen ihrer Oberkeit bannen noch verdammen. Derhalben alle die den wahren christlichen Glauben halten, u. allein an der Personen des Papst sündigen, sind keine Ketzer.—Daraus ist schliesslichen, dass alle, die in unrechtem u. unschuldigen Bann sind, frey vor Gott sind, dann ihr Vermaledieung kehrt sich zur Benedeining!” The bishops condemned these doctrines, and Tauler betook himself to Cologne. When, however, in March, 1350, Strasburg sent deputies to the Papal court to request entire release from the interdict, they were charged to promise nothing (Wencker, Collecta Archivi et Cancellariae Jura, p. 155), “das wider das römische Reich oder sine Recht oder sine Ehre, oder wider gemeinen Nuts, oder wider unser oder unsere Städte Recht, Freiheit oder Ehre in deheinen Weg si.”

⁴⁰ This feeling found its chief expression in the hope of the return of Frederick II., which was now once more awakened with renewed vigor (see Div. 2, § 90, note 40), as Jo. Vitoduranus represents it, p. 85, on the year 1348, his concluding year, and so from his own immediate observation: In his temporibus apud homines diversi generis, immo cuncti generis multos valde assertissime vulgabatur, Imperatorem Fridericum secundum hujus nominis ad reformatum statum omnino depravatum Ecclesiae venturum in robore maximo potentatus. Adjiciunt quoque homines praedicta sentientes, quod necesse sit eum venire, si in mille partes secatus esset, immo si in pulvrem per combustionem redactus foret, eo quod divinitus sit decretum ita debere fieri, quod immutari impossibile est. Secundum igitur istam assertionem cum resuscitatus ad Imperii sui culmen reversus fuerit, puellae vel feminae pauperi in matrimonio junget virum divitem, et e converso; moniales et sorores in saeculo degentes maritabit, monachos uxorabit; pupillis, orphanis, viduis omnibus et singulis spoliatis res ablatas restituet, cunctisque faciet justitiae complementum. Clericos persecetur adeo atrociter, quod coronas et tonsuras suas stercore bovino, si alind tegumentum non habuerint, obdulent, ne apparent tonsorati: religiosos, qui denunciando processus papales contra enm, praecipue fratres minores, ipsum de Imperio repulerant, de terra fugabit. Post resumptum Imperium justius et gloriiosius gubernatum quam ante, cum exercitu copioso transfretabit, et in monte Oliveti, vel apud arborem aridam (Matth. xxi. 19) Imperium resignabit. The narrator, indeed, calls this hope, dementia magna et fatuitas; but that to him—a Franciscan—and so probably to a large part of the nation, the very thoughts from which this expectation rose at that time, were far from strange is clear from his poetical effusion, p. 69:

Ecclesiae capita nimis extant obtenebrata,
Delirant penitus Sathanæ delusa patenter, Disceptant pariter, quod vigeat latius,
Primum Romanus Caesar, sed Papa secundum.—
Dimissis rebus caelestibus atque beatis
Contendunt regnis pro terrenis capiendis, Schismata quod dederat perniciosa satis.
Alter in alterius messem falcem male mittit:
Neuter jure suo contentari bene sentit:

dispute the throne with him.⁴¹ Charles was obliged to win over his adversaries by concessions of every kind ;⁴² he was even yielding enough to allow himself to be elected and crowned a second time (July, 1349).⁴³

Meanwhile, Joanna of Naples had sold the province of Avignon to Clement (1348), to raise money for her war against Lewis of Hungary.⁴⁴ The Pope at last contrived that both parties should

Hinc pereant animae, vivere quae poterant.—
 Rex Constantinus cum successoribus ejus
 Si Papae regna tam pinguis non tribuisset, Tunc humilis stare, simplicitate pia.
 Hinc non immerito vox caelestis resonabat :
 Nunc est in mundum virus miserabile fusum,
 Unde perit concors Ecclesiae bonitas.
 Sed quia dotavit Caesar nimis atque ditavit
 Fertilibus terris Papas, idco tumuerunt, Et cupidi certant carpere plura bona.
 Rex gliscit terras sibi cunctas suppeditari,
 Multo plus Papa cupit ipsis praeordinari.
 Haec pestis saeva causata avaritia.
 Ecclesiam nummus vilem fecit meretricem,
 Nam pro mercede scortum dat se cupienti :
 Nummus cuncta facit, nil bene justitia.

⁴¹ Alb. Argent. p. 145-152.

⁴² Among these at this time were also included (Jo. Vitodur. p. 48), relaxatio interdicti, dispensationes, absolutiones ab excommunicationibus, suspensionibus, irregularitatibus contractis et ab aliis censuris ecclesiasticis. Haec beneficia administrabant hominibus Praelati plures in diversis partibus terrae Teutoniae, quibus Papa ea commisit. Hae autem gratiae tantum impertiebantur hominibus Regi juratis a Praelatis. The sons of Lewis remained longest in excommunication; for, although the Emperor Charles so early as 1349 had concluded a treaty with them (Buchholtz, Gesch. d. Churmark Brandenburg, ii. 430), still the sentence rested upon them because of the injuries of the bishopric of Lebus; see Wohlbrück's Gesch. des ehemal. Bisthums Lebus (Berlin, 1829, 3 Th.), i. 444. Still, how little the interdict was regarded in the March, by clergy and laity, may be seen from the renewed bull of excommunication of 14th May, 1350 (in Buchholtz, Bd. 5, Anhang, s. 82). Lewis the Roman, elector of Brandenburg, was absolved in 1354 (Wohlbrück, i. 490); the elder brother, Lewis, duke of Bavaria, in 1359 (Raynald. ad h. a. no. 7).

INNOCENT VI. (18TH DECEMBER, 1352–12TH SEPTEMBER, 1362.) URBAN V.
(28TH OCTOBER, 1362–19TH DECEMBER, 1370.) GREGORY XI. (30TH DECEMBER, 1370–27TH MARCH, 1378.)

Much sound knowledge about the state of the Church and of the Papal See was, indeed, evoked and spread abroad by the Pope's contest with Lewis the Bavarian;¹ but internally these convictions were still deficient in congruity, and especially in a firm basis of proof; while externally they lacked a centre of union, and the sense of power and security. Accordingly, during this struggle men's higher convictions were not seldom disavowed from political reasons; and the issue of this contest, apparently fulfilling the Pope's utmost expectations, taught the princes once more that the time was not yet come for a decisive struggle with the Papal See. But, on the other side, the popes also felt that public opinion, the strongest support of their power, was beginning to fall away from them. Thus, instead of that terrible implacability

Et sic Regina et ejus socius per venditionem hujusmodi pecunia redundantes simul in regnum redierunt. Matth. Palmerius, p. 1208: jura dominatus, quae Regina in civitatem populumque Avenionensem habebat, Romano Pontifici vendidit, et ab eodem tunc primum Pontifice Ludovicus titulos Regios accepit. The purchase-money was 80,000 gold florins; the documents of 9th June, 1348, are in Bzovii, Ann. Eccl. ad h. a. no. 10. Leibnitii, Cod. Jur. Gent. i. 200.

¹ Particularly in France. That the Pope had no power over princes in secular affairs, was a maxim generally acknowledged in this country since the time of Philip the Fair, and about 1370 at the command of King Charles V. was proved at length by Raoul de Praelles, Conseiller et Maistre de Requestes, in the Tract. de Potestate Pontificali et Imperiali seu Regia (in Goldasti Monarchia, i. 39). Yet more remarkable is the Somnium Viridarii de Jurisdictione Regia et Sacerdotali (translated into Latin in Goldasti Monarchia, i. 58; the French original is in the Traitez des Droits et Libertez de l'Eglise Galliæ, ii. 1), dedicated about the same time by an unknown author to King Charles V., in which the encroachments of the clergy and the Pope are defended by a Clericus and attacked by a Miles. The views of the latter, who even (p. 79) describes the original equality of all bishops, and the gradual rise of the Papal power, quite in the style of Marsilius Patavinus (see above, § 99, note 15), are evidently those of the author, and are maintained with superior proofs. The dreamer, indeed, at the end leaves all to the decision of the Roman Church: illud credo, teneo et firmiter profiteor, quod ipsa sacro-sancta Eccl. Romana credit, tenet atque profitetur: necnon et illud teneo et credo verum, quod ipsa duxit statuendum in Extravaganti quae incipit Unam sanctam; but the mention of the bull, Unam sanctam, to a king of France seems almost to indicate irony.

which Lewis the Bavarian experienced, we now find a mild forbearance toward powerful offenders; such, for instance, as Peter the Cruel, king of Castile,² which, content with the shadow of a satisfaction, was ever ready for reconciliation.

In the States of the Church the popes lost their influence, partly because they were far away, partly because they were foreigners, and the nobles seized on the highest power. In Rome, for a short time, the nobility was restrained by the adventurous Cola di Rienzi (1347),³ a host of petty principalities grew up in the provinces.⁴ Innocent VI. sent thither at last the warlike cardinal, Aegidius Albornoz, 1353, to reconquer the States of the Church.⁵ Charles IV., who undertook his campaign to Rome in 1354, true to his former promises, contented himself with receiving in Italy the empty honor of two crowns, without availing himself of the opportunity of restoring justice.⁶ So that ecclesiastical general

² Who, indeed, violated the laws of God more than the Papal interest. This monster, whose whole reign was a chain of shameful deeds, soon after his marriage put away his wife Blanche, for the sake of a courtesan, Maria de Padilla (1353); then he had himself divorced from her by two suffragan bishops, and married a third person (Raynald. 1354, no. 21). Now at last the ban followed (ibid. 1355, no. 29): as at the same time some dangerous riots arose, Peter took Blanche back again, but only to divorce her once more soon after (ibid. no. 31). The tyrant now heaped murder upon murder. The Pope only interceded in behalf of Blanche with prayers and remonstrances (Rayn. 1356, no. 38; 1357, no. 10); he threatened, indeed, more in earnest, when Peter confiscated the property of certain cardinals in his kingdom (ib. 1356, no. 40); but his chief effort was to rescue his vassal, Peter of Aragon, from the overpowering might of Castile. A legate negotiated a truce: when Peter of Castile broke it, he was excommunicated (ibid. 1357, no. 9): still the Pope continued to invite him, as carissimum in Christo, to peace with Aragon by a new legate (ibid. 1359, no. 2). Peter yielded, that he might make war upon the Moors. He answered the Pope's request that he would take his wife again by having her poisoned (ibid. 1361, no. 6). He soon broke the peace with Aragon, and butchered the inhabitants of Calatajuba, a city of Aragon, which did not at once surrender. The excommunication pronounced by the legate on this account (ibid. 1362, no. 18), was quickly forgotten; and Urban V. overwhelmed the tyrant with fulsome praise, when he offered him his help against the mercenary robber-bands which threatened Avignon (ib. 1365, no. 7), though all the Pope's endeavors to negotiate peace between him and Aragon (ib. 1364, no. 18; 1366, no. 30) remained fruitless.

was able to bring back the whole States of the Church to obedience without resistance. When, however, he finished his work (1360) by wresting Bologna from the powerful Bernabo Visconti, ruler of Milan,⁷ then he met with a foe to whom all fear of the Church and Papacy was as unknown⁸ as to the mercenary bands which at that time, by turns, served the nobles in their wars and pillaged on their own account.⁹ Urban V., indeed, hurled his ban against him with the most grievous complaints, and proclaimed a crusade against him (1363);¹⁰ but soon after he found it advisable

¹⁰ The bull of 30th Nov. 1362, in which Bernabo was cited, is full of the most grievous charges (Raynald. ad h. a. no. 12), e. g. Robertum Archiepiscopum Mediolanensem, pro eo quod quendam monachum—noluerat—ad ordinem promovere, ad suam praesentiam accedere compulerat, omnique reverentia Dei et officii pontificalis abjecta, eidem Archiepiscopo sermonibus contumeliosis, multis ibidem praesentibus, dixerat: Genuflecte ribalde (good-for-nothing fellow); et cum sic genuflexus existeret, adjecerat: Nescis, pultrone (poltroon), quod ego sum Papa et Imperator ac dominus in omnibus terris meis, et quod nec Imperator, immo nec Deus posset in terris meis facere, nisi quod vellem?—ipsumque Archiepiscopum deinde post multa ignominiosa opprobria sibi dicta in quadam camera recludi ausu sacrilego fecerat.—Per civitates, castra, villas et loca, quae tenebat, fecerat etiam publice proclamari, quod nullus—sub poena concremationis ad dicti praedecessoris (Innocentii VI.), seu etiam—apostolicae sedis legati curias praesumeret accedere, aut inibi gratiam vel aliud impetrare, seu eidem praedecessori, aut dicto legato de aliquibus—respondere, aut dare consilium, auxilium vel favorem; quodque absque ejus vel cuiusdam sui familiaris Gerardoli nomine, quem vulgus Papam nominat, licentia nulla electio—seu provisio fieret in Ecclesiis ac Monasteriis:—apostolicas et legatorum apostolicae sedis ac inquisitorum haereticarum pravitatis literas et processus, ac etiam literas clausas, quae jam dicto praedecessori et eisdem Cardinalibus—de diversis mundi partibus mittebantur, aperiri, legi, et saepissime lacerari, eorumque latores capi et carceri-

to make peace with the desperate Italian on equal terms (1364).¹¹ Soon after the Papal See had to rue its dependence upon France for another reason; England, out of hostility to this country, released herself from her former tribute-money.¹² So Urban V. had reasons enough for taking up his abode once more at Rome (1367). But five French cardinals remained at Avignon,¹³ and Urban was induced soon after to return thither again in person (1370).¹⁴ bus mancipari. Besides, according to Raynald's account, the Pope complains: varia crudelitatis genera a Bernabone in sacerdotes et viros religiosos injuste exercita, alios in cavaea ferrea flammis exustos, alios in equuleo discruciatos, alios amputatos capite, etc.—eo etiam prorupisse, ut Parmensem sacerdotem turrim concendere, atque ex ea Innocentium VI. et Cardinales anathemate defixos proclamare cogeret: ad suam vero ac suorum satellitum avaritiam satiandam in bona ecclesiastica adeo grassatum, ut plures sacerdotum vinctigibus exuti divina ministeria abjecerint, etc. As Bernabo disregarded the summons, he was condemned 5th March, 1363, Raynald, ann. 1363, no. 2: velut haereticum condemnamus, decernentes,—eundem Bernabonem militari cingulo, ac omnibus honoribus,—bonis et juribus suis universis et singulis fore privatum, ac universis poenis—promulgatis aduersus haereticos subjacere, et eum velut haereticum, et ab Ecclesia Dei praecisum ab omnibus Christifidelibus evitandum. Cf. Matteo Villani, xi. c. 41. The bull for the crusade appeared in July (Raynald. I. c. no. 4).

¹¹ Raynald. ann. 1364, no. 3. Compare only the preamble of the treaty of peace: In nomine Domini Amen. Suborta dudum inter reverendissimum in Christo patrem et dominum, dominum Aegidium Episcopum Sabinensem A. S. L. nomine Romanae Ecclesiae occasione vicariatus civitatis Bononiensis ejusque districtus et ex aliis causis, et magnificum dominum Bernabonem de Vicecomitibus Mediolan. gravis et nociva dissensio, et deinde inter eandem Ecclesiam—et praefatum dominum Bernabonem—guerra pestifera inde secuta quasi totam provinciam Lombardiae ac partes vicinas in discriminne posuerunt. Et tandem pro hujusmodi guerra sedanda—interventionibus in dictissimo domino, domino Carolo IV.—Imp.—ac serenissimis dominis, dominis Joanne Franciae, Ludovico Hungariae, ac Petro Jerusalem et Cypri illustribus Regibus—partes ipsae super concordia et pace hujusmodi convenerunt. Among the conditions, according to Raynald's account, was, remissae in primis acceptae illataeve injuriae; thus all censures against Bernabo were revoked, and he was recognized in all his former honors. Bernabo had indeed to resign, on account of his powerful mediators, his possessions in the territories of Bologna, Modena, and Ramandiola; but the Pope was obliged to promise 500,000 gold florins in compensation.

¹⁴ As he declared to the Romans (Raynald. 1370, no. 19), ex certis causis non solum

Bernabo Visconti was thus again encouraged to invade the Papal territory. Gregory XI., indeed, pronounced the anathema against both brothers, Galeazzo and Bernabo (1372).¹⁵ But as at the same time he closed the long struggle against the Aragonian rulers of Sicily, by the recognition of Frederick III. as King of Trinacria,¹⁶ he gave his adversaries a fresh proof that spiritual weapons were not invincible in Italy. The cities of the Ecclesiastical States, also dissatisfied with the Pope, and oppressed by their governors, soon reasserted their independence, and entered into an alliance with the Florentines and the Visconti (1375).¹⁷ While Charles IV. humbly recognized the rights lately usurped by the popes over the empire,¹⁸ Gregory XI. was unable to re-establish the unques-utilibus pro universali Ecclesia, sed etiam urgentibus; but Petrarch (Rer. Senil. lib. xiii. ep. 13) clearly points out the urgency of the French cardinals as the cause. Petrarch had written to the Pope soon after his arrival in Rome a letter of congratulation, in which Rome was extolled far above Avignon (Rer. Senil. lib. ix. ep. 1). Now, upon the Pope's return, there appeared an Invectiva in F. Petrarcham (Opp. ii. 1060), written in praise of Avignon by an anonymous Frenchman, which Petrarch answered in 1372 with an Apologia contra anonymi Galli calumnias (l. c. p. 1068).

¹⁷ Prima Vita Gregor. XI. in Baluz. i. 434: Eodem tempore communitas Florentina contra dictum Gregorium Papam et Romanam Ecclesiam insurrexit, doloseque et malitiose operata est, quod fere omnes civitates et loca alia, quae ad dictam Ecclesiam in Italia pertinebant, ei se confoederaverunt, et colligaverunt, in unumque convenerunt, ut amodo excusso a se quoconque alio superiori vel domino, in sua libertate viverent et permanerent; factoque vexillo, in quo solum magnis literis erat descripta Libertas, ordinaverunt magnam gentem armigeram, quae cum vexillo hujusmodi dictae ligae adhaerere volentes confoveret, resistentes vero vi et potentia ad eam sectandam comprimeret et arctaret. Schlosser's Weltgesch. IV. ii. 358.

or by his return in person to Rome in 1377.²⁰ He was obliged to forego his Papal sovereignty, and open negotiations with his enemies;²¹ they were interrupted by his death in 1378, but still soon ended in the restoration of peace.

II. HISTORY OF THE ECCLESIASTICAL RELATIONS OF THE PAPACY AT AVIGNON.

COMPLETION OF THE PAPAL CODE. COMP. DIV. II. § 60.

Clement V. caused the V. Libri Clementinarum, the last authentic collection of decretals, to be collected, in 1313, from the canons of the council at Vienne, and his decretals issued at other times.¹ The Constitutions, which afterward appeared (Ex-indurata, continue pejora prioribus contra dictam Ecclesiam procurando et machinando, libellos etiam diffamatorios, falsa tamen et erronea continentis, contra statum ipsius Ecclesiae et personam dicti Papae ubique transmittendo.

ECCLESIASTICAL USURPATIONS OF THE POPES AT AVIGNON.

The idea of the Papacy, which had grown up in the period previous to this, was, indeed, incapable of further extension (Div. II. § 61); but now it was developed without reserve into all its most obnoxious results, particularly by the mendicant friars,¹ whose privileges, so often attacked, were only founded upon the Papal supremacy.² Their pitiful flattery did not even blush to claim lection to the University of Bologna, which was held at that time to be the principal guardian of Canon Law: see the bull prefixed to the Clementines. The Clementines were soon plentifully commented on (see Lang, Gesch. und Institutionen des Kirchenrechts, i. 264); their glossa ordinaria is by John. Andreea (see Div. ii. § 60, note 13). Cf. G. L. Boehmer Diatr. de Clementinis, in his Observatt. Juris Canon. Goett. 1791, no. 1.

² This is only a selection from this Pope's decretals, which, however, so early as 1325, was commented upon by Zenzelinus de Cassanis, canonist at Toulouse; see Bickell, s. 7 ff.

Eccl.* above, § 99, note 17; the Franciscan, Alvari Pelagii de Planctu Ecclesiae, libb. ii, ibid, note 18; the Dominican, Petri Paludani (about 1330 patriarch of Jerusalem, † 1342) Tract. de Causa Immediata Ecclesiasticae Potestatis (published at Paris, 1506); the Franciscan, Rogeri Connovii (or de Conway, commonly called Chonoe, at Oxford) Defensio Religionis Mendicantium, immediately after 1357 (in Goldasti Monarchia, ii. 1410).

Episcopus vero dicitur sponsus suae dioecesis, presbyter autem sua parochiae. Nec tamen propter hoc sequitur, quod sint plures sponsi unius Ecclesiae: quia sacerdos sicut minister cooperatur Episcopo tanquam principali, et simul omnes Episcopi cooperantur Papae, et Papa Christo. Unde Christus, Papa, Episcopus et sacerdos non dicuntur nisi unus sponsus Ecclesiae. Art. 4: Papa succedit Christo in officio et universalis jurisdictione, quia Petrus in persona omnium summorum Pontificum recepit universalem jurisdictionem a Christo.—Quantum ad officium et universalem jurisdictionem Papa est Episcopus universalis Ecclesiae, sed quantum ad personalem administrationem singulariter est Episcopus urbis Romae. Art. 5: Utrum Papa possit immediate in qualibet dioecesi et parochia, quod potest Episcopus vel sacerdos?—Papa tenet locum Petri in Ecclesia, Episcopi vero locum Apostolorum, Presbyteri vero locum LXXII. discipulorum. Absurdum autem videtur, quod Petrus non potuisset solvere et ligare sine auctoritate Apostolorum vel discipulorum, etiam in provinciis et parochiis eis deputatis, cum singulariter Petro fuit dictum: dabo tibi claves, et ipsi non nisi per usum clavium potestatem ligandi et solvendi haberent. Eodem modo absurdum est dicere, quod Papa non possit solvere et ligare in dioecesi cuiuslibet Episcopi et parochia cuiuslibet Presbyteri, vel abolutionem et ligationem committere quibus placet. Potest etiam in provinciis et parochiis eis deputatis omnia facere per seipsum, vel per commissionem, quae ipsi Episcopi vel Presbyteri facere possunt, et adhuc amplius.—Qu. 20, art. 3: Utrum solus Papa habeat potestatem clavium?—Singulariter solus Petrus dicitur habere claves per immediatam commissionem, per immediatam derivationem, per universalem administrationem. Per immediatam quidem commissionem, quia soli Petro, cuius successor Papa existit, claves sunt commissae.—Per immediatam vero derivationem, quia potestas clavium ab eo tanquam a capite in omnes Praelatos Ecclesiae derivari debet.—Per universalem autem administrationem, quia solus ipse in tota Ecclesia universaliter Christi Vicarius existit.—Qu. 64, art. 2: sicut Apostoli missi sunt ad praedicandum non nisi praesupposita auctoritate Petri:—sic Episcopi admittuntur et assumuntur in partem sollicitudinis non nisi praesupposita auctoritate Papae, qui sicut dat eis auctoritatem exequendi officium receptum super tanta vel tali materia, si bene utantur, ita culpa exigente, si commiso officio abutuntur, potest eos dicta executione privare.—Qu. 65, art. 5: non minoris auctoritatis est Papa in tota Ecclesia, quam quilibet Episcopus in sua dioecesi, immo majoris, cum in propria dioecesi Episcopus jurisdictionem non exerceat nisi auctoritate Papae. Sed quilibet Episcopus in propria dioecesi potest et debet religiosos et alios idoneos viros ad sanctae praedicationis officium assumere, qui vice ipsorum plebes Christi eis commissas aedificant verbo et exemplo, absque omni requisitione Presbyterorum, in quorum parochiis praedicant.—Ergo similiter Papa potest et debet in tota Ecclesia aliquos religiosos et idoneos viros ad sanctae praedicationis officium ordinare,—qui in qualibet dioecesi et in qualibet parochia—absque omni requisitione Episcoporum et Presbyterorum possunt praedicare, et alia spiritualia per sedem apostolicam eis commissa administrare.—Alvari Pelagii de Planctu Ecclesiae, lib. i. c. 6: Papa super omnia, etiam generalia, concilia est, et ab ipso ipsa recipiunt jurisdictionem et auctoritatem, et licentiam congregandi se. C. 14: Omnis creatura per eum valet judicari, et ipse a nulla in terris, etiam universalis concilio. C. 17: Plus potest Papa solus in iis, quae non sunt contra capitulos fidei, et adjacentia eis, et sacramenta, quam tota Ecclesia catholica, et concilia seorsum. C. 29: unum est consistorium et tribunal Christi et Papae in terris. C. 58: Sciendum est, quod potentia summi Pontificis et Christi vicarii plena dicitur. Primo quia ab hac potentia nullus ad Ecclesiam militantem qualitercumque pertinet. Secundo quia omnis potestas ad gubernationem fidelium a Deo ordinata et hominibus data, sive spiritualis, sive temporalis, in hac potestate comprehenditur.—Tertio quia omnis potestas in Ecclesia ab hac potestate, derivatur, et ad eam ordinatur,—quia ipsa principium est et finis cuiuslibet potestatis, et ideo quaelibet potestas humana ei jure subditur. Quarto quia a nulla potestate humana exceditur, vel superatur.—Quinto quia a nulla alia potestate puri hominis limitatur, aut ordinatur, aut judicatur: sed ipsa alias limitat, ordinat, et judicat.—Sexto quia ordine potestatum, aut legibus ab ipso positis non coactatur: potest enim agere et medianibus aliis potestatisbus, et non medianibus, quando viderit expedire, quia ordinarius omnium est.—Potest etiam agere et secundum leges quas ponit, et praeter illas, ubi opportunum esse judicaverit.—Merito ergo in summo Pontifice plenitudo dicitur existere potestatis: unde et propter hoc dicitur potestas ejus esse sine numero, pondere et mensura.—Est enim sine numero, quantum ad eos, qui ejus potestati subduntur, qui quoad nostram notitiam sunt innumerabiles.—Est autem sine pondere, quantum ad locum: pondus enim est inclinatio rei ad locum proprium et determinatum: haec autem potestas non determinatur ad unum locum, vel ad unam Ecclesiam, sed ad omnes prorsus Ecclesias in quibuslibet locis positis extenditur. Est sine mensura, quantum ad actum et modum agendi, quia quodammodo immensa est in agendo et in modo agendi. Unde sicut homini Christo datus est spiritus non ad mensuram, Jo. iii. 34, caeteris autem datur secundum aliquam mensuram donationis Christi, Eph. iv. 7; Rom. xii.: sic vicario Christi Pontifici summo data est potestas non ad mensuram, sed in quadam immensitate; aliis autem datur potestas secundum mensuram aliquam participationis hujus immensae potestatis. Et cum sit ipsa potestas vicarii Christi sine numero, pondere et mensura, imponit tamen et determinat aliis potestatibus pondus, numerum et mensuram.

³ Augustini Triumphi, qu. 9, art. 1. Utrum Papae debeatur honor, qui debetur Christo secundum quod Deus? Videtur:—quia honor debetur potestati, sed una est potestas Christi secundum quod Deus et Papae: quod probatur, quia potestas Christi secundum quod Deus est peccata dimittere juxta illud Marc. ii., quis potest peccata dimittere nisi solus Deus? istud autem convenit Papae, quia quocunque ligat vel solvit super terram, est ligatum vel solutum in caelis.—Porro latra est servitus soli Deo debita:—sed omnis servitus debetur Papae, ergo honor qui debetur Deo debetur sibi.—In contrarium est, quod honor, qui debetur creatori, sine peccato idolatriæ non debetur puræ creaturae.—R. Dicendum,—quod honor potest exhiberi Deo dupliciter. Primo ratione communis potestatis, cum qua convenit cum creaturis convenientia cujusdam analogiae univocationis. Convenit ergo creatori et creaturae potestas et dominatio, et multa alia, ut bonitas, scientia et justitia, quae attribuuntur Deo, tamen convenienti creaturae, Deo quidem essentialiter, creaturae vero participative et ministerialiter vel instrumentaliter: et ratione istorum quidam honor, et quaedam servitus impenditur Deo, quae sine peccato potest exhiberi creaturae, ut thurificatio et genuflexio et alia servitus, quae graeco nomine dulia appellatur. Quaedam vero servitus Deo impenditur ratione ejus singularis majestatis,—ratione cuius singulare genus servitii sibi exhibetur, quod latra appellatur.—Sacrificium est ille singularis honor et illa singularis servitus, quae sic debetur Christo secundum quod Deus, non debetur Papae, nec alicui puræ creaturae.—Ad primum ergo est dicendum:—in Christo secundum quod Deus invenitur dominatio, quae est summa potestas, et ideo servitus summa sibi debetur, quae latra appellatur: in Papa autem non invenitur nisi participative et ministerialiter, etc.—In Art. 3 it is proved that the same honor is due to the Pope as to the saints (honor Papae exhibetur ratione potestatis et auctoritatis: verum quia potestas talis est ordinata potissime, quia est a Deo sibi tributa, et quae a Deo sunt, ordinata sunt, sic dicit Apost. ad Rom. xiii.: ideo includit talis potestas vitae sanctitatem et doctrinae veritatem).—Propter quod licet honor sit sibi exhibendus ratione potestatis, non est sibi subtrahendus honor, qui debetur Sanctis ratione sanctitatis et doctrinae veritatis). And, in Art. 4, the honor rendered to angels is shown to be due to him (exhibebatur honor Angelis per Patres veteris Testamenti, quia in eis repraesentabatur Deus per subjectam creaturam de aere vel undecunque visibiliter ab eis assumptam: sed longe melius Deus repraesentatur per Papam, et quantum ad naturae conformitatem, quia Dei filius nunquam Angelos apprehendit, sed semen Abrahæ in unitatem personæ, et quantum ad officii potestatem, quia nulli Angelorum concessit clavis ligandi et solvendi in caelo et in terra, sicut concessit Petro et successoribus ejus).—Zenzelinus (1325) adds plainly in his gloss to Extravag. Jo. XXII. tit. xiv. c. 4, in fine: Credere autem dominum Deum nostrum Papam, conditorem dictae decretalis, sic non potuisse statuere, prout statuit, haereticum censeretur. Thus the passage stands in the Lyonese editions of 1584 and 1606, and in the Paris editions of 1585, 1601, and 1612: the word Deum is left out in the later editions.

on the side of Lewis, the Bavarian, made no general impression, and died away altogether when, after Lewis's death, the victory of the Papacy was complete and decisive. In France, indeed, under Philip the Fair, a sounder system had won almost universal authority among learned men:⁴ however, since the kings of France gladly allowed this extension of the Papal power, now that it was always at their service, no resistance found utterance among them.

In the new ecclesiastical usurpations by which the popes of Avignon struggled for the complete realization of their idea of the Papacy, mean selfishness and low avarice, together with open disregard of the wants of the Church, were most odiously conspicuous. There began, in the Papal court at Avignon, a more reckless and voluptuous mode of life;⁵ while the rich revenues of the popes and their curia, drawn from the States of the Church, were partly uncertain, partly withheld. Thus the popes of Avignon were obliged to discover for themselves and their curia fresh resources elsewhere. The want was quickly supplied, but now followed insatiable avarice, and the most intolerable oppressions were set on foot in the Church ; the proceeds were sometimes treasured up at Avignon, sometimes misspent on the political aims of the Pope, sometimes squandered.

⁵ Francesco Petrarca († 1374), who lived a long time at the Papal court in Avignon, gives a hideous description of its corruption in his confidential letters to his friends (Epistole sine titulo). In Ep. 8. (Opp. ii. 719) he calls Avignon the third Babylon and the fifth Labyrinth: quam juste autem, qui noscere cupit, huc properet. Non hic carcer horrendus, non tenebrosae domus error, non fatalis urna humani generis fata per miscens, denique non imperiosus Minos, non Minotaurus vorax, non damnatae Veneris monimenta defuerint: sed remedia, sed amor, sed caritas, sed promissorum fides, sed amica consilia, sed fila perplexum iter tacita ope signantia, sed Ariadna, sed Daedalus. Una salutis spes in auro est, auro placatur rex ferus, auro immane monstrum vincitur, auro salutare lorum texitur, auro durum limen ostenditur, auro vectes et saxa franguntur, auro tristis janitor mollitur, auro caelum panditur, quid multa? auro Christus venditur. Comp. Epist. 14 and 15, especially Epist. 16: Omne bonum ibi perditur, sed primum omnium libertas, mox ex ordine quies, gaudium, spes, fides, caritas, animae jacturae ingentes. Sed in regno avaritiae nihil damno adscribitur, modo pecunia salva sit. Futurae tibi vitae spes inanis quaedam fabula, et quae de inferis narrantur fabulosa omnia, et resurrectio carnis et mundi finis et Christus ad judicium venturus inter naenias habentur. Veritas ibi dementia est, abstinentia vero rusticitas, pudicitia probrum ingens: denique peccandi licentia magnanimitas et libertas eximia, et quo pollutior eo clarior vita, quo plus scelerum eo plus gloriae, bonum nomen coeno vilius, atque ultima mercium fama est.—Taceo haereditatem Simonis, et illam haeresis speciem, non ultimam, Spiritus sancti dona mercantium. Taceo mali illius avaritiam matrem, quae idolorum servitus ab Apostolo dicta est. Taceo utriusque pestis artifices, et concursantes Pontificum thalamis proxenetas. Taceo crudelitatem humanitatis immemorem, ei sui ipsius oblitam insolentiam, atque illos vanis flatibus tensos utres. Taceo denique illa prodigia,—quorum moesta nimis et severa narratio: ad ridicula simul atque odiosa festino. Quis enim oro non irascatur et rideat illos senes pueros coma candida, togis amplissimis, adeoque lascivientibus animis, ut nihil illuc falsius videatur, quam quod ait Maro: Frigidus in Venerem senior? Tam calidi, tamque praeincipites in Venerem senes sunt, tanta eos aetatis et status et virium cepit oblivio, sic in libidines inardescunt, sic in omne ruunt dedecus, quasi omnis eorum gloria non in cruce Christi sit, sed in comesationibus, et ebrietatibus, et, quae has sequuntur in cubilibus, impudicitiis: sic fugientem manu retrahunt inventam, atque hoc unum senectutis ultimae lucrum putant, ea facere, quae juvenes non auderent.—Mitto supra, raptus, incestus, adulteria, qui jam pontificalis lasciviae ludi sunt: mitto raptarum viros, ne mutire audeant, non tantum

Among the new Papal usurpations the most disgraceful were the extended reservations of ecclesiastical offices, in consequence of which even bishoprics and parishes were now granted in commendam, or bestowed upon unfit persons. Clement V. had already reserved to himself several churches, to which indeed, in France, he was obliged to appoint according to the King's pleasure,⁶ granted many benefices in commendam,⁷ and drew upon himself the charge avitis laribus, sed finibus patriis exturbatos, quaeque contumeliarum gravissima est, et violatas conjuges et externo semine gravidas rursus accipere, et post partum reddere ad alternam satietatem abutentium coactos. Quae omnia non unus ego, sed vulgus novit, etsi taceat, quamvis ne id ipsum taceat jam major est indignatio quam metus, etc. Several of Petrarch's eclogues are satires on the Papal court (Ginguéné, Hist. Liter. d'Italie, t. 2, Paris, 1811, p. 477). Thus in the sixth, Pamphilus (i. e. St. Peter) sternly rebukes Mition (Clement VI.) for his course of life : in the seventh, Mition converses with the nymph Epy (Epicurea, i. e. Avignon) ; she represents the cardinals one after another in dark colors.—Cf. De Ruina Ecclesiae (with the title De Corrupto Eccl. Statu in the earlier editions, written in 1401, but not, as is commonly believed, by Nic. de Clémangis ; see Nic. de Clémanges, Thèse par A. Müntz, Strasbourg et Paris, 1846, p. 66), c. 42, in v. d. Hardt Concil. Constant. I. iii. 45 : Ex illo plane suam cladem imminere prae nosse debuit (Ecclesia), ex quo propter suas fornicationes odibiles Romuli urbe reicta Avinionem confugit. Ubi quanto liberius, tanto apertius et impudentius vias sua simoniae et prostitutiones exposuit, peregrinosque et perversos mores, calamitatum inductores, in nostram Galliam invexit, rectisque usque ad illa tempora moribus frugalibus disciplina instante, nunc vero luxu prodigioso usque adeo solutam, ut merito ambigere possis, utrum res ipsa audit a mirabilior sit, an visa miserabilior.

of simony.⁸ But his successor, John XXII., proceeded in a still more shameful manner. While he found it unnecessary to announce his will otherwise than by a verbal declaration to his Chancery,⁹ he extended the former reservations of benefices fall-

ad eorum importunas et multiplicatas precum instantias nonnullis clericis—patriarchales, archiepiscopales et episcopales Ecclesias ac monasteria—sub commenda vel custodiae, seu curae, vel guardiae, aut administrationis titulo—duximus—committenda. Super iis autem, an tales videlicet et tantas gratias per nos fieri decüssent, variorum et arduorum negotiorum multiplicitate distracti usque ad tempus, quo infirmitate satis periculosa nos iis diebus Deus visitavit omnipotens, nequivimus plenarie cogitare. Verum in debilitate ipsius aegritudinis constituti, et a negotiorum utcumque discussione semoti, ad haec sub diligenti examine direximus aciem nostrae mentis, demumque prospexitus evidenter, quod Ecclesiarum et monasteriorum eorundem cura negligitur, bona et jura dissipantur ipsorum, ac subjectis eis personis et populis spiritualiter plurimum et temporaliter derogatur.—Volentes opportunum et debitum in hac parte remedium adhibere, omnes et singulas commissiones hujusmodi per nos—factas quibuscumque eujusvis ordinis, dignitatis, aut status, si etiam s. Romanae Ecclesiae Cardinalibus—factae noscantur, auctoritate apostolica—cassamus et annullamus. But how little this Constitution came into operation was manifested at the council of Vienne, 1311. Guil. Durantis complains, in his work written at that time, De Modo Celebrandi Generalis Concilii (comp. Div. 2, § 62, note 28), P. ii. tit. 21: domini Cardinales in grave animorum ipsorum periculum et universalis Ecclesiae dispendium multa millia florenorum—sibi et multis pestifera adinventione super Ecclesias etiam parochiales et curatas faciunt cumulari, et Ecclesias etiam cathedrales et ultramarinas sub diversis coloribus commendari, et certas sibi solvi ab illis, qui eorum promovent auxilio, pensiones, quae numquam in Romana Ecclesia moriuntur, sed ab uno Cardinali in alium vel in ejus vel domini Papae propinquum vel nepotem detinentur. Ex quibus sequitur, cum sibi vindicent universa, infelix quod Clericus, qui de praedictis beneficiis sustentari et eis personaliter deservire debuerat, mendicat in plateis.—Ex hac peste etiam noviter introductum est contra jura, quod Prioratus Conventuales, et alia beneficia ecclesiastica, consueta regi per Monachos et alios Regulares, domini Cardinales—sibi et suis faciunt assignari, quanquam non efficiantur Monachi.—Ex quibus in dictis Prioratibus et beneficiis Regularium periiit in totum regularis observantiae disciplina, cum non sit inter eos, qui corrigat, etc. A bishop brought similar complaints before the council (Raynald. 1311, no. 59): Quia multi vita et moribus detestabiles de diversis mundi partibus ad sedem apostolicam concurrentes—beneficia cum cura, vel sine cura quotidie impetrarc noscuntur,—et a Praelatis veneranter instituti vel admissi ita detestabilem vel deformem vitam ducunt, quod ob hoc Ecclesiae destruuntur;—Praelati non possunt hodie bonis personis de beneficiis—obstante numerosa multitudo clericorum impetrantium providere.—Heu mittunt ad Ecclesias vel personae inutiles, peregrinae linguae, barbarae nationis; vel si sunt bonae personae et utiles, nunquam in eisdem resident Ecclesiis, sed in Romana curia, aut Regis aut Principum curiis commorantes per privilegia fructus beneficiorum percipiunt, qui eisdem Ecclesiis de nihilo servient.—Cum tam secundum jura divina quam humana singula ecclesiastici juris officia sint singillatim singulis committenda personis;—hodie—una persona, aliquando minus idonea, quatuor vel quinque in diversis Ecclesiis obtinet beneficia,—quinimmo decem vel duodecim—et aliquando plures, sicut vidi. Heu aliquando una persona tot obtinet dignitates, personatus vel officia, quod ex eis posset quinquaginta vel sexaginta exercitatis et literatis personis sufficientissime provideri.—Quid autem de pueris, qui omni discretione carentes—tot obtinent dignitates et beneficia, referam, nescio, etc.

⁹ Just as he published his “processus,” by posting them on the church doors at Avignon; see above, § 99, note 7.—Baluz. PP. Aven. i., 722, contributes the following remarkable document: Anno Dom. MCCCXVI. 17. Kal. Oct. Lugduni sanctissimus pater et dominus Johannes P. XXII. pontificatus sui anno primo reservavit sua et sedis apostolicae collationi omnia beneficia ecclesiastica, quae fuerunt et quoconque nomine censeantur, ubicunque ea vacare contigerit per acceptationem alterius beneficii praetextu gratiae ab eodem domino Papa factae vel facienda acceptati; mihiique Gaucelmo Vicecancellario suo praecepit in praesentia magistri Petri Fabri, quod haec ad memoriam redigerem in scripturam. This is the first trace of the notorious Papal Chancery rules (Regulae cancellariae). Comp. Gesh. d. rōm. Kanzleiregeln, in Le Bret’s Magazin f. Staaten- u. Kirchengesch. ii. 605, iii. 1.

¹³ Thus the kings of Castile and Portugal complained to the Pope (Raynald. ann. 1330, no. 44) that, whereas formerly the native clergy had rendered them considerable after his death testified to his way of procedure with regard to appointments.¹⁴ The conscientious Benedict XII. revoked the grants in commendam,¹⁵ and only confirmed the reservations of his predecessor,¹⁶ with a view to fill up again the ecclesiastical posts with worthier appointments.¹⁷ However, he could win no respect for himself and his principles among the members of his curia.¹⁸ So assistance in the wars with the Moors, nunc istis (indigenis) exclusis pariter et contemptis alienigenae, qui nec zelo fidei, nec devotione aliqua ad praemissa invitantur, sed de imburanda pecunia, quam de ipsis beneficiis percipere possunt, ad alias transferendi partes, continuam gerunt sollicitudinem, eisdem Ecclesiis, monasteriis, personatibus, dignitatibus sunt paelati. Quare supplicant idem Reges humiliter et instanter, quatenus praemissis alienigenis ad alia beneficia in aliis partibus translati de paelatiis, personatibus, etc., per eos detentis indigenis regnorum praedictorum dignetur eadem sanctitas providere. A more powerful resistance was offered in Germany: Heinricus de Rebdorff, ad ann. 1333: In Alemania magnum schisma est in clero et populo, ex provisionibus sedis apostolicae ad episcopales et solemnes paelaturas et alia beneficia, quas idem Ludwicus in odium sedis apostolicae fortiter impedit.

¹⁶ In the year 1335 he confirmed the Constitution Ex debito (see note 10) by the bull Ad regimen (Extravagg. comm. III. ii. 13).

¹⁸ Octava vita, p. 240: Huic domino Benedicto maxime insitum cordi fuit, clericos et religiosorum ordinum professores et status reformare, et, ut dicatur verius, infirmare. Paucos enim vel nullos bonos credebat, et omnes a via mandatorum domini et conciliorum semita declinasce dicebat.—Hic dominus Benedictus Papa avarus, durus et tenax, in conferendis gratiis remissus, tardus et negligens in providingo statum Ecclesiarum supra modum fuit; et in excusatione duritiae suae paucos ad haec dignos vel sufficientes dicebat. Omnes dominos Cardinales fore deceptores sui credebat. Raro supplicationes ipsorum recipere volebat, ipsosque non modicum suspectos habebat. Ordines mendicantium supra modum per facti evidentiam exosos habebat. Paucos vel nullos de ipsis or-

far from this, Clement VI., a Pope of exactly opposite character, was chosen after his death: treading in the footsteps of John XXII., he arbitrarily disposed of the benefices of all countries¹⁹ chiefly in favor of his own relatives, and the members of his curia;²⁰ he was also addicted to secular pomp. Innocent VI.²¹

dinibus ad praelationes promovebat. Dissensiones eorum libentur audiebat, et subditis contra Praelatos favere videbatur mirabiliter. At his death the following verses were made upon him (Septima vita, p. 240):

Iste fuit Nero, laicus mors, viper a clero,
Deivus a vero, cuppa (barrel) repleta mero.

²⁰ Quinta vita (Baluz. i. 311): Ipse sumptuosissimum tenuit statum et multum pomposum ac saecularem.

²¹ Christ says to St. Brigitta (S. B. Revelationes, lib. iv. c. 136): Iste Papa Innocentius est de aere meliori quam antecessor ejus, et materia apta ad recipiendum colores optimos. Tertia vita Innoc. VI. (in Baluz. i. 357): Hic fuit vir justus et durus in concedendo beneficia et jura ecclesiastica. Subito post suam coronationem multas reservations factas per Clementem suum praedecessorem suspendit, et constituit, Praelatos et alios beneficiatos in curia tunc morantes unumquemque ad suum beneficium personaliter applicare, et ibi residentiam facere sub pena excommunicationis: quod et factum est. Hic diminuit expensas et familiares suos et etiam omnium Cardinalium. He gives himself in his bull (Raynald. ann. 1354, no. 31), as the reason for the abolishment of

and Urban V.²² returned, indeed, to a worthier course; they could not, however, obliterate all traces of the abuses which had crept in.²³ Gregory XI. again appointed to offices according to the wish of his relatives;²⁴ and so, in the exercise of the newly usurped privileges, wrong recovered the upper hand.

Moreover, the Church was burdened with fresh imposts. Confirmation fees²⁵ were demanded from the prelates: the popes generally claimed from the smaller benefices, in case of a vacancy, the fructus primi anni.²⁶ But the taxes most burdensome to the grants in commendam, quod occasione commendarum,—sicut experientia docuit, ut plurimum divinus cultus minuitur, animarum—cura negligitur, hospitalitas consueta et debita non servatur, ruinis aedificia patent, etc.

²² Prima vita Urb. V. (Baluz. i. 394): Simoniacos execratus est. Ementes enim et vendentes beneficia sive spirituales gratias—puniri multimode ordinavit, immo et eorum quamplurimos curiam exire coegerit. Beneficiorum multiplicationem, praesertim incompatiblem, in eadem personam concurrentium invitissime toleravit, immo multos ex illis qui plurima obtinebant privavit, relictis eis tantummodo illis, quae suis statui et sufficientiae congrue convenire judicavit. Super quo etiam constitutionem edidit, quae incipit Horribilis; in qua quod suo tempore licere sibi non passus est suis successoribus indicavit, etc. There is one bull by this Pope, Contra pluralitates in beneficiis, of 5th May, 1365, in Wilkins Conc. Magn. Brit. iii. 62, another agaiust the union and incorporation of benefices, l. c. p. 65.

²⁵ From an early date taxes for consecration were alternately demanded, and condemned as simony; see De Marca de Conc. Sac. et Imp. lib. vi. c. 10: so early as the time of Alexander IV., about 1260, a portion of these fees, under the name annatae (for they were determined according to the amount of the annual revenue), was paid over to the Pope and cardinals, and complaints were made on this account (Ostiensis Comm. in Decr. Greg. i. tit. 32, c. 15): Under Clement V., whether the bishops were consecrated at the Papal court or not, the fees were levied for every provision; see Guil. Durantis, De Modo Generalis Concilii Celebrandi, P. ii. tit. 20: Cum illa decreta, in quibus agitur de simonia,—non servantur, et maxime in curia Romana, in qua etiam coetus dominorum Cardinalium vult habere una cum domino Papa certam portionem a Praelatis, qui promoventur ibidem: videretur super hoc maxime providendum. Cf. Johannes Andreæ (decretalist in Bologna, † 1348), Comm. in Decr. Greg. I. tit. 32, c. 15: Plures clamavi in tantum, quod de hoc fuit sermo in Concilio Viennensi, quod optarem, quod curia reciperet vicesimam reddituum clericorum totius orbis ad sustentationem Papae et Cardinalium, et nihil exigi posset pro servitiis Prelatorum, quos promovet, exceptis laxatis salariis laborantium, puta scriptorum et similium: et tunc provideret legatis et nunciis, quos mittit, de predicta quota; abstineret autem ab exactione fructuum primi anni, exactionibus decimarum et similibus, quae nunc pullulant.

percipere primi anni. But in England he had already wrested this pretended right from the bishops in order to exercise it himself: Matthaei Westmonasteriensis (about 1377), Flores Histor. ad ann. 1306 (ed. Francon. 1601, fol. p. 454); Ipse vero Papa videns insatiabilem quorundam Episcoporum Angliae avaritiam, importune postulantum primas vacantes Ecclesias per annum in suis dioecesis sibi concedi, advertensque, quia quod postulat inferior, potest et superior, appropriavit sibi ipsi per biennium omnes proventus de primo vacantibus Ecclesiis in Anglia, videlicet de primo anno primos fructus, tam de episcopatis, abbatis, prioratibus, praebendis, rectoriis et vicariis, quam de caeteris minutis beneficiis. John XXII., in the year 1317, still drew these revenues from England (Raynald. 1317, no. 49); but he soon after extended his claim for them over the whole Church, when he reserved (see the bull, Cum nonnullae, of the year 1319, Extravagg. comm. III. ii. 11, an explanation of the former bull of reservation no longer extant), pro Ecclesiae Rom. necessitatibus fructus, redditus et proventus primi anni beneficiorum ecclesiasticorum, et jam vacantium, et quae in diversis orbis partibus usque ad triennium vacare contingeret, but with the exception of the archiepiscopales et episcopales Ecclesiae, ac regulares Abbatiae. In the Declaratio nationis Gallicae in Conc. Const. (1417) de Annatis non solvendis, cap. 2 (in v. d. Hardt Concil. Const. I. xiii. 764), it was remarked, that this was the first reservation of this kind. Deinde postmodum nonnulli Romani Pontifices, ipsius (Joannis XXII.) successores, etiam certis temporibus similes fecerunt reservations, certis causis expressis. Quas Clerus, Principes et populus aliquo tempore tolerarunt. Sed postmodum nimium gravati ex iis, in aliquibus regnis et provinciis, recusaverunt solvere. Prout fuit factum in Anglia et quibusdam aliis locis. That these reservations were not yet the Annates which afterward arose may be seen in Boehmeri Observatt. Sel. ad de Marca, lib. vi. c. 10, p. 153 ss. How these grew up, see below, § 105, note 3.

²⁷ Continuatio Chron. Guil. de Nangis, ad ann. 1326 (in d'Achery Spicil. iii. 86): Papa depauperatum se videns, misit nuncios speciales per universas provincias regni Franciae ad petendum Ecclesiarum—subsidiū pro guerra sua in Italia prosequenda. Quod Rex Franciae, asserens hoc in regno Franciae inconsuetum, prohibuit: sed domino Papa sibi super his resribente, postmodum Rex considerans Do ut des, faciliter concessit; unde et pro duobus succendentibus annis Papa Regi biennalem decimam super Ecclesiam concessit: et ita dum miseram Ecclesiam unus tondet, alter excoriat. How often and how long the kings of France raised these tithes, see above, § 99, note 37; § 100, note 2. Thomassini Vetus et Nova Eccl. Discipl. P. iii. lib. i. c. 43, § 10: the kings of Spain had almost unceasingly levied these tithes for their wars against the Moors, see Thomassini, I. c. c. 44, § 3; but they were not seldom granted even to the kings of England; thus, in 1306, for two years (Matth. Westmonaster. p. 454); in 1317, for one year (Raynald. ad h. a. no. 49); in 1333, for four years (Thomas Walsingham, p. 131), etc. On this head says the Minorite, Johannes de Rupescissa, 1349, in his Propheta (in Edw. Brown, Appendix ad Fascic. Rerum Expetendarum et Fugiendarum, Lond. 1690, fol. p. 495): propter impositionem decimarum et visitationum, orationes quae deberent fieri per clerum—convertuntur in maledictiones et lamentationes, et maxime contra illos, qui talia imposuerunt, quia tanta est paupertas in clero, quod onera non possunt supportare. —Et quia praetextu guerrarum predictarum sunt imposta, utinam reducerentur ad mentem verba, quae ego audivi a domino Benedicto (XII.) sanctae memoriae super factis guerrarum, quod nunquam fuit intentionis faciendi guerras, etiam pro patrimonio Ecclesiae, nisi cum armis spiritualibus: et dicebat etiam quod guerrae, quae fuerunt factae per Ecclesiam, vel fierent in futurum, sortientur tristem effectum; et quod plus confidebat orationibus et lacrymis, quam impositionibus decimarum et visitationum, et ideo nunquam voluit talia concedere, sed cunctos ab omni gravamine conservabat: tamen

Thus all kinds of ecclesiastical oppression, which, when essayed in earlier times by secular princes, the popes had resisted to the utmost of their power, were now practiced in a greater degree by the popes themselves. However, the most revolting fact was the slavish flattery which, with the aid of a pitiful casuistry, sought to excuse these manifest abuses,²⁸ and even the Papal simony.²⁹ On dicta et facta sua et plurimum aliorum Deum timentium reputantur phantastica, et conversa sunt in cantica et musicum carmen. However, the popes quickly met with a stout resistance when they demanded the tithes of the Church. "In the year 1359 a legate of Innocent VI., who required a tithe from the German clergy, was decidedly refused at a diet (Trithemii Chron. Hirsau. ii. 235) : in 1366, the Archbishop of Gnesen, with his suffragans, protested against a tithe of three years, proposed to be exacted from them by Urban V. (Stenzel's Urkunden des Bisth. Breslau, Einleit., s. xcvi.) : in 1372, the chapter and religious houses of Mayence united in resistance to a tithe levied by Gregory XI. ; see the Unio in Gudeni Codex Diplomaticus, iii. 507 : they first recite the misfortunes and oppressions which made it impossible for them to pay this tax ; among these, also, usualis monetae debilitas, quae et plurimum ex transportatione florenorum harum partium ad Romanam Curiam et aliunde facta communiter accidisse refertur. They had come to such a state, quod non est reperire personam ecclesiasticam civitatis et diocesis Maguntiae, quae de redditibus ecclesiasticis, deductis omnibus debitibus, juxta sui beneficii et status exigentiam valeat sustentari.—Propter exactiones papales perplurimas in his terris Clerici ad magnam paupertatem redacti, servis, immo Judaeis comparati, detestabiliter despiciuntur, et a Laicis—quasi licite capiuntur, ipsorumque bona diripiuntur et ignibus devastantur, ipsaque sancta sedes et nomen apostolicum—adeo vilipensa diffamantur, quod proinde fides catholica magna vacillat in parte, Laicis videntibus Clericos—per se dem apostolicam et ejus diversarum impositionum modos, videlicet servitorum communium, decimarum papalium et imperialium, procurationum, primarum Annatum, subventionum Nunciorum apostolicorum, ecclesiasticarum reservationum, ac specialiter decedentium Praelatorum continua extortionibus affligi. Et exinde diversa et gravissima animarum pericula et schismata—jam insurgunt,—laicis ipsis clamantibus, et desperte contra Romanam Ecclesiam invehentibus, quod sedes ipsa—ad partes exteriores nunquam his temporibus mittit praedicatores vel vitiorum correctores, sed quotidie mittit bene pompantes,—pecuniarum peritissimos exactores. Et propter haec et alia,—paucissimi jam in terris istis inveniuntur, nisi solo nomine Christiani. They, therefore, will unite in this, ne quoque nobis, miserabiliter sicut praemittitur afflictis, intolerabilis afflictio superaddatur, nosque per artationem et compulsionem solutionis hujusmodi Decimarum et aliarum Collectarum, quounque nomine censeantur, imposterum ut verisimiliter praesumitur imponendarum, paulatim et successive ad extremae exinanitionis dispendium deducamus ; they agreed to bear all dangers and costs in common, sic etiam, quod talis, qui cunque hujusmodi rei occasione qualitercunque gravatus seu damnificatus, a nobis et a Clero non vitetur, nec in suis Ecclesia aut Monasterio—ab aliquibus actibus excludatur, sed quod suis praebendis ac beneficiis—pacifice gaudeat et fruatur, ac si gravatus nullo modo fuisset.—Item nullus dictam Decimam in parte vel in toto solvat, seu se solutarum promittat, aut super ea componat—absque Nostrum scitu—et assensu.—Et si aliqui forsan tenui conscientia tenti, trepidantes ubi trepidandum non est, etiam hujusmodi Decimam solverint, vel super ea se composuerint:—praeter perjurii poenam quam ipso facto incurront, a perceptione omnium fructuum—beneficiorum suorum—suspensi maneat, et sint infames, nec ad aliquam dignitatem, beneficium seu officium aliquod—per electionem seu alterius dispositionis modum ullatenus admittantur. In the year 1375, also, the three archbishops of Mayence, Trêves, and Cologne, refused to pay the tithe to the Pope. Detmar's Chronik, i. 301.

²⁸ E. g. Augustinus Triumphus, qu. 68, art. 1: Utrum Papa possit dispensare in pluralitate beneficiorum?—In collatione beneficiorum aliiquid est de jure divino et naturali,

the other hand, in England, there grew up a decisive resistance to the oppressions of the Papacy, leagued as it was with hostile France: the popes dared not venture to encounter this resistance in earnest, for its roots were in the people.³⁰

et aliquid est de jure positivo. De jure namque naturali et divino est, ut beneficium detur propter administrationem officii.—De jure vero positivo est paucitas vel pluralitas beneficiorum: non enim possunt talia cadere sub una regula, quia considerata quandoque Ecclesiae necessitate vel personae dignitate plura beneficia conferenda sunt uni quam alteri. Cum igitur Papa non solum possit illa, quae sunt juris positivi, verum etiam supra ipsum jus potest dispensare (Decr. Greg. III. 8. 4. Div. 2, § 61, note 10): ideo dicendum est, quod sicut de jure positivo communi, cuius Papa est conditor, facta est talis restrictio, ut nulli liceat plura beneficia habere, sed quicunque recipit aliquid beneficium curam habens animarum annexam, si prius tale beneficium habebat, est eo ipso jure privatus: sic Papa, qui est supra jus, potest talem restrictionem relaxare, etc.—Q. 72, art. 2: Utrum Papa pecet providendo compatriotae et domestico magis, quam extraneo? Videtur,—quia bona communia sunt communiter dispensanda.—Porro in provisione spiritualis beneficij causa spiritualis debet considerari, sed patria vel familiaritas est causa carnalis, non spiritualis. Porro scandalum multorum Papa debet maxime vitare: sed multi scandalizantur, cum compatriotis et familiaribus Papae vel Praelati providetur magis quam aliis.—In contrarium est Apostolus, 1 Tim. 5: Qui suorum et maxime domesticorum curam non habet, fidem negavit, et est infidi deterior.—R. dicendum, quod in provisione ecclesiastici beneficij vel potest attendi beneficium quod confertur, vel intentio conferentis, vel locus, in quo confertur. Si vero consideretur beneficium, quod confertur, cum sit spirituale, non debet dari nisi pro officio. Quanto ergo quis est sufficientior et dignior in officii administratione, tanto citius meretur beneficij provisionem. —Si vero consideretur intentio providentis, aut providet compatriotae et domestico ex aliqua causa debita magis quam extraneo, utputa propter ejus majorem paupertatem, vel propter receptum honestum obsequium, puto quod non peccat. Si vero faciat hoc ex causa illicita et indebita, ut praecise propter patriae affectionem, vel consanguinitatem, vel propter cumulandas ejus divitias, peccato non caret provisio.

²⁹ Thus before this time, Card. Ostiensis, Div. 2, § 61, note 9. Alvarus Pelagi de Planctu Eccl. lib. ii. c. 14: Quaerendum est, an Papa possit committere simoniam. Et tenet Thomas, quod sic.—Quamvis enim res Ecclesiae sint ejus, ut principalis dispensatoris, non tamen sunt ejus ut domini et possessoris.—On the other hand: Papa legibus loquentibus de simonia et canonibus solitus est.—Credo, quod si Papa in iis, quae sunt prohibita quia simoniaca, ut vendere sacramenta, quorum venditio in veteri testamento etiam prohibetur,—pactum vel conditionem vel conventionem apponeret, committeret simoniam. Secus in iis, quae sunt simoniaca, quia ab Ecclesia prohibita, ut vendere beneficia, sepulturas et similia,—quod tunc, etsi peccet malum exemplum dando,—si tamen ex certa scientia hoc faciat, nolens subjici juri positivo, quo solitus est, non committeret simoniam, licet ut dixi illa pactio et conventio etiam in iis de se grave peccatum sit. Sic sentio.—Augustinus Triumphus, qu. 5, art. 3: Certum est, summum Pontificem canonicam simoniam a jure positivo prohibitam non posse committere, quia ipse est supra jus, et eum jura positiva non ligant.—Potest tamen forte simoniam committere prohibitam a lege naturae, ut quod pro re temporali intenderet spirituale tribuere.—Certum est similiter, quod summus Pontifex pro bono publico ab Episcopis et aliis Praelatis Ecclesiarum accipere potest summam pecuniae, prout secundum Deum et rationem videtur sibi expedire, quod alii inferiores Praelati facere sine peccato non possunt.

The powerful voice with which St. Brigitta († at Rome, 1373), that, omnis et omnimoda cognitio causarum civilium et criminalium inter quascunque personas regni nostri Angliae ad forum et examen nostra notorie pertineat et pertinuerit ab antiquo, and demanded that the petitions of certain clergymen and laymen, who had been guilty of a breach of the peace, should not be heard (both letters are in Rymer's Foedera). The Parliament also which sat after Easter, 1343 (Rotuli Parliamentorum tempore Edwardi R. III. p. 144), complained of the damages, grevance et oppression du poeple et de seinte Eglise d'Engleterre, qui sont faitz en Roialme d'Engleterre par provisions et reservations de la Court de Rome, aussi bien des beneficz come des primers fruitz, et par impositions des dismes et autres charges, and demanded that all persons who brought bulls into England for these purposes, received or executed them, should be thrown into prison (soient pris et aresteez par lour corps, pur prendre et resceivre ce que la court agardera). The King made the Pope acquainted with these complaints against the provisorum exercitum, qui regnum nostrum Angliae in excessiva multitudine jam invasit (dd. 30th August, 1343, in Rymer), and prayed for redress. At the same time he reminds the clergy of the legal decision (Breve Regium ad Episc. Wigorn. of 12th December, 1343, in Wilkin's Conc. Magnae Brit. ii. 726), quod nullus—sub gravi forisfactura nostra infra regnum nostrum Angliae literas, bullas, processus, instrumenta, seu aliqua alia nobis et populo nostro praejudicialia deferat,—et quod nullus sub forisfactura nostra praedicta ea recipere praesumat sine mandato nostro speciali.—Thomae Walsingham (about 1440), Histor. Angliae, in Anglic, Hibernica a veteribus scripta ex bibl. Guil. Camdeni. Francof. 1602, fol. p. 161: Eodem anno (1343), Papa Clemens iterum fecit in Anglia provisiones duabus Cardinalibus de beneficiis proximo vacantibus praeter episcopatus et abbatias ad extentam duarum millium marcarum. Quod Rex et tota regni nobilitas pati noluit, sed procuratores dictorum Cardinalium sub pena carceris Angliam exire coegerit. The Pope complained bitterly to the King of this, and sought to justify those Provisions, 28th August (p. 162): convenire, quod Cardinales ipsi, qui super expediendis negotiis ad alveum apostolicae sedis undique confluentibus nobiscum labores et onera partiuuntur, et haberent congrue unde suis valeret necessitatibus secundum status sui decentiam provideri. But Edward answered, 26th September, in an Epistola plena fructu, cui pro tunc Papa aut Cardinales respondere rationabiliter nesciebant (Walsingham, p. 161, in Rymer of the 10th September): He first reminds him of the service rendered by his ancestors to the Church, and then laments that it is falling into decay, dum per impositions et provisiones sedis apostolicae, quae solito gravius invalescunt, ipsius peculum—manus occupant indignorum, et praesertim exterorum, et ejus dignitates et beneficia conferuntur pingua personis alienigenis, plerumque nobis suspectis, qui non resident in dictis beneficiis, et vultus commissorum eis pecorum non agnoscunt, lingua non intelligunt, sed animarum cura neglecta, velut mercenarii, solummodo temporalia lucra quaerunt, et sic diminuitur Christi cultus, animarum cura negligitur,—clericu dicti regni, viri magnae literaturae, et conversationis honestae, qui curam et regimen possent sibi salubriter peragere,—studium deserunt propter promotionis congruae spem ablatam.—Jus patronatus, quod nos et fideles nostri in talibus obtinemus beneficiis, enervatur,—regni thesaurus ad extraneos, ne dicamus nostros malevolos asportatur:—quae singula—fuerunt nuper coram nobis in parlimendo nostro—palam exposita, unanimi—petitione subjuncta, ut praedictis dispendiis—celeriter occurramus. Against these acts of Parliament was written, Clementis Epist. ad Eduardum in Raynald, ann. 1344, no. 55 ss. Ad nostram—audientiam—pertulit rumor,—quod in regno tuo edicta et brevia in derogationem et enervationem praedictae libertatis ecclesiasticae, primatus ejusdem Romanae Ecclesiae ac auctoritatis et potestatis ipsius sedis apostolicae, ad diversas partes missa fuerunt: ut de captione et incarceratione multarum personarum ecclesiasticarum sacrilega, et impedimentis literarum et gratiarum apostolicarum ibidem appositis taceatur ad praesens. Immo ad tantae ferocitatis in regno eodem audaciam dicitur fuisse de ventum, quod vix aliquis audet ibidem literas apostolicas praesentare. The Pope refused to revoke that Reservation, in favor of two Cardinals. Accordingly, it was again bitterly assailed in the Parliament of 1346 (Rotuli, p. 162). The Commons made the following motion among others, que les provisours aliens vident la terre, et apres la feste de Seint Michel soient tenuz hors de la ley. So, too, every Procuratour and Executour. When, therefore, the vacated abbey of St. Augustine at Canterbury was filled up by the Pope, without any regard to the election which had already taken place in 1346, the King commanded the monks, under pain of the heaviest penalties, ne ipsum Praefectum, quantum in vobis est, administrationem seu dispositionem aliquam de terris,—bonis seu catallis praedictis absque licentia nostra—speciali aliqualiter habere permittatis; see Guil. Thorn (a monk of this house about 1380), Chron. de Gestis Abb. s. August. Cantuar. c. 38. At last these difficulties were settled by two royal decrees—I., by the Statute of Provisors of Benefices, A.D. 1350 (Statutes at Large by Owen Ruffhead, London, 1769. 4. 1, 268): If the Pope should make an appointment to any ecclesiastical benefice, the King was to fill up the benefice at the same time. But if his nominees were disturbed in their possession by the persons appointed by the Pope, adonq[ue] soient les ditz provisours, et lour procuratours, executours et notaires attaches par lour corps et menes en response, et sils soient convictz, demoergent en prisone,—tanq[ui]ls averont fait fin et redemption au Roi a sa volonte, et gree a la partie qe se sentera greve. Et nient meins avant qils soient delivres, facent pleine renunciation, et troevent sufficante seurete, qils nattempteront tiele chose en temps avenir, ne nul proces surront par eux ne par autre devers nuly en la dite court de Rome, ne nule part aillours pur nules tieles emprisonementz ou renunciations ne nule autre chose dependant de eux. II., by the Statute of Praemunire, A.D. 1353 (l. c. p. 272): Whosoever should bring any cause which belonged to the King's jurisdiction, before a foreign tribunal, or appeal from the former to the latter, should be summoned to answer to this charge. Et sils ne viennent mie au dit jour en propre personne de esteer a la lei, soient ils, lour procuratours, attournez, executours, notairs et meintenours de cel jour en avant mis hors de la protection le Roi, et lour terres, biens et chateux forfaitez au Roi, et soient lour corps, ou qils soient trovez, pris et empriseez et reitez a la volonte le Roi, et sur ce soit brief fait de les prendre par lour corps, et de seisir lour terres, biens et possessions en la main le Roi, et si retourne, soit qils ne sont mie trovez, soient mis en exigend et utlaghez (outlawed, beyond the protection of law, Germ. vogelfrei). The curia was especially aggrieved, when Edward, who wanted money to carry on his war with France, confiscated not only many other ecclesiastical imposts, but particularly the revenues which the cardinals and other non-resident incumbents drew from his kingdom (comp. Edward's letter to the Pope of 12th February, 1346, in Rymer), just as his enemy Philip had done (Rayn. 1346, no. 39; 1347, no. 24); he, however, at the request of his wife Joanna, freely restored the beneficia Cardinalium (see the Pope's letter of thanks for this in 1347, in d'Achery Spicil. iii. 723). Edward was already threatened with excommunication (Rayn. 1352, no. 17), when death carried off Clement. In the year 1373, Parliament remonstrated once more against the Pope's Reservations and Provisions, and the primi fructus which he received. The money, they said, went to help their enemies, and the foreign clergy in England descoverent par lour lettres les secreez de mesme le Roialme, et les envoient par de la a les enemys (Rotuli Parliam. tempore Edward III., p. 320). There was a negotiation carried on at Bruges for two years, beginning in 1374, between English and Papal ambassadors (one of the English was Wycliffe), with regard to these grievances. In six bulls, from 1st September, 1375 (in Rymer), the Pope endeavored to satisfy the English by revoking the reservations made up to this time, by deciding the disputes between the Papal nominees and the regular incumbents with regard to benefices in favor of the latter, and by remitting all former demands of fructus male percepiti and primi fructus. But though Walsingham states, p. 188, concordatum est inter eos, quod Papa de cactero reservationibus beneficiorum minime uteretur, et quod Rex beneficia per literas "Quare impedit" non conferret, there is no mention whatever of this in the bulls. How little redress was granted to the grievances is shown by the copious remonstrances and propositions of the Parliament of 1376 (Rotuli, p. 337), with reference to the throng of foreigners introduced, and the manifold extortions of the court, en la peccherouse Cite d'Avenon. The King now charged the clergy (see the Breve Regium of 21st August, 1376, to the Archbishop of Canterbury, in Wilkins, Conc. Magnae Brit. iii. 107), quod literas, bullas et scripta quaecunque nobis ac regno et subditis nostris praejudicialia, si quae vobis deferri contigerit, statim cum ea receperitis, nobis et consilio nostro mittatis,—ut nos, visis et examinatis—hujusmodi literis et scriptis, ulterius inde fieri faciamus, quod justum fuerit.—Alfonso, king of Castile, also made a show of resisting the Papal Provisions, but he was more easily silenced. Raynald. ann. 1344, no. 54; 1348, no. 14.

³¹ Thus in the case of Urban V., when he had returned to Rome, Revelationum s. Brigittae (Colon. Agripp. 1628, fol.) lib. iv. c. 49: Papa—inclinatus est ad mundialia. —Propterea Papa incipiat veram humilitatem in seipso, primō in apparatu suo, in vestibus, in auro, et argento, et vasis argenteis, in equis, et aliis utensilibus, segregando de eis omnibus sola necessaria sua, alia vero erogando pauperibus, et specialiter his, quos noverit amicos Dei. Deinde moderate disponat familiam suam.—Cardinales—effusi sunt—ad omnem superbiam, cupiditatem et carnis delectamentum. Ideo recipiat Papa in manu malleum et forcipem, et flectat cardines ad velle suum, non permittendo eos habere plura de vestibus, et familia, et de utensilibus, nisi quantum requirit necessitas, et vitae usus. Flectatque eos forcipe, i. e. verbis lenibus, et consilio divino, paternaque caritate: qui si noluerint obedire, recipiat malleum, scilicet ostendendo eis severitatem suam.—Episcopi et clerici saeculares, quorum cupiditas nullum habet fundum, de quorum superbia et vita luxuriosa procedit fumus, ob quem abominantur eos omnes Angeli in caelis, et amici Dei in terris. Ista enim Papa in multis emendare potest, si unumquemque permittit habere necessaria, non superflua, praecipiatque unicuique Episcopo attendere ad cleri sui vitam, et omnis, qui noluerit emendare vitam suam, et stare in continentia, privet omnino praebenda sua. She thus addressed Gregory IX. while he was still at Avignon (l. c. cap. 142): Cur tantum odis me? quare tanta est audacia tua, et praesumtio tua contra me? Nam curia tua mundana depraedatur caelestem curiam meam. Tu vero superbe spolias me ovibus meis, bona quoque ecclesiastica, quae mea propria sunt, et bona subditorum Ecclesiae meae indebitate extorques et surripis, et das illa amicis tuis temporalibus.—In curia tua regnat superbia maxima, cupiditas insatiabilis, et luxuria mihi execrabilis, ac etiam vorago pessima horribilis simoniae. Insuper etiam rapis et depraedaris a me innumerabiles animas. Nam quasi omnes, qui veniunt ad curiam tuam, mittis in gehennam ignis, ex eo quod non diligenter attendis ea, quae pertinent ad curiam meam, quia tu es Praelatus et pastor ovium mearum.

RISE AND PROGRESS OF THE SCHISM.

Urban VI., who was elected after the death of Gregory XI.² (8th April, 1378), exasperated most of the cardinals³ by his harsh severity to such a degree that they retired to Anagni, declared his election invalid,⁴ on the plea that it was effected by the compulsion of the Romans, and on the 20th September, 1378, elected Clement VII. at Fondi. Joanna, queen of Naples, immediately gave her support to this election;⁵ however, the prevailing opinion of Italy continued to be in favor of Urban VI.⁶ Clement, accordingly, soon betook himself to Avignon, and put himself under French protection, and into the most complete dependence upon France.⁷ By

² According to the French account (see Prima vita Gregorii XI. in Baluzii PP. Aven. i. 422, and Secunda vita ejusd. ibid. p. 456) the choice of an Italian was forced upon them by a rising of the people (see Baluzii notae, ibid. p. 999 ss.); but according to the Italian account (Theod. a Niem, i. c. 2; Raynald. ann. 1378, no. 2 ss.; 1379, no. 3 ss.) the election was quite free, and a passing tumult which arose was only owing to some misunderstanding with regard to the election after it was finished: comp. Lenfant, Hist. du Concile de Pise, i. 7. No immediate violence had overruled the election, but certainly fear of violence had influenced it.

dint of French influence,⁸ he was immediately recognized as Pope in Scotland, Savoy, and Lorraine; afterward in Castile (1381),⁹ Aragon (1387),¹⁰ and Navarre (1390).¹¹ On the other hand, Germany, England, Denmark, Sweden, Poland, and Prussia remained on Urban's side.¹²

The war between the two popes was not only waged with sentences of excommunication, but in Italy with secular weapons also. Urban declared that Joanna, by her secession from his side, had forfeited the kingdom of Naples, and granted it in fee to Charles, duke of Durazzi. On the other hand, Joanna, under Clement's influence, took Lewis, duke of Anjou, at that time Regent of France, for her adopted son and successor (1380). Charles, meanwhile, in a short time made himself master of the whole kingdom, took Joanna prisoner in 1381, and had her put to death, when Lewis appeared in Italy at the head of an army (1382).¹³ Charles continued to maintain his ascendancy, and Lewis's death (1384) would have brought Naples to a final decision in favor of Urban and Charles, had not differences forthwith arisen between the two

latter,¹⁴ which increased to such a degree when the headstrong Pope went in person to Naples, that Urban pronounced sentence of dethronement and excommunication against Charles, and was in consequence besieged by him in the castle of Lucera, near Salerno (1385). He escaped to Genoa (September, 1385) without becoming wiser. By the cruel execution of five cardinals he made himself still more hateful. After Charles's death († 1386), by his impolitic refusal to invest his son Ladislaus with Naples, he exposed this kingdom afresh to the danger of falling under the dominion of France. The capital city was already conquered for the young Lewis of Anjou (1387), and the whole kingdom would have fallen to him and the French Pope had not Urban's successor, Boniface IX., at the right moment, given it to Ladislaus (1390) and rendered him his powerful support.¹⁵ With a view to secure the States of the Church against Lewis, Boniface granted many towns and castles in fee to powerful nobles,¹⁶ and thus roused afresh in Rome a struggle for independence, which kept him long in banishment from the city.¹⁷ True, Lewis was forced to quit Italy altogether (1400),¹⁸ and Ladislaus remained King of Naples; but this restless agitation in Rome increased, and was even supported by Ladislaus, who wished to make himself master of the city.¹⁹

OPPRESSION OF THE CHURCH.

As the schism lessened the revenues of the Popes, and increased their expenses, so it caused a fresh aggravation of those ecclesiastical oppressions which were already intolerable.

The French Pontiff, Clement VII., was obliged, indeed, to exercise the right of presentation to ecclesiastical offices, to which were now also added the gratiae exspectativae, according to the

I. iii. 19: Sed me praeterire non decet,—quantam et quam abominabilem fornicationem Papa et hi sui fratres cum saeculi principibus iniuriant. Namque ut sua dominia, imo verius ut suam tyrannidem, omnibus nec injuria supra modum invisam, inconcussa stabilitate confirmare possent, sicque tuto quocunque libitum esset peragere: temporalium principatum, ad quorum se imitationem componere atque conformare in animum induxerant, captare amicitias, favoresque conquirere, quacunque possent industria, studuerunt: nunc multa beneficiorum his, pro quibus exegissent, largitione, nunc xeniis et donis, nunc promissis uberrimis, saepe assentationibus et gnathonicae doctrinae versutiis, fraudulentii. Itaque ne longum faciam, adeo se et Ecclesiam universalem corum arbitrio subjecerunt atque dediderunt, ut vix aliquam parvulam praebendam, nisi eorum mandato vel consensu, in provinciis eorum tribuere ausi essent. Si Episcopus aliquis obierat, si Decanus vel Praepositus, vel alia quaelibet persona ecclesiastica: quis, in demortui locum surrogari appetens, non prius ad Regem quam ad Papam ibat? imo vero quis ita insanus, ut absque regiis literis ad Papam postulatus accederet? Mirabile dicturus sum, et quanquam vix credibile, verum tamen. Si quis Papae necessarius, propinquus, familiaris, aut quilibet alio titulo dilectissimus pro sua apud eum promotione institisset, regales ante omnia ab ipsomet Pontifice jubebatur literas quaerere.—Quam vero importune, quam imperiose, quam manu, ut ita dicam, ensifera, terreni ipsi domini per suos sollicitati, Papam per suas quotidianas literas urgebant, nequaque credibile foret, nisi res usu assiduo promulgata certitudinem faceret. Plus enim praecceptoris et comminatoryi scriptis res agebatur, quam commendatoriis vel precatoriis. Quibus si detrectassent Pontifices obtemperare, et alteri, quam pro quo petebatur, contulissent, certum erat illum non recipi.—Cap. 42, p. 46: Quid Clemente nostro, dum advixit, miserabilis? Qui ita se servum servorum Gallicis Principibus addiceret, ut vix minas et contumelias, quae illi quotidie ab aulicis infreabantur, deceret in villissimum mancipium dici. Cedebat ille furori, cedebat tempori, cedebat flagitantium importunitati, fingebat, dissimulabat, largiter promittebat, diem ex die ducebat, his beneficia dabat, illis verba: omnibus, quos aut ars assentatoria aut ludicra in curiis acceptos fecerat, summopere placere studebat, eosque beneficiis promereret, quo talium patrocinio dominorum gratiam et favorem assequeretur. His itaque et juvenibus nitidis et elegantibus, quorum maxime consortio gaudebat, singulos fere vacantes episcopatus caeterasque praecipuas dignitates impendebat. Denique ut Principum benevolentiam facilius assequeretur, assecutam foveret, fotamque conservaret, conservatam amplificaret, plurima ultro donaria atque xenia illis dabat: quascunque super clero exactiones petere voluissent, annuebat, ultro saepius etiam ingerebat. Sic omnem clerum sacerdotalium magistratum dispositioni ita subjeciebat, ut Papa magis quilibet eorum, quam ipse putaretur. Also, Prima vita Clem. VII. (in Baluz. i. 537) allows: Multis etiam saecularibus tam Principibus quam aliis fuit admodum familiaris et gratus, eorumque contemplatione et amore plures episcopavit et alias promovit, eis aliquando sufficientiores et idoneiores—postponendo, quandoque, ut eorum benevolentiam et favorem sibi et Ecclesiae acquireret, quandoque ut ipsorum odium et indignationem evitaret, etc. Theodor. a Niem de Schism. ii., c. 4, even says: Clemens multum favebat magnatibus sive nobilibus: unde potentibus ipsis terras, castra et dominia Ecclesiarum cathedralium et monasteriorum pro modico anno censu ab ipsis solvendo in feudum sine difficultate concessit, etc.

Const.* I. xiii. 764; compare above, § 103, note 25): De vacantibus vero et fructibus primi anni majorum praelaturarum, abbatialium videlicet, episcopalium et supra, nullum aliud initium fuisse inventur, quam voluntaria et gratuita oblatio quorundam, qui in discordia electi ad abbatialem vel cathedralem Ecclesiam, dum prosequerentur in Curia per appellationem ad eam factam, per eum, qui obtinebat finali victoriam, et promovebatur sive eligebatur. Et talis oblatio et gratuita datio juxta vulgare Italicum dicta fuit servitium, et secundum Alemanos propina dicitur. Et dicta fuerunt servitia communia, quia communiter inter eos dividebantur, eo quod singulos, quibus dare volebat, non convocabat. Et singulis dare fuisse nimium onerosum his, qui tunc agebant in publico Consistorio. Sed postmodum deductum est in Consistoriorum secretum, quod tamen fuerat simoniacum.—Et successivo tempore volentes gratuitate dare et voluntarie conferre summam certam vel aliquid, eo quod tunc nulla certa taxa esset in Camera: quoad aliqua ad tertiam partem

Et novissime additum est, et compelluntur per eandem retentionem se obligare ad id, quod reperiretur esse debitum in libris eorum Cameræ, sive dominorum Cardinalium, per oblationem vel obligationem alicujus praedecessoris monasterii vel Ecclesiae, ad quam assumitur vel transfertur. Cap. 3: Non petuntur, neque exiguntur hae Annatae per Cameram apostolicam et dominos Cardinales ex eo quod vacant; sed quia conferunt, seu quia collationi et promotioni, quae fit per Papam, assentient. Et hoc est clare secundum canones simoniacum. As to the Forma obligationis which the newly appointed prelate had to draw up for the apostolic cabinet, see cap. 4, p. 786 ss. Angl. ad ann. 1382 (Anglia, Hibernica a Veteribus Scripta ex bibl. Camdeni. Francof. 1602, p. 289), relates that Urban refused to confirm a newly elected Abbot of Bury, and appointed another instead; however, he was compelled by the King's requisition to allow the former election: still he did it, non confirmando electionem de ipso factam, sed per provisionem concessit abbatiam, ita duntaxat, ut solveret Romanae Curiae duplicitis vacationis censem. In the year 1387, he appointed Duke Rupert v. Bergen to be Bishop of Passau, while the chapter elected George, count of Hohenlohe: a tedious war, in which George gained the victory, was the consequence. See F. Kurz, Oesterreich unter Herzog Albrecht III. Th. 2, s. 119. Also, his Oesterreich unter H. Albrecht IV. Th. 2, s. 245.

aestimati fuerunt ad triplum illius, quod in literis camerae apostolicae pro communi servitio solvendo taxata fuerunt. Et quia non omnes promovendi venientes ad Curiam sufficientibus pecuniis cum sacco parati erant, usura in Curia—tantum invaluit, quod foenus amplius non reputabatur peccatum.—Ut nihil ipse Pontifex omitteret, multas uniones Ecclesiarum parochialium et aliorum beneficiorum ecclesiasticorum simonia intercedente fecit. Cap. 8: Hic Bonifacius suique secretarii et cubicularii in principio sui pontificatus unius anni spatio vel plus, primam, quae erat V. Id. Nov., plus offerentibus vendiderunt tam inverecunde ac frequenter, quod passim devenit in derisionem etiam populorum illa venditio. Et ibidem Bonifacius sub pacto quaecunque beneficia ecclesiastica ubicunque locorum vacantium, sive reservata essent sive non, dispositioni apostolicae sub dato obitus eorum, qui ea vivi possidebant, vendidit, et haec mercimonia publica multis annis duraverunt in curia Bonifacii. Invenisses etiam tunc plerosque curores per Lombardiam et alias partes Italiae discurrere, perscrutantes, num infirmarentur aliqui pinguis ecclesiastica beneficia obtinentes, et si aliquos invenerunt aegrotantes, tunc currebant ad Romanam Curiam, et mortem talium intimabant illis, qui super hoc ipsos pretio conduxerunt. Sed Pontifex ipse, utpote improbus mercator, quandoque etiam sub eodem dato unum et idem sacerdotium pluribus vendens, veluti novum proclamabat, pro secundo, tertio, vel quarto, concurrentibus simul in dato super uno et eodem beneficio sic vacante—novas gratias posteriores in dato vendidit cum clausula Anteferri, per multos annos et tam diu, donec nulli vel pauci illarum gratiarum deinceps invenirentur emtores. Quod videntes ipsi proxenetae, ad inauditam prius practicam lucri captandi causa se improbe converterunt. Cap. 9: Finxerunt enim alias novas gratias exspectativas, quae omnes gratias illas in Dato praecedenti, quae vocabantur cum clausula Anteferri, prosternebant, sed illae fuerunt nimis cara, quia illae cum simplici clausula Anteferri pro XXV. florenis vel circa, sed aliae gratiae cum antelationis praerogativa pro L. ducatis communiter vendebantur. Sed quod ultimae gratiae per multo sassidue ambitiosos emerentur, praefati mercatores seu institores, ut plus lucrarentur, novas cautelas invenerunt. Fecit enim dictus Pontifex perquam multas regulas cancellariae et alias ordinationes, per quas videbatur se hujusmodi gratiarum exspectatarum a se tum passim venditarum effrenatam multitudinem restringere velle. Quod cum multi dictarum gratiarum sentirent emtores, novo pacto intercedente pecunario quaestu impetrarunt ab ipso, quod sub illis declarationibus non comprehenderentur gratiae ipsis factae. Beneficia etiam dispositioni dicti pontificis generaliter reservata, et illa potissime, quae vacabant in Curia praefata, plus offerenti vendebant sub conditione, quod emtores illorum etiam primos fructus eorumdem beneficiorum in prompta pecunia ad utilitatem camerae apostolicae ante omnia solverent, quo facto tunc primum signabantur supplications pro ipsis emtoribus, in quibus dicta beneficia petebantur, et etiam postquam signatae fuerunt, si alter venisset forte, qui plus obtulisset, jam signatae supplications hujusmodi saepe de registris supplicationum dicti Bonifacii cancellabantur, et superveniens praeferebatur praecedenti in dato: dicebat enim ipse Bonifacius, quod illi, qui minus obtulerunt, eum decipere voluerint.—Cap. 10: Praeterea dispensationes, quae petebantur ab ipso antistite pro quibuscumque, dummodo responderet pecunia, quam ejus rei causa petebat, indifferenter docto et illi carius, et indocto et huic remissius, pacto etiam intercedente, vendere non negavit. Omnia etiam beneficia in Ecclesiis urbis vacantia vendidit, et si non potuit habere pecunias, res alias in commutationem recepit, ut porcos, sues, equos, granum et frumentum, etc.—Hic etiam Argus antistes libros, vestes, utensilia et pecunias suorum Curialium et Praelatorum adhuc quandoque ipsis agonizantibus per quosdam officiales sua Curiae ad hoc deputatos pro se recolligi fecit ad instar corvi in praedam hiantis. Cap. 11.—postremo ad profundum iniquitatis descendens, nullam penitus supplicationem —signare voluit, nisi pro singulis supplicationibus—singulos florenos anri—recepisset. Cap. 12: Praeterea idem Bonifacius circa septimum pontificatus sui annum—certam ordinationem seu regulam suaे cancellariae edidit, continentem in effectu, quod quicunque Archiepiscopi, Episcopi, neconon Abbates per eum promoti infra annum a tempore promotionis—computandum literas ipsius Bonifacii super eisdem promotionibus usque ad

Among these works, which attacked the maxim of the Curia, that the Pope could commit no simony, the following are the principal: Matth. de Cracovia De Squaloribus Rom. Curiae Liber (see note 7), cap. 11 ss., and the Speculum Aureum (written in 1404, quod alias intitulatur: Petrus Paulus, see Jacobus de Misa in v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const. iii. 613. According to an unfortunate conjecture in Goldast's Monarchia, ii. 1527, the author was commonly called Paulus Anglicus; according to Theodorus Engelhusius († 1434), in Leibnitii Scriptt. Brunsv. ii. 1139, he was Albertus Engelstat, or Engelschale, Doctor S. Theol. Pragensis; on the other hand, a manuscript copy of the Speculum, in the library of the university at Bonn, calls the author Petrus Averunus: the best edition is in Walchii Monim. Medii Aevi II. i. 67), of which parts ii. and iii. p. 136, treat on this point. Cf. P. ii. cap. 1: Video tot et tantos scribentes in jure canonico, et summistas simoniae vitium in Romana Curia excusare. Their reasons; Bernardus (de Botono) in glossa ord. (to Decr. Greg. i. 29, 12), ponit hanc communissimam distinctionem simoniae dicens: quod quaedam sunt simoniaca, quia prohibita, scil. constitutione Ecclesiae: quaedam prohibita, quia simoniaca de sui natura, quae scil. sunt novo et veteri testamento prohibita, ut emere vel vendere sacramenta.—Hanc distinctionem recipiunt communiter doctores, scribentes in jure canonico et summistae.—Simoniaca, quia prohibita, dicuntur, quae solum sunt spiritualia ex constitutione Ecclesiae, quae antea non fuerunt, sicut tituli beneficiorum ecclesiasticorum: et dicunt, talia jure positivo introducta, quia tempore Apostolorum non fuerunt decanatus, archipresbyteratus, canonicius, etc. Sic similiter dicunt, ea vendere vel emere est simonia ideo, quia constitutione Ecclesiae emitio vel venditio talium est prohibita.—Et ideo dicunt,—quod excusat auctoritas Papae, qui habet in talibus dispensare.—Quis enim dubitat, titulos ecclesiasticos jure positivo inductos? Nam solus Papa facit dignitates, instituit Praelatos.—Unde sola voluntas, tacita vel expressa, tollit jus.—Et ideo dixit Goffr. et alii, quod simonia non habet locum in Curia Romana. These principles are hotly contested by Paul in the Dialogue, until Peter confesses, P. iii. c. 1, p. 189: Jam clare video, quod excusatoribus

Thus at the end of this period both obediences were groaning under an equal weight of persecution. England alone repeatedly threw off every Papal oppression,⁹ and, in 1404, Hungary also followed her example.¹⁰

EFFORTS TO END THE SCHISM.

In consequence of these ecclesiastical oppressions, which were the result of the schism, the religious scruples with regard to it were strengthened, and hence measures could be sooner taken for its settlement. The University of Paris, in particular, labored with unshaken perseverance to bring the schism to a close.¹ After it had long waited in vain for a fair agreement between the two popes,² the University at last obtained permission from the Court simoniae est sublata excusatio, et fundamentum, quo videbantur innixi, radicitus extirpatum. Imo, ut mihi videtur, haeresis est, asserere, quod Papa licite possit pro spirituali titulo recipere pecuniam: et multo magis, hoc facere in effectu. Propter quod videatur mihi, Paule, quod tota Romana Curia est in via damnationis, per ea, quae superius demonstrasti. Omnis enim curtisanus ipso facto sui officii videtur particeps simoniae.

² According to Bulaei Hist. Univ. Paris. iv. 618, so early as the year 1387, at the request of the University, Clement declared in letters to all princes and prelates, se Concili generalis auctoritati et definitioni libenter submissurum imo cessurum, si sic Ec-

of France to render its verdict upon these events (1394).³ Benedict XIII., notwithstanding his promise made before his election, showed even less inclination than his predecessor to take serious steps to close the schism.⁴ To the urgent proposals of a French national-synod, in 1395, he returned only an evasive answer.⁵

clesiae videretur expedire. On the other hand, Urban, the Roman Pope, when some German nobles tried to persuade him, ut unionem faceret cum Clemente (Theod. a Niem, i. 66) kept his ground, quod ipse esset verus Papa, nec expedire illud in dubium vertere. However, his successor, Boniface IX., offered Stephen, duke of Bavaria, to appoint the anti-pope, apostolicae sedis legatus et pro Ecclesia Romana in temporalibus generalis Vicarius, for his lifetime, if he would submit, as Cardinal in partibus ultramontanis, quas Gallias et Hispanias appellant, etc.

³ Cf. Chron. Caroli VI. lib. xiv. c. 9 (Chronique du Religieux de Saint-Denys, ii. 94): the opinion itself of 8th June, 1394, l. c. lib. xv. c. 3, p. 136, in Bulaeus, iv. 687, in d'Achery Spicil. i. 776. The University proposed tres vias ad pacem in Ecclesia obtinendam, viz., cessionis, which it chiefly recommended, compromissionis, and, Concilii generalis, aut secundum formam juris ex Praelatis tantummodo celebrandi, aut quia plures eorum satis, proh pudor! hodie illiterati sunt, pluresque ad alterutram partem inordinate affecti, mixtis una cum Praelatis ad aequalem eorum numerum magistris et doctoribus theologiae ac juris de studiis solemnis utriusque partium antiquitus approbatis.—Si alter dissidentium aut uterque vias tres expositas inire obstinatus refugerit, eum velut schismaticum pertinacem, et—haereticum—judicandum, etc. At the same time, the University wrote also to Clement VII. (Bulaeus, iv. 699), exhorted him to co-operate in the eradication of the schism, and complained of his legate Petrus de Luna (afterward Benedict XIII.): nobis ea quae audivisti erga praefatum Principem pro Ecclesiae salute agentibus—supervenit inimicus homo, qui—hunc totum laborem nostrum—extinguere et cassare, licet frustra, molitus est. Et primo quidem tentavit audientiam nostram in Regia praesentia impedire.—Deinde—super hac materia perpetuum silentium imperari natus est, sed certe dignam—repulsam retulit, qui a Rege christianissimo—tam execrabile scelus poposcisset.—Nequam qui hoc cogitavit, nequior qui tam iniquo cogitatui consensit, nequissimus qui hoc ipsum abominandum facinus explore voluit.—Eapropter, Pater beatissime, per fidem integerrimam,—per amorem amplissimum, et sanctissimum, quem ad sponsam Ecclesiam habere debetis,—vos hortamur,—ut ad hanc sanctissimam concordiam, quae in manu vestra sita est, non ultra jam prorogando, intendatis. Satis jam satis hoc usque cessatum est, satis tepuimus, satis quievimus, satis exspectavimus, etc. After reading this letter the Pope said (Chron. Caroli VI. lib. xv. c. 5, p. 184): Istae literae sunt sanctae sedis apostolicae diffamatrices, veneno detractionis plenae: nec lectu nec recitatu dignae sunt. When, however, he came to discover that his cardinals agreed with the University (p. 186), dolore tactus intrinsecus coepit plurimum anxiari, nec diu postea vixit.

The University, nevertheless, persevered in its endeavor,⁶ and at length contrived that Charles VI., king of France, should join with the Emperor Wenceslaus in forcing both the popes to resign (1398).⁷ Wenceslaus was, in truth, too weak to keep his word; moreover, he was himself deposed by the secret machinations of his Pope, Boniface IX. (1400).⁸ On the other hand, by the decree of a new national-synod,⁹ France withdrew from the obedience of Benedict; Castile followed her example¹⁰ (1398); and this Pope was kept a prisoner at Avignon.¹¹ It was not till after the lapse 286, in d'Achery, i. 789), a personal interview with his adversary and a compromise, the uselessness of which might be foreseen. The cardinals were altogether for the King's proposal (Chron. Caroli VI. lib. xvi. c. 4, p. 265), and wished to sign a declaration to this effect (p. 308), but the Pope forbade them (p. 314, see the Papal Bull in d'Achery, i. 794). Compare particularly the narrative of the Monachus S. Dionysii, in his Chron. Caroli VI. lib. xvi. from which Bulaeus and d'Achery had already borrowed much before.

of many years, and the breach of express engagements, that Benedict succeeded in regaining the Church of France to his obedience, A.D. 1403, by the help of the Duke of Orleans, who at that time had won the ascendancy at court.¹² It was, indeed, quickly manifest how little he meant to keep these engagements;¹³ but as the Italian cardinals imposed similar engagements upon their new Pope, Innocent VII., on his election in 1404,¹⁴ it was necessary to open negotiations, if only with a view to save appearances. The fruitlessness of this proceeding increased the general discontent: France threatened her Pope with a fresh withdrawal of allegiance (National Council of January, 1407),¹⁵ when at length both the popes agreed upon a personal interview at Savona in September, 1407.¹⁶ Benedict appeared there in person; Gregory XII., how-

¹² Negotiations for this purpose began as early as 1402. The Dukes of Berri and Burgundy, as well as the University of Paris, were against the restitution, the Duke of Orleans and the University of Toulouse in favor of it (Chron. Caroli VI. lib. xxiii. c. 13, Chron. du Religieux de Saint-Denys, iii. 60). The University of Toulouse, in order to effect its end, addressed a long letter to the King (Bulæus, v. 4). This, however, was refuted by the University of Paris (ibid. p. 25 and 30), and in a prolix work of M. Guil. Ronacensis Praepositus (ib. p. 53). An unprinted refutation of the same work, by Simou Gramaud, patriarch of Alexandria, the President of the two national councils aforementioned, exists in MS. at the library of the University of Bonn. At length the party of Orleans, at a new national council, carried the restitution, Bulæus, v. 63; Preuves des Lib. de l'Egl. Gall. ch. xx. no. 7. Those promises were made to the assembly by the Duke of Orleans (Il. cc.): Monseigneur le Duc d'Orleans se fait fort d'avoir Bulles de nostre S. Pere, de l'acceptation de la voye de cession en trois cas, sçavoir Adversario cedente, decedente, vel ejecto.—Item que nulle discussion ne sera jamais faite de la soubstraction en Concile general, ne autre part, et toutes injures, qui ont esté faites ou dictes à cause d'icelle, et empeschemens, donnez d'une part et d'autre, soient annulez et pardonnez, et mondit seigneur d'Orleans se fait fort d'avoir Bulles, comme dessus.—Item le Roy ne l'église de France n'entendent point, que aucune chose soit innovée és collations et promotions faites par les Ordinaires pendant la substractio.—Item le Pape célébrera un Concile général de son obeyssance dedans un an, selon forme de droit, le plustot que faire se pourra, ou quel sera traitté et appointé de la poursuite de l'union dessusdit et des Reformations et libertez de l'Eglise, et des subsides et charges quelsconques, qui sont par la Cour de Rome sur l'église de France. Et le Pape mettra à execution ce qui sera appointé et ordonné audit Concile. Chron. Caroli VI. lib. xxiv. c. 5–8.

Roma tamen profectus est Senas, ibique longiore mora protracta, cum ab universis accusaretur, Lucam se tandem contulit, data rursus inani spe quasi cum adversario Pontifice coiturus. Erat in altero Pontifice non melior sane mens, sed occultabat callidius malam voluntatem, et quia noster fugiebat, ipse obviam ire videbatur. Itaque Saona profectus est in Veneris Portum, atque inde, quo propior esset, Spadiam venerat. Sed cum de congressu eorum per internuncios ageretur, noster tamquam terrestre animal ad litus accedere, ille tamquam aquaticum a mari discedere recusabat.* On the negotiations of the King of France with both popes, see Chron. Caroli VI. lib. xxviii. (iii. 563), lib. xxix. c. 2 (iv. 3). The records of the negotiations of both popes are in Theod. de Niem Nemoris Unionis Tract. vi. c. 2 ss. Martene Thes. ii. 1366. Ejusd. Ampl. Coll. vii. 759.

²⁰ They were encouraged to take this step by a letter from the King of France, 22d May (Bulaeus, v. p. 162), and the University of Paris, 29th May (l. c. p. 163). Their

caped the imprisonment with which he was threatened by flight to Perpignan; but the cardinals of both obediences united at Livorno, and summoned a general council at Pisa, in March, 1409, with a view to the termination of the schism.²¹

EFFECTS OF THE SCHISM ON THE GENERAL ECCLESIASTICAL VIEWS.

The schism, with its ecclesiastical oppression, furnished the impulse, and the impotence of the Papacy gave the long-desired opportunity for an unbiased trial of the existing state of the Church: it led men to opinions, which had hitherto been mooted only in violent struggles with the popes, and hence not without an appearance of passion and party spirit; but now they struck root so deeply, even among the most faithful adherents of the Church, that they could never again be entirely suppressed. Many an anxious gaze was turned backward to the earlier and better ages of the Church, in order to discover in its constitution the remedy for the scandals of the present. This was a problem for learning; its representatives, the universities, particularly that of Paris, were listened to with eager attention, and attained an influence which was formidable even to the popes.¹ This comparison of the present with the earlier ages of the Church could not

Then follows a warning to all believers to obey Gregory no more.

True, it was only here and there that an individual advanced so far upon this line of thought as to wish the Papacy quite removed from the Church as the source of all her evils.² But even its truest adherents now acknowledged the immoderate extension of Papal power, and the monstrous exaggeration of the Papal dignity.³ They discovered, in the bent of the Papacy to secular power, the prime cause of all mischief, and even of the schism,⁴ and they

⁶ Benedict XIII. had to promise this to the French Church in 1403; see above, § 106, note 12. Matthaeus de Cracovia, de Squaloribus Rom. Curiae (see § 105, note 7), cap. iii.: Considerandum, quo jure, ratione, vel modo sedes apostolica sibi usurpaverit promotionem et provisionem episcopatum, abbatiarum, et aliarum dignitatum, collationem quoque omnium beneficiorum, quae sunt de jure patronatus spiritualium personarum. Et videtur quod non de jure, sed contra jus et cum injuria capitulorum,—quibus competit electio,—nec non cum injuria Episcoporum, etc.—Forte dicitur, quod sedes aposto-

at open war with them, had appealed to a general council as a higher authority,⁷ but during the schism circumstances led to a general acknowledgment that such a council must rank above the Pope.⁸ After the Council of Pisa was summoned to terminate the contest between the two popes, and set a limit to the abuses of Papal power, the canonists vied with each other in demonstrating this new opinion, so disadvantageous to the Papacy, of the superiority of general councils to the Pope,⁹ and thus the Papal lica fecit hoc ob culpam, et in poenam Praelatorum et capitulorum, quia hi eligebant et illi providebant minime bene. Sed si illa ratio valeret, tunc etiam deberet auferri et dimitti ab Ecclesia Romana: quia jam providet ita male, sicut prius est factum.—Insuper hoc non est de jure introductum, sed per cautelam et astutiam. Quia, ut fertur, in principio electionis ac coronationis suae apostolici dirigebant primarias preces dioecesis pro familiaribus suis. Talis enim ordo et Romanae Curiae fuit consuetudo, quod primo monitoriae, secundo praceptoriae, ultimo executoriae literae concedebarunt (Div. 2, § 62, note 13).—Item non erat verisimile, quod nullus Praelatorum bonus et diligens fuerit in providendo, et ideo non debuit omnibus auferri.—Amplius haec non est poena medicinalis, quae non sanat, sed mortificat. Nec enim per hoc provisum est, ne male provideant, sed ne quicquam in hoc boni vel mali faciant, sicut si Deus homini peccanti libertatem voluntatis auferret, ne ultra peccaret.—Amplius quando Praeclati conferebant beneficia, melius impediri vel revocari potuit mala provisio, et puniri male providens, quam jam. Tunc enim Papa tanquam superior potuit irritare provisionem, privare institutos, et instituere meliores. Hoc autem per inferiores contra superiorem fieri non potest tam bene vel congrue. The popes were wanting in sufficient local information always to provide aright. Evil consequences of the Papal reservations. Cap. iv.: Posito autem, sed propter rationes praemissas non concesso, quod Papa de jure—potuerit omnium beneficiorum et dignitatum sibi collationem attrahere, quid boni vel utilitatis importat ista mirabilis multitudo gratiarum ad beneficia vacatura?—tot gratiae sunt, ut non sit possibile, vel medietatem earum effectum habere.—Hence in Cap. v. the advice, recurrentum ad priora jura, non faciendo gratias exspectativas, and to leave provisions to the Ordinaries, sicut erat prius. Comp. Speculum Aureum (see § 105, note 8), cap. 4 ss. De Ruina Eccl. (see § 103, note 5), cap. 4 ss.

Consider. ii.: Unitas Ecclesiae essentialis semper manet ad Christum sponsum suum, nam caput Ecclesiae Christus.—Et si non habet vicarium, dum scilicet mortuus est corporaliter vel civiliter, vel quia non est probabiliter exspectandum, quod unquam sibi vel successoribus suis obedientia praestetur a Christianis; tunc Ecclesia tam divino quam naturali jure, cui nullum obviat jus positivum rite intellectum, potest ad procurandum sibi vicarium unum et certum semet congregare ad Concilium generale repraesentans eam, et hoc non solum auctoritate dd. Cardinalium, sed etiam adjutorio et auxilio cuiuscunq; Principis vel alterius Christiani. Non enim habet corpus Ecclesiae mysticum a Christo perfectissime stabilitum minus jus et robur ad procreationem sua unionis, quam corpus aliud civile, mysticum, vel naturale verum: neque enim est de innmediato ac immutabili jure, divino vel naturali, quod Ecclesia se non possit congregare et unire sine Papa, aut sine aliquo particulari Statu vel Collegio, ubi in casu cadere potest mors vel error.—Consid. x.: Occurrere possunt casus multi, in quibus pro adepitione pacis publicae aut justae defensionis, sicut vim vi repellendo, liceret a rite electo in Papam substrahere obedientiam, liceret in neutralitate manere, liceret ipsum corporaliter incarcereare, liceret ei administrationem omnem publicam interdicere, liceret per appellationem aut simile remedium sibi resistere, fieretque sic obedientia vera potius quam contradicatio vel resistentia:—liceret concilium generale eo invito celebrare, liceret tandem ipsum ad cessionem compellere, vel renitentem dejicere ab omni honore et gradu, immo et vita privare. Haec omnia denique taliter licere possunt stabili jure divino et naturali, quod adversus hanc veritatem nulla lex vel constitutio puri hominis ejusq; sine nova autorizatione Dei fieri debet, quia erroris intolerabilis damuanda sit. Comp. his book written soon afterward, lib. de Auferibilitate Papae ab Ecclesia (l. c. p. 209). Consider. ix.: Auferibilis est vicarius sponsus Ecclesiae per voluntariam ejus cessionem aut renunciationem a Papatu. Cons. x.: Auferibilis est in casibus dabilibus vicarius sponsus Ecclesiae ab ipsa Ecclesia,—sive consentiat ipse—vel non consentiat suae cessioni.—Nam si vicarius sponsus potest resignare sponte ipsi Ecclesiae, dando ei libellum repudii; cum sponsus et sponsa non debeant quoad hoc impari jure censeri, poterit similiter repudiare sponsum tales ipsa Ecclesia spousa, dum par ratio vel potior adducitur pro ipsa contra sponsum; vel quia prostituere quaerit eam quantum in se est, vel tyrannide saeva tractare, laniando eam vel plagando, bona sua dissipando, vel quia abuti conatur ea in perniciem filiorum.—Quomodo etiam uni singulari personae fas esset in casu violentiae attentatae per Papam verum contra castitatem suam vel vitam, vim vi repellere, cum appositione inculpatae tutelae, etc., et ita liceat stabit, quod tangat Papam violenter, vel in mare dejicit: cur similiter, in casu, non liceat idem toti Ecclesiae pro defensione sua, et violentiae attentatae cauta repressione. Cons. xii.: Auferibilis est in casu vicarius sponsus Ecclesiae per Ecclesiam, vel generale Concilium, nedum conciliative, aut dictative vel denunciative, sed auctoritative, judicialiter atque juridice.—Sicut enim tradit Aristoteles V. Politic., quod ad communitatem totam spectat Principis vel correctio, vel totalis destitutio, si inemendabilis perseveret.—Sic Symmachus, sic b. Marcellinus, sic ipse Gregorius, sic alii plures judicium subiere Concilii: nequaquam ex humili condescensione, sicut fingunt aliqui, sed ex debito et obligatione: quorum multos, quia Concilium non reperit convictos de crimine, reliquit causam eorum examine judicis Dei terminandam.—Spernens concilium Ecclesiae, spernit Deum, a quo dirigitur. Et ita consequenter appetit enormis error dicentium, quod deliberatio Papae preponderat super delibera-tione ex concilio Ecclesiae seu Concilii generalis, nec tenetur Concilium insequi aut eidem acquiescere nisi velit. The way in which the opinion that a general council was above the Pope first met with general recognition in this time is shown by Gerson's ex-

SECOND CHAPTER.

HISTORY OF THE HIERARCHY OF THE NATIONAL CHURCHES.

§ 108.

THEIR RELATION TO THE STATE.

The jealousies between the ecclesiastical and secular tribunals, arising from the immoderate extension of ecclesiastical jurisdiction, still continued, but they began more and more to result in favor of the secular. In Germany the fundamental principle that secular causes belonged only to secular tribunals, had been recognized long before, even by the prelates, who were themselves temporal lords of the land:¹ it was as a general rule always maintained,² though in individual cases the ecclesiastical tribunals continually overstepped their limits.³ But only during pression in a later work, Circa materiam excommunicationum resolutio. Cons. viii. (l. c. p. 423): si dicatur quod ita potest a Papa fieri appellatio ad Concilium generale, dixerunt olim ante Concilium generale Pisanum et Constantiense, quod hoc nullo modo licetabat.—Sed constanter nunc asseritur, quod est haeresis, viz., to deny this. Accordingly, Thomas Cajetanus, 1511, in his Tract. de Comparatione Auctoritatis Papae et Concilii, c. 10, designates this opinion as, novam quandam imaginationem Joannis Gerson.

² Comp. the prohibition of Lewis the Bavarian, A.D. 1318, against bringing a civil cause before an ecclesiastical court, in Guden Syloge Diplom. p. 487. Comp. his decree, A.D. 1329, in the Frankfort Privilegia, p. 15. The Golden Bull (1356), cap. xi.: in defectu vero justitiae praedictis omnibus ad imperialem duntaxat Curiam et tribunal, seu judicis immediate in imperiali Curia pro tempore praesidentis audientiam, et etiam eo casu non ad quemvis alium judicem sive ordinarium sive etiam delegatum, his quibus denegata fuerit justitia, liceat appellare. Quicquid vero contra praemissa factum fuerit, sit irritum eo ipso (directed against ecclesiastical encroachment, Div. 2, § 63, note 26; see Olenschlager's Neue Erläuterung der guldenen Bulle, s. 240). Count Adolph of the March in 1402, had his parochial clergy gathered together, and sternly charged them (Scotti's Cleve-Markische Landesverordnungen, i. 13), ut nulla mandata s. praecepta quorumcunque judicem apostolicorum vel ordinariorum ad se reciperent,—publicarent aut exequentur quovis modo in causis saecularibus vel profanis, exceptis duntaxat in iv. causis spiritualibus et ecclesiasticis, videlicet de testamentis et legatis, de matrimonii, synodalibus, et redditibus spiritualibus et ecclesiasticis, with a threat in case of disobedience, quod ille absque dilatione a suo territorio seu dominio excederet sub obtentu corporis, rerum et bonorum; this decree, he said, had been made before by his father, Count Engelbert, and his brother Theodore.

³ E. g. The clergy of Mayence in Hesse; comp. Kopp's Nachricht v. d. Verfassung der geistl. u. Civil-Gerichte in d. Hessen-Casselischen Landen, Th. 1 (Cassel, 1769. 4.), s. 177. But in the compacts of 1347 and 1354 the general maxim was recognized: thus in the latter the Archbishop of Mayence promises (Kopp. s. 181): “Wir sollen auch nit gestaden, daz man der Lantgreven von Hessin Undertanen, die da Leyen sint, au unser geistlich Gerichte ladin sulle in wertlichen Sachen ane Geverde: gesche ez abir, so sullen unser Richter sie wieder senden an yrer Herren Gerichte, und wer die Ladunge getau hette, the schism could the Emperor Wenceslaus execute his decisions in things temporal, against the higher orders of the clergy, by deeds of violence.⁴ The cities continued to tax the excessive revenues of the ecclesiastical sovereignty. They either forbade altogether the increase of Church property, or decreed that all fresh acquisitions should be alienated again in a year and a day, or required from the new revenues the customary taxes.⁵ Now that the parish priests, in the reception of testaments, provided too well for themselves and the Church, it was determined that wills should be made only before the secular authorities.⁶ Paderborn even prohibited the multiplication of masses for souls.⁷ Still the popes der sal dem andirn sine Kost abelegen, und sullen sie unsir Richter darumb nicht bannen.”

⁷ The Consules decreed in 1379 (Gobelini Personae Cosmodrom. vi. c. 70, in Meibom, tried to maintain a good understanding with the cities, and bind them to themselves by means of privileges.⁸ During the schism many concessions were made to the nobles also: thus Boniface IX., in 1399, allowed Albert IV., duke of Austria, the jus primarum precum.⁹ The free Swiss, by the priest's law (Pfaffenbrief), in 1370, put an end to the encroachments of the ecclesiastical tribunals.¹⁰ In Italy the operation of the ecclesiastical tribunals, like the condition of the whole country, was very fluctuating. Under Ghibelline lords they were often quite suppressed.¹¹ In France ecclesiastical jurisdiction had reached its greatest extension: the kings connived at it, because they wished to keep their bishops well inclined to themselves, and knew how to tax any irregularities of the ecclesiastical tribunals. On the other hand, the barons were continually at issue with the prelates on this point, and from both sides there were unceasing complaints of usurpation.¹² The

i. 286), quod quicunque civis—in exequiis alicujus defuncti offerret plus quam ad unam Missam, solveret Consulibus marcam argenti, cum prius ad tres Missas ut plurimum offerri moris erat, et sic duae Missae deinceps in exequiis subtractae sunt. To this was added, in 1405, the decision (I. c. p. 289), quod cives, volentes exequias peragere defunctorum, debent illas dominicis diebus duntaxat peragere.

¹⁰ Tschudi's Schweizerchronik, i. 472. No ban was to be endured in cases of debt and other secular matters. No clergyman should seek a foreign court, whether ecclesiastical or temporal; otherwise meat and drink and lodging should not be given him, no man should have dealings with him in buying or selling, or other intercourse. ¹² Complaints on the side of the clergy: Durandus, de Modo Concilii Generalis Celebrandi, P. ii. tit. 70: Quasi per quandam alluvionem frustatim domini temporales ad se omnia trahunt. Et sicut frustatim lupus agnum comedit, ita per ipsos jurisdictione ecclesiastica frustatim quodammodo devoratur, quicquid ad ecclesiasticam jurisdictionem, potissime quoad temporalia, pertinet, sibi auferri putantes: after that comes a long list of secular encroachments.—Conc. XXXIV. Item quando aliquis malefactor redditur judicibus Ecclesiae per judices saeculares tanquam clericus; amici ipsius malefactoris veniunt ad Officiales Praelatorum, et concordant cum eis: et sic dimittunt sine punitione: et sic pejora committunt quam ante, licet crimina essent notiora. Aeduensis* (after 1331 Cardinal) de Jurisdictione Ecclesiastica et Politica coram Philippo Rege Franciae habita anno 1329 (in Goldasti Monarchia, ii. 1361, and Bibl. PP. Lugd. xxvi. 109), published by Petrus Bertrandus. First comes the royal summons, occasioned by complaints from both sides. Then it is recorded, that in the assembly Petrus de Cugneris—locutus est pro Rege, facto themate suo: Reddite quae sunt Caesaris Caesari, et quae sunt Dei Deo. Et prosecutus est juxta illud thema materiam suam includendo ad duo. Primo quod Regi debebatur reverentia et subjectio, secundo quod debebat esse spiritualium et temporalium divisio, ut spiritualia ad Praelatos, et temporalia ad Regem et Barones pertinerent. He said also, among other things, as is plain from the subsequent speech of Petrus Bertrandus (in Goldast. p. 1373), quod talia jura regia Rex non poterat a se abdicare, cum essent juris sui regalis, et jurasset in coronatione sua jura regni non alienare, et alienata revocare, et quod talia erant impraescriptibilia.—Then he declared, quod intentio Regis erat reintegrare temporale, and recited the Gravamina quoted in note 12. On a subsequent day the Archbishop of Sens endeavored to defend the clergy in a speech which is given entire. E. g. Ille ad judicandum videtur aptior et convenientior, qui est Deo proximior:—sed personae ecclesiasticae sunt Deo proximiores, ergo, etc.—Praeterea nullus du-

bitat, quin cognitio de peccato ad personas ecclesiasticas pertineat: cum ergo talia non perpetrentur sine peccato alterius partis, patet quod Ecclesia cognoscere potest. Item cuius est judicare de fine, ejus est judicare de ordinatis ad finem:—cum igitur corpus ordinatur ad animam, et temporalia ad spiritualia tanquam ad finem; Ecclesia, quae habet judicare de spiritualibus, potest etiam merito de temporalibus judicare.—Et confirmatur, quia accessorium sequitur naturam principalis, et hoc satis appareat exemplo: cum igitur istae duae jurisdictiones comparentur duobus luminaribus, soli scil. et lunae, et tota claritas lunae sit a sole, et in sole formaliter et virtualiter, et non claritas solis a luna nec in luna; patet quod jurisdictione spiritualis, quae comparatur soli, habet in se formaliter vel virtualiter jurisdictionem temporalem, quae comparatur claritati lunae. Then follow proofs ex jure civili, viz. from the supposed laws of Theodosius, which Charlemagne had confirmed (see Div. I, § 9, note 12), and ex jure canonico. Sed forte ad hoc dicetur: quare hoc sibi vindicat Ecclesia Gallicana, cum aliae Ecclesiae sibi in aliis regionibus hoc minime vindicare noscantur? Ad quod potest faciliter responderi. Si enim Reges Franciae, quos Deus singularibus privilegiis, gratiis et honoribus prae cacteris Regibus insignivit,—Ecclesiae plures libertates concesserunt, vel concessis uti libere permiserunt, non est mirum: imo tanta fuit ad Ecclesiam eorum devotion, quod Ecclesiae quanto eis propinquiores, tanto pluribus libertatibus gaudent. Nec ex hoc minus habuerunt, sed plus, sicut rei evidencia manifestat, imo hoc redundat in magnam nobilitatem regni et Regis. On the Friday after Petrus Bertrandus spoke, and then answered, one by one, the Gravamina alleged: these he divided into three parts, quia quidam articuli tangebant jura Ecclesiae perpetua;—secunda pars articulorum continebat abusus et errores, si veri essent, et illos nullo modo volebant defendere, imo providere ne talia fierent, et corrigere si quae talia facta erant. Tertia pars continebat aliqua, quae poterant esse justa, et aliqua injusta: quantum ad justa respondit ut de contentis in prima parte, quantum ad injusta, ut de contentis in secunda. The spirit of these answers may be seen by the following one: Ad XXXIV., qui loquitur de clericis maleficiis, quos Officiales Praelatorum de facili expediti pro poenis pecuniariis, dicit, quod hoc esset irrationalis, ubi maleficium esset notorium vel manifestum, et tale vel tantum, propter quod perpetua poena ei deberet imponi, si pro poena pecuniaria tale crimen transiret. Sed nullum est inconveniens, si pro causa justa dicti Officiales poenam corporalem in pecuniariam convertant: quia hoc etiam volunt jura tam canonica quam civilia.

¹⁴ The house of Valois came to the throne with Philip in 1328, although Edward III., king of England, was more nearly related to the deceased monarch, Philip the Fair, and had numerous adherents in France. The bishops now made it understood that if Philip persevered in this persecution of the Church, they would lend their influences to the side of his adversary. Comp. Brunet's Letters on this controversy in the Traité des Droits et Libertés de l'Egl. Gall. t. i.

to establish their jurisdiction still more firmly by decrees of councils.¹⁶ On the other hand, a powerful resistance to these proceedings was developed in the Parliament, which was now transforming itself into a standing corporation:¹⁷ this was especially manifest from the time of Charles V. Henceforth ecclesiastical jurisdiction was not only confined to its proper limits,¹⁸ but Parliament causarum civilium non poterat ad Ecclesiam cognitio pertinere: however, in a second audience the King refused to acknowledge these last expressions, quod non erant factae de suo mandato, nec aliquid sciebat, nec eas ratas habebat, and contented himself with the promise of the prelates to remedy the prevailing abuses. The last answer given by Petrus de Cugnerii was, quod placebat Regi, si Praelati emendarent ea, quae essent emendanda et corrigenda: et quod Dominus Rex exspectaret usque ad festum nativitatis Domini proximum venturum, infra quem terminum nihil innovaret. Et si infra dictum terminum Praelati non emendassent emendanda,—dominus Rex apponneret tale remedium, quod esset gratum Deo et populo. In Flacius (Cat. Test. Verit. p. 391) is found the addition cited by Goldast, p. 1383, that the King, after waiting in vain, passed a severe law, qua—e ac suos in libertatem asserit; but this is historically untrue. Petrus Bertrandus, with a view to the further establishment of ecclesiastical claims, wrote afterward the scholastic Tract. de Origine et Usu Jurisdictionum, s. de Spirituali et Temporali Potestate (in Bibl. PP. Lugd. XXVI. 127).

The earlier encroachments of the popes upon episcopal rights were still further increased by the fact that they now assumed the exclusive right of appointment to ecclesiastical offices,¹ and exercised the right of exemption from other jurisdiction in the per dictam informationem culpabiles reperietis, ipsos ad dies Seneschalliarum vel Baillivarum suarum nostri futuri proximi Parlamenti adiornetis (summon before), etc. The Parliament kept a jealous watch over these decisions from this time. Thus, in the year 1385, it condemned the Bishop of Chalons to a fine for transgressing them (ibid. no. 29).

¹⁹ When the Bishop of Mans excommunicated a man with whom he had a suit before the King's courts, pendente lite, and then denied him church burial, he was compelled, in 1396, per arrestum of Parliament, to have the body removed, and to revoke the excommunication; Preuves des Lib. chap. vi. no. 2. Likewise also the Archbishop of Rheims, ibid. no. 4.—When the ecclesiastical courts, upon the plea, quod ipsi feminas aliasque quam suas despontatas carnaliter cognoverant, bore hard upon many persons, ipsos ad solvendum emendas propter hoc compellendo, Philip of Valois checked them in 1336 by the command, ipsum episcopum ad desistendum de praemissis per ipsius temporalitatis captionem compellere; so also Charles V. in 1388 (Preuves, chap. xxxv. no. 10 and 11).

MORAL CONDITION OF THE CLERGY.

The moral condition of the clergy could not fail to degenerate still more in this period, in consequence of the manner in which ecclesiastical offices were generally bestowed, the example which the Papal court gave,¹ and the method in which the ecclesiastical jurisdiction was administered.² In the chapters, where the stalls were for the most part benefices reserved for the nobles,³ as well

Rerum Expetend. et Fugiendarum*, p. 489): Non puto, posse in historiis reperiri, quod unquam fuerit aliqua gentium politia bene instituta, in qua esset tanta doctrina, quam nunc sit in politia sacerdotum, ut ii quidem essent maiores quam Principes saeculi, caeteri dejectiores vulgo.—In corpore—idem videamus: si nutrimentum fluat ad unum membrum, ita ut enormiter ingrossetur, et alia nimium macerentur, non potest diu vivere: sic in corpore reipublicae ecclesiasticae, si superiores augmentatione substantiae ita graves in statu sunt, quod vix possunt ab inferioribus sustineri, hoc est signum et causa propinqua ruinae, etc.

² Comp. Div. 2, § 63, note 21. Fresh abuses were now introduced: De Ruina Eccl. c. 20 (v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const. I. iii. 24): Corradensis omni ex parte pecuniis nostris Praelati summopere invigilant.—Si quis apud eos Clericus pro furto, pro homicidio, pro raptu, aut sacrilegio, aut alio quovis enormi crimine in carcerem conjectus sit, tristisque panis et aquae edulio adjectus: tam diu poenae subjacebit, et tanquam reus sua commissa luet, donec pro modo sui census aut suorum quaesitam a se pecuniam persolverit. Ubi vero id egerit, liber et velut innocens abire sinetur. Omnis noxa, omnis error, omnia maleficia, etiamsi capitalia sint, per pecuniam laxantur ac delentur. Comp. the Gravamina, § 108, note 12, no. xxxiv., and the answer of Petrus Bertrandus, ibid. note 13.

as among the parochial clergy, there prevailed a depth of ignorance and an immorality which awakened indignation.⁴ The con-

Basel II. i. 49), qui velut ex militia geniti moribus laicalibus et militaribus imbuti literarum studia non frequentant neque curant, et sic ignari remanent et idiotae: ex quibus tunc communiter per electionem talem qualem ad Ecclesias cathedrales hujusmodi militiae dediti in Praelatos promoventur, interdum vix latinum fari scientes, et actus militares tam in vestibus, quam in bellorum conflictibus, et armorum insultibus, quia exercitati sunt in illis, magis praetendentes, quam quod actibus pontificalibus—se ingererent. Cap. 2: damnabilis usus in quibusdam—Ecclesiis inolevit, quod videlicet, quoad tractatus capitulares secretos et alios, admittuntur interdum Canonici parvi, ex maturitate annorum inhabiles. Cap. 3: In quibusdam Ecclesiis statutum reperitur, ut, licet numerus Canonicorum praebendariorum sit satis magnus, ipsorum tamen Capitularium ad satis parvum numerum sit restrictus, in finem, ut creditur, quod dicti pauci Capitulares ex capitularibus proventibus uberius valeant impinguari. How great was the ignorance prevailing among them is shown by the example of the chapter of Zurich, in a document of 1335, in which when they announced to the Bishop of Constance the selection of a people's priest, they were obliged to do it by the notary, quia singuli de Capitulo scribere nescimus; see Beitrage zur Gesch. d. deutschen Sprache u. De Ruina Eccl. c. 7: Summi Pontifices, ut aurei rivuli—suam uberioris curiam irrigarent, omnibus dioecesanis et patronis praesentandi facultatem conferendique libertatem—ademerunt.—Quantus vero, Deus optime, exspectantium numerus ex illo tempore, et qualium undique affluxit, atque ibi praesto fuit! Non tantum a studiis aut schola, sed ab aratro etiam et servilibus artibus ad parochias regendas caeteraque beneficia passim proficiscebantur, qui paulo plus latinae linguae quam arabicae intelligerent, imo qui et nihil legere, et quod referre pudor, alpha vix nossent a betha discernere. Ac morum in illis compositio banc forte ignorantiam excusabat? Imo si parum docti, negligentius—morati: ntpote qui absque literis in otio educati, nihil nisi impudicitias, ludos, comessationes, jurgia, vaniloquia consequentur. Inde omnibus in locis tot sacerdotes improbi et miseri atque ignari, qui ruinae et scandalo sua turpi conversatione subditis sunt. Cap. 24: De literis vero et doctrina quid loqui attinet? Cum omnes fere Presbyteros, sine aliquo captu aut rerum aut vocabulorum, morose syllabatim que vix legere videamus. Quem ergo fructum, quam exauditionem ex suis orationibus sive sibi, sive et aliis impetrabunt, quibus barbarum est, quod orant? Quomodo per suas preces Dominum alienis propitiabunt, quem sibi ipsi sua ignorantia et snae foeditate vitae per suum ministerium infensum faciunt? Si quis hodie desidiosus est, si quis a labore abhorrens, si quis in otio luxuriari volens, ad sacerdotium convolat. Qui simul ac perventum est, fornices et cauponulas seduli frequentant, potando, comessando, pransitando, coenitando, tesseris et pila ludendo, tempora tota consumunt. Crapulati vero et inebrinati pugnant, clamant, tumultuantur, nomen Dei et Sanctorum suorum pollutissimis labiis execrantur. Sicque tandem compositi ex meretricum suarum complexibus ad divinum altare veniunt. How sorely the clergy were wanting in proper education, and the people in religious instruction, may be seen in Nic. de Clemangis, De Studio Theologico in d'Achery Spicileg. i. 473, where, among other complaints, is the following, p. 478: Conterunt infiniti ovium rectores totam in studiis (Universities) aetatem.—Nec tam procul dubio discere cupiunt, quam sub titulo et umbra studii multiplicandis ecclesiasticis beneficiis atque promotionibus sine ulla unquam satietate inhiare. As to the frightful moral degradation of the clergy, the writings of Wycliffe, Nicol. de Clemangis, Matthaeus de Cracovia, Jo. Huss, Jo. Gerson, Theod. a Niem, may be consulted, and the sermons preached at the Council of Constance by several preachers, which are pubtinued struggle of the synods against the dissoluteness of priests remained quite fruitless.⁵ The laity were only too glad to secure their wives and daughters from the sacerdotal seducers, and accordingly favored, at times even demanded, fixed alliances of their priests with concubines.⁶ Thus, in many countries, concubinage was publicly allowed among the priests, who were supposed to be too sacred for a matrimonial connection.⁷ The fines with which bilibus mulieribus, nunquam eas dimittere; et dant eis arras de bonis Ecclesiae, et possessiones Ecclesiae: publice eas ducunt cum consanguineis et amicis et solenni convivio, ac si essent uxores legitimae.—Theodor. a Niem, Nemoris Unionis Tract. vi. c. 35: In eisdem etiam partibus Hiberniae et Norwegiae juxta consuetudines patriae licet Episcopis et Presbyteris tenere publice concubinas, et eisdem visitantibus bis in anno subditos sibi Presbyteros, ac Ecclesiasticorum Parochialiumque Rectores, suam dilectam ducere secum ad domos et hospitia eorundem subditorum Presbyterorum.—Et si forte aliquis ipsorum visitatorum casu vel fortuna non habeat focariam, ut praevaricator paternarum traditionum, Episcopo visitanti proinde procurations duplices ministrabit. Ac etiam presbyterorum amasiae seu uxores in eisdem partibus, statu et gradu, in Ecclesiis ac in mensis, eundo, sedendo et stando caeteris dominibus, etiam militaribus, praeponuntur. Et paene idem modus, scilicet quoad luxuriam, circa presbyteros Gasconiae, Hispaniae ac Portugaliae, necnon contiguarum regionum versus Africam in omnibus observatur. Unde quodammodo plures naturales ex foedo complexu nati, quam filii legitimi in omnibus illis partibus in ecclesiasticis titulis concedendis praefervuntur, et plures legitimis apertissime promoventur. The synods accordingly confined themselves almost entirely to decrees against the concubinarii publici; comp. Theiner in the work quoted above. The Clerici conjugati, who are frequently mentioned in this period (e. g. § 108, note 12, 16), are Clerici minorum ordinum, who, if they were married, could hold no benefice (see Div. 2, § 65, note 3), but still, on condition of wearing ecclesiastical clothing and the tonsure, continually enjoyed the privilegia clericalia; see Thomassini Vetus et Nova Ecclesiae Discipl. P. i. lib. ii. c. 66.

⁹ Conc. Moguntin. ann. 1310 (Mansi xxv. 313): Cohabitationis vitium—quorundam negligentia Praelatorum, immo quod detestabilius est, aliquorum malitia, qui quaestum aestimant pietatem, sentitur iterum nullulare.—Si qui—ob quaestum turpem hujusmodi ad se delatum in subditis suis favere vel dissimulare praesumpserint (the archdeacons and deans are meant), illi per suos Praelatos ab honoribus dejiciantur. But the taxes afterward established rose from the fines, as had happened before in the case of many penalties inflicted by the synods (Div. 2, § 85, note 3). Thus the Lower House in England petitioned the King in 1372 (Rotuli Parliamentorum tempore Edwardi III. p. 313): de remedie de ce que les Prelatz et Ordinaires de saint Eglise pristrent sommes pecuniers de gentz de saint Eglise, et autres, pur redempcion de lour pecche de jour en jour, et an en an, de se que ils tiendrent overtamente lours concubines. De Ruina Eccl. c. 22 (in v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const. I. iii. 23): Jam illud, obsecro, quale est, quod plerisque in dioecesibus rectores parochiarum ex certo et conducto cum suis Praelatis pretio passim et publice concubinas tenant?—Theobaldi Publ. Conquestio in Conc. Const. (I. c. i. xix. 909): Ipsi (sacerdotes)—non solum tabernas, sed etiam lupanaria intrare, puellas maritatas atque moniales corrumpere, concubinas in domibus publice tenere, et cum eis procreare, atque alias superinducere, statimque post celebrare non adhorrent. Episcopi autem quoniam eodem vitio laborant, talia corripere non praesumunt. Imo aliquid annuatim ab eis recipiunt, et omnes in tali miseria stare permitunt. Under these circumstances, want of chastity in priests passed for a small offense. Accordingly Gerson De Visitatione Praelatorum (Opp. ed du Pin. ii. 564): denuncietur recipientibus sacros

theless, every attempt of the secular power to check these scandals was resisted by the Church as an invasion of her rights.¹⁰

HISTORY OF MONASTICISM.

§ 111.

STATE OF THE EARLIER ENDOWED ORDERS.

The same causes which produced the deep defection of the secular clergy furthered also an universal licentiousness among the endowed orders,¹ where the fondness for good living and independence was already of old standing. Thus, we now find in them few traces of learned pursuits;² but, on the contrary, a great increase of debauchery,³ which overpassed all bounds, especially during the schism,⁴ and to which the nunneries abandoned themselves in the most scandalous manner.⁵

Ordines, quod faciunt votum castitatis solemne, ne putent se liberos ad fornicandum, sicut fatui quidam putant.

¹⁰ The Emperor Charles IV., notwithstanding his deep reverence for the clergy, found himself driven to such attempts. But comp. Innocentii P. IV. ep. ad Carolum (in Raynald. ann. 1359, no. 11): Habet fide digna insinuatio facta nobis, quod tua Serenitas, attendens quosdam Clericos et ecclesiasticas personas—effrenata quadam vivendi licentia contra ecclesiasticae religionis decentiam, et clericalis habitus honestatem saecularibus sese actibus immiscentes, ad coercendos illorum errores et transgressiones temerarias refrenandas imperialis sollicitudinis operam adhibere fervore devotionis intendit, jamque super his nonnullis Praelatis—certas literas destinavit, comminationes sequestrationis ecclesiasticorum proventuum facienda per saeculares Principes continentem, ne Clerici ipsi, qui tanquam Dei ministri esse debent caeteris modestiae et gravitatis exemplar, in suam et aliorum perniciem incorrecti ulterius per vitiorum lubricum gradiantur. Siquidem, carissime fili, zelum tuum, quem habes ad domum Domini multipliciter, commendamus, etc.—verum cum tu defensor egregius et zelator praecipuus ecclesiasticae libertatis existas, decet excellentiam tuam accurata diligentia providere, ne per id, quod ortum ex puritate devotionis accepit, debitos transeundo terminos, nostro et apostolicae sedis honori, ac praefatae libertati ecclesiasticae—possit in aliquo derogari. Ideoque magnitudinem tuam rogamus et hortamur attente, quatenus ab hujusmodi comminationibus sequestrationis ecclesiasticorum proventuum facienda, quod absit, per saeculares Principes, de caetero abstiens, et si quid per comminationes ipsas attentatum forsan extiterit, quod non credimus, cum id proculdubio foret illicitum,—in statum pristinum reformare procurans, Praelatos—debita caritate sollicites et inducas, ut contra eosdem transgressores sui officii debitum exequantur, etc. The free towns could venture further on this ground. Comp. Conr. Justinger's († 1426) Berner Chronik, published by Stierlin and Wyss, Bern, 1819, s. 254. Da man zalt von Gottes Geburt, 1405 Jare, waren viel Pfaffendirnen im Lande. Nu hätten die von Bern gern gesesehen, dass sie die Dirnen von ihnen gelassen hätten. Da meintent die Pfaffen, die Leigen hattent sie nit ze strafen, noch ze wisen. Da gebuttent aber die von Bern allen Pfaffendirnen, dass sie von ihnen kehrtent, bi einer Pene. Also giengent sie von ihnen etwas Zites. Zehand kehrten sie wiederumb. Die hiess man alle fachen, und wurden in die Kefien geleit.

los omnino. Unde videbis, aliquos nepotes aut consanguineos laicos Cardinalium in ipsa Romana Curia otiose vacare, et nisi luxuriis et deliciis inhaerere :—et pauperes religiosi, de quorum fructibus talis pompa fit,—grandi semper rerum penuria laborant.

² These orders did not contribute one man of distinction to the sciences of the time, scholastic theology and philosophy. How it fared with the monastic libraries may be gathered from the fate of one of the most famous, that of Monte Cassino. See Benvenuti Imolensis Comm. in Dantis Paradisum, cant. xxii. v. 74 (written in 1386, in Muratori Antiquitt. Ital. Medii Aevi, i. 1296) : Venerabilis praeceptor meus Boccacius de Certaldo (the famous romancer, † 1375) dicebat, quod dum esset in Apulia,—accessit ad nobile monasterium Montis Casini.—Et avidus videndi librariam, quam audiverat ibi esse nobilissinam, petivit ab uno monacho humiliiter,—quod deberet ex gratia sibi aperire bibliothecam. At ille rigide respondit, ostendens sibi altam scalam: ascende, quia aperta est. Ille, laetus ascendens, invenit locum tanti thesauri sine ostio vel clavi: ingressusque vidit herbam natam per fenestras, et libros omnes cum bancis coopertos pulvere alto. Et mirabundus coepit aperire et volvere nunc istum librum, nunc illum, invenitque ibi multa et varia volumina antiquorum et peregrinorum librorum. Ex quorum aliquibus erant detracti aliqui quinterni, ex aliis recisi margines chartarum, et sic multipliciter deformati. Tandem miseratus, labores et studia tot inclytorum ingeniorum devenisse ad manus perditissimorum hominum, dolens et illacrymans recessit. Et occurrens in claustro petivit a monacho obvio, quare libri illi pretiosissimi essent ita turpiter detruncati. Qui respondit, quod aliqui monachi volentes lucrari duos vel quinque solidos, radebant unum quaternum, et faciebant psalteriolos, quos vendebant pueris, et ita de marginibus faciebant brevia (magic charms against sickness and such like), quae vendebant mulieribus. Nunc ergo, o vir studiose, frange tibi caput pro faciendo libros.

AGENCY OF THE MENDICANT ORDERS.

The mendicant friars, on the other hand, preserved more of that outward decency which was necessary for the maintenance of

of St. Gall, about 1400, kept openly “ein Husfrown;” so also did the monks (Reimchronik des Appenzellerkrieges, published by J. v. Arx, St. Gall, 1830, s. 4). The monks of the monastery of Abdinghof in Paderborn had divided the property of their house among themselves, led a dissolute life, and in 1409 resisted their bishop, who wished to reform them. (Annal. Paderborn, ii. 353.)

⁵ Alvarus Pelagius (de Planctu Eccl. (see § 99, note 18) lib. ii. c. 45) brings, as the 101st charge against the women: aliquae supponunt se daemoni transfigurato incubo, sicut in quodam coenobio sanctimonialium eam daemoniacam vexationem post multas poenitentias et consimilia et praedicationes non usquequaque de eis potui extirpare: tantam enim familiaritatem cum quibusdam ex eis isti daemones centralexerant, quod ad eorum adspectum non terrebantur, sed absque pavore cum eis loquebantur et contractabantur, sicut ex earum judiciali confessione habui. Compare the representation of nunneries in Rulman Merswin’s Buch, Von d. Neun Felsen (H. Suso’s Leben u. Schriften v. Diepenbrock, s. 519). De Ruina Eccl. c. 36: De monialibus autem plura dicere, etsi plura, quae dici possent, suspetebant, verecundia prohibet; ne non de coetu virginum Deo dicatarum, sed magis de lupanaribus, de dolis et procacia meretricum, de stupris et incestuosis operibus pudendum sermonem prolixie trahamus. Nam quid, obsecro, aliud sunt hoc tempore puellarum monasteria, nisi quedam, non dico Dei sanctuaria, sed Veneris execranda prostibula, sed lascivorum et impudicorum juvenum ad libidines exemplandas receptacula; ut idem hodie sit puellam velare, quod ad publice scortandum expondere. Thus also Jo. Gerson, Declaratio Defectuum Virorum Ecclesiasticorum (Opp. ed. du Pin, ii. 317), demands: inquirite, si quae hodie claustra monialium facta sunt quasi prostibula meretricum. Comp. Gregory XII.’s letter A.D. 1408 to an abbot of Friesland on the condition of the Benedictine nunneries there (in Theod. de Niem, Nemus Unionis Tract. vi. c. 34): nuper ad nostrum pervenit auditum, quod in partibus Frisiae XXII. monasteria Ordinis s. Benedicti, Bremensis, Monasteriensis et Trajectensis dioeceseos consistunt, in quibus olim—tantummodo moniales dicti ordinis degebant, sed successu temporis contigit, quod in eisdem etiam mares ejusdem professionis in magno numero qualitercunque cum monialibus—degerent, prout degunt ad praesens.—In quibus [monasteriis] paene omnis religio et observantia dicti Ordinis, ac Dei timor abscessit, libido et corruptio carnis inter ipsos mares et moniales, necnon alia multa mala, excessus et vitia, quae pudor est effari, per singula succreverunt.—Fornicantur etiam quam plures hujusmodi monialium cum eisdem suis Praelatis, monachis et conversis, et in iisdem monasteriis plures parturiunt filios et filias.—Filios autem in monachos, et filias taliter conceptas quandoque in moniales dictorum monasteriorum recipi faciunt et procurant: et quod miserandum est, nonnullae ex hujusmodi monialibus materna pietatis oblitae, ac mala malis accumulando, aliquos foetus eorum mortificant, et infantes in lucem editos trucidant.—Insuper quasi singulæ moniales hujusmodi singulis monachis et conversis—ad instar ancillarum seu uxorum—sternunt lectos, lavant etiam eis capita et pannos,—necnon decoquunt ipsis cibaria delicata, ac die noctuque cum ipsis monachis et conversis in comessationibus et ebrietatibus creberrime conversantur, etc. Theobaldi Sermo in Conc. Const. (in v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const. I. xix. 909: Loca sanctimonialium—quasi publica loca, plus quam theatra ad omnes vanitates, etiam a magnis, non sine maximo scandalo frequentantur. Et si qui forte alti status propter verecundiam temporalem intrare non audeant, sua munuscula, fercula et literas eis mittunt, easque cum maximo scandalo ad se invitant. Quae autem ex his sequuntur, turpe est dicere, sed multo turpius est facere.

their multifarious agency than the wealthier orders. The sciences which commanded the greatest respect at that time, scholastic philosophy and theology, were nowhere more zealously cultivated than among the mendicants.¹ Accordingly, they continued to enlarge their sphere of operation, both in the universities² and among the common people, at the expense of the secular clergy, who were held by them in contempt. The stout resistance of the University

assertions injurious to their Order, and defended the same in 1357 before Innocent VI, in a speech which is still extant (Defensorium Curatorum in Goldasti Monarchia, ii. 1392, and Brown, Append. ad Fascic. Rerum Expert. et Fug. p. 466); IV. quod Dominus noster Jesus Christus docuit, non debere hominem spontanee mendicare; V. quod nullus potest prudenter et sancte spontaneam mendicitatem super se assumere perpetuo observandam; VIII. quod pro confessione parochianorum—eligibilior est parochialis Ecclesia, quam Fratrum oratorium sive ipsorum Ecclesia; IX. quod ad confessionem parochianorum—eligibilior est persona Ordinarii quam Fratris persona. Richard remained some time in Avignon (Prima vita Innocent. VI. in Baluzii Vit. PP. Aven. i. 338), duravit quaestio hujusmodi per aliquod tempus. Sed tamen indecisa remansit propter obitum suum (Richard died at Avignon in 1360), qui supervenit; de quo dicti Fratres potius de Gaudemus quam de Requiem cantaverunt. Comp. d'Argentré, Collectio Judiciorum de novis erroribus, i. 378. Against him wrote the Franciscan, and Professor of Theology in Oxford, Rogerus Chonoe or Connovius, De Confessionibus per Regulares audiendis, in Goldast. ii. 1410, and the Carmelite at Cologne, Joannes de Hildesheim, Defensorium VI. Ordinum mendicantium (Trithemii Chrou. Hirsang. ii. 245).—On the 2d Jan. 1409, (more Gallicano, 1408), the Franciscan Joannes de Gorello was compelled by the Sorbonne to revoke the following opinions maintained by him (Bulae Hist. Univ. Paris. v. 189; d'Argentré, Collectio Judiciorum I. ii. 178): I. quod sacramentum poenitentiae nihil agit in habente gratiam virtute sacramenti;—II. quod debite confessus non possit obligari, ut iterum confiteatur eadem peccata;—III. Curatis non competit, ut tales sunt, praedicare, confessare, extremam unctionem dare, sepulturas dare, decimam recipere. Fundatur in hoc, quod Curati non sint de institutione Christi et Ecclesiae primariae, sed per Dionysium Papam fuerunt ordinati (according to the liber pontificalis and the Pseudo-Isidore). Item quia stat Curatos esse, qui non sunt sacerdotes;—IV. Fratribus competit principalius, vel essentialius, praedicare et confessiones audire, quam Curatis. Fundatur, quia Fratribus competit ex regula, etc. Instead of these, he had to acknowledge the following propositions: I. DD. Curati sunt in Ecclesia minores Praelati et Hierarchae ex prima institutione Christi, quibus competit ex statu jus praedicandi, jus confessiones audiendi, jus sacramenta ecclesiastica secundum exigentiam sui status Parochianorum ministrandi, jus sepulturas dandi, jus insuper decimas et alia jura parochialia recipiendi; II. Item, quod jus praedicandi et confessandi competit Praelatis et Curatis principaliter et essentialiter, et Mendicantibus per accidens ex privilegio: quoniam sunt introducti, vel admissi ex concessione et beneplacito dd. Praelatorum; III. Item quod eadem peccata possunt licite et meritorie pluries confiteri in multis casibus, et quod virtute s. Sacramenti poterit eis prodesse quaelibet talis reiterata confessio, etc. In order to avenge themselves, the Minorites obtained from Alexander V. the bull Regnans in excelsis of 12th Oct. 1409 (in Bulaeus, v. 196), in which the privileges of the mendicants were confirmed afresh, and the following propositions, which were no doubt maintained in Paris, were condemned: I. Confessus Fratri admissus in forma Dudum (Clement. III. 7, 2) tenetur eadem peccata—iterum Curato confiteri. —II. Conclusiones Joannis de Poliaco damnatae per Joannem XXII. sunt satis verae. —III. Statutum Joannis XXII. editum, Vas electionis, est irritum et inane, quia, cum illud fecit, erat haereticus.—IV. Stante statuto, Omnis utriusque sexus, nec Deus, nec Papa—potest facere, quin confessus Fratri mendicanti admissus iterum teneatur confiteri suo Curato. V. Confessio Fratribus admissis facta est dubitabilis. Quapropter omnes tenentur dimittere incertum, et sic solum confiteri suis sacerdotibus curam animarum habentibus sub pena peccati mortalis. VI. Quamvis Fratres admissi habeant auctoritatem absolvendi et audiendi confessiones, tamen populus subjectus non habet potestatem accedendi ad Mendicantes admissos sine licentia proprii sacerdotis; et Fratres petentes privilegia pro confessionibus audiendis et sepulturis habendis sunt in peccato mortali et excommunicati; et Romani Pontifices, talia privilegia concedentes Mendicantibus, aut eisdem confirmantes, sunt in peccato mortali et excommunicati. VII. Fratres non sunt aut fuerunt Pastores, sed fures, latrones et lupi. VIII. Sacerdos Curatus dans licentiam Mendicantibus audiendi confessiones magis dispensat cum statuto Omnis utriusque sexus, quam Papa Fratribus dans licentiam juxta formam Decretalis Dudum.

with impunity.⁴ The original jealousy between the Dominicans and Franciscans derived, in fact, fresh nourishment from doctrinal controversy;⁵ still, scandalous outbreaks were hindered by the fact that these two principal mendicant orders gradually formed for themselves separate circles of operation. The Dominicans,⁶ left in almost entire possession of the Inquisition and the cure of

The University of Paris was roused to the greatest indignation by this bull: Gerson preached against it (Opp. ed. du Pin, ii. 431), and composed a Censura of it (l. c. p. 442): the Sorbonne declared it, intolerabilis et totius status ecclesiastici turbativa (Bulæus, v. 201), and so forth. John XXIII. was accordingly compelled to revoke the bull in 1410 (Bulæus, v. 201); cf. d'Argentré, I. ii. 180.

⁴ Thus at the Council of Vienne the following complaints, de excessibus exemptorum, which principally related to the mendicant friars, were brought forward by a bishop (Raynald. Ann. 1312, no. 24): ipsi—publice excommunicatos a suis Ordinariis ad sacramenta et sacramentalia admittunt in suis Ecclesiis et Capellis. In cisdem etiam dispensationes clandestinas et benedictiones, quamquam inter personas excommunicatas aut consanguinitate vel affinitate conjunctas, seu alias personas matrimoniali vinculo confoederatas celebrare non verentes.—Et dum a talibus excessibus—ab Ordinariis arguuntur, de sua exemptione confisi reddunt pro verbis hunnilibus verba tumida et superba, etc. Reformatorii Conc. Constantiensis decretales, lib. iii. tit. x. c. 12 (v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const. I. xii. 715): Multorum querela Curatorum ad hoc sacrum Concilium deducta, qualiter Fratres Ordinum mendicantium limites apostolici privilegii—multipliciter excedant: sic quod superiores dictorum Fratrum non eo modo, sicut deberent, sed in scriptis, imo interdum nomine non expresso, Ordinariis locorum suos terminarios, ut plurimum idiotas, et interdum miuus quam Presbyteri curati scientes, praesentant; praesentati soli absque socio per parochias velut vagi transcurrunt, absolutiones suas, ultra Curatorum efficaciores, tanquam apostolica auctoritate concessas, praedicant saepius; quod in casibus eis non commissis absolvunt, pecunaria etiam pactio precedente aut interveniente; decadentibus et testari volentibus secretius ingerunt; sibi et non Curatis legari et apud suos conventus sepeliri: quibus omnibus secretius ingestis et practicatis canonicanam ipsis Curatis non exhibent portionem, etc.

souls among the higher ranks, gradually lost the character of a mendicant order. The Franciscans, on the contrary, strove more for influence over the masses, and sought in every way, even by pious frauds,⁷ to win among them respect for their Order, and large charitable donations.

INTERNAL HISTORY OF THE FRANCISCAN ORDER.

The abolition of the Coelestine-Eremites by Boniface VIII. (Div. 2, § 70, note 16) had no other result than to renew and increase the division of the Franciscans into Spirituales and Fratres de communitate. For the former, in spite of all the efforts of the popes, could not be induced to unite themselves again with the order,¹ and when John XXII. invoked the aid of the Inquisition² against a party of them in Narbonne and Beziers, many chose rather to be thrust from the Church as heretics (1317), than to be persuaded to yield. These persons thus cast out (fraticelli), together with a numerous appendage of tertiaries, increased the ⁷ Compare, especially, the growth of the Portiuncula Indulgence (Div. 2, § 69, note 9). The Cardinal Bonifacius de Vitaliniis (rather de Amanatis; see Baluzii PP. Aven. i. 1340) records in his Comment. in Clementinas, A.D. 1388, that the Franciscans asserted that as many souls might be released from purgatory every 2d of August as there were persons who went in and out of the Church of Portiuncula; see J. B. Thiers, Traite des Superstitions, qui regardent les Sacremens (Paris, 1701, 4 voll. 12), iii. 259.—Hermannii Corneri (Dominican at Lübeck) Chron. ad ann. 1359 (in Eccardi Corp. Hist. Medii Aevi, ii. 1101), relates that the Franciscan, Arnaldus de Villa Preodii Vercellensis diocesis, maintained the erroneous notion, quod nullus possit damnari, deferens habitum Ordinis S. Francisci, asseruitque constanter, b. Franciscum omni anno semel descendere de caelo ad purgatorium, et eripere inde animas omnium illorum, qui illo anno defuncti, in habitu Ordinis sui extiterunt sepulti, et ad purgatorium fuerant missi. (This Franciscan was Arnaldus Montanerius de Villa Podii Ceritani dioec. Urgellensis; see Eymeric Directorium Inquisitorum, P. ii. qu. 11 in fine. Even Wadding, Ann. Minorum, ann. 1371, no. 28, considers the annual descent of St. Francis into purgatory not improbable). Hujus autem erroris assertores nedum sed et publici pronunciatores ac praedicatorum plures in Ordine praedicto impraesentiarum existunt, qui ausu temerario talia figura et mendacia non verentur populo intimare. Imo temporibus meis, me praesente, in provinciali synodo in urbe Hammeburgensi celebrata anno Dom. 1406—dominus Joannes Episcopus Lubicensis—hunc errorem in publico consistorio ipsis fratribus Minoribus ibidem praesentibus objecit,—tanquam per dictos fratres publice praedicatum in urbe Lubicensi.

motley crowd of heretical Beghards;³ they mutually interchanged

³ On the earlier connection of the Spiritualists with the Beghards, see Div. 2, § 71, note 12. John XXII., bull Sancta Romana of 30th December, 1317 (in Extravagg. Jo. XXII. tit. vii.): Nonnulli profanae multitudinis viri, qui vulgariter Fratricelli, seu Fratres de paupere vita, Bizochi sive Beguini, vel alii nominibus nuncupantur in partibus Italiae, necnon in insula Siciensi, comitatu provinciali, Narbonensi et Tolosana civitatibus—habitu novae religionis adsumere, congregations et conventiculas facere, et superiores sibi ipsis eligere, quos ministros, seu custodes, vel gardianos, aut nominibus aliis appellant, plurimos ad eorum sectam recipere,—publice mendicare, quasi eorum secta foret una de religionibus per sedem apostolicam approbatis, temeritate damnabili praesumpserunt, et praesumunt etiam incessanter. Et ut ipsorum error veritas, et impietas religio reputetur; plurimi eorum regulam seu ordinem fratrum Minorum, quem S. Franciscus instituit, se profiteri et ad literam conservare configunt, quanquam in obedientia Generalis, vel provincialium ministrorum ipsius Ordinis non morentur, praetendentes se a sanctae memoriae Coelestino P. V.—hujus status—privilegium habuisse. Quod tamen, etsi ostenderent, non valeret; cum bonae memoriae Bonifacius P. VIII.—omnia ab ipso Coelestino—concessa—viribus penitus vacuaverit.—Nonnulli etiam ex ipsis asserentes, se esse de tertio Ordine b. Francisci, Poenitentium vocato, praedictum statum et ritum eorum sub velamine talis nominis satagunt palliare: cum tamen in regula ipsius tertii Ordinis talis vivendi ritus nullatenus sit concessus.—Ipsorum quam plurimi—a veritate catholicae fidei deviantes, ecclesiastica sacramenta despiciunt ac errores alios student multipliciter seminare. Then follows a stern prohibition of this method of life under threat of excommunication.—In the bull Gloriosam Ecclesiam of 23d January, 1318 (in the Bullarium Rom. and in Raynald. ann. 1318, no. 45), the bishops were accordingly required to imprison the pseudo-minorites, who had escaped to Sicily, and constituted there a small community, distinguishing themselves by wearing—quodam habitus cum parvis caputis curtos, strictos, inusitatos et squalidos, and to deliver them over to the Franciscan Order for punishment. In this also there is a brief account of the past controversy, and a statement of the errors of the separatists, viz.: I. Primus error—duas fingit Ecclesias, unam carnalem, divitiis pressam, effluentem deliciis, sceleribus maculatam, cui Romanum Praesulem, aliosque inferiores Praelatos dominari assentunt: aliam spiritualem, frugalitate mundam, virtute decoram, paupertate succinctam, in qua ipsi soli eorumque complices continentur, cui etiam ipsi spiritualis vitae merito, si qua fides est mendaciis, principiantur.—II. Secundus error—venerabiles Ecclesiae sacerdotes—sic jurisdictionis clamitat auctoritate desertos, ut nec sententias ferre, nec sacramenta confidere, nec subjectum populum instruere valeant;—quia apud ipsos solos, ut ipsi somniant, sicut spiritualis vitae sanctitas, sic auctoritas perseverat.—III.—in nullum eventum assentunt fore jurandum, dogmatizantes, mortalis criminis contagione polui et poena teneri, quos contigerit juramenti religione constringi.—IV.—sacerdotes rite ordinatos, quibuslibet tamet criminibus pressos, non posse confidere vel conferre ecclesiastica sacramenta.—V.—Evangelium Christi in se solis hoc in tempore—esse compleatum, quod hactenus, ut ipsi somniant, objectum fuerat, immo prorsus extinctum.—Multata sunt alia, quae isti praesumptiosi homines contra conjugii venerabile sacramentum garris dicuntur, multaque de cursu temporum et fine saeculi somniant, multaque de Antichristi adventu, quem jamjam instare assentunt, flebili vanitate divulgant, etc. Compare Culpae Beguinorum in the Liber sententiarum Inquisitionis Tolosanae ab anno 1307–1323, p. 298 ss., at the end of Ph. a Limborch, Hist. Inquisitionis. Among these Beguins the Postilla Fr. Petri Olivi (Div. 2, § 70, note 12), which they had in the language of their country, was held in high esteem. Accordingly the Church of Rome was to them Babylon meretrix magna, John XXII. mysticus Antichristus, praeparator viae majoris Antichristi (p. 304), regula S. Francisci unum et idem cum evangelio Christi (p. 302), viz. vita Christi, quam in hoc mundo servavit et servandam Apostolis suis tradidit (p. 303). S. Franciscus seu Ordo ejus debebat Ecclesiam renovare, meaning, of course, that Order as it was maintained in genuineness among the Spiritualists alone. A Beguin examined in 1321 (p. 298), credidit, informatus per scripturam dicti fratri P. Johannis their superstitions,⁴ and were sacrificed together in crowds by the Inquisition.⁵

With the larger portion of the Franciscans (Fratres de communitate) the renunciation of all property, even of such as was held in common, had been reduced to a mere pretense by the Papal interpretation of the rule. However, the Order attached so high a value to this pretense that, by occasion of the falling of a Beghard into the hands of the Inquisition at Narbonne (1321), it engaged in a most violent contest with the Dominicans on the question whether Christ and the apostles held property in common.⁶ John XXII., weary of the disputes about the rule of poverty, declared himself, notwithstanding all the remonstrances of the Franciscans,⁷ on the side of the Dominicans, characterized the Franciscan doctrine as heresy,⁸ and denounced forthwith, in the name of the Ro-

(Olivii), quod infra XIV. annos computandos a praesenti tempore Antichristus major complevisset cursum suum, etc.

* Alvarus Pelagius, De Planctu Eccl. lib. ii. c. 51, de erroribus Begardorum, says with regard to the tertius error Begardorum de spiritu libertatis (see Div. 2, § 90, note 33): Tempore meo in provincia b. Francisci multi saeculares et fratres Minores pro isto carnali spiritu libertatis per inquisitores haereticae pravitatis incarcerated fuerunt—tales valde spirituales videbantur in lucis angelum transformati. According to all this, Wadding's attempts (Ann. Minorum ann. 1317, no. 24 ss.) to deny the rise of the Fraticelli from his Order can be easily estimated at their true worth.

⁶ The account of the contemporary Nicolaus Minorita in Baluz. PP. Aven. i. 598: Anno Dom. MCCCXXI—quidam Beguinus seu Bizotus fuit captus in civitate Narbona pro facto haeresis per Archiepiscopum Narbonensem et fratrem Johannem de Belna, Ordinis fratum Praedicatorum Inquisitorem haereticae pravitatis. Qui Beguinus inter alia asserebat, quod Christus et Apostoli viam perfectionis sequentes nihil haberuerunt jure proprietatis et dominii in speciali, nec etiam in communi. Qui Inquisitor volens judicare dictum Beguinum convocavit ad consilium omnes Piores, Gardianos et Lectores Religiosorum et quamplures alios sapientes, inter quos affuit frater Berengarius Taloni Lector in conventu fratum Minorum de Narbona. Et inter caetera praefatus Inquisitor fecit legi praefatum articulum de paupertate Christi et Apostolorum ejus, pro quo volebat Begardum hujusmodi tanquam haereticum judicare. Praelibatus frater Berengarius Lector super dicto articulo requisitus respondit, quod hoc dicere non erat haereticum, sed dogma sanum, catholicum et fidele, maxime cum hoc esset per Ecclesiam in decretali Exit qui seminat (Nicolai IV., see Div. 2, § 70, note 11) diffinitum. Quo facto, ac si asseruisset haeresim dictus Lector, praefatus Inquisitor eidem preecepit, ut dictum suum statim in praesentia omnium revocaret. Qui Lector revocare noluit quo modo, sed—ad sedem apostolicam solemniter appellavit, et cum appellatione sua venit apud Avignonem.

man Church, the tenure of Franciscan property (1322).⁹ The most zealous Franciscans, and at their head Michael of Cesena, general of the Order, betook themselves at length to Lewis the Bavarian,¹⁰ and persecuted the heretical Pope to the day of his death.¹¹ The greater portion of the Order, however, submitted and chose a general acceptable to the Pope (1329).¹²

Afterward he decided in the bull Cum inter nonnullos, 12th November, 1322 (ibid. c. 4) : in posterum pertinaciter adfirmare, quod Redemptori nostro ejusque Apostolis iis, quae ipsos habuisse Scriptura sacra testatur, nequaquam jus ipsis utendi competierit, nec illa vendendi seu donandi jus habuerint, aut ex ipsis alia acquirendi, quae tamen ipsis de praemissis fecisse Scriptura sacra testatur, seu ipsis potuisse facere supponit expresse: cum talis adsertio ipsorum usum et gesta evidenter includat in praemissis non justa, quod utique de usu, gestis seu factis Redemptoris nostri, Dei Filii, sentire nefas est, sacrae Scripturae contrarium, et doctrinae catholicae inimicum : adsertionem ipsam pertinacem de fratribus nostrorum consilio deinceps erroneam fore censendam merito ac haereticam declaramus. As to the manner in which the champions of Papal infallibility explain away the open contradiction of the bulls of Nicholas IV. and John XXII., see Bellarmine de Romano Pontifice, lib. iv. c. 14.

On the other hand, the Dominicans defended the Papal decision, especially Petrus Paludanus at Paris (1330, patriarch of Jerusalem, † 1342), Tract. de Paupertate Christi et Apostolorum contra Michaelem de Caesena (MS. in bibl. Colbert). As to other works, see Raynald. ann. 1323, no. 38 ss. So early as 1324, John XXII. had defended his constitution himself in a new bull, Quia quorundam (Extravagg. Jo. XXII. tit. xiv. c. 5), and placed his opponents under ban. Petrus Rogerius (Benedictine monk and Professor of Theology at Paris, afterward Pope Clement VI.), records in his Lecture on this bull (see Baluzii Not. ad Antonii Augustini de emendatione Gratian.

The decrees of John XXII. necessarily caused the observance of the rule of St. Francis to be still further relaxed in the greater portion of the Order.¹³ So much the less could the Spiritualists who remained true to the Church be reconciled again to the Order. Accordingly, throughout the 14th century, they constantly repeated their endeavor to unite in small retired establishments, in order to observe their beloved rule in its purity, and to indulge the hope of a reformation in the Church such as Petrus Johannes Olivi had foretold them (Div. 2, § 70, note 12). Accordingly, they bore a great resemblance to the Fraticelli (Div. 2, § 70, note 9 and 16), without falling into their heresies. At first their communities were frequently dispersed, but afterward they found protection¹⁴ ani Dialog. lib. i. dial. 17), that at that time a theologian at Paris, no doubt a Dominican, had advanced so far as to maintain: adserere Christum et Apostolos nihil habuisse est magis haereticum, quam adserere Deum non esse incarnatum. Viz.: illud est magis haereticum, quod est contra majorem evidentiam fidei.—Sed adserere, quod Christus et Apostoli nihil habuerunt in proprio vel communi, est contra majorem evidentiam fidei.—Illi enim, qui erant tempore Christi et Apostolorum, clare videbant, quod Christus et Apostoli habebant aliqua vel in proprio, vel in communi; non tamen ita clare videbant, quod Deus esset incarnatus, quia non videbant clare Christum esse nisi purum hominem. Ergo, etc.

¹³ See the confession of the Franciscan, Alvarus Pelagius, ii. c. 66, that his brethren frequently, de pecunia, quae pro eis deponitur, emunt et faciunt superflua.—Item non pro necessitatibus ingruentibus—faciunt pecuniam deponi, sed pro futuris necessitatibus et non necessitatibus.—Item vadunt aliqui per terras et villas,—eleemosynas pecuniarias procurando et petendo, et importunitates frequenter ingerendo, famulum retroducendo, et denariis pixides et loculos implendo.—Item ponunt aliqui cippos et arcas in eorum Ecclesias, ut ibi saeculares ponant pecunias.—Item tangunt pecunias vel cum cera vel cum ligno vel cum palea. Portant etiam quidam eorum pecunias sutas in habitibus et tunicis. Quidam etiam eorum faciunt sibi pecuniam ponи in capitiis, etc.

from certain generals of the Order, and increased to such a considerable number that at length the Council of Constance established them in form as Fratres regularis observantiae, in contradistinction to the Fratres conventuales.¹⁵

The more the Franciscans relaxed the severity of the evangelical life restored, it was said, by Francis, so much the more extravagant were they in his praise, as if for the purpose of propitiating the saint; and so much the more profane mockery did they manifest in the comparison of him with Christ.¹⁶ The prophecies of John believed that he recognized Cola by revelation from Heaven as the instrument of renovation for the world and the Church; accordingly, he sent him to the Emperor Charles IV. in 1350 (Papencordt, s. 211). Beyond this period the congregation of the Clarenes which Angelus de Cingulo had formed A.D. 1302, in the March of Ancona, from the remnant of the Coelestines, maintained its existence (Wadding ad. h. a. no. 8); and that of Paulutius also (Paolucci von Foligni), a disciple of Joannes de Vallibus, who settled himself again in the ruined monastery of Brugliano with the permission of the general of the Order (Wadding, Ann. 1368, no. 10), and enlarged his society to such an extent (Wadding, Ann. 1380, no. 29; 1384, no. 4; 1385, no. 4; 1388, no. 1; 1390, no. 1), that he was looked upon as the founder of the regular observance.

At this time appeared the notorious Liber Conformatum Bartholomaei Albici or Barth. de Pisis, the Franciscan, written in 1385, presented to the general chapter held at Assisi in 1399, and there approved (the only complete edition is that of Milan, 1510, fol. Extracts by Erasmus Alberus, with a preface by Luther, entitled, Der Barfüsser Mönche Eulenspiegel u. Alcoran, 1531, also 1573 and 1614. 12, further enlarged in the translations; l'Alcoran des Cordeliers and Alcoranus Franciscanorum, which have been often published). This notorious work is composed of three books, and points out forty conformatites of St. Francis with Christ, which are every time briefly announced in the headings, e. g. lib. i. 1. Jesus prophetis cognitus, Franciscus declaratur (prophecies de Francisco tam ante ortum, quam in ortu et post ortum declarato et agnito). 2. Jesus emissus caelitus, Franciscus destinatur. 3. Jesus laete prōgenitus, Francisco vir laetatur (viz., prophets and angels rejoiced at the birth of Francis as at the birth of Christ). 6. Jesus abjectus cernitur, Franciscus separatur. e. g. Nam Apostoli etsi navem et alia reliquerunt, non tamen vestimentum, quod in dorso habebant: beatus vero Franciscus non solum omnium terrenorum facultati abrenunciavit, sed et pannos et femoralia rejecit, nudum corpore et mente se offerens brachiis Crucifixi, quod de nullo alio Sancto mundum abrenunciante alicubi legitur, et sic in hoc b. Franciscus singularis ab omnibus reperitur. For this reason the brother Pacificus, also, had seen in a vision many seats in heaven, inter quas vidit unam eminentiorem aliis et prae omnibus gloriosius fulgentem, et ornatam omni lapide pretioso, et admirans ejus pulchritudinem coepit cogitare, cuius esset, et statim vocem audivit dicentem sibi: haec sedes fuit Luciferi, et loco ejus sedebit humilis Franciscus.—Lib. ii. conf. 13. Jesus signis mirificus, Franciscus divulgatur. The following prophecy was also fulfilled in Francis: omnia subjecisti sub pedibus ejus et constituisti eum super omnia opera manuum tuarum, as also, quod cantatur in Evangelio sui festi: omnia mihi tradita sunt a patre meo. Lib. iii. conf. 37: Jesus transcendens angelos, Franciscus sublimatur, with the conclusion: sic b. Franciscus super angelos, archangelos, thronos, dominationes, virtutes, potestates, principatus et cherubim est elevatus, et in ordine seraphico in sede Luciferi locatus et sublimatus, quo concluditur, quod omnes inferiores ordines, tam quoad angelicos spiritus quam humanos, b. Franciscus sublimatus in ordine supremo excessit gratia et meritis. True, the author was placed upon the Index de Rupescissa testify to the fact that the expectation of an approaching renovation in the Church to be brought about by Francis and his disciples was by no means eradicated in the Order.¹⁷

NEW ORDERS.

Monasticism in this period, also, was increased by many new orders, but in these, instead of a new spirit, there were only new forms, which fell into disuse as fast as the previous ones. On the olive mount, near Siena, John Tolomei founded the Olivetans, a con-librorum prohibit. of 1564, with the remarkable designation Bartholomaeus Conformi; but still the Franciscan, Henr. Sedulius, declares, in his Apologeticus adv. Alcoranum Franciscanorum pro Libro Conformatum, Antwerp, 1607. 4. in the Prolegomena: Pudere nos libri conformitatum, tam hoc est falsum, quam, quod scribit Lutherus, verum, nos pro hac abominatione needum poenitentiam agere, hanc non recantare. Comp. (Baumgarten's) Nachrichten von einer hallischen Bibliothek, i. 286.

gregation of Benedictines¹ (Congregatio S. Mariae Montis Oliveti, confirmed by John XXII. in 1319); John Colombino, likewise at Siena, founded the Order of Jesuates (Jesuati, confirmed by Urban V. in 1367), a mendicant order, consisting only of laymen living according to the rule of St. Augustine.² In Spain and Italy there rose several orders of Hieronymites.³ About 1363, St. Brigitta established in the monastery of Madstena an order called by her own name (Ordo S. Brigittae or S. Salvatoris confirmed by Urban V. in 1370), which united nuns and monks in a peculiar manner in the same houses.⁴

According to cap. 10, each cloister was to hold sixty sisters and thirteen priests for their service, juxta numerum XIII. Apostolorum, quorum Paulus tertius decimus non minimum labore sustinuit, four deacons and eight laybrothers, so that tantus omnium personarum erit numerus, quantus erat XIII. Apostolorum et LXXII. discipulorum. These male persons, a monasterio Sororum omnino sint separati, unam habentes pro se curiam, in qua habitabunt, etc. Cap. 12: Abbatissa eligatur a Conventu, legitime vero electa ab Episcopo confirmetur, quae ob reverentiam beatissimae Virginis, cui hic Ordo dedicatus est, caput et Domina esse debet, quia ipsa Virgo, cuius Abbatissa gerit vicem in terris, ascende Christo in caelos, Caput et Regina extitit Apostolorum et Discipulorum Christi. *Pragmat. their being thoroughly tainted with heresy,¹ although the most violent persecutions were employed against them, and although the inquisitors were very mistrustful of all ecclesiastical societies which lived according to no definite monastic rule,² still, the inclination to freer ecclesiastical unions, a manifest token that monasticism was sunken in public estimation, could not be suppressed, especially in the Netherlands and in Germany. John XXII. took the female communities of orthodox Beguines under his protection³ again, to shield them from persecution. In Germany and the Netherlands the Society of the Alexiani or Fratres Cellitae, called Lollards by the folk, spread itself abroad. This society had constituted itself at Antwerp not long after the year 1300 for works of charity toward the sick and dead ;⁴ Lollard also soon became synonymous with Beghard, and a name for heretics.⁵ Heresies were undoubtedly continually discovered now and then among the Beghards and Beguines.⁶ Not unfrequently their mere name incited the inquisitors to unrighteous persecutions, and they needed the Papal protection.⁷ On the other hand, in many places of Switzerland and the Rhine, where they had united themselves as tertiaries with the mendicant orders, the female Beguines drew upon themselves universal hatred from their lazy beggary, interference in family affairs, and want of chastity.⁸

A new kind of free ecclesiastical fellowships originated with Gerard Groot, an ecclesiastic at Deventer († 1384).⁹ When, after preaching to the people with great success, but without any fixed office,¹⁰ he had given up this method of working at the command

409): Cum, sicut pro parte dilectorum filiorum, universorum Inquisitorum haereticae pravitatis auctoritate apostolica per Alemanniam deputatorum, propositum extitit coram nobis, in partibus illis sint nonnullae sectae utriusque sexus hominum, vulgo Beghardi, seu Lullardi et Zwestriones, a se ipsis vero pauperes Fraticelli, seu pauperes pueruli nominati, qui—novum religionis seu conformem habitum assumere, congregations et conventicula facere, in communi habitare, superiores, quos Procuratores vel servos Fratrum, aut Marthas Sororum nuncupant, sub ipsis eligere et publice gregatim mendicare prae-sumunt, sub quorum etiam habitu et ritu vivendi—semper haereses et haeretici latitarent:—cum autem, sicut etiam accepimus, hujusmodi Beghardi, seu Lullardi, seu Zwestriones exemptionibus et concessionibus a sede praefata jacent se fulcitos;—nos igitur omnes et singulas exemptiones et concessiones hujusmodi eisdem Beghardis, seu Lullardis et Zwestrionibus—per nos vel quoscunque praedecessores nostros—forsan factas penitus revocamus, ac volumus quod hujusmodi Beghardi seu Lullardi et Zwestriones, quocunque etiam nomine nuncupentur, in et super haeresibus—conveniri, et per Inquisidores—puniri possint et debeant. This bull is, indeed, directed only against the heretical Beghards, without revoking the protection guaranteed to the orthodox pauperes. However, in fact, these two classes were hardly distinguishable from each other, and so the heretical Beghards availed themselves of the Papal letters of protection. Thus the treatment of all these communities depended entirely upon the decision of the bishops and inquisitors, and these Papal protective laws guaranteed to the orthodox pauperes no more security than they had without them.

⁸ Thus in Basle they were 1500 in number, and the female tertiaries of the Franciscans were reputed to be their concubines. Their adversaries were the Dominican and Augustinian monks. The struggle lasted from 1401 to 1411: then the Beguines were banished; Ochs, Gesch. v. Basel, iii. 24. Müller's Schweizergesch. ii. 584. There were similar complaints about them in Strasburg, where they belonged to the Tertiary order of St. Dominic, and were sheltered by the Dominicans, when, at the command of the Council, they had to leave off their peculiar costume and their mendicancy. Röhricht's Gesch. d. Reform. im Elsass, i. 44.

of the hierarchy, he then gathered round him at Deventer a circle of young men, who had dedicated themselves to the ecclesiastical office, that he might be of service to them in securing a maintenance and in the acquisition of true spiritual attainments:¹¹ pious laymen soon after united themselves to this circle.

His disciple, Florentius Radewini († 1400),¹² completed and set in order the work that he had begun, by founding at Windesheim, near Zwoll (1386), a chapter of regular canons,¹³ which soon besuspendentes, ad ejus sermonem pia prorsus aviditate tracti concurrebant. Saepe namque duos sermones uno die praedicavit, et quandoque spiritu fervoris concepto tribus horis aut amplius sermonem continuavit. Praedicavit autem in principalioribus civitatibus dioecesis Trajectensis—primum sermonem teuthonicum. Cf. Buschii Chron. Windesem. lib. i. c. 1.

Dei etenim caritate et proximi dilectione divinitus inspirati, affectuosius se mutuo diligere, et plures secum homines, non solum clericos, sed etiam laicos bonae voluntatis, conditionis cuiuscunque, ad amorem Dei mundique contemptum verbis et exemplis suis sanctis sedulius attrahere, omnes iu communi pariter statuerunt. Hujusmodi igitur occasione omnes ubique congregationse devotee Presbyterorum, clericorum et sororum primitivum suscepisse dignoscuntur exordium, per orbem jam Almanicum plurimum dilatatae.

came the centre of the well-known Windesheim Congregation, and he afterward granted to the society a Fraterhaus in Deventer.¹⁴ Here, under the superintendence of priests, young men who were preparing for the ecclesiastical office (Clerici),¹⁵ and pious laymen, who plied their different trades, lived together as brethren with community of goods, but without taking perpetual vows (Fratres vitae communis),¹⁶ and endeavored to promote Christian piety in themselves and others;¹⁷ they tried to attain this end in a special

To the number of these hawks belonged especially the pseudodoctores et praedicatorum, qui omnia, quae ipsi nesciebant, rabido ore carpere et persecui satagebant (the mendicant friars).

Omni die, quando potes, debes audire Missam usque ad finem, etc.—Vita Florentii, c. 14: Quod a venerabili magistro Gerardo didicit et accepit, hoc diligenter observavit, cuius sententia fuit, ut nemo ad congregationem suscipi deberet, nisi secundum b. Pauli dictum manibus laborare vellet. Est namque operatio sancta ad omnem spiritualem profectum utilissima, per quam carnis lascivia domatur, et ab evagandi levitate mens dissoluta citius refraenatur.—Igitur ars scribendi libros, quae clericis melius convenit, et quietius exerceri potest, a Fratribus domus ejus est maturius arrepta, et pro communi bono servando usitatius introducta. Ipse vero venerandus pater Florentius, ne vacuum nomen gereret rectoris,—dedit scriptoribus exemplum clarum, membranas pumicando, quaterniones lineando, et componendo. Quia licet minus bene scribere sciret, in praeparando tamen aliis necessaria, quam plurimum scriptores adjuvit manu sua oleo sancto consecrata. Interdum cum opus esset,—assumpto socio libros jam scriptos perlegit et corredit, etc.

²⁰ Even Gerard Groot had to defend the society against the attacks of the mendicant friars, Busch. Chron. Windesh. lib. i. c. 3. Compare the opinion obtained from the faculty of law at Cologne in 1398 of the persons persecuted as Gerardini, Beghardi, etc., in Mosheim de Beghardis, p. 433: *Sequentes quaestiones cum suis solutionibus super casu, qui sequitur, sunt scriptae et formatae pro munimine Beghardorum, etc. Casus: In aliquibus partibus plures personae se simul receperunt ad cohabitandum aliquo modo, sicut Clerici in una domo, in qua libros pro pretio scribunt, alii vero non scientes scribere, scientes tamen opera diversa mechanica, quae similiter exercent pro pretio in alia domo, aut etiam aliud faciunt opus manuale. Et istae personae laborant manibus, et de his, quae laboribus acquirunt, vel de suis propriis, si quae habent, vivunt, et omnia sibi invicem pro maiore concordia libere communicant, vel in commune ponunt, comedunt simul, et non mendicant. Habent etiam inter se unam personam probam, quae curam domus habet, cuius monitis acquiescent vel obediunt, sicut boni scolares magistro. On the question, whether this life in community without monastic vows (extra religionem) was allowed in law, the faculty decided in the affirmative: On the other side there are the Observationes Inquisitoris Belgici in magistrorum Coloniensium responsum—pro detectione figurorum sectae Gherardinorum (l. c. p. 443): *diversae sunt congregations non solum Clericorum, sed maxime foeminarum, quae in diversis domibus singulas Marthas habentibus, simul in communi, sub cura et regimine earundem Martharum degunt, nec aliquid proprii,—sed omnia in communi habentes, partim de laboribus manuum pro majori, aut de eleemosynis ad modum Religiosorum vivunt. Quibus non licet comedere, bibere, sedere, stare, surgere, exire, loqui, vel dormire, aut quocunque aliud facere sine speciali licentia Marthae vel Submarthae petita et obtenta.—Singulatim culpas suas dicunt,—et poenas a Martha injunctas obedienter recipiunt. Quae omnia—licet de se non sint mala, immo bona et laudabilia; multi tamen contra ipsas clamant, novas congregations ad modum Religiosorum propria temeritate facere sine licentia speciali sedis apostolicae non licere.—Est una Martha principalis in Trajecto, quae domos sororum ibidem, et alias domos earundem in oppidis circumiacentibus, quolibet anno ad minus semel, vel bis, aut pluries, visitat directe.—Presbyter quidam cum dicta Martha in eadem domo hospitatur, et istarum congregationum legislator est atque gubernator supremus.—Non volunt regulam approbatam assumere, nec permittuntur ab ipsarum memorato gubernatore, dicente, se velle potius stabulum pecundum custodire, quam eas, si omnino vellent aliquam approbatam regulam accipere.

FOURTH CHAPTER.

HISTORY OF THE THEOLOGICAL SCIENCES.

THIRD PERIOD OF SCHOLASTIC THEOLOGY.

Bossuet's Gesch. d. Welt u. d. Religion, fortges. v. T. A. Cramer, vii. 791. Tiedemann's Geist der speculativen Philosophie, v. 125. Tennemann's Gesch. d. Philosophie VIII. ii. 803, 840. Ritter's Gesch. d. christl. Philosophie, iv. 547. [Hauréau, La Phil. Scholastique, 2. 8.]

The third period of scholastic theology begins with two distinguished men, who boldly endeavored to originate new methods of investigation, the Dominican Durand of St. Pourçain (de sancto Porciano, from 1313 teacher of theology at Paris, afterward Magister s. Palatii, from 1326 Bishop of Meaux † 1333, Doctor resolutissimus);¹ and the Franciscan William Occam (teacher of theology at Paris, from 1322 Provincial in England, after 1328 in the court of Lewis the Bavarian † 1347, Doctor singularis et invincibilis, Venerabilis inceptor).² The latter, especially, created an epoch in the history of scholasticism, because, waging an equally undaunted warfare against the philosophical darkness of the realists, and the Papal encroachments,³ he once more awakened the nominalistic spirit, which had wholly vanished since the time of Roscellinus.⁴

¹ His principal work is his Opus super Sententias Lombardi (ed. Paris, 1508. Venet. 1571, fol.). How little he cared for authority, see lib. i. dist. iii. p. ii. qu. 5: Quod dicitur de intentione Aristotelis, dicendum, quod quicquid ipse intenderit, de quo non est tantum curandum, sicut de veritate, tamen, etc. He inclined already toward nominalism; see Ritter, iv. 550, 561.—Though at first a zealous Thomist, he afterward differed from Thomas in many doctrines; comp. Durandi de s. Porciano Temerariae Opiniones, quae in scholis communiter improbantur, in d'Argentré Collectio Judiciorum de Novis Erroribus, i. 330. For instance, in the doctrine of the Sacraments. Thus lib. iv. dist. i. qu. 4: Utrum in sacramentis novae legis sit aliqua virtus inhaerens causativa gratiae, etc.?—Alia opinio est antiqua et sine calumnia, et magis, ut mihi videtur, consonat dictis Sanctorum, scil. quod in sacramentis non est aliqua virtus causativa gratiae:—sed sunt causa, sine qua non confertur gratia; quia ex divina pactione vel ordinatione sic fit, quod recipiens Sacramentum recipit gratiam, nisi ponat obicem: recipit gratiam non a Sacramento, sed a Deo. Lib. iv. dist. 4. qu. 1: Utrum character sit aliquid in anima?—Character non est aliqua natura absoluta, sed est sola relatio rationis, per quam ex institutione vel pactione divina deputatur aliquis ad sacras actiones. Quod declaratur sic: Sicut nummus sortitur rationem pretii, et merellus (the impression) rationem signi ex humana institutione, sic res naturales sortiuntur rationem Sacramenti, et homo rationem Ministri ex divina institutione, etc.—Cum scriptum sit Eccl. 24: Qui elucidant me, vitam aeternam habebunt; ad ea quae sunt fidei, cum sint satis obscura de se, non est conveniens adducere vias obscuras, et quae plus habent obscuritatis et difficultatis, quam principale propositum. Compare the doctrine of Thomas on the point in question, Div. 2, § 77, note 22.—Lib. iv. dist. 11, qu. 1 on Transubstantiation: salvo meliori judicio potest aestimari, quod si in isto sacramento fiat conversio substantiae panis in corpus Christi, quod ipsa fit per hoc quod corrupta forma panis, materia ejus sit sub forma corporis Christi subito et virtute divina, sicut materia alimenti fit sub forma nutriti virtute naturae.—Praedictus autem modus conversionis substantiae panis in corpus Christi constat, quod est possibilis: alius autem modus, qui communius tenetur, est inintelligibilis: nec unus istorum est magis per Ecclesiam approbatus vel reprobatus, quam alius. Nec omnes difficultates fidei difficultatibus superaddere, quin potius iuxta documentum Scripturae conandum est obscuritates elucidare. Lib. iv. dist. 26, qu. 3: An

matrimonium sit sacramentum?—Tenendum est absolute, quod matrimonium est sacramentum, cum hoc determinet Ecclesia Extra de haeret. ad abolendam (Decr. Greg. v. 7, 9).—Sunt alia duo circa matrimonium, circa quae sine periculo haeresis licitum est contraria opinari: quorum unum est theologicum, videlicet utrum in matrimonio conferatur gratia ex opere operato, sicut in aliis sacramentis novae legis; secundum est logicum, videlicet utrum matrimonium habeat plenam univocationem cum aliis sacramentis. Quantum ad primum aliter opinantur Juristae, et aliter Theologi: Juristae enim, qui noverunt textum decretorum et decretalium,—et aliqui eorum fuerunt de collegio Cardinalium s. Romanae Ecclesiae, tenent quod in sacramento matrimonii non conferatur gratia.—Quorum opinio an sit vera an falsa,—non determino quoad praesens: sed solum hoc accipio tanquam verum, quod cum praedicti doctores noverint iura canonica, et eorum scripta et dicta habeantur a Papa et Cardinalibus,—quorum est specialiter scire, quid Ecclesia Romana praedicat et observat, nec scripta eorum, quoad praedictum articulum de matrimonio reprobent tanquam erronea;—quod sentire, quod per sacramentum matrimonii non conferatur gratia, non est contra determinationem Ecclesiae, nec contra id, quod Romana Ecclesia praedicat et observat.—Huius etiam opinioni consentit Magister sententiarum.—Moderni autem theologi quasi communiter tenent, quod per sacramentum matrimonii confertur gratia. (Comp. Div. 2, § 77, note 22.) To the second question, utrum matrimonium habeat perfectam univocationem cum aliis sacramentis, he replies that, according to the prior et communior definitio sacramenti, quod sacramentum est sacrae rei signum, marriage is certainly a sacrament: est enim signum sacrae rei, id est conjunctionis Christi et Ecclesiae: however, with the distinction, that, in aliis sacramentis res sacra, cuius sunt signum, non solum est significata, sed et contenta; in matrimonio autem res sacra, cuius est signum, est solum significata, non contenta. If, however, a sacrament is defined as, aliquod signum corporale vel sensibile extrinsecus homini appositum ad effectum sanctificationis spiritualis; quantum ad hoc matrimonium non videtur habere perfectam univocationem cum sacramentis novae legis.—His conclusion is—matrimonium non est sacramentum stricte et proprie dictum, sicut alia sacramenta novae legis, but as—sacrae rei signum, only—largo modo sacramentum.

² Among his theological works the most important is Quaestiones super IV. Libros Sententiarum, published at Lyons 1495, fol. Besides this: Centilogium theologicum, Quodlibeta, Tract. de Sacramento Altaris. There are also several philosophical works by him. Some have been already mentioned above, § 100, note 13 and 19.

As these new nominalists, or Occamists, considered all natural human cognition to be only a knowledge of the phenomenal, and not of truth itself,⁵ they rejected all philosophical demonstrations of the positive doctrines of the Church, grounded the latter upon revelation alone, emphasized the antagonism between revelation and the dictates of reason,⁶ and did not even hesitate to derive the evidently novel doctrines of the Church from new revelations.⁷

ergo non esset in pluribus singularibus, nec de essentia illorum.—Qu. 8: Universale non est aliquid, reale habens esse subjectivum, nec in anima nec extra animam. Sed tamen habet esse objectivum in anima, et est quoddam fictum habens esse tale in esse objectivo, quale habet res extra in esse subjectivo. Et hoc per istum modum, quod intellectus videns aliquam rem extra animam, fingit consimilem rem in mente, ita quod, si haberet virtutem productivam, talem rem in esse subjectivo, numero distinctam a priori produceret extra.—Universale est exemplar et indifferenter respiciens omnia singularia extra:—et ita isto modo universale non est per generationem sed per abstractionem, quae non est nisi fictio quaedam. Compare Tiedemann, v. 168. Tennemann VIII. ii. 846. Ritter, iv. 579.

They were, indeed, sorely attacked by the realists for their paradoxical assertions,⁸ and in Paris nominalism was at first strictly forbidden:⁹ however, it imperceptibly gained the upper hand, and at the end of the fourteenth century the nominalists were the dominant party in Paris, while elsewhere they were still violently assailed,¹⁰ and in Prague (1408) even banished by the realists.¹¹

The third period of scholasticism is remarkable for the violent warfare of the different schools, particularly of the nominalists and realists. In this contest attention was almost exclusively turned to the preliminary philosophical notions of theology; in this region the nominalists could gratify, without danger, their love of paradox, by which they meant to copy the originality of their leader. Thus this period is distinguished for fruitless subtleties about abstract ideas.¹² All taste for the practically important parts of theol-

Nota de opinione S. Augustini de igne Purgatorii, qualiter tenetur opposita. (Vol. 1, Div. 2, § 121, note 18, p. 515.)

Primo, ne tractentur ita communiter doctrinae inutiles sine fructu et soliditate, quoniam per eas doctrinae ad salutem necessariae et utiles deseruntur. Nesciunt necessaria, quia supervacua didicerunt, inquit Seneca. Secundo per eas studentes seducuntur, qui scilicet putant illos principaliter esse Theologos, qui talibus se dant, spreta Biblia et aliis Doctoribus. Tertio per eas termini a ss. Patribus usitati transmutantur.—Quarto per eas Theologi ab aliis Facultatibus irridentur. Nam ideo appellantur phantastici, et dicuntur nihil scire de solida veritate et moralibus et Biblia. Quinto per eas viae errorum multiplices aperiuntur.—Sexto per eas Ecclesia et fides neque intus neque foris aedificantur.—Tales nunc currunt propositiones ex talibus doctrinis: Infinitae sunt durationes in divinis, secundum prius et posterius, quamvis aeternae. Et ita de mensura. Spiritus sanctus liber, contradictorie, contingenter producitur ex parte principiū quo. In divinis est absolute potentialitas ad non esse Spiritus sancti. Producere Filium in divinis, ut sic, nihil est, etc.—Item monendi videntur Magistri nostri,—quod materiae secundi, tertii et quarti Sententiarum magis tractarentur (quia vix legitur nisi primus, occupando tempus in praemissis doctrinis) et similiter Biblia. Et pro honore Dei attendatur diligenter, quanta est necessitas pro instructione populorum, et pro resolutione materiarum moralium temporibus nostris. Et tunc credendum est, quod in tanta angustia temporis, et inter tot animum pericula non multum placebit ludere, ne dicam phantasiari, circa ea quae prorsus supervacua sunt.

¹³ He wrote, De causa Dei adv. Pelagium, libb. iii. ed. H. Savilius, Lond. 1618, fol. In the Praefatio there is a complaint against the theologians of the day: Ecce enim,—sicut olim contra unicum Dei Prophetam octingenti et quinquaginta Prophetae Baal; ita et hodie in hac causa, quot, Domine, hodie cum Pelagio pro libero arbitrio contra gratuitam gratiam tuam pugnant, et contra Paulum pugilem gratiae spiritualem? Quot etiam hodie gratiam tuam fastidiunt, solumque liberum arbitrium ad salutem sufficere stomachantur? aut si gratia utantur vel perfuntorie, necessariam eam simulant, ipsamque se jactant liberi sui arbitrii viribus promereri, ut sic saltem nequaquam gratuita sed vendita videatur?—Non enim verentur astrarere, suam voluntatem in actione communi praere ut dominam, tuam subsequi ut ancillam.—Totus paene mundus post Pelagium abiit in errorem. Exurge igitur, domine, judica causam tuam. Bradwardine goes so far beyond Augustine as to assert, lib. iii. c. 2: Deus quodammodo necessitat quilibet voluntatem creatam ad quemlibet liberum actum suum, ad quilibet etiam liberam cessationem et vacationem ab actu, et hoc necessitate naturaliter praecedente.—Videlicet universaliter omnis effectus a quoconque agente rationali vel irrationali et libero producitur hoc modo, quod posito suo agente cum omnibus suis dispositionibus sufficientibus naturaliter praeviis quibus illum producit, necessario et indefectibiliter sequitur ipsum produci, et producitur ex necessitate naturaliter praecedente.—Corollarium: Unde consequitur evidenter, quod aliqualis necessitas antecedens et libertas ac meritum non repugnant, et quod nulla causa inferior, sed tantum superior, scil. Dei voluntas, est necessitas antecedens, et quod omnia quae sunt, fiunt et eveniunt, sunt, fiunt et eveniunt de aliqua necessitate ipsa naturaliter praecedente. Cf. d'Argentré, i. 323. On certain followers and foes of Bradwardine, ibid. p. 328. Albert, bishop of Halberstadt, seems to have been a disciple of this system, against whom, for this reason, Gregory XI. ordered an inquisition (Raynald. ann. 1372, no. 33). According to the Pope's brief he taught, quod omnia in hoc mundo ex necessitate eveniunt, et quod fata cuilibet homini vitae ac mortis necessitatem imponunt, et quod non est habendum consilium, nec deliberandum de aliquo, cum omnes actus hominum, etiam a libero arbitrio procedentes, noscantur ex necessitate caelestis influentiae provenire. This doctrine, it was said, had already effected, that nonnulli etiam nobiles et alii de partibus illis,—per haec putantes tolli merita et demerita, incipiunt omittere invocationem divini auxili et Sanctorum, nonnullaque alia ope ra pietatis, etc.

At the same time that infidel philosophy which, ever since the beginning of the thirteenth century, had been secretly maintained, came forward in Italy with a bolder opposition to theology.¹⁴ The more distinguished men at the end of this period, Petrus de Alliaco (from 1375 teacher in Paris, 1389 Chancellor of the University, 1396 Bishop of Cambray, 1411 Cardinal, † 1425),¹⁵ John Charlier de Gerson (from 1381 teacher in Paris, 1395 Chancellor of the University, † 1429 at Lyons, Doctor christianissimus),¹⁶ and Nicolas de Clemangis (artist, 1393 rector in Paris, afterward private secretary to Benedict XIII., from 1408 living in retirement, † before 1440),¹⁷ felt how fruitless were the theological ¹⁴ To this belong the 219 propositions condemned in 1277 by Stephen, bishop of Paris, printed in d'Argentré I., i. 175, more correctly in Schneider's Bibliothek d. Kirchen gesch. i. 1 (Ullmann, Reformatoren vor der Reform. i. 40, gives erroneously the year 1376 with reference to Jo. de Goch, De Libertate Christi). Petrarch, in a letter to Boccaccio, A.D. 1364 (Rerum Senil. lib. v. ep. 3; Opp. iii. 795), speaks of some such unbelievers, whom he had met at Venice: Dialectici non ignari tantum sed insani.—Hi Platonem atque Aristotelem damnant, Socratem ac Pythagoram rident. They despise likewise Cicero, Varro, Livy, Sallust, Virgil, and no less Christ, the apostles, and the Fathers of the Church. Est jam hoc inter eos crebrum, atque in consuetudine redactum, ut quotiens haec verenda et sacra nomina proferuntur, vel nutu illa tacito vel impio feriant sermone. Augustinus, inquit, multa vidit, pauca scivit. One such person (unus moderno more philosophantium, quique nihil actum putant, nisi aliquid contra Christum et caelestem Christi doctrinam latrant) said to Petrarch: Tuos et Ecclesiae doctorculos tibi habe: ego quem sequar habeo, et scio cui credidi. Verbo, inquam, Apostoli usus es, et fide utinam uti velis. Apostolus, inquit, ille tuus seminator verborum, et insanus fuit.—Tu esto Christianus bonus, ego horum omnium nihil credo. Et Paulus, et Augustinus tuus, hique omnes alii, quos praedicas, loquacissimi homines fuere: utinam tu Averroim pati posses, ut videres, quanto ille tuus his nugatoribus major sit.—Nec supplicii metus valet, nec inquisitores haeresium armati, nec carcer atque ignis ignorantiam procacem atque haereticam compescit audaciam. He says of the same philosopher, de Ignorantia sui ipsius et multorum, Opp. iii. 1048: submotis arbitris oppugnant veritatem et pietatem, clanculum in angulis irridentes Christum, atque Aristotelem, quem non intelligunt, adorantes.—Ubi ad disputationem publicam ventum est, quia errores suos eructare non audent, protestari solent, se in praesens sequestrata ac seposita fide disserere.

MYSTIC THEOLOGY.

While the hierarchy was destroying its own reputation, and often, by the use of interdict, its means of efficacy, and while manifold misfortunes weighed down the people, mysticism won many adherents, especially in southwestern Germany (Gottesfreunde).¹

Die Gottesfreunde in Basel, v. Wackernagel, in the Beiträge zur Gesch. Basels, Bd. 2 (Basel, 1843), s. 111. That the Friends of God were a definitely constituted society, and that they had secretly united themselves with the Waldenses, has been erroneously concluded from the statements with regard to Nicolas of Basle; more on this below. Friends of God is the common name by which the mystics of this period design-

Hitherto mysticism had maintained itself in the Church in connection with scholastic theology. Now, in opposition to the chilling influence of nominalism, a rash idealistic mysticism, grounded upon the Areopagites² and Neoplatonists, made its appearance, first in the Dominican, Henry Eckart, at Strasburg and Cologne († before 1329).³ God is, according to him, the only essence—the eternal generation of the Son is the production of essential ideas: these are that divinity which exists in all creatures,⁴ every thing finite is only a seeming. The godlike in the soul must separate itself from the finite, according to the pattern of Christ; that, by the contemplation of God, man may become, like Christ, a son of nated each other among themselves, it is of the same meaning with the expressions of other times, Brothers in Christ, Peace on earth, Children of God, and so forth. Comp. Tauler: "Darumbe sprach unser herre zu sinen Jungern: ingnoten (von nun an) spruch ich uch nit Knechte, mer Frunde (Joh. 15. 15).—Und darumb der ein gewarer Frunt wil sin, der mus alle Ding lassen und Got nachfolgen.—Das ensint nüt Secten, dass sich Gottes Frünt ungleich usgebent der Welte Fründen.—Sie seynt gar einfeltig gehorsam der heiligen Kirchen" (Schmidt, s. 164 ff.). They were certainly bound together by community of feeling, and so Suso represents them as the Brotherhood of Eternal Wisdom, in a work with this for its title (edition of Diepenbrock, s. 484). Only it is evident that here is no external union; any one can take up or lay down this brotherhood on his own authority (s. 486). In the year 1386 the name Gottesfreunde was in such good repute, even among strict Catholics, that Otto v. Passau, the Franciscan, at Basle, dedicated his ethics, entitled, "The Twenty-four Elders, or the Golden Throne," to all Friends of God, ecclesiastical and secular, gentle and simple, women and men, or whosoever they be (Schmidt, s. 172, A). Meister Eckart, eine theolog. Studie v. D. H. Martensen, Hamburg, 1842. Ritter's Gesch. d. christl. Philosophie, iv. 498. In the Basle editions of Tauler's sermons, of 1521 and 1522, fol. 242 ff., there are fifty-five sermons and four short essays by Eckart; on MSS. of them, see Schmidt, Études, p. 23. On Eckart's Book of Divine Consolation, l. c. p. 24. There are three fragments from Eckart in Wackernagel's Old-German Reading-Book, 2d edit. i. 889. Gervinus, Gesch. d. poet. National-Literatur, 3te Ausg. ii. 143, has given a sketch of his doctrine from some manuscripts, which are expected to be published in Pfeiffer's German Mystics.

⁴ Eckart in Tauler's Sermons, Basle, 1521, fol. 254, col. 3: There is somewhat of God in all creatures, but God dwells God-like in the soul when it is his abiding-place. Fol. 300, col. 4; there is a light in the soul which is uncreated and inexhaustible (fol. 296, col. 4; there is a power in the soul which neither time nor state effects; fol. 297, col. 2, a light of the spirit, a spark). In the treatise on the Wirkliche u. Mögliche Vernunft, by an unknown author of the 14th century, in which Master Eckart is often quoted, occurs the following passage (Docen's Miscellaneen zur Gesch. d. deutschen Literatur, i. 145): Nu wil Maister Eckart noch baz sprechen, und spricht, daz Ainz ist in der Seel, daz so hoch und so edel sei, also als Gott, sunder alle Namen. Nu spricht Maister Eckart,—daz die Seel in dem Theil sei ein Funken gottlicher Natur: darum nennet es Maister Eckart einen Funken mit Worten in der Seel.

God.⁵ As this doctrine was drawn from the same sources as that of the sect of the Free Spirit, so it was closely related to it,⁶ and was condemned for this reason.⁷ However, the immoral deductions which this sect appended are beyond doubt unjustly attributed to Eckart,⁸ neither was there any external connection be-

⁵ Eckart, fol. 277, col. 2: We should be united in God essentially, we should be united in God individually, we should be united in God entirely. How should we be united in God essentially? This must be done in contemplation, and not substantially. His substance can not become our substance, though it must be our life. (On the other hand, fol. 315, col. 1, we shall become the same essence and substance and nature that He is himself, without any difference.—And when his substance and essence and nature is mine, then I am the son of God). Fol. 248, col. 3: There is one only contemplation by which we can understand the perfect simplicity, that is God; this unites the soul more to God than it can be united by all those works which holy Christianity has ever worked externally. Fol. 309, col. 4: Just so far as man denies himself in God, and is united with God, so far is he more God than creature. When man is altogether set free from himself by God, and is no one's else but God's only, and lives not except by God alone, it is plain that he is in truth the same by grace that God is by nature, and God himself recognizes no difference between himself and this man. Fol. 263, col. 3: Wherefore is God become man? That I may be born in like manner of God. God died for this reason that I may die to all the world and all created things.—This the Son heard from the Father, this has he revealed to us, that we may be the same son. Fol. 260, col. 4: The Father begat the Son in His everlasting wisdom, and so, too, the Father begets the Son in the soul, as in His nature.—When the Father begets His Son in me, then am I the same son and not another. Fol. 254, col. 4: God himself must work in us, if it is a God-like work; man follows and does not withstand, he is passive and lets God work. Gervinus, ii. 146: However pure and faultless those works may be which are wrought in the light of the soul, those are still more faultless which remain within and in the spirit, and do not come forth. Then the soul approaches her state after death, when she will be infused into the Godhead, and lose her individuality (ihr Ich), being buried in the countenance of God, since she will be unknown to all creatures, but herself will know all creatures.

⁷ So early as 1324, Eckart, at that time a prior at Frankfort on the Maine, was brought to trial by command of the general of the Dominicans (Schmidt, Etudes, p. 14), afterward at Cologne in 1327, by the Archbishop of the place, from whom he appealed to the Pope (l. c. p. 16). The bull of condemnation by John XXII., which made its appearance in 1329, after Eckart's death, may be seen in Raynald. 1329, no. 70; d'Argentré, i. 312. Of the twenty-eight positions which it condemns, eight are to be found word for word, and fourteen in effect, in Eckart's Sermons (see the collection by Schmidt in the Studien u. Krit. 1839, iii. 673). Mosheim had in his possession some excerpta from a German book belonging to the sect of the Free Spirit “Von den 9 geistil. Felsen,” and publishes several of them in his Institt. Hist. Eccl. p. 551 ss.; nine of these again may be found, word for word, among the aphorisms condemned in the bull. See Schmidt in the work quoted above.

tween him and this sect: accordingly, his speculative mysticism constantly met with great approval in Southwestern Germany, particularly among the Dominicans, and he remained, in spite of the Papal condemnation, the great master of the Friends of God.⁹

geistl. Felsen." XIV. Bonus homo debet sic conformare voluntatem suam voluntati divinae, quod ipse velit quicquid Deus vult. Quia Deus vult aliquo modo me peccasse, nollem ego, quod ego peccata non commissem: et haec est vera poenitentia (der gottliche Mensch soll also seinen Willen einförmig machen mit Gates Willen, dass er alles das soll wellen, was Gat will. Will Gat in etlicker Wise, dass ick gesundet habe, also soll ick nit wellen, dass ick nit gesundet habe. Und das ist gewarig Ruwe d. i. quies, not poenitentia). XV. Si homo commisisset mille peccata mortalia, si talis homo esset recte dispositus, non deberet velle se ea non commisso. (Und wenn dass der Mensch tusend Todsunde gethan hette, und über das der Mensch wel besetzt oder geordnet were, er en solte nit wellen, dass er derselben Sunde nit gethan hette: aber er solte e wellen tusend Tode liden, e er yme nie de keine Todsunde wolte tun.) These propositions can not belong to Eckart. According to him every work of God is a necessity (fol. 268, col. 4: Von Not muss Gott würken alle seine Werk): He can not will this way or that, virtue is his necessary will (fol. 309, col. 2: Die Tugend ist Gott, oder on Mittel in Gott). Accordingly he thus expresses his own doctrine in opposition to that of the sect of the Free Spirit (fol. 263, col. 1): "Gott bezwinget den Willen nit, er setzt ihn in Freiheit, also dass er nicht anders will, denn das Gott selber ist, und das die Freiheit selber ist, und der Geist mag nicht anders wollen, dann das Gott will, und das ist nit sein Unfreiheit, es ist sein eigen Freiheit. Nun sprechen etliche Menschen: hab ich Gott und Gottes Liebe: so mag ich wol thun alles das ich will. Diss Wort verstand sie unrecht. Dieweil du kein (d. i. irgend ein) Ding vermagst das wider Gott ist und wider seine Gebott, so hastu Gottes Liebe nit, du magst die Welt wol betriegen, als habestu sie. Der Mensch, der da stat in Gottes Willen und in Gottes Liebe, dem ist lustlich, alle Ding zu thund, die Gott lieb seind, und alle Ding zu lassen, die wider Gott seind, und ist ihm als unmuglich kein Ding zu lassend, das Gott gewürkt will han, als kein Ding zu thun das wider Gott ist." Fol. 244, col. 4: "Der Gerecht der lebet in Gott, und Gott lebet in ihm, wann Gott wirt Geborn in dem Gerechten, und der Gerecht wird geborn in Gott. Wann von einer jeglichen Tugend des Gerechten, so wird Gott geborn, und Gott der wird erfreuwet von einer jeglichen Tugend des Gerechten, und er wird nit allein erfreuwet von einer jeglichen Tugend des Gerechten, sonder auch von einem jeglichen Werk, wie klein das sey, das do vallet von der Tugend, das da gewurkt wird in der Gerechtigkeit, von dem so wird Gott erfreuwet, ja durchfreuwet,—ja durchkützelt von Freuden. Und diss müssen grob Leut glauben, und aber erleuchten Menschen ist es zu wissen." The fact that the immoral principles of the sect of the Free Spirit were laid to Eckart's charge in that bull, may be probably accounted for in the following manner. This sect availed itself of the remarkable coincidence of their speculative theology with that of the famous preacher Eckart, to represent in the work, Von den 9 geistl. Felsen, their doctrines as the doctrines of Eckart; this they did by borrowing, word for word, from his sermons such positions as agreed with their doctrines, and adding their own deductions. From this work, which was spread abroad as a representation of Eckart's doctrine, the Archbishop of Cologne drew the statements which he sent to the Pope, and which were accordingly condemned by him as Eckart's principles. It seems that the Dominicans afterward represented to the Pope the true state of the case: for, in 1330, there appeared the bull, In agro dominico (in Coerner Chron. in Eccardi Corp. Scriptt. Medii Aevi, ii. 1036), in which the same positions, word for word, were condemned as positions of the Beghards, without any mention being made of Eckart,—this was in fact a kind of retracting of the first bull.

⁹ Tauler speaks of him as a teacher of the Church (2d Sermon on the xiith Sunday after Trinity, fol. 104, col. 2: Bisch. Albrecht, und Meister Deiterich, und Meister Eck-

On the other hand, from the year 1330, a Friend of God, Nicolas of Basle,¹⁰ devoted himself to a practical mysticism. By ascetic exercises he believed that he had attained to a complete renunciation of the world and of his own will, and to an intimate intercourse with God, to visions also and revelations; and he was now constantly employed in leading others, who would submit themselves to his guidance,¹¹ to the same communion with God.¹² hart, die heissen es einen Funken der Seele). Suso, who had been his pupil at Cologne, says, in his Life, cap. 23, edition of Diepenbrock, s. 71: "da kam er (Suso) zu dem heil. Meister Eckhart, u. klagte ihm sein Leiden. Der half ihm davon." Afterward many of the dead appeared to him (Kap. 8. s. 20): "Unter andern erschien ihm auch der selige Meister Eckhart."—It is plain that these men could not have allowed that there was any connection between Eckart and the sect of the Free Spirit.

¹¹ Submission to the spiritual guidance of experienced persons, whether ecclesiastic or lay, was strongly recommended by the Friends of God. Thus Tauler and Rulman Merswin submitted themselves to the layman Nicolas, just as much as did the four men with whom he lived in common. So Tauler advises (1 Pred. auf Maria Geburt, fol. 146, col. 3): "Darumb wär es gar sicher, dass die Menschen, die der Wahrheit gern lebten, hatten einen Gottesfreund, dem sie sich underwurfen, und dass er sie richtet nach Gottes Geist.—Die Menschen sollten einen Gottesfreund über zwenzig Meil suchen, der den rechten Weg bekannte, und sie richtet: und wär es nit ein sunderlich Mensche, so wär ein gemein Beichtiger gut." And Nicolas himself, in his exhortation to repentance (Schmidt's Joh. Tauler, s. 231), with a view to bring back christendom to a Christian state, recommended "daz man Rath suchte, der usscr dem heiligen Geiste käme, sollicher Rath war durch Pfaffen oder durch Laygen.—Aber solliche Menschen, die usser dem heiligen Geiste Rath geben möchten, die sint gar kume zu vindende: aber wie lüzel ihr ist, so vindet man ihr noch in der Zit."—Nicolas and the Friends of God, who were first brought into notice by Schmidt, were commonly, even by him, placed in some kind of connection with the Waldenses; for instance, the obedience which many Friends of God rendered to Nicolas was explained as implying that he belonged to the class of the Perfecti, the teachers and priests of the Waldenses. However, this relationship can not be shown to have existed among the Waldenses: on the contrary, the obedience rendered to Nicolas was no other than that which Tauler publicly enjoined upon his hearers, and so can not possibly be explained as an heretical institution. Besides, Nicolas can not have been a Waldensian preacher; for, 1, he remained continually in possession of his own property (Historia Tauleri, s. 8); compare Yvonetus, vol. 2, § 90, note 29: 2, he worshiped Mary and the saints; see his Exhortation to Repentance, in Schmidt, s. 221: 3, he believed in purgatory (Historia Tauleri, toward the end): 4, those ecstasies and visions, which the five men believed that they had, were as unknown to the Waldenses as was their reveling in internal suffering and their self-tortures. The cenobitism of the five men was like that which afterward appeared among the Brethren of the Common Life, who also were bound to obedience to the president of their house.

Under such influences grew up the most distinguished preacher of this mysticism, John Tauler, the Dominican, at Strasburg († 1361).¹³ He had adopted Eckart's speculative mysticism, when, under the guidance of Nicolas of Basle, A.D. 1340, he attained inward regeneration through ascetic exercises, and henceforth, without giving up these speculations, but chiefly by vivid energetic preaching, he taught men to renounce earthly objects and sins, to follow in poverty the life of Christ, and thereby to attain to communion with God.¹⁴

s. 231: "Aber etteliche Lehrer sprechent, tüsche Bücher sind schadeber der Christenheit.—Aber solliche Büchelin, also dis Büchelin ist, und och ander tüsche Bücher, die och in dirre Mose sind und och nut wider die heilige Geschrift sind, solliche tüsche Bücher sind einvaltigen Leygen gar nützze und gar gut; und ihr sollent sie üch nützen die grosen Lehrer abesprechen, dieselben Lehrer, die do vol der Geschrift sind und Lehre Gottes, wenne sie suchent sich selber in Ehre dirre Welte me denne Gott." That Nicolas kept all his operations very secret, and that Tauler, too, gave his special instructions only under the seal of confession (Historia, s. 5), is to be explained, partly from humility, since they wished to avoid all publicity about their experiences and revelations, partly also from fear of the clergy, if Nicolas, being a layman, should assume an ecclesiastical function.

¹⁴ On Tauler's mysticism, see de Wette christ. Sittenlehre, ii. ii. 220. Schmidt's Joh. Tauler, s. 90. The children of this world used to say of such earnest and convincing sermons (fol. 77, col. 1): "Es ist eins Begharts Red und Nunnentand. Lug, diess seind die neuen Geist." Tauler often clearly marked the boundary line between his doctrine and that of the sect of the Free Spirit, for which it might easily have been mistaken. Sermon iii. on Corpus Christi, fol. 67, col. 2: "Viel minder ist das zu begreifen, wie der Geist verwird in göttlicher Einigkeit, und da er sich also verleurt, daz kein Vernunft darzu kann kummen. Diss nehmen die unverständigen Menschen fleischlich, und sprechen, sie sollten verwandelt werden in göttlich Natur, und das ist zumal falsch und böss Ketzerei. Wann von der allerhöchsten nächsten innigsten Einung mit Gott so ist doch göttlich Natur und sein Wesen hoch, und hoher über alle Höch, das gat in ein göttlichen Abgrund, dass da nimmer kein Creatur würd." This same mystical tendency, which sometimes inclined to the speculative, sometimes to the practical side, is found in the Dominican, Nicolas of Strasburg,¹⁵ who was rather mystically ascetic than speculative; in Rulman Merswin, a layman in Strasburg,¹⁶ educated as a Friend of God, like Tauler, under the secret instruction of Nicolas of Basle († 1382); in the secular priest, Henry of Nordlingen;¹⁷ in the Dominican, Henry Suso of Ulm,¹⁸ who with

Und so sie nit anders mügen, so bringen sie den Menschen in geistliche Hoffart, dass dieselben Menschen selber Gott seind in dieser hohen edeln Anschawung Gottes, darin diese Menschen gezogen werden in ihren Zugangen Gottes. Welcher Mensch diess also bedacht, und daruff warlich stünd, und dasselb also warlich von ihm selber hielt, das war ein sorglich Ding, und zu forchten ewiger Verdammniss: würd der Mensch anders hierin funden, daz er sich selber nit erkennt gegen Gott mit grosser Reuw und Leid, die der Mensch darumb haben soll, will er anders wieder kommen.” Sermon I. on John the Baptist, fol. 138, col. 1: “Nun kommen die Vernünftigen mit ihrem natürlichen Liecht, in ihren blossen ledigen unverbildeten Grund, und besitzen da ihr natürlich Liecht mit Eigenschaft (Eigenthum), gleich als ob es Gott sey, und es ist nichts dann ihr blosse Natur.—Sie seynd nit durch den Weg der Tugend gegangen, und durch Uebung, die zu heiligem Leben gehören, und zu Tödtung der Untugend, des achten sie nit, wann sie lieben ihr falsche Ledikeit (Freiheit), die nit gesucht ist mit wirklicher Lieb, von innen und von aussen, und sie haben den Bilden (Vorbildern) Urlaub geben ee der Zeit. Denn kommt der Teufel und bringt sie in falsche Süssigkeit und falsch Liecht, und damit verleitet er sie, dass sie ewiglich verloren werden. Und wozu er sie geneigt sind in ihr Natur, es sei Unkeuschheit, oder Geizigkeit, oder Hoffart, darin zeucht er sie, und von des inwendigen Entpfindes (Empfindung), und in den Leichtern, die ihn der Teufel hat furgehalten, sprechen sie, dass es warlich Gott sei, und lassen ihn das nit nehmen, von dem so sie das mit Eigenschaft besitzen. Hievon so fallen sie in unrecht Freiheit zu volgen, wozu sich die Natur neigt, diese soll man mehr fliehen dann den Feind, wann sie seynd von ihren Weisen auswendig als ferr, dass sie nit gut seind zu erkennen.” He often designates these men as “die frigen Geiste.” Comp. The translation of them into high German, which was made as early as the 14th century, and of which there are MSS. at Munich and Strasburg (see specimens in Engelhardt, s. 279, 347), is not quite faithful. More exact are the manuscripts in the dialect of the Lower Rhine, from which A. v. Surium, there is prefixed a Vita Rusbrochii, composed by a canon living soon after his time, the language of which, however, was altered by Surius. His life is full of asceticism and heavenly transports. For his mystical doctrine, nearly related to that of Eckart, he believed that he was indebted only to divine inspiration, and said to Gerard Groot, who visited him (Lib. de Origine Monast. Viridis Vallis, in the Archief voor kerkel. Geschiedenis door Kist en Royaards, viii. 362), Magister Gerarde, sciatis veraciter quod nunquam verba in libris meis posui, nisi ex instinctu Spiritus sancti, or as another states, Nunquam in libris meis aliquid posui, nisi in praesentia S. head-quarters were certain Dominican monasteries and nunneries.²¹ At a time when all such unusual asceticism was regarded with general mistrust, the Friends of God gave especial offense by the spiritual influence which laymen enjoyed among them, and exercised even over priests, as well as by the revelations for which many of them were famous: they were, in consequence, not unfrequently suspected as Beghards. Nicolas of Basle was burned to death at Vienne, near Poitiers (after 1382),²² and one of his disciples, Martin of Mayence, a Benedictine of Reichenau, at Cologne, in 1393.²³ At the same time nominalism, which was increasing more and more, supplanted this realistic mysticism. Thus John Gerson attacked Ruysbroek's pantheistic tendency,²⁴ and, in contrast with it, advocated a mysticism which again made a close union with the prevailing scholasticism, to impart warmth to it while it received from it light.²⁵ But at the end of the four-

Acutissimus enim erat, et verbis errores coloratissime velare novit. Idcirco etiam manus inquisitorum dudum evaserat et multo tempore. Discipulos igitur quosdam in suam sectam collegit. Fuit enim professione et habitu de damnatis Beghardis unus, qui visiones et revelationes in praedicto damnato habitu multas habuit, quas infallibilis esse creditit. Se scire affirmabat audacter, quod Christus in eo esset actu, et ipse in Christo, et plura alia, quae omnia, captus tandem Viennae in Pictaviensi diocesi, inquisitus fatebatur publice. Sed cum Jacobum et Joannem, suspectos in fide et sibi consicos suos speciales discipulos, ad jussum Ecclesiae eum inquirenti nollet dimittere nisi per ignem, et repertus in multis a vera fide devius et impersuasibilis, saecularium protestati juste traditus est, qui eum incinerarunt.*

²³ The sentence against him in Schmidt's Joh. Tauler, s. 237. The doctrines which he is said to have preached publicly in Cologne, and for which he was condemned were: 1. quod judicialiter convicti et per Ecclesiam condemnati ac imponitentes haeretici, aliquando in Heidelberga concremati, fuerunt et sunt amici Dei: 2. quod solemne perjurium ad evadendum inquisitoris judicium in judicio factum non sit peccatum: 3. quod credere, peccata mortalia post confessionem ad memoriam redeuntia fore ex debito confitenda, sit haereticum: 4. quod Christus non ita poenaliter in cruce, in qua moriebatur, sustinuit, sicut in horto, ubi voluntatem suam patri submisit: 5. quod quidam laicus, nomine Nicolaus de Basilea, cui te funditus submisisti, clarus et perfectius evangelium quam aliqui Apostoli et b. Paulus hoc intellexerit: 6. quod per eundem Nicolaum Praelatis Ecclesiae virtus ministrandi sacramenta et exercendi quaecunque bona opera affluit: 7. quod si nullus in caritate in hoc mundo esset, tunc nullus Presbyter sacramenta confidere posset—(this is the logical result of such assertions, as that of Tauler with regard to the Friends of God, fol. 139, col. 1: "Diese seind, auf den die heilige christliche Kirch steht, und wären diese nit in der Christenheit, die Christenheit möcht nit bestehn:"); 8. quod praedicto Nicolao ex perfectione submissionis sibi factae potes contra praecpta cujuscunque Praelati, etiam Papae, licite et sine peccato obedi: 9. quod ex jussione ejusdem Nicolai nullo modo etiam interficiendo hominem vel cognoscendo mulierem posses peccare: 10. quod per talem dimissionem Nicolao perfecte sine formis

"Stunde das Himmelrich vor dir offen, du solltest nit darein gehn, du solltest zu dem ersten wahrnehmen, ob es Gott also von dir haben wölt") : 16. quod in Evangelii et in oratione dominica non debet stare sic : et ne nos inducas in temptationem, quia negatio non ex Christi doctrina, sed ex alia quacunque negligentia.

²⁴ Jo. Gerson, Epist. ad Fr. Bartholom. Carthusiensem, super Tertia Parte Libri Jo. Ruysbroech, de Ornato Spiritualium Nuptiarum, written in 1406 (Opp. ed. du Pin, i. 59). Gerson had received through Bartholomew a Latin translation of the work on the Ornaments of the Spiritual Bridal : he gives his opinion of it in general, comperi multa ibidem tradi salubria et alta documenta ; but he objects to certain passages of the third book (c. 1–4 in Arnswaldt's edition, s. 138 ff.), because it was there taught, quod anima perfecte contemplans Deum non solum videt eum per claritatem, quae est divina essentia, sed est ipsamet claritas divina.—Imaginatur enim,—quod anima tunc desinit esse in illa existentia quam prius habuit in proprio genere, et convertitur seu transformatur et absorbetur in esse divinum, etc. Gerson allows that Ruysbroek meant otherwise, but maintains that his words could be understood in no other sense. (From the whole connection of the work, it is plain that he can not have called him a Beghard, and the words on page 62 : Erat autem de secta Begardorum, which have been thus understood, must be read : Erant autem de s. B, those, that is, quorum aliquos ipse auctor juste reprehendit.) Against Gerson, Joh. de Schoenhavia, canon of Grünthal, wrote an apology for Ruysbroek (ibid. p. 63), in which he endeavors to explain his representation of the union with God. He is not speaking of the—unio per identitatem realis existentiae, and not merely of the—unio solum per consensum et conformitatem voluntatis, but of the—unio per amorem liquefactivum, et excessum contemplationis ecstatae, quae prae nimia suavitate et magnitudine interni dulcoris et vehementia amoris animam liquefacit et resolvit, et totam virtutem rationis absorbet. In his answer (l. c. p. 78), Gerson persists in maintaining that Ruysbroek's expressions were objectionable, and that John of Schön-hofen, who tried to defend them, laid himself open to censure. Cf. Gerson, De Mystica Theologia Speculativa, c. 41: De Erroribus circa Transformationem Animae in Deum (Opp. iii. 394). Engelhardt's Rich. v. St. Victor u. Joh. Ruysbroek, s. 265.

HISTORY OF THE OTHER THEOLOGICAL SCIENCES.

Casuistry continued to be zealously studied: to the old textbook, the Summa Raymundiana (vol. 2, § 76, note 7), were now added those of the Minorite, Astesanus († 1330, Summa Astesana),¹ and of the Dominican, Bartholomew de St. Concordia in Pisa

Hoc ideo dicitur, primum, quia quis novit, si tandem ipsis ex familiari tali collocutione aggernerabitur, ut solet, quidam amor et ardor experiendi ea, quae sola interim fide tenent, et quae docta ratiocinatione conferunt ad invicem.—Rursus alias fructus est pro illis, quos praedicatio sumpta ab hujusmodi doctrina poterit accedere ad amorem Dei jam preeconceptum, remanente etiam frigido pectore ejus, qui loquitur.—Denique compertum est, multos habere devotionem, sed non secundum scientiam, quales procul dubio pronissimi sunt ad errores, etiam supra inde votos, si non regulaverint affectus suos ad normam legis Christi, si praeterea capitи proprio, propriae scilicet prudentiae, inhaeserint, spredo aliorum consilio. Hoc in Begardis et Turelupinis manifestum fecit experientia.—Propterea necesse est pro argutione, aut direccione talium esse viros studiosos in libris eorum, qui devotionem habuerunt secundum scientiam. Eos nihilominus commonitos velim, ne ciuitate debito damnare praesumant personas votas, simplices in suis affectibus admirandis, ubi nihil adversum vel fidei vel bonis moribus palam inveniunt; sed aut venerentur incognita sub silentio, suspensam tenentes sententiam, aut consilio peritiorum examinanda remittant. Periores autem sunt, quos utraque instructio reddit ornatos, una intellectus, et affectus altera, quales fuerunt Augustinus, Hugo, S. († 1347, Summa Bartholina, Pisanella or Magistruccia).² On the other hand, moral philosophy was studied only so far as it was discussed in the works on casuistry, mixed up with canon law and directions for pastoral prudence. For the development of the universal principles of morals little was done.³ Moral philosophy was injured not only by being thus commingled with heterogeneous matters in the treatises on casuistry, but also by the bent of the schoolmen to display their subtlety in the development of reasons and counter-reasons, and to show the grounds of probability for hazardous opinions. The sad condition of moral philosophy was particularly manifested in the controversies which followed the murder of the Duke of Orleans, instigated by the Duke of Burgundy (23d November, 1407).⁴ In order to justify the murder, the Franciscan, Johannes Parvus (Jean Petit, Doctor Theol. in Paris, † 1411), defended the murder of tyrants.⁵ After that the house of Orleans had recovered the ascendancy, the Bishop of Paris did,

Apostolorum, to wit, with three authorities in theology, St. Thomas, John of Salisbury, and some others, with three in philosophy, Aristotle, Cicero, and Boccacio, with three proofs from civil laws, and three examples from Holy Writ. IV. In casu supradicto honorabilius est, magis licitum et meritorium, quod ipse infidelis tyrannus occidatur per unum consanguineum et subditum Regis, quam per extraneum, qui non esset de sanguine Regis; et per Duceum, quam per Comitem, etc. VII. In casu supradicto unicuique licitum est, honestum et meritorium occidere et facere occidi supradictum tyrannum per insidias, cautelas et exploraciones, et etiam licitum est dissimulare et tacere suam voluntatem. Then he accuses the Duke of Orleans of having bewitched the king, and of administering poison to him, of carrying out a traitorous and arbitrary policy, and at last concludes, quod dictus dominus Burgundiae in nullo debet culpari, vel redargui de casu qui accidit in persona dicti criminosi defuncti Ducis Aurelianensis, et quod dominus Rex non solum debet contentari, sed etiam debet habere praeformatum Dominum Burgundiae acceptum, et suum factum autorisare, quando opus est.

indeed, condemn that work (1414);⁶ but when the Duke of Burgundy brought the matter before the council of Constance, it was shown that the hierarchy watched over the region of morality with far less care than over that of doctrine. True, it condemned the doctrine that allowed the murder of tyrants, but not the work of Johannes Parvus;⁸ and afterward declared the Inter quas haec assertio delata est: Quilibet tyrannus potest et debet licite et meritorie occidi per quemcunque vasallum suum vel subditum, etiam per insidias et blanditias vel adulaciones, non obstante quocunque juramento seu confoederatione facta cum eo, non expectata sententia vel mandato iudicis cuiuscunque.* Adversus hunc errorem satagens haec sancta synodus insurgere,—declarat, decernit et definit, hujusmodi doctrinam erroneam esse in fide et moribus, ipsamque tanquam haereticam, scandalosam, seditionis, et ad fraudes, deceptions, mendacia, proditiones, perjuria vias dantem reprobat et condemnat. Declarat insuper,—quod pertinaciter doctrinam hanc pernitiosissimam asserentes sunt haeretici, etc. But even this decree was wrung from them by the Emperor Sigismund; see Jo. Gersonii Dialog. Apologeticus (Opp. ii. 387), especially the letter of a companion of the Bishop of Arras to a friend in Paris on the proceeding, in Bulai Hist. Univ. Paris. v. 293: Videns ipse Rex, quod non potuit obtinere conclusionem condemnationis dictarum IX. assertiorum, ut volebat, licet sollicitaverit Judices quantum potuit per ejus praesentiam in iudicio saepissime et per nuncios et literas, dixit, quod nunquam iret ad locum conventionis, videlicet Niciam, donec esset finis dicti processus. Et quod plus est, ipse exivit civitatem Constantiae per VIII. dies, et juravit publice, ut dicebatur communiter, quod non rediret nisi prius expedito dicto processu. Quare oportuit pro satisfaciendo sibi, quod quaedam alia propositio vocata Quilibet tyrannus—condemnata fuerit ad satisfaciendum dicto Regi, qui putabat, quod dicta propositio esset una de contentis

Post recessum dicti Regis Ambaxiatores (Ducis Burgundiae) sunt securiores quam antea, et liberius tractaverunt materiam et processum cum bono consilio.—Speramus hic omnes habere bonum exitum et honorabilem in materia, quia totum Concilium vellet processum terminari ad bonam pacem et concordiam Ducis.—Et si non habeatur finis per concordiam, non ita cito habebitur per processum, quia adhuc sumus in principio; ut potestis considerare: quia restat adhuc probare intentionem circa libellum exhibitum, et examinare dictas propositiones hinc inde, quae non fient ita cito et sine magno discursu.

¹¹ Jo. Dlugoss (canon at Cracow, about 1465), Hist. Polonica ed. Francof. 1711, fol. lib. xi. p. 376: The Archbishop of Gnesna brought this work with him from Paris, in January, 1417, to Constance, and before the council immediately accused the author, Jo. Falkenberg, who was present in person, a Cruciferis de Prussia pretio conductum. Synodus sacra—praedictum libellum, ut falsum et erroneous, Joannem vero Falkemberg ejus auctorem, ut haereticum, per definitivam sententiam damnavit, et perpetuis deputavit carceribus. Et in condemnationis praefatae signum singuli Cardinales singillatim et omnes nationes sententiam praedictam manibus propriis subscripterunt. So the book was condemned, as is plain from the appeal of the Polish delegates, which was entered in the last session (v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const. IV., 1555), per judices in causa fidei a.s. Concilio deputatas, and it was—conclusum et ordinatum—by all the nations and the college of Cardinals, quod idem libellus, tanquam haereses et alia multa et quasi infinita mala et errores continens, in sessione publica per sacrosanctum concilium—publice damnaretur, seu publice damnatus nunciaretur. But even this solemn condemnation could not be maintained by Martin V., who was elected in November, 1417. Dlugossus, p. 386: Martinus P. V. prece incertum est an importunitate Cruciferorum de Prussia circumventus, sententiam damnationis Jo. Falkemberg—infirmare et moderari contendit,—quamvis, existens Cardinalis, se ei manu propria subscripterit. Of the contents of Falkenberg's book only a part is preserved, in the sentence of condemnation, drawn up by the Council's Commission on the Faith, and in its name 4th June, 1417 (in Dlugossus, p. 387). It had for its title: Satyra contra haereses et caetera nefanda Polonorum et eorum Regis Jagyel fideleri conscripta, and was dedicated—universis Regibus et Principibus: caeterisque Praelatis sive Ecclesiasticis sive saecularibus, et generaliter omnibus, qui Christiani nominis meruerunt insigniri titulo. Positions extracted: quod Rex Polonorum, cum sit malus praesidens, est idolum, et omnes Poloni sunt idololatrae, et serviunt idolo suo Jagyel. Item dicit, quod Poloni, et eorum Rex sunt odibiles, haeretici, et impudici canes, reversi ad vomitum suae infidelitatis. Et ergo securissime omnes, non solum Principes saeculi, verum etiam inferiores, qui ad Polonorum et eorum Regis exterminationem se accinxerint ex caritate, vitam merentur aeternam. Item dicit, quod indubie Polonus et eorum Regem propter periculum, quod ab eis timetur Ecclesiae futurum, etiam antequam dissidium faciant, caeteris paribus, magis meritiorum est occidere quam paganos. Item dicit, quod omni submoto dubio, belli certamine, quo pro defensione Christianorum suscepto Principes saeculi Polonus et eorum Regem occidunt, regna merentur caelestia.—Item dicit, quod ex Principibus saeculi, qui sunt idonei et ratione et potestate Polonus et eorum Regem Jagyel reprimere, et permittunt eum in Christianos debacchari, supplicia merentur gehennae, etc.

but the Pope, incumbered by regard for the interests of the German Order, and the powerful Duke of Burgundy, would neither have this book solemnly condemned nor decide upon the work of Johannes Parvus. So the mendicants ventured still to maintain the probability of those seditious maxims.¹²

The theologians of this period studied the Holy Scriptures even less than did those of the previous centuries. The institution of professors of the Oriental languages, ordered by Clement V. in 1311,¹³ was only meant for the education of missionaries, and had no effect in advancing the interpretation of Scripture. The biblical commentaries of this period are, for the most part, like those of the foregoing centuries, without any scientific value. veneratione persequi aliquid, quod in Biblia legatur: idcirco id distinximus, et distincte numeravimus, primo libros canonicos, et postea non canonicos, inter quos tantum distat, quantum inter certum et dubium. Nam canonici sunt confecti spiritu sancto dictante: non canonici autem sive apocryphi nescitur, quo tempore quibusve auctoris sint editi, etc. He then enumerates the canonical and apocryphal books of the Old Testament, according to Jerome, and determines their relation to each other according to him and Rufinus. Prologus i. de commendatione sacrae Scripturae in generali, e. g. on the manifold sense: Habet tamen iste liber hoc speciale, quod una litera continet plures sensus. Cujus ratio est, quia principalis hujus libri auctor est ipse Deus, in cuius potestate est non solum uti vocibus ad aliquid significandum,—sed etiam rebus significatis per voces utitur ad significandum alias res. The fourfold sense is described in the lines:

Prologus ii. de intentione auctoris et modo procedendi: Omnes expositiones mysticae prae-supponunt sensum literalem tanquam fundamentum: propter quod sicut aedificium declinans a fundamento disponitur ad ruinam, sic expositio mystica discrepans a sensu literali reputanda est indecens et inepta, vel saltem minus decens caeteris paribus, et minus apta. Et ideo volentibus proficere in studio sacrae Scripturae necessarium est incipere ab intellectu sensus literalis: maxime cum ex solo sensu literali et non ex mysticis possit argumentum fieri ad probationem vel declarationem alicujus dubii, secundum quod dicit Augustinus in Epist. contra Vincent. Donatistam. Ulterius considerandum, quod sensus literalis—videtur multum obfuscatus diebus modernis, partim scriptorum vitio, qui propter similitudinem literarum in multis locis aliter scripserunt, quam habeat veritas textus, partim imperitia aliquorum correctorum, qui in pluribus locis fecerunt puncta ubi non debent fieri, et versus incepérunt vel terminaverunt ubi non debent incipi et terminari, et per hoc sententia literae variatur,—partim ex modo translationis nostrae, quae in multis locis aliter habet quam libri hebraici: et tamen secundum Hieronymum—pro veritate literae habenda in scriptura veteris testamenti recurrentum est ad codices Hebraeorum.—Sciendum etiam, quod sensus literalis est multum obumbratus propter modum exponendi communiter traditum ab aliis, qui licet multa bona dixerint, tamen parum tetigerunt literalem sensum, et sensus mysticos in tantum multiplicaverunt, quod sensus literalis inter tot expositiones mysticas interceptus, partim suffocatur. Item textum in tot particulas divisorunt, et tot concordantias ad suum propositum induxerunt, quod intellectum et memoriam in parte confundunt, ab intellectu literalis sensus animum distrahentes. Haec igitur et similia vitare proponens cum Dei adjutorio intendo circa literalem sensum insistere, et paucas valde et breves expositiones mysticas aliquando interponere, licet raro. Similiter intendo non solum dicta doctorum catholicorum, sed etiam hebraicorum, maxime Rabbi Salomonis (Jarchi or Raschi, see vol. 2, § 76, note 9), qui inter doctores hebraeos locutus est rationabilius, ad declarationem sensus literalis inducere.—Postremo quia non sum ita peritus in lingua hebraica vel latina, quin in multis possim deficere; ideo protestor, quod nihil intendo dicere assertive seu determinative, nisi quantum ad ea, quae manifeste determinata sunt per sacram Scripturam vel Ecclesiae auctoritatem; caetera vero omnia accipientur tanquam scholastice et per modum exercitii dicta: propter quod omnia dicta et dicenda suppono correctioni sanctae matris Ecclesiae, ac cujuslibet sapientis, pium lectorum et caritativum flagitans correctorem.

FIFTH CHAPTER.

HISTORY OF RELIGION AMONG THE PEOPLE.

Two new festivals were dedicated to the highly-honored Mary, the festival of the Presentation of Mary, festum Praesentationis, on 21st of November, by Gregory XI. in 1372,¹ and the festival of the Visitation of Mary, festum Visitacionis, on the 2d of July, by Urban VI. in 1389.² The Dominicans, indeed, earnestly impugned the doctrine of the immaculate conception of Mary. To the revelations which St. Brigitta had received in favor of this doctrine,³ they opposed those of St. Catharine of Siena, a sister of their own order, against it.⁴ Nevertheless, this doctrine continued to spread, together with the feast of the Conception.⁵ The Fran-

⁴ Concerning her, see above, § 104, note 6. In the Orationes xxii. ab ipsa in raptu et extasi ad Deum prolatae, et a sibi assistentibus familiaribus exceptae latinitatique donatae, is the following passage, Orat. xvi. (the passage is wanting in the edition of her works, Colon. 1553, but is quoted as early as Antoninus, in his Summa, p. 1, t. 8, c. 2): Datum est nobis Verbum aeternum per manum Mariae, et de substantia Mariae induit naturam absque peccati originalis macula, et hoc, quia non hominis, sed Spiritus sancti inspiratione facta est illa conceptio. Quod quidem non fuit sic in Maria, quia non processit ex massa Adae operatione Spiritus sancti, sed homini: et quia tota illa massa erat putrida, non poterat nisi in putridam naturam anima illa infundi, nec poterat purgari, nisi per gratiam Spiritus sancti, cuius quidem gratiae non est subiectum susceptibile corpus, sed spiritus rationalis aut intellectualis, et ideo non poterat Maria a macula illa purgari, nisi postquam anima infusa est corpori; quod quidem sic factum est propter reverentiam thesauri divini, qui in illo vase debebat reponi. Nam sicut fornax consumit guttam aquae in modico tempore, sic facit Spiritus sanctus de macula peccati originalis: nam post conceptionem ejus statim fuit ab illo peccato mundata, et gratia magna data. Tu scis, domine, quia ista est veritas. Compare, on these prophecies of both saints, Wadding, Legatio Philippi III. et IV. ad Paulum P. V. et Gregorium XV., de Definienda Controv. Immaculatae Concept. B. Virg. Mariae, Lovan. 1624, fol. p. 342 ss.

ciscans, who were at first divided in their opinion upon this question,⁶ were more and more led to decide in favor of it by the violence with which the Dominicans assailed the immaculate conception of Mary, and Duns Scotus, its first champion. The Dominicans, also, when they began in Paris, from the year 1384, to impugn this doctrine more vehemently,⁷ roused the people as well as the university against themselves. In the year 1387, together with several other maxims of the Dominican, John of Montesono, the university condemned also the decisive rejection of this doctrine.⁸ Montesono, indeed, appealed to the Pope;⁹ but the university introduced it into his diocese (Schaten Annales Paderborn. I. xiii. p. 303). The Gallic Nation in the university of Paris, 1380, determined, quod amodo celebraretur festum conceptionis gloriose V. M. eodem modo, quo et alia festa solent celebrari (Bulaeus, Hist. Univ. Paris. iv. 964). [Cf. C. Passaglia, De Immaculato Deiparae semper Virginis Conceptu Comment. tom. i-iii. Rem. 1855. Sylloge Monumentorum, ed. Ant. Ballerini, Rom. 1855. Arnold's Theol. Critic, 1851. Christian Remembrancer, April, 1852.]

⁸ On the whole controversy, see Chronic. Caroli VI. lib. viii. c. 8, and lib. ix. c. 16 (Chronique du Religieux de S. Denys, publiée par L. Bellaguet, Paris, 1839, 4. i. 490, 576). Bulaeus, iv. 618, especially d'Argentré Collectio Judiciorum, I. ii. 61. The offensive propositions, together with the censures of the theological faculty, may be seen in d'Argentré, p. 62: Propositio X.: Non omnes praeter Christum contraxisse ab Adam peccatum originale est expresse contra fidem. The Censure: Revocanda est tanquam falsa, scandalosa et piarum aurium offensiva, et praesumptuose asserta, non obstante probabilitate quaestionis, utrum b. Virgo fuerit in peccato originali concepta. Prop. XI.: B. Virginem Mariam et Dei genitricem non contraxisse peccatum originale, est expresse contra fidem. Prop. XII.: Tantum est contra sacram Scripturam, unum hominem esse exemptum a peccato originali praeter Christum, sicut si decem homines de facto penerentur exempti. Prop. XIII. Magis est expresse contra sacram Scripturam, b. Virginem non esse conceptam in peccato originali, quam asserere ipsam fuisse simul beatam et viaticem ab instanti suae conceptionis vel sanctificationis. These positions were all censured as Revocandae tanquam falsae, scandalosae, praesumptuose assertae, et piarum aurium offensivae.

⁹ He complained, as is plain from the work published against him by Petrus d'Alliaco (d'Argentré I. ii. 82, 1), quia aliquae conclusionum stuarum trahuntur ex doctrina S. Thomae; 2) quod dominus Episcopus (Parisiensis), apponens falcam in messem summi Pontificis, dictas conclusiones pronunciavit et decrevit falsas, haereticas et erroneas: et causam subdit ibidem, quia ista, quae tangunt fidem, sunt de majoribus Ecclesiae causis, et quae ad solum summum Pontificem pro examinatione et decisione deferri debent. The university sent four delegates to the Pope, among whom Petrus d'Alliaco was the most eminent: See his Sermones et Propositiones in Consistorio, l. c. p. 66. With reference to the first charge of the Dominicans, the university had already declared in a letter ad universos Christifideles, dd. 14th February, 1388 (l. c. p. 65), quatenus S. Thomae

versity prevailed at Avignon (January, 1389), forced several Dominicans to recant offensive expressions against this doctrine,¹⁰ and required of all who took academical degrees assent to the decision it had pronounced in this matter.¹¹ Although this decision was, in the first place, only directed against the peremptory rejection of the doctrine, still it soon assumed the character of a positive declaration in favor of it.¹² The influence of the university of Paris gave the doctrine decided ascendancy in the Church.

This period was full as rich as the previous one in new saints,¹³ relics,¹⁴ and other sacred things,¹⁵ as well as in miracles,¹⁶ and doctrinam in dicta nostra condemnatione nequaquam reprobamus. The condemnation only referred to the words est expresse contra fidem (l. c. p. 107) : licet (S. Thomas) dicat, quod fuit concepta in originali, tamen nec ibi, nec alibi dicit, quod oppositum dicere sit expresse—contra fidem.—Licitum est in hac materia probabilitate loqui, et istam partem tenere, vel etiam circa utrumque dubitare ut supponitur : sed non licet sic probabilitate loqui vel dubitare de aliquo, quod est expresse contra fidem, etc. With reference to the second charge, d'Alliaco defended the position (l. c. p. 76) : Ad s. sedem apostolicam pertinet auctoritate judiciali suprema circa ea quae sunt fidei judicialiter definire. Ad Episcopos catholicos pertinet auctoritate inferiori et subordinata circa ea quae sunt fidei judicialiter definire. Ad Doctores theologos pertinet determinatione doctrinali et scholastica circa ea quae sunt fidei doctrinaliter definire.

The pious brotherhoods, especially the Marian fraternities, increased in great numbers,²¹ and notwithstanding all that was mechanical in their religion, promoted brotherly love and respect. Cf. Nicolaus de Clamengis, De Novis Celebritatibus non Instituendis in Opp. ed. Lydii, p. 143 ss. SIXTH CHAPTER.

HISTORY OF CHURCH DISCIPLINE.

ECCLESIASTICAL REWARDS AND PUNISHMENTS.

The theory of indulgences, brought to perfection by Thomas Aquinas, was not, indeed, at once universally adopted by the theologians of this period;¹ but it might be held as the general opinion of the Church, from the time that Clement VI., first of all the Popes, proclaimed it in his Jubilee bull.² The opportunities for gaining indulgences were continually on the increase. The minor indulgences might be obtained every day;³ there was the preach-

¹ The passages from those who acceded to the doctrine are collected in Eus. Amort, De Origine, Progressu, Valore ac Fructu Indulgenciarum (Aug. Vindel. 1735, fol.), ii. 80. Augustinus Triumphus, Summa de Potest. Eccles., Qu. 29–32, may be added to the number. On the other hand, Franciscus Mayronius, the Franciscan at Paris († 1325), in his Comm. in Sent. lib. iv. dist. 19, qu. 2, disputes the doctrine of the Thesaurus. Durandus de s. Porciano in Sent., lib. iv. dist. 20, qu. 3: De indulgentiis paucia dici possunt per certitudinem, quia nec Scriptura expresse de eis loquitur. Quod enim dictum est Petro Matth. xvi.: tibi dabo claves regni caelorum, et quocunque ligaveris, etc., intelligitur de potestate ei data in foro poenitentiae. De collatione autem indulgentiarum non est clarum quod debeat intelligi: Sancti etiam, ut Ambrosius, Hilarius, Augustinus, Hieronymus, minime loquuntur de indulgentiis. Gregorius tamen loquitur, qui etiam indulgentias Romae instituit in stationibus, ut dicitur. Et ideo loquendo de eis sequendus est modus communis. Then he states the doctrine of the Thesaurus.

² See the bull Unigenitus, of 27th January, 1343, in Extravagg. Comm. lib. v. tit. 9, c. 2, and in Raynald. ann. 1349, no. 11: (Dens Filius) non corruptibilibus auro et argento, sed sui ipsis, agni incontaminati et immaculati, pretioso sanguine nos redemit, quem in ara crucis pro nobis innocens immolatus, non guttam sanguinis modicam, quae tamen propter unionem ad Verbum pro redemptione totius humani generis suffecisset, sed copiose velut quoddam profluvium noscitur effusisse, ita ut a planta pedis usque ad verticem nulla sanitas inveniretur in ipso. Quantum ergo exinde, ut nec supervacua, inanis aut superflua tantae effusionis miseratio redderetur, thesaurum militanti Ecclesiae acquisivit, volens suis thesaurizare filii plus pater, ut sic sit infinitus thesaurus hominibus, quo qui usi sunt, Dei amicitiae participes sunt effecti! Quem quidem thesaurum non in sudario repositum, non in agro absconditum, sed per b. Petrum caeli clavigerum, ejusque successores, suos in terris vicarios, commisit fidelibus salubriter dispensandum, et propriis (leg. pro piis) et rationabilibus causis nunc pro totali nunc pro partiali remissione poenae temporalis pro peccatis debitae tam generaliter quam specialiter, prout cum Deo expedire cognoscerent, vere poenitentibus et confessis misericorditer applicandum. Ad cuius quidem thesauri cumulum beatae Dei Genetricis et omnium Electorum a primo justo usque ad ultimum merita adminiculum praestare noscuntur, de cuius consumptione seu diminutione non est aliquatenus formidandum, tam propter infinita Christi, ut praedictum est, merita, quam pro eo, quod quanto plures ex ejus applicatione trahuntur ad justitiam, tanto magis accrescit ipsorum cumulus meritorum.

ing of crusades, in which a general indulgence was offered;⁴ but the chief means was the development of the new discovery of the Jubilee year.⁵ At the request of the Romans it was brought down to every fiftieth year by Clement VI. in 1343, and so observed in 1350.⁶ Urban VI. altered it in 1389 to every thirty-third year.⁷ So Boniface IX. repeated it in 1390; but this avaricious Pope, not satisfied with this, not only offered the Jubilee-indulgence for sale out of Rome in the years immediately following, but also drove ten days (Raynald. ann. 1318, no. 58, cf. ann. 1327, no. 54). The Conc. Avenionense, ann. 1326, conceded, cap. 2, to those who accompanied the sacrament to the sick, an indulgence, if by day, of twenty days, if by night, of thirty nights: cap. 3, to those who prayed for the Pope and the Church, ten days: cap. 4, to those who bowed at the name of Jesus, ten days. This was repeated by the Conc. Avenion., ann. 1337, c. 2; Vau-rense, ann. 1368, c. 124; Narbon., ann. 1374, c. 19.

The concession to their request by the bull Unigenitus (see above, note 2): Nos autem attentes, quod annus quinquagesimus in lege Mosaica—jubileus remissionis et gaudii—censebatur, quodque ipse quinquagenarius numerus in Testamentis, veteri quidem ex legis donatione, in novo ex visibili s. Adjacentes, ut ii etiam, qui—post iter arreptum i.npeſiti legitime, quo minus ad urbem illo anno valeant pervenire, aut in via, vel dierum praetaxato numero non completo in dicta urbe decesserint, vere poenitentes et confessi, eandem indulgentiam consequantur.

ipsa Ecclesia in altiori loco prope altare sedile cum tapetis pulcris per suos ministros ad id deputatis sibi fecit apparari cum panno nobili de serico etiam superius extenso.—Solemni benedictionem ille major nuncius populo dedit, et per aliquos Episcopos titulares illud mel sequentis sermonis ibidem in publico fieri fecit, intimando simplicibus ibidem tunc congregatis, ut eos levius decipere neconon pecunias reportare possent, indulgentias et remissiones peccaminum antedictas: et semper in eisdem sermonibus publice dicebatur, quod ipse major nuncius super omni irregularitate ac peccato posset dispensare, ac ipsa peccata remittere, ac etiam parentum animas eorundem offerentium ipsis de purgatorio liberare, et ultra hoc quicquid posset Papa de plenitudine potestatis, id idem ipsi possent, et etiam aliquid amplius, si expediret. Et si aliquis eis in hoc forsan contradixit, illum haereticum aut schismaticum, neconon apostolicae sedi rebellem nominabant, et modis omnibus persequebantur, et quod infra paucos dies in praefata curia coram praedicto Bonifacio, pro meritis digna recepturus personaliter compareret, ignominiose citarunt, et per hoc Praelatos ecclesiasticos et alios terruerunt, quod istis—se opponere non audebant.—Sicque ultra centum millia florenorum auri ipsi nuncii infra biennium per illos modos in eisdem partibus collegerunt. The principal nuncio, Antonius de Roma, went afterward to Bologna, to give in his account to Balthasar, who had in the mean time become Cardinal and Legate at Bologna; but the latter threw him into prison and took from him the money which he meant to embezzle, cum quo sperbat se empturum aliquam pingue cathedralis Ecclesiam vel Abbatiam a Bonifacio saepedicto. Videns autem se hujusmodi spe fraudatum, tanquam desperans in carceribus ipsis mortem sibi concivit, se ipsum quadam chorda, qua cingebatur, quadam nocte jugulando. At last, after enough had been gained, Boniface sought to retrieve the honor of the apostolic see, by revoking all the indulgences already granted, on the plea of their having been obtained by fraud (as he did likewise with the reversions. Theod. a Niem, ii. c. 9; see above, § 105, note 7). See the bull of 22d December, 1402, in Statuta Synodalia, a Wenceslao Episc. Wratislav. ann. 1410 publicata, ed. a J. Chr. Friedrich, Hannoverae, 1827, p. 11 (mentioned also by the contemporary Joh. v. d. Pusilie; see Jahrbücher Joh. Lindenblatts herausgeg. v. Voigt u. Schubert, Königsberg, 1823, s. 156; but the date is 1402, not 1405, as it stands erroneously in the Statua): Intenta salutis operibus sedis apostolicae circumspecta benignitas—interdum aliqua per importunam petentium instantiam, quaedam autem per surreptionis malitiam vel fraudem vel quemvis modum illicitum impetrata statuit vel indulget, demum vero in ejus notitiam his deductis ac utilitate publica suadente ea reformat in melius. Accordingly the following cassations were passed. E. g. Item revocamus et annullamus omnes et singulas indulgentias, in quibus continetur a poena et a culpa, vel plena indulgentia omnium peccatorum suorum, et alias, quae concessae sunt sub formis indulgentiarum Ecclesiarum urbis, anni jubilaei, vel s. sepulchri dominici, s. ⁹ Thus, when the Cardinal Albornoz, in 1356, had a crusade preached in Italy (compare above, § 101, note 5), Matteo Villani, vi. c. 14: E incontanente l'avarizia de' Chericci cominciò a fare l'uficio suo, e allargarono colla praedicazione la'ndulgenza oltre alla commissione del Papa. E cominciarono a non rifiutare danajo da ogni maniera di gente, compensando i peccati e voti d'ogni ragione con danari assai, e pochi, come gli poteano attrarre. E per non mancare alla loro avarizia, sommoveano nelle Città, e ne' Castelli, e nelle Ville ogni femminella, ogni povero, che non havea danari, a dare panilini, e lani, e masserizie, grani, e biade. ¹⁰ This is the bull Ad memoriam, which is even given by two contemporaries, Peter of Herentals, prior of the Praemonstrant monastery at Fleury (Quinta Vita Clementis VI., in Baluz. Vitae PP. Aven. i. 312), and Albericus de Rosate (Dictionarium Juris s. v. Jubilaeus annus). The most remarkable passages in it are: Item concedimus, quod, si vere confessus in via morte praeveniatur, ab omnibus peccatis suis sit immunis et penitus absolutus, et nihilominus mandamus Angelis paradisi, quod animam illius a purgatorio penitus absolutam ad paradisi gloriam introducant.—Cum autem fideles praedicti ita devote praedicta compleverint, ostendetur eis ex mandato nostro sudarium Domini nostri Jesu Christi, quo viso ab omnibus peccatis suis sint absoluti et indulgentias habent ab eisdem. Nosque ex parte D. n. Jesu Christi, cuius sumus in terra vicarii, reducimus eos ad statum, quo erant die illo, quo baptismum receperunt de gratia speciali. Jo. Wicliffe, Dialog. lib. iv. c. 32, speaks doubtfully of this bull (Fateor, quod indulgentiae papales, si ita se habeant, ut dicuntur, tunc sapient manifestam blasphemiam), Jo. Huss, Tract. de Ecclesia, c. 12 and 23 (Hist. et Monum. i. 272, 317), and Jo. de Paltz, Augustin Monk at Halle, in his Caelifodina, Lips. 1504, fol. Ff. 5, verso, quote it as genuine. On the other hand, Antoninus Florentinus († 1459), Summae Histor. P. iii. tit. 10, c. 3, § 6, considered it spurious: sciendum, quod in copia cujusdam bullae, quae dicitur esse Clementis, multa narrantur, quae non videntur esse de stylo Curiae, cum sint levia et exorbitantia satis. Unde licet adscribantur Clementi, non videtur verisimile illius vel alterius summi Pontificis fuisse, sed fictitie inventa. Jo. Wessel († 1489) contradicts him in his Epist. ad. M. Jac. Hoeck (Opp. Groningae, 1614. 4. p. 889): reverendissimus ille Antoninus confitetur, copias bullarum Clementis tantam continere exorbitantium, quod non credit fuisse bullatas: quae tamen hodie Viennae, Limovis, Pictavis plumbatae in thesauro privilegiorum reservantur; and p. 892: Numquid Parisiensi Facultati theologicae non dico ratione majus fuit, immo numquid fuit pro ratione Clementis Papae auctoritas, quando temeritatem illius angelis praecipientem reprehenderunt et correxerunt? Ever since Jo. Hoornbek, in his Examen Bullae papalis, qua Innocentius X. abrogare nititur pacem Germaniae, Ultraj. 1653. 4. p. 273 ss., printed the bull, Protestant controversialists have made plentiful use of it. However, it is undoubtedly a forgery; see Baluzii Vit. PP. Aven. i. 915; Pagi Breviar. Gest. Pontiff. Rom. ed. Lac. II. ii. 86; Chais, Lettres Hist. et Dogm. sur les Jubilés, i. 164. For, 1, Albericus, who himself obtained the Jubilee-indulgence of 1350 at Rome, prefixes to this bull the remark: Circa praedictam indulgentiam alias formas habui, quae an fuerint apostolicae ignoro, tamen sunt pulchrae et ideo eas hic describo: and says afterward: Haec forma, sicut puto, non fuit bullata, nec confirmata, nec servabatur tempore dictae indulgentiae, ad quam fui cum uxore et tribus filiis. 2. The opinion of the Archbishop Antonine upon the bull is of much more weight than Wessel's. Also seemingly authentic copies, to which he appeals, do not command unconditional belief in this age of forgeries (see vol. 2, § 67, note 12). Nothing at all is known of an opposition in the Sorbonne, to which John Wessel alludes. 3. Baluze justly concludes, with Antonine: insulsa est compositio, fatua, demens, aliena a stylo curiae, such as could not be expected from a learned Pope like Clement VI. It is impossible, as is here stated, that he could have allowed all parish priests to leave their churches for a year, and empowered all monks to wring from their abbots leave of absence and money for traveling: the interest of the Romans, rather, betrays itself here, since their avarice was particularly conspicuous in this Jubilee-year (Matth. Villani, lib. i. c. 55). 4. The following passage occurs in the bull: Volumus insuper et ordinamus, quod omnes Romipetae patriae Romanae, Campaniae, Tusciae, Apulegiae, Calabriae, Principatus terrae Lombardiae et Italiae usque ad Pedemontem in praefata civita-

Boniface IX., after 1390, offered the Jubilee-indulgences for sale in so many places.¹¹

So far as the popes made their indulgences arbitrarily dependent upon the fulfillment of certain external conditions; so far as they granted to some, and refused to others, what all believers might claim alike,¹² they conducted themselves no longer as stewards, but as absolute masters of spiritual graces. They drew upon themselves the same charge when they granted certain rights, which were due to all alike, as privileges to particular persons or communities.¹³ The kings of France were overwhelmed by Clement VI., who was entirely devoted to their service, with such favors, which, in part, in a moral point of view, were extremely objectionable.¹⁴

te per unum mensem sequentem residentiam faciant, etc., in direct contradiction to the genuine Jubilee bull (see note 5), according to which none but the Romans needed thirty days for the obtaining of the indulgence. Here also the avaricious aims of the Romans are manifest.

¹⁴ These may be seen in d'Achery Spicileg. iii. 723; almost all are of the date 20th April, 1351. The Privilege, on p. 724, is particularly offensive; vobis et successoribus vestris Regibus et Reginis Franciae—in perpetuum indulgemus, ut Confessor religiosus, vel saecularis, quem vestrum et eorum quilibet duxerit eligendum, vota per vos forsitan jam emissas, ac per vos et successores vestros in posterum emitenda, ultramarino, ac bb. Petri et Pauli Apostolorum, ac castitatis et continentiae votis duntaxat exceptis; nec non juramenta per vos praestita, et per vos et eos praestanda in posterum, quae vos et illi servare commode non possetis, vobis et eis commutare valeat in alia opera pietatis. These are some of the other privileges: quod Rex et Regina in locis interdictis possunt

The hierarchy was as rapid in its punishments as it was prodigal in the distribution of its favors. The inquisition, whose powers had been directed, since the time of John XXII., as much against witchcraft¹⁵ as against heresy, remained as terrible and hated as before.¹⁶ In comparison with its horrible penalties, the ban and interdict, the ecclesiastical penalties of the hierarchy, especially now that they were often employed for trifling causes,¹⁷ facere celebrare; quod Confessor absolvere eos potest in casibus sedi apost. reservatis; quod Confessor Regi cum exercitu potest dare licentiam vescendi carnibus; quod Confessor Regem et Reginam dispensare potest de jejunii; quod Rex ingredi potest monasterium inclusarum; quod Rex possit facere celebrare super Altare portatile in sua et gentium exercitus sui praesentia; quod Praelatus celebrans coram Rege seu Regina conferre potest unum annum et XL. dies indulgentiae; quod Confessor Regis et Reginae eis semel in mortis articulo, et quotiescumque pro Regni defensione imminet periculum, plenam remissionem peccatorum indulgere possit; quod orantibus pro Rege et Regina centum dies de injunctis poenitentiis qualibet die relaxantur; quod Rex et Regina eligere possunt Confessorem, qui eos absolvat, si excommunicationis sententiam incurrent propter manuum injectionem in Clericos; quod nemo potest in terram Regis et Reginae interdicti sententiam promulgare absque auctoritate apostolica; quod non teneantur ad restitutionem bonorum, nisi his qui ad notitiam eorum venerint, sed eleemosynas cedant loco restitutionis; quod Confessor Religiosus Regis et Reginae, cui est esus carnium secundum statuta sui Ordinis interdictus, liceat potest in eorum comitiva vesci carnibus: quod Clerici Regis et Reginae possunt a quoconque Episcopo Ordines suscipere, and so forth.

The feria quinta was, in truth, according to the consuetudo Romanae Ecclesiae, the day for the reception of penitents (Guil. Durantis Rationale Divin. Offic. lib. vi. c. 73); so the curse upon this day was all the more terrible. Toward the end of the 13th century it had already become the custom for the popes to repeat annually, upon this day, excommunications of especial importance; thus, according to the testimony of the Conc. Herbipol., ann. 1287, c. 40, against the—imponentes et exigentes nova passagia (see vol. 2, § 63, note 24). There are extant two processus In Coena Domini of Boniface VIII., the one, in 1299, against those, qui ad Saracenos arma, victualia aliaque deferent; the other, in 1303, against those—qui laederent ad sedem apostolicam venientes (both are in the Bullar. Rom.). These Processus were united, and repeated every year, generally in permanent forms, but also with alterations and additions, according to circumstances. One such collective-process by Gregory XI., A.D. 1370, is said to be extant in the Vatican library (Le Bret. Gesch. d. Bulle In Coena Domini, ii. 156); but the earliest one published is that by Gregory XII., A.D. 1411 (Raynald. ad. h. a. no. 1): *Excommunicamus et anathematizamus ex parte Dei Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus sancti, auctoritate quoque bb. SYNODAL TRIBUNALS.

Ever since the synodal courts had begun to punish, as the general rule, by the imposition of fines, they seemed to have become only a new means for enriching the prelates.¹ The synodal witnesses became loose in testimony, and innocent persons were often obliged to buy themselves off from false accusations.² Accordingly, nualis, after manifold alterations under different popes from the time of Pius V. (1566), has retained the name of the bull In Coena Domini. On its origin see, especially, Prospere Card. Lambertini (Benedicti XIV.) De Festis, P. i. c. 196: on the other hand, Le Bret's Pragmat. Geschichte der Bulle In Coena Domini (Frankf. u. Leipzig. 1769-70. 4 Bde. 4. 1-2 Bd. new ed. 1772) contains next to nothing upon the history of its origin.

² De Ruina Ecclesiae (A.D. 1401, see § 103, note 5) c. 21, in v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const. I. iii. 23: Dici non potest, quanta mala ubique faciant illi scelerati exploratores, quos Promotores appellant. Simplices et pauperculos agrestes, vitam satis innocuam in suis tuguriis agentes, et fraudis urbanae nescios in jus saepe pro nihilo vocant. Causas et crimina contra eos sedulo configunt, vexant, terrent, minantur, siveque eos per talia secum componere et pacisci cogunt. Quod si facere renuerint, crebris eos citationibus, quotidie repetitis supra modum infestant. Quod si semel qualibet occasione praepediti comparere desierint, censura illico anathematis ut rebelles et contumaces feriuntur. Si vero ad diem venire, quoties vocati erunt, perseveraverint, eorum audientias apud judicium tribunalia impudent, morasque et subterfugia dilationum et interlocutionum captabunt, quae perfacile in foris ecclesiasticis obtinentur, quo vel sic longo taedio longaque sui temporis jactura fatigati super futuram vexationem atque impensam pecuniae pactione redimere cogantur. Ita fit pro levi vel nullo delicto, vel pro exiguo debito infinitarum cumulus expensarum. These complaints appear already in the Gravamina of the French Barons, A.D. 1329 (see § 108, note 12), e. g. Grav. viii: Item (officiales) faciunt citari plures laicos ex officio suo super aliquibus, quae sibi imponunt, maleficis responsuros.—Et quando citati hujusmodi—negabunt maleficia,—dicti officiales ipsos detinunt captos,—licet in casibus eis impositis pertineat recrederentia (récréance), et licet captio et detentio ad eosdem officiales minime pertineat, sed ad judices saeculares. IX. Item in casibus supradictis licet—iudicem laici reperiantur puri et innocentes, nihilominus dicti officiales nolunt eos expedire donec pro scripturis processuum seu inquesta (enquête) praedictorum satisfactionem fecerint de magna pecuniae quantitate: licet de jure in tali casu eis expensas restituere tenerentur. XXXVII. Item cum quis excommunicatus est in aliquo loco, dicti officiales dant citationes personales super participibus, et faciunt citari totam patriam ad unam vel duas leucas (lieues) circumquaque, vel tales, qui noverrunt excommunicatum bene XL, LX vel centum personae purgatura se super participatione praedictorum. Ex quo sequitur, quod probi homines antiqui et senes redimunt se quilibet de XII. denariis vel de duobus solidis pro vitandis expensis et laboribus. XXXVIII. Item dicti officiales imponunt pluribus personis famae laudabilis et honestae vitae, quod sunt usurarii, et oportet eos cum ipsis officialibus concordare pro evitanda eorum infamia et labore. XXXIX. Item dicti officiales faciunt citari aliquem bonum hominem conjugatum, et imponunt ei, quod adulteratus est cum aliqua: et si-

the efforts of the laity to keep the synodal courts within bounds,³ or to obtain immunity from the synods,⁴ became more and more general.

SEVENTH CHAPTER.

HISTORY OF HERETICAL SECTS.

§ 122.

HISTORY OF THE EARLIER SECTS.

The blood-thirsty zeal of the inquisition, in the first half of the fourteenth century, seems to have almost exterminated the Albigenses in Southern France and Italy,¹ and to have driven them militer mulierem aliquam conjugatam, imponendo sibi quod adulterata est, in perpetuam infamiam ipsorum conjugum, et cum hoc extorsionem pecuniarum recipiunt ab eisdem, etc.

into the eastern countries. In Bosnia, the largest part of the population professed the Cathartic heresy, which, tolerated, and at times even professed, by the lords of the land, spread itself from this into the surrounding countries.² The kings of Hungary, as supreme lords of these countries, were incessantly required by the popes to take steps against the heretics; but these efforts remained fruitless.³ The Waldenses, in spite of all the persecutions they underwent in Southern France, and especially in the valleys of Piedmont, to which they had withdrawn themselves, were not exterminated;⁴ but they were now also more widely diffused in Germany, and, toward the end of the fourteenth century, made their appearance in many parts of this country.⁵ The rest of the ing to Schmidt (1, 360, ii. 307), the Cagots, a race detested and shunned of all, living in Navarre, Béarn, Gascony, etc. (compare Fr. Michel, Histoire des Races Maudites en France et en Espagne, 2 vol. Paris, 1847), were descendants of the Albigenses, who were obliged as penitents to submit to manifold humiliations, and bequeathed to their children the universal contempt in which they were held. In a letter to Leo X., A.D. 1514, the Cagots themselves derive their own origin from the Albigenses (Michel, ii. 220).

² Before this time in Croatia, Slavonia, Dalmatia, now also in Albania and Rascia. Compare Schmidt, i. 125.

³ Lewis I., king of Hungary, subdued the Bosnians and Bulgarians, in 1359, and forced them to receive baptism; but soon after the heresy reappeared, and when Stephen Twartko had made himself independent and risen to be king of Bosnia, in 1376, it was again predominant. Schmidt, i. 130.

⁵ In Mayence, Limburger Chronik (written in 1398, published by Vogel, Marburg, 1828, s. 104): “In dieser Zeit (1389) ward zu Mayntz ein Unglaub offenbar, der hatte heimlich gewährt mehr dann 600 Jar oder länger. Dieser Unglaub u. Articul war also, dass man nimmer nicht andere Heilige anrufen solte, dann sie beteten vor niemand. Item sie hielten, dass zween Wege wären, wann ein Mensch gestorben wäre, so führe er gen Himmel oder in die Höll. Item hielten sie in ihren Sitten, dass ein purer Laye mögte also wohl consecriren als ein Pfaff. Item sie hielten, dass der Bischoff oder der Pabst kein Ablass möchte geben. Item hielten sie, dass das Gebott Allmosen geben, Messen und Fasten, das hülfe alles nichts die Seelen, denen man das nachthäte.” Petri Merssaei Cratepolii Electorum Ecclesiasticorum i. e. Coloniensem, Moguntinensem ac Trevirensium Catalogus, Colon. Agripp. 1580, p. 212: Under Conrad, archbishop of sects dissenting from the dominant Church were designated by the common name of Beghards. Among these, the Fraticelli, and the Brothers and Sisters of the Free Spirit, formed the two principal tendencies. Among the Beghards of Southern France, Italy, and Sicily, the characteristics of the Fraticelli prevailed.⁶

Mayence (from 1388 to 1395), 36 cives Moguntini, Waldensium fratrum sectam professi, Bingam adducti et ibi combusti sunt. Scrarius Rer. Mogunt. lib. v. p. 867, makes mention of Waldenses at Mayence in 1395. Some heretics were persecuted at Augsburg in 1393, whom Gassarus (Ann. Augstburgenses in Mencken Scriptt. Rer. Germ. i. 1533) calls Wittklyffistae; Crusius (Ann. Suev. P. iii. lib. 6, c. 4) calls them Waldenses. A contemporary notice of them (published by prelate Schmidt, in Stäudlin's u. Tzschriner's Archiv. f. Kirchengesch. II. ii. 349) assigns them no particular name, and attributes to them the same heresies which the Limburg Chronicle does to the inhabitants of Mayence, only more at length. Besides: Item quidam crediderunt, sectam eorum manere usque in futurum judicium secrete tum usque ad adventum Heliae et Enoch, et tunc manifestarentur, et genera omnia congregarentur in eadem secta. They rejected capital punishment and the oath. Item dicunt, Apostolos eorum, quos habent, posse consecrare corpus Christi. Forty-six of these were placed under penance in Augsburg, forty in Werdea (Wörth?), but sixteen of these soon relapsed and were burned to death. Episcopus recepit bona eorum male sibi, pauperes fuerunt dimissi, divites combusti. Two were burned to death in Dinkelshübel, and a number also in Wemdingen. Et sic eodem anno in diversis terris et villis inventi sunt plurimi haeretici ejusdem sectae, et multi cruce signati, et multi apostataci et combusti, et etiam quam plurimi signum crucis pro poenitentia accipientes fidem dereliquerunt, et patriam derelinquentes recesserunt. Et sic inventi sunt in diversis civitatibus et villis in Suevia, Bavaria, et Franconia multi haeretici de eadem secta. Tamen finaliter inventum est, quod domini illorum, qui combusti fuerunt, receperunt bona ipsorum, et pauperes dimiserunt.—In Strasburg, as early as 1374, there was a secret community of like profession; in 1400 it was persecuted (extracts from the minutes, extant in manuscript, are given by Röhrich in Illgen's Zeitschr. f. d. hist. Theol. 1840, I. 144. Schmidt, u. s. III. 69). They had masters, traveling preachers (twelve Botten, i. e. Apostles, probably not exactly twelve), who were their chief priests and confessors (see Yvonetus, vol. 2, § 90, note 29), and whom the Catholics called Winkler (conventicle men), from their secret assemblies—a name which was afterward extended to all members of the sect. The masters were chosen from them, and had to take a vow of chastity and poverty. The sect had also adherents in Nördlingen, Ratisbon, Augsburg, Tischingen in Swabia, Solothurn, Bern, Weissenburg, Hagenau, Speyer, Holzhausen near Frankfort-on-Maine, the Swabian Wörth, Friedberg, Mayence, and Vienna. Their schools, in which was prayer, confession, preaching from great books, and instruction on all points of the heresy, are mentioned at Strasburg, Hagenau, and Mayence, private houses and lodgings at Offenburg and Lahr. In 1399 men of the same persuasion were discovered and converted at Bern and Friburg in Switzerland (Hottinger's Helvetische Kirchengeschichte, ii. 204). At Steyer in Austria, in 1397, a hundred heretics were burned to death, others were placed under penance; a contemporary Austrian chronicler, in Pezii Scriptt. Austr. i. 1157, calls them Waldenses (Cf. Viti Arenpeck, in Pez. i. 1244. Preuenhuber, Ann. Styrenses, p. 72). Flacius (Catal. Test. Verit. Francof. 1666, p. 639) says that he had a roll of minutes of an examination held in Pomerania, and the March, A.D. 1391, upon 443 Waldenses. The ancestors of many of them had belonged to this sect; teachers had come to them out of Bohemia from time to time. However, Flacius, always ready to discover testes veritatis, and to attribute the immoral doctrines of the heretics to the invention of the inquisitors, has probably here pronounced certain professors of the Free Spirit to be Waldenses; for in Northern Germany the former frequently appear, but not the latter.

The German Beghards, frequently also called Lollards,⁷ were, on the contrary, for the most part professors of the Free Spirit;⁸ they Tolos., in Limborch, p. 298 and 381, are called collectively Beguini, qui se dicunt esse de tertio ordine S. Francisci.

⁸ Their head-quarters were at Cologne, where the Archbishop Henry, of Virneburg, in 1306, issued a decree against them (Mosheim de Beghardis et Beguinibus, p. 210). About the year 1325 they underwent a bloody persecution here; compare the Chron. ad ann. 1327, by the contemporary, Johannes Victoriensis (abbot of Victring, near Klagenfurt), in Böhmer's Fontes Rerum Germ. i. 401. It is the Chron. Leobiense, in Pez, i.): Viri et mulieres diversi status in noctis medio ad locum quendam subterraneum, quod templum dicebant, convenerunt. Et quidam Waltherus nomine, daemonialis sacerdos, Missae officium celebrare visus est, et post elevationem sermone habito, extinctis lumenibus, quilibet sibi proximam cognoscebat: et post epulis deliciosissime vacantes, chorreas ducebant, et gaudia maxima peragebant, dicentes, hunc statum statui Paradisi et primis parentibus ante lapsum esse conformem. Idem autem, qui erroris caput extitit, se Christum dixit, pulcram quandam et nobilem domicellam Mariam asseruit.—Matrimonium cum personis quantumcunque proximis licitum, Christum non de Virgine natum, nihil esse jejunium, Deum non esse natum neque passum, turpiter disputavit, et multa fidei sacratissimae contraria grunniebat. Degradatus, damnatus usque ad ustionem non resipuit, mentitus est etiam, die se tertia surrectum (according to Trithemii Chron. Hirsang. ii. 155, Walter was burned to death in 1322). Compare the Chron. ad ann. 1325, of another contemporary, Willelmi Egmondani Chron. ad ann. 1325, in Ant. Matthaei Veteris Aevi Analecta, ii. 643: Eodem anno Begardorum nequitia, quae diversis mundi climatis hactenus latere cernitur, apud Coloniam propalatur. Isti enim eorum ibidem stultitiam praedicantes, et matronas varias ad ipsorum ludibria contrahentes sub terra quoddam mirabile habitaculum fecerant, quod Paradysum vocabant.—Ad quem locum, ut saepius, etiam in nocte Parasceues convenire decreverant, ubi cujusdam potentis uxorem cum caeteris invitabant. However, the husband followed his wife thither, cujusdam Lollardi habitu indutus. In the assembly a certain person came forward, nititur surgere, in Jesu suaeque matris Mariae, ut ajebat, praesentia erroris matrem propalare. Duo enim—ibidem aderant, qui se Mariam et ejus filium asserebant. Dictus itaque nudus praedicans, et omnes more innocentum ad nuditatem exhortans, vario errore tam prima quam media nititur detegere, et conclusionem tenebris, extinctione candelarum videlicet, deturpare, whereupon shameful licentiousness was practiced. The man who entered in disguise afterward divulged the matter. Capiuntur igitur—hujus sectae singuli, quorum corpus aut ignis voragine aut Rheni flumine suffocatur. The connection of the doctrine which the Dominican Eccard preached with that of this sect (according to the modern expression, they were the right and left sides of the same school), and the inefficacy of its condemnation by the Pope (see § 117, note 8), could not but be favorable to the sect. So both Archbishop Walram, in 1335 (Mosheim, p. 294), and his successor William, in 1357, had to renew the decree of his predecessor against the—Beggardos et Schwestriones, quia hujusmodi hominum perniciosa de novo incipit in nostra civitate et diocesi invalescere multitudo (Mosheim, p. 330).—In Strasburg, Bishop John issued an ordinance against them, A.D. 1317 (Mosheim, p. 255): in the year 1366 several more of them were burned to death there (Mosheim, p. 332).—In 1339, three Beghards were burned at Constance (Vitoduranus, p. 76); also at Speyer, in 1356, Berthold, called—haeresiarcha ex eorum secta, who had formerly been active for his sect in Franconia (Jo. Trithemii Chron. Hirsang. ii. 231). At Bern, a man from Bremgarten, Löffler by name, was burned to death in 1374, “den ward funden u. bewiset in bösem Ketzerglouben, den die haltent, die man nempt des fryen Geistes.” When he saw the stake, he said, “ich sich nit so viel Holzes, damit man mich verbrennen müge;” he expected miraculous aid (Justinger's Berner Chronik, published by Stierlin and Wyss, Bern, 1819, s. 194).—But about this time they were already wide-spread in Northern derived no slight impulse from their connection with the German mystics of this period; for, standing on the same speculative foundation with them, they erected upon it a renunciation of obedience not only to the Church, but also to the moral law.⁹ To them also belonged the Adamites, who made their appearance in Austria,¹⁰ A.D. 1312; the Luciferians, who appeared in Angermünde

Germany also; in Magdeburg, the March, Thuringia, etc. See below, note 11.—With regard to a certain William, burned at Lübeck, in 1402, see the notice of two contemporaries, Herm. Coerneri Chron., in Eccardi Corp. Scriptt. Med. Aevi, ii. 1185, and Rufus Chron. in Grautoff's Lübeck. Chroniken, ii. 463. Coerner: Wilhelmus quidam, albis vestibus indutus, et pro Apostolo se gerens. He was discovered—per varia impudicitiae signa et verba diversis personis expressa, et turpia exercitia cum pluribus habita. Propter quod a bonis et honestis mulieribus accusabatur apud Inquisitorem haereticae pravitatis. Rufus: “He heelt sik vor enen Apostel, unde hadde ein uthwendich strenge Levent. He wart velen Luden hemelik umme sines uthwendigen guden Schynes willen, men van en bynnen was he vul Drechnisse unde Unloven; he bedref vele Boverie under boser Bedeckinge, unde bedroch mennigen guden Mynschen.” The inquisitor found him guilty in eighty articles of heresy. Among these were: “Unkusheit was em nen Sunde, van der Vasten heelt he nicht, der hilgen Kerken Bode (Gebote) helt he vor nicht, unde heelt sik sulven so vullekommen also sunte Johannis Baptista was.”

⁹ The bull of John XXII, In agro dominico, A.D. 1330, against the Beghards (in Coerneri Chron., in Eccardi Corp. Scriptt. Medii Aevi, ii. 1036, in Mosheim de Beghardis, p. 284), can not be fitly alleged as an authentic source of information about the peculiar doctrines of the sect. It contains for the most part the positions of Ecard, which, although agreeing with their doctrine in fundamentals, had at least a different coloring (see § 117, note 8). On the doctrine of the sect of the Free Spirit, see vol. 2, § 90, note 35. Gerson, De Libris caute Legendis (Opp. i. 114), states the—error de lege et spiritu libertatis, sub qua Begardi et Begardae nefanda et abominabilia perpetrarunt facinora, to this effect, quod anima perfecta reducta in Deum perdit suum velle, ita quod nihil habet velle vel nolle, nisi velle divinum, quale habuit ab aeterno in esse ideali divino. Quo habitu dicunt consequenter se posse agere quicquid carnalis affectio deposcit sine peccato vel crimen, cum ex praecedenti non habeant velle et nolle. Diversificatur autem modus iste, quoniam sufficit aliquibus, ut sub Deo solo suam totaliter vel taliter abnegent voluntatem, in qua abnegatione dicunt summam consistere perfectionem. Sunt alii rudiiores idiotae et simplices, qui seducti per astutos faciunt hanc abnegationem propriae voluntatis per modum professionis et obedientiae in manibus illorum. Qua facta promittunt astuti tales et perversi, quod amplius peccare nequeunt; sub quo praetextu perpetrant innumerabiles nec referendas abominationes. To live as a part of the all-one, i. e. of God, was to them the highest calling of man. Every inclination, every will of the man conscious of this union, was divine; every law repugnant to these inclinations dissolved this unity. Man before the fall appeared to them to have possessed this consciousness in all its purity: they wished to restore it. Hence their nudity in their assemblies, the name of Paradise for their place of meeting, instead of marriage their concubitus promiscuus (compare note 8), for marriage as a special connection seemed to divide the universal unity. How Ruysbroek, who must have felt the necessity of clearly marking the distinction between his doctrine and that of the Free Spirit, because of their very similarity, describes and controverts the latter, see Engelhardt's Richard v. St. Victor and Joh. Ruysbroek, s. 224.

in 1336;¹¹ and the Turlupines also, who were exterminated in the Isle of France, A.D. 1372.¹² The teachers of these sects wan-

quod tunc Lucifer, Angelique sui apostatae cum creditibus, h. e. cum haereticis, aeterna gaudia possideant. Secundus casus est: Sanctus autem Michael cum suis Angelis in beatitudine jam existentibus, suisque creditibus, aeterno deputetur incendio puniendus. Item dicunt se habere XVI. Apostolos, annis singulis—climata mundi perlustrantes, ex quibus annuatim Paradisum introeant, auctoritatem ligandi et solvendi ab Helia et Enoch recipient, quam suis possent communicare creditibus. They denied the virginity of Mary, rejected the sacraments and liturgy of the Church, denounced the clergy. Quintam feriam noctem insomnem, diemque Parasceues in luxuria et voluptate, ac dissolutione repletioneque ventris in esu carnium—transigebant (because the Church kept the strictest fasts on these days). Their feigned observance of Catholic usages, secret countersigns; e. g. one of those who were burned at St. Pölten, said: fateor hodie, si fides nostra per XV. annos in suo robore perstisset, cogitaveramus eam publice praedicare, ac manu valida defensare. It was further remarked: raro est apud eos homo cujuscunque sexus, qui textum Novi Testamenti non sciat cordetenus in vulgari. They resisted, on occasion of a later persecution; see Catalogus Abbatum Glunicisum, in Pez, ii. 330: anno 1388 in civitate Laureacensi et Styrensi, aliquis vicinis locis suborta est inquisitio haereticorum, et ab ipsis econtra persecutio Catholicorum, praesertim Cleri et Religiosorum. Jo. Vitoduranus also, p. 44 and 45, ad ann. 1336, makes mention of these Austrian heretics, and describes their assemblies—in hypogea sive aliis quibusque locis subterraneis—in a fabulous manner. The name Adamite, which frequently occurs in Bohemia, in the 15th century, arose about this time. The contemporary John, abbot of Victring, after describing the heretics of Cologne (see note 8), says: Haec haeresis Adamiana dici potest, cuius Isidorus fecit mentionem in libro Etymologiarum, dicens: "Adamiani vocati sunt, quia Adae imitantur nuditatem, unde nudi erant, et nudi inter se mares et foeminae conveniunt." Fuit etiam hoc tempore in multis locis circa metas Austriae et Bohemiae zizania multiplex in medio tritici seminata, et pulchritudo agrorum Ecclesiae defoedata. Qui sub terra in specubus se dicunt non peccare, nec absolutione egere, eo quod Dominus Petro dixerit: "Quocunque ligaveris super terram, et solveris, etc."

¹² Mosheim de Beghardis, p. 413 ss. So Gregorii XI. Ep. ad Carolum V., in Raynald. ann. 1373, no. 19: secta Begardorum, qui alias Turlupini dicuntur. Jo. Gersonii Sermo de S. Ludovico (Opp. ed du Pin. iii. 1435): Begardi et Turlupini de nulla re naturaliter data erubescendum esse dicebant. Id. de examinat. doctrinarum, P. ii. Cons. 6, in the year 1423 (i. 19): sicut nulla est vehementior quam luxuriosa libido, sic ad errandum falsumque docendum nulla perniciosior. Patuit in sectis Turelupinorum, quarum sedered from place to place, in imitation of the Apostles. They were called apostles by their followers,¹³ and labored, by teaching and writing,¹⁴ for the extension of their sect. So, too, the apostles of the Waldenses and the sect of the Free Spirit made their appearance in Germany; and it was owing to their activity that quaces non desunt usque hodie, quando et ubi latere putaverint serpunt ubilibet. Ch. Schmidt, Essai sur J. Gerson, Strasb. 1839, p. 101.

¹³ Particularly were the wandering teachers of the sect of the Free Spirit so called: compare the decree of Henry I., archbishop of Cologne, A.D. 1306, against the—Beghardos et Begardas et Apostolos vulgariter appellatos (Mosheim de Beghardis, p. 212), and that of the Council of Tréves, A.D. 1310, against the—rusticos, qui se Apostolos appellant (ibid. p. 222). So also William at Lübeck called himself an apostle, see note 8. Conradus de Monte Puellarum, canon at Ratisbon in the 14th century, describes these apostles, in a fragment published by Gretser (at the end of Rainerius contra Waldenses, Ingolst. 1613. 4, also in the Biblioth. Patrum Lugd. xxv. 310): *Sunt enim hujusmodi viri rusticani, et plerique mechanici, corpore robusti, et literarum omnino inexperti ac penitus idiotae, aut si literas aliqualiter norunt, tenuissimum tamen est, quod sciunt. Hi opera manualia suorum postponentes artificiorum, cucullati gyrovagando provincias per diversas incedunt, et latebras quaerunt occultas, praecipue hospitiis Beginarum inhiantes, eo quod simile suo simili complaudat. Quibus pro nocturno receptaculo in prima congressione malitiae sua, coloratis verbis, insanas et ut plurimum infectivas seminant doctrinas. At illae illorum in crastino promotrices, seu ut verius dicam copulatrices, ostiatim per domos cursitant mulierum, intimando sub arcani sigillo, asserentes, angelum verbi divini adesse occultum, quoadusque conventicula eisdem hypocritis placita congregentur. Quibus secretissime convenientibus in unum, labia suae malitia resolvunt, de attributis in divinis atque de proprietatibus divinae bonitatis disserendo. Et sic paulatim descendendo affirmant, qualiter ex pietate divina homo ad Dei imaginem creatus existat, et tantum mereri valeat per exercitium bonorum operum, ut Christo, Domino nostro, in humana anima sua aequae perfectus quis efficiatur. Talium etenim unum de Suevia natum ego in Ratispona reperi, qui jam praedictum et articulos alios in Clementinis prohibitos sub titulo de Haereticis Ad nostrum (Clementin. lib. v. tit. 3. c. 3) diligenter affirmabat, etc. The wandering teachers of the Waldenses also, the real Pauperes de Lugduno, were held by their disciples to be successors of the Apostles (see Yvonetus, in vol. 2, § 90, note 29) and sometimes even called apostles; so at Augsburg and Strasburg, above, note 5. The apostles of the Beghards beyond doubt always commenced with a kind of Waldensian doctrine, and did not avow until later the doctrine of the Free Spirit. Thus it was easily possible to confound them with one another.*

¹⁴ So Gerson (De Distinctione Verarum Visionum a Falsis, Opp. i. 55) makes mention of a—libellus incredibili paene subtilitate ab una foemina compositus, quae Maria Valenciennes (a Beguine) dicebatur. Haec agit de praerogativa et eminentia dilectionis divinae, ad quam si quis devenerit, fit secundum eam ab omni lege praeceptorum solitus, adducens pro se illud ab Apostolo sumptum: caritatem habe, et fac quod vis. In Germany, also, disciples of the Free Spirit published works in German. Thus Walter, who was burned at Cologne in 1322, see Trithemii Chron. Hirsaug. ii. 155; Lohareus [Lohardus] autem ille Waltherus, natione Hollandinus, latini sermonis parvam habebat notitiam, et quia Romano non potuit, sermone sibi teuthonico plures sui erroris libellos conscripsit, quos deceptis per se occultissime communicavit. On Gerhardi Beghardi Tract. de Spirituali Exercitatione Reparationis Lapsus, see Mosheim de Beghardis, p. 376. Also a work, Of the Nine Spiritual Rocks, probably belongs to them (see § 117, note 8). Compare the edict of the Emperor Charles IV., A.D. 1369 (in Mosheim, p. 369): Attendentes,—quod in partibus Alemanniae propter sermones, tractatus et alios libros in vulgari scriptos, inter personas laicas vel paene laicas dispersos, quos libros ut plurimum vel vitiosos, erroneos ac lepra haeresis infectos laici legentes—a veritate au-

FLAGELLANTS.

[Jac. Boileau] Historia Flagellantum, de recto et perverso flagrorum usu apud Christianos. Paris, 1700. 12. Chr, Schoettgen de secta Flagellantum commentatio. Lips. 1711. 8.—Especially Dr. E. G. Förstemann die christl. Geisslergesellschaften. Halle, 1828. 8.—Compare also Mohnike über die Geisslergesellschaften in Illgen's Zeitschr. f. d. hist. Theol. III. ii. 245. Hahn's Gesch. d. Ketzer im Mittelalter, ii. 537.

Although forgiveness for sin might now be easily obtained of the Church in other ways, still flagellation was not only greatly admired among the religious, but was also held in such high estimation by the common people, that, in case of any calamity or plague, they thought they could propitiate the supposed wrath of God in no more effectual manner than by scourging and processions of scourgers;¹ just as though the ordinary ecclesiastical means of expiation were insufficient for extraordinary cases. A decided mistrust of ecclesiastical intercession, and of the clergy who dispensed it, prevailed among the societies of flagellants.² Roused to activity by the plague that passed from Asia over into Europe in the year 1348, and spread devastation every where,³ ditum avertunt.—Qua propter districte praecipiendo mandamus universis,—quatenus in recipiendis, exigendis hujusmodi libris vulgari scriptis,—praesertim cum laicis utriusque sexus secundum canonicas sanctiones etiam libris vulgaribus quibuscumque de sacra Scriptura uti non liceat (see Vol. 2, § 89, note 41),—assistatis Inquisitoribus, etc.

³ Called in Germany the Great Death; in the north the Black Death. See upon this ever since the beginning of the year 1349, they had been spreading from the Hungarian frontier over the whole of Germany,⁴ and found entrance even into the neighboring countries. They rehearsed a message from Christ, which was said to have been brought down from heaven by an angel to Jerusalem,⁵ in which the wrath of God was denounced against the sins of men, and penance by scourging enjoined as the only atonement. They practiced this penance according to a fixed rule, without the co-operation of the clergy, under the guidance of Masters, Magistri,⁶ and made no secret of the fact that they held the ecclesiastical means of salvation in much lower estimation than the penance by the scourge.⁷ Clement VI. put an end to the public processions of flagellants, which were already widely prevalent;⁸ but penance by the scourge

Kurt Sprengel's Beiträge zur Gesch. der Medicin, i. 1, 36. Der Schwarze Tod im 14ten Jahrh., nach den Quellen bearbeitet, von Dr. Hecker, Berlin, 1832.

⁴ According to their own statement, in Closener, s. 94, they came from Hungary to Meissen, and then extended to Brandenburg, Eisenach, Würzburg, Hall, Esslingen, Kalw, etc. With this agrees the fact that they already appeared in Austria as early as New Year, 1349 (Chron. Zwetlense in Rauch Scriptt. rer. Austr. ii. 324); about Easter in Magdeburg (see the account in the Magdeburg Schöppenchronik, in v. d. Hagen's Germania, iv. 123); about the same time in Lübeck (Detmar's Chronik, herausg. v. Grautoff, i. 275); fourteen days after St. John's day at Strasburg (Closener, s. 83).

⁶ Closener, s. 85: Si hettent auch eine gesetzede, daz sü pfaffen möhtent under in han, aber ir keinre solte Meister under in sine, noch an iren heimelichen rot gon.—The Masters conferred an absolution; the mutual scourgings always began with the Master striking them, man by man, as they lay on the ground, and saying:

Stant uf durch der reinen martel ere,
und hüte dich vor der sünden mere.

Heinr. a Rebdorff ad ann. 1349: Isti Flagellatores cum multas superstitiones attentare præsumerent, nimirum invicem se absolvere a peccatis, praedicantes apocrypha et similia, propter quod Laici sunt Clero graviter indignati.

⁷ In the lay of the Flagellants, first published entire in a Low German text, by Dr. H. F. Massmann (Erläuterungen zum Wessobrunner Gebet, Berlin, 1824, s. 39; Förstemann s. 267), is also given in High German, in Closener's Chronik (some verses are in the Flemish dialect in Willem's Oude Vlaemsche Lieder, Gent 1848, p. 42); the following passage occurs toward the end in the Low German text:

Were dusse bote (Busse) nicht geworden, de Christenheit wer gar vorsvunden, de leyde Duvel (leidige Teufel) hat se gebunden
Maria had lost unsen bant.

was only thus forced into concealment. In Thuringia, Conrad Schmidt,⁹ one of their masters, shaped into a connected system of heretical doctrine their detestation of the Church—which, they said, persecuted out of selfishness a work most pleasing to God:¹⁰

se Flagellatores appellant, decepta verbis fictis et mendacibus malignorum, asserentium Salvatorem nostrum Jerosolymis Patriarchae Jerosolymitano apparuisse (cum tamen a longis citra temporibus nullus ibidem praesentialiter fuerit Patriarcha), et sibi aliqua dixisse, quae colore non habentia nec saporem, in quibusdam Scripturae sacrae obviate noscuntur, in illam cordis vesaniam et animae damnationis praecipitum est deducta; —quod se per societates et conventicula—dividens diversas circuivit patrias, caeterorum vitam et statum contempnendo se justificant, et claves Ecclesiae vilipendunt, ac in contemptum disciplinae ecclesiasticae crucem Domini ante se, et habitum certum, nigrum videlicet, ante et retro ipsius vivificae crucis appensum habentem signaculum, sine superioris licentia deferentes, sub nomine poenitentiae vitam gerunt insolitam; congregations, conuenticula et coadunaciones, quae a jure sunt prohibitae, faciunt, et ad alios actus prosiliunt, a vita et moribus observantiaque fidelium Christianorum penitus alienos; ordinationes etiam et statuta, quibus utuntur, imo verius abutuntur, propria temeritate fecerunt, erroris suspicione non vacua et judicio rationis carentia. But after the prohibition comes also the limitation: Per praedicta tamen nequaquam intendimus prohibere, quin Christifideles impositam sibi poenitentiam, vel etiam non impositam, dummodo recta intentione et pura devotione ad illam peragendam procedant, in suis hospitiis, vel alias, absque superstitionis congregationibus, societatibus et conuenticulis supradictis possint facere.

¹⁰ Articuli ab ipsomet Flagellantum Praedicatore Conscripti, in Förstemann's Neue Mittheil. ii. 24: Dominus noster J. Chr. primo bonum vinum posuit: modo autem, i. e. praesenti tempore, quod incepit anno incarnationis ejusdem 1349 optimum vinum propinavit, salutare inquam, quod Deum et homines laetificans reconciliat. Hoc vinum est poenitentia Flagellatorum. Haec igitur poenitentia salutaris tam est necessaria, quod nisi quisque fidelis adulst ad minus omni sexta feria, hora qua Christus sanguinem fudit pro homine, ipse sanguinem fundat pro Christo, salvari non poterit. Item ista poenitentia est tam efficax, quod plus potest, quam modo baptismus: nempe propter avaritiam et malitiam sacerdotum baptizantium, qui tales poenitentes non sustinuerunt, imminuta, immo falsificate est vis baptismi, et hanc supplet ista poenitentia. Praeterea ipsa est tam sufficiens, quod confessio illa generalis Deo facta in cursu illius poenitentiae sufficit homini ad salutem, nec requiritur alia facienda sacerdoti propter malum statum sacerdotum praesentium. Haec autem poenitentia novam fidem dictat, et Deum valde delectat.—Est igitur fides nova, scil. ista, quae omnes salvandos salvat, et antiqua, scil. evangelica, quae omnes damnat. Haec fides ponit, quod baptismus et confessio non sunt necessaria, ut dictum est. Impossibilis est eucharistia: nullus enim sacerdos, postquam praedictos poenitentes propter suam avaritiam repulerunt, et quia turpem vitam et maxime luxuriosam principaliter gerunt, confidere potuit corpus Christi. Quomodo enim mundissimum corpus Christi tractari vellet profanis manibus immundissimi sacerdotis? Item inutilis est unctio extrema. Et ita videtur de aliis sacramentis. Item vana est ecclesiastica sepultura. Nec est aliiquid consecratio Ecclesiae vel coemeterii. Item superstitionis res est quaerere indulgentias. In hac fide nova sic vivas, quod Deum non offendas, sed et pro omni offensa sanguinem tuum fundas, sicut et Christus pro tua offensa sanguinem fudit. Panem illum altaris, quia non est Christus, non adorabis, nec ei aliquem honorem, vel etiam imagini Crucifixi, aut imaginibus Sanctorum impendas.—Cum tamen idem panis praebetur ab altari, cum aliis accipias etiam et tu, ne ipsos scandalizes, et ut latere possis.—The following exhortation is peculiar: Eleemosynam tuam tribue pauperibus, et maxime valet calidus panis. So says also Conrad Schmidt in his Prophethica (see note 9): Ir en solt nummen gebacken, ir en sollet uwirs and thus there now sprang up heretical flagellants, sometimes called also by the common name of Beghards;¹¹ they existed down to the time of the Reformation, especially in Thuringia, as an heretical sect very dangerous to the Church.¹²

This warning example, as well as the mistrust natural to the hierarchy of all spiritual impulses, which did not originate from itself, decided the destiny of the later societies of flagellants. When the Whitemen (Bianchi), scourging themselves as they went, descended from the Alps into Italy, in 1399, they were rebrotis warm geben dorch God, welchir masze ir förmögít. Das ist uch gud, das was unsem lieben herren beheilich in der alten ee, unde ist öme noch beheilich. For this they refer to Sarah, who (Gen. xviii. 6) set before the Lord new baked bread.

ceived almost every where with enthusiasm by the clergy and the people ; but in the papal territory death awaited their leader, and the rest were thereupon dispersed.¹³ St. Vincentius Ferrerius, indeed, a Spanish Dominican, who was probably the prime mover of the penitential pilgrimage of the Bianchi,¹⁴ during his wanderings in Upper Italy, Southern France, and Spain, afterward conducted processions of flagellants ;¹⁵ but the prevalent disapproval of them in the Council of Constance¹⁶ induced him also to discontinue them.

EIGHTH CHAPTER.

EFFORTS FOR REFORM.

§ 124.

IN BOHEMIA.

Die Vorläufer des Husitenthums in Böhmen. Aus den Quellen bearbeitet v. Dr. J. P. Jordan, Leipzig, 1846.

In proportion as the Papacy grew more powerful and more terrible, the sects which raised themselves against it partook more of the character of passion and superstition, and were rather inclined, as they quite despaired of salvation within the Church, to seek the foundation of their religious faith without her pale. When the power of the Papacy sank in the same degree as its oppression increased, a more prudent direction was given to reform ; recognizing the everlasting foundation of Christianity in the

Church, it endeavored to rescue her from the abuses which had crept in.

However, the various efforts of the fourteenth century for reform present essential differences. For the most part they aimed only at the restoration of external order in the Church; to wit, the limitation of the Papal power, and the restoration of outward chastity and decorum among the clergy, without recognizing the more deeply concealed sources of corruption. The mystics made a nearer approach to the true path of reformation: avoiding all overestimation of divine worship, they set the highest value upon the life of religion in the inner man. But they were satisfied with laying aside whatever did not please them in the Church; they were also incapable, from their one-sided tendencies in the way chiefly of the feelings, of examining and thoroughly judging the position of the Church as a whole.

The genuine reformers were distinguished by the fact that they did not so much regard the corruption in isolated abuses as in the general spirit of the Church, and accordingly strove for a renovation of this spirit. Undoubtedly the later Protestants reckoned among these testes veritatis (witnesses to the truth) many who did not belong to their number.¹ There are others who can not, at any rate with certainty, be enrolled among them, because their opinions are only known on isolated points.² Nevertheless a genuine spirit of reform diffused itself in Bohemia: starting from a demand for amendment of morals, it soon advanced to the knowledge that the Church was disorganized and required a renovation.

¹ E. g. John Munsinger, rector of the School in Ulm (by Flacius, Catal. Testium Veritatis, no. 315, and several others), because he rejected the adoration of the sacrament. However, the tenets for which Munsinger was pronounced a heretic by the Dominicans at Ulm, in 1385, according to the verdict of the universities of Prague (Schelhorn, Amoenitates Literariae, viii. 511), and Vienna (l. c. xi. 222), which were consulted on the occasion, were as follows: Corpus Christi non est Deus. Nulla creatura est adoranda adoratione qua Deus debet adorari, adoratione scil. latriae: But—hyperdulia debetur creaturae excellenti, sicut est caro Christi, b. Virgo, etc. Further: Hostia consecrata non est Deus; but—Deus est sub hostia consecrata, corpus ejus, sanguis et anima. That is—per hostiam intelligo accidentia quae sunt in pane, rotunditatem vide-licet, saporem et gravitatem. He would not have the consecrated host called absolutely corpus Christi, quia accidentia visa non sunt corpus Christi, licet intus sit corpus Christi. Therefore it was, propter simplices tutius, to say—hic esse corpus Christi sub specie panis. So Munsinger only meant that the species must not be considered to be Christ himself, but he did not by any means deny that Christ must be adored, sub specie panis: accordingly both universities at this time declared his tenets orthodox.

² Thus, in Würzburg, A.D. 1342, the layman, Francis Hager (not Conrad Hager, as Flacius, Catal. Test. Verit. no. 305, states), was first obliged to recant the assertion that the sacrifice of masses for the dead was neither meritorious nor availing: and soon after the priest, Hermann Küchner, who passed for a Beghard, had to recant the other assertion, that popes and bishops, as regards their orders, were neither greater nor any thing

Two preachers of repentance, appearing at Prague about the same time, were the first to gain a powerful influence over the common people; but for this very reason they drew on themselves the hatred of the rest of the clergy. The German, Conrad of Waldhausen (Conradus ab Austria),³ pastor of the Teynkirche in Prague († 1369), made the mendicants in particular his foes by assailing their abuses.⁴ The Moravian, Milicz, of Kremsier,⁵ who laid down his ecclesiastical office in 1363, with a view to devote himself to a free apostolical ministry, gave an opportunity of denouncing him as a heretic to the Pope, by teaching that Anti-christ was come, and that Christians, wherever it was possible, must communicate daily.⁶ He went in person to Avignon, and otherwise than other priests; see Ludewig, Gesch. vom Bisth. Würzburg (Frankf. 1713, fol.), s. 626.

justified himself, but died there soon after († 1374).⁷ But we first find the genuine insight of a reformer into the state of the Church in Matthias of Janow (Magister Parisiensis, from 1381 canon of the cathedral church in Prague, † 1394),⁸ who received language), nevertheless he went on with zeal: et sic per ejus assiduam praedicationem et austoritatem correctionum primo aperiebantur aures surdorum,—et post coepit populus affluere et admirabantur turbae laudantes nomen Domini, etc. In the year 1367 he first went to Rome to preach there, but he was thrown into prison for some time, for advertising by a bill posted on St. Peter's Church, quod Antichristus venit; and the mendicants in Prague began already to announce in their sermons: Carissimi, ecce jam Militus cremabitur (Vita, p. 51). After his return his zeal was so successful, ut etiam publicae meretrices de prostibulis per ejus praedicationem ad poenitentiam converterentur: and he changed the prostibulum Benatky (Venetias) nuncupatum into a conservatorium conversarum for them (Vita, p. 55). But at length hatred and envy broke forth into persecution against him, Vita, p. 58: malignus spiritus—Praelatos, Plebanos, Religiosos ad furorem in eum suscitavit, ita ut praedicationem sibi saepius prohiberent, et haereticum eum appellarent. P. 59: ei verbis multis ac probosis conviciaabantur, inter caetera vero dicebant: a principio praedicationis tuae nunquam pace fruimur, sed semper disturbia multa patimur.—Quem saepius et Beghardum, et Hypocritam, et Sodomitam appellabant:—Postremo vero in tantum fuerunt in furorem concitati, quod et 12 articulos falsos et mendaces construxerunt, et eos ad Curiam Romanam—miserunt. The Pope charged the Archbishop of Prague to institute an inquiry (Raynald. ann. 1374, no. 10), and sought the necessary support from Charles IV. (ibid. no. 11). These twelve articles are in Jordan, s. 39. In them the following doctrines were alleged against him; that Antichrist was come, that it was damnable to purchase the tithes of a Church, that such taxes as the priests drew from landed property were usurious, quod omnis homo tenetur de necessitate saltem ad minus bis in hebdomada sumere corporis dominici sacramentum. Further, he was charged with having given the form of an Order to his society of penitent women, and likewise to a congregation of priests, caring for no man's opposition, nay, with having even said, quod in Papa, Cardinalibus, Episcopis, etc., veritas nulla esset, et nullus ex eis duceret ad viam veritatis; with condemning the study of the liberal arts, and censuring the modest dress of women, with having said that he had done more than Christ, and with having preached that priests should hold property only in common.

⁸ His principal work, still extant in MS., is, Regulae Veteris et Novi Testamenti, in five books. The works of Matthias, given in Balbini Bohemia docta, ed. ab Raph. Ungar, ii. 178, are only separate treatises of this work; namely, de Hypocrisi from lib. ii., de Frequenti Communione, de Unitate Ecclesiae, de Antichristo, de Abominatione in Ecclesia Dei, from lib. iii.; see Jordan, s. 50, 58. In the preface to the Confessio Bohemica, A.D. 1535 (Niemeyer, Coll. Confessionum in Eccl. Reformatis publicatarum, p. 776), it is stated that the Lib. de Abominatione of Matthias, sub titulo et nomine Magistri Jo. Hus excusus in lucem exiit. Thus the work is found also in the Historia et Monumenta Jo. Hus. atque Hieron. Pragensis, Norimb. 1715, i. 473. But, according to Jordan, s. 52, who had the whole work, Regulae vet. et novi Test., in MS. before him, the whole passage in that edition, p. 473–627, is not by Huss, but taken from the manuscripts of our Matthias, only immoderately mutilated and imperfect. That the fragment, De Mysterio Iniquitatis Antichristi, i. 603, belongs to Matthiae Tract. de Antichristo, is proved by the quotations from this tract in the Lib. de Abominatione, which reappear in that fragment (compare, p. 512, 557, with 610; p. 515 with 611; p. 586 with 612). Likewise, p. 597, De Unitate Ecclesiae et Schismate, may well belong to Matthiae Tract.

his earliest impulse from Milicz. He saw how the Church had changed herself from a spiritual power into a system of force, like the secular state; he vindicated the free spiritual life of ancient Christendom against the mass of outward statutes and decrees enforced by authority;⁹ he denounced the manifold corruptions of the Church,¹⁰ and emphatically appealed to the Bible, as the pure de Unitate Ecclesiae. Other excerpts from Matthias's great work may be seen in Jordan, s. 59.

¹⁰ Matthiae, Lib. de Sacerdotum et Monachorum abhorrenda Abominatione Desolationis in Ecclesia Christi, in Hist. et Monum. Jo. Hus, i. 473. Cap. 3: illa nocentissima abomination in Dei Ecclesia, puta controversia inter Sacerdotes, et maxime tuic et manifeste [invaluit], quando Religiosi falsi sunt multiplicati per Ecclesiam et invaluerunt.—Ubicunque nondum manent Religiosi, vel non visitant ibidem communiter, ibi stant bene Sacerdotes concorditer ad invicem, et plebs est sine distractione et dissensione.—Cap. 21: Vae, vae illis, qui faciunt multas promissiones in populis, et excogitant atque adinveniunt multas justificationes peccatoribus!—Veluti est promissio multarum indulgentiarum in festis suis vel locis, ut habeant per hoc nomen, et p[ro]ae aliis accursum et applausum populorum: promissio literarum ab omni poena et culpa, promissio communionis fraternitatum, et omnium orationum vel Missarum, vel aliorum bonorum, quae per confratres exercentur, etc.—quae nec ipsi certi sunt, si acceptabilia sunt Deo, imo plus odibilia Deo.—Cap. 30: Veruntamen, salvo judicio meliori, ego puto coram Domino dulcissimo Jesu crucifixo, tunc illa omnia habuisse suum initium, quando dominus Apostolicus contraxit ad se omnia beneficia et officia Ecclesiae, pro sua voluntate dispensando, et incepit dispensatione beneficiorum totius Ecclesiae occupari, atque distributione bonorum temporalium se ipsum aggravare, et conferre multa privilegia, et exemptiones ab obedientia infinitis personis,—puta ut essent sibi soli subjecti, et a suis immediatis Praelatis exempti,—habentes potestatem super terrenos (leg. alienos), subditos confessiones audiendi, et auctoritatem praedicandi quae volunt, et per consequens impediendi dominos Curatos, et Ordinem sanctissimum conturbandi, alios Ordines excogitando.—(Satan) abduxit Christianos—a primaeva ipsorum dignitate et sanctitate—ad quandam mirabilem simulationem, et Deo nimis abominabilem conversationem, compositam ex vitiis et speciebus sanctitatis, religionis et virtutum, facientem solum apparentium splendidae et laudabiles apud homines, sed nequaquam apud Deum. Ita dico, abduxit spiritualiter et successive a virtutibus pulcherrimis et dulcissimis, et a rigore ipsarum ad quandam vanitatem vitae, et tepiditatem abominabilem solum consuetudinem et rituum Ecclesiae Romanae, similiter in facie bene apparentium, sed in veritate Dei mortuorum, et desolatorum a Spiritu Jesu crucifixi: ita ut omnia fere Christianorum jam decora et honesta, sint solum quasi pulchra imago exterius picta sine spiritu et vita, sint quoque justitia hominum propria, nimis remota a justitia Dei.—Seduxit, inquam, tali modo—populum christianum, ut omnia turpia et omnia vitia, quae

in primitivo populo tantum erant horribilia et abusiva, sint usitata,—excusata.—Et non solum hoc, sed etiam viceversa, qui alienant se strenue ab exercitio talium et a contubernio propter Domini Jesu timorem et amorem, mox a vulgo christiano hujus mundi conviciantur et confunduntur, et nota pessima singularitatum vel haeresum criminantur: propter quod tales homines devoti, qui similia vulgo profano non agunt, Bechardi vel Turlpinii, aut aliis nominibus blasphemis communiter jam nominantur.—Cap. 37: Dei Ecclesia nequit ad pristinam suam dignitatem reduci, vel reformari, nisi prius omnia fiant nova.—Credo,—quod jam tunc surget novus populus, secundum novum hominem formatus, qui secundum Deum creatus est: ex quo novi clerici et sacerdotes provenient et assumuntur, qui omnes odient avaritiam et gloriam hujus vitae, ad conversationem caelestem festinando.—Veruntamen Dominus piissimus Jesus Christus hoc opus, puta innovationis Ecclesiae sua, jam in nostris temporibus, i. e. a 50 vel 70 annis, coepit valde accelerare, exercens sua judicia manifesta in Christianis per orbem manifestum.—Cap. 60: Diabolus omnem religiositatem in Ecclesia multiplicat in conventibus et personis, et per consequens omnem sanctitatem et faciem pietatis et gratiae in verbis et habitu exteriori, sed omnia solum ad extra et secundum faciem corporalem, et sine spiritu Jesu crucifixi. Multiplicavit insuper—omnem decorum et honestatem in Ecclesiasticis, vel saltem illa omnia accepit sibi in adminiculum seducendi Christianos ad amorem hujus saeculi.—Inde etiam idem Satan—multiplicavit promissiones infinitas, et magnas in Dei Ecclesia peccatoribus et amatoribus talibus hujus saeculi justifications multas inventitias humanas, aut ipsas convertit ad suam fortiorum deceptionem, ut Christiani in illis sibi blandirentur, et constituerent suam spem salutis, non habentes ad Jesum crucifixum fidem caritatem et ad proximos, et habentes vitam totaliter carnalem.—Item ob id permisit vel procuravit fieri—scientias adinventitias et recentes, quae aequaliter vel magis quam scientia Dei—sunt authenticae, tremendae, et maxime auctoritatis.—Multiplicata sunt ad haec mandata et ceremoniae hominum infinitae, et ut tantum essent tremenda et tantae auctoritatis, quemadmodum Dei summi praecepta, praedicantur et docentur, et cum magna distinctione imperantur.—Multiplicata sunt quoque multa incerta corporalia, simpliciter nullam virtutem in se ipsis habentia, nullam efficaciam salutis, nullam sanctitatem spiritus Jesu, nullam auctoritatem ex Deo vel Scripturis, quae quia sunt in se recentia et nova, et splendida coram hominibus, et quasi stupenda, et celeberrime praedicantur, commendantur et famantur, vulgus ea accipit nimis ardue, colit et adorat strenue, tremit coram ipsis, et virtutem quandam magnam et suffragia ponit, quod in talibus corporalibus—et per talia sit Deus colendus et inquirendus.—Cap. 82: Hypocritae, et maxime sacerdotes amici hujus saeculi, habent illud de more, quod Sanctos Dei, qui sunt in caelis, multum nimis solemnisant et extollunt: sanctos vere Christianos secum adhuc in hac vita pauperes et humiles contemnunt et persecuntur.—Sanctorum in caelis ossa et reliquias sumptuose procurant auro, et serico contingunt, sed pauperes sanctos degentes cum eis in hac vita admittunt fame et siti cruciari, et nudos pati gelu et frigora.—Et hoc commune est apud ipsis, illustres viros et sanctos mortuos laudare et glorificare supra modum, sanctos vero illustres et conviventes vituperare, et ipsorum facta virtuosa detractione obnubilare.—Cap. 83: The Mulier ebria de sanguine Sanctorum (Apoc. 17, 6), he explains, de multitudine hypocitarum, qui secundum communem consuetudinem nunc Ecclesiae vocantur Religiosi.—Nulli etenim magis proprie comedunt peccata populorum, sicut ipsis, et bibunt et inebriantur.—In isto tamen valde talium ebrietas sanguinis ostenditur evidenter, puta quod in tantum placet ipsis peccata populorum comedere et potare, quod otiosam vitam et quietam continuantes, accipiunt multas oblationes et donaria magna tradita pro peccatis, quod non audent hominibus peccatoribus annunciare peccata ipsorum vel aggravare, quinimo magis peccatis blandiuntur et excusant.—Et super hoc amplius vigilare eos oportet omni speciei religionis et pietatis, utpote templis eorum de magno sumptu et adornatissimis omni supellecstile pulcherrima et delectabili in aspectu populorum, ita ut omnia sint munda coram hominibus ordinata, quatenus perinde extrahendi a plebis alienis magis donaria et multam eleemosynam, multam haberent occasionem et nimium coloratam. So among them also are—multae festivitates gloriosae Sanctorum Dei in caelis,—multae Sanctorum reliquiae, —pulcherrimae picturae et statuae, quae faciunt insignia portenta et miracula magna.—

source of Christian faith.¹¹ He likewise, as well as Milicz, recommended more frequent communion, until a synod at Prague, A.D. 1388, decided against it.¹²

These men afterward were rightly regarded as the forerunners of Huss.¹³ Still the Hussites, after the cup in the Lord's Supper

Et tunc deinceps nequaquam est omittendum, quia talia omnia et cum multo additamento exquisite in populis divulgantur,—proclamentur, ut sciant Christiani, ubi vel qua suam salutem debeat providere. Enimvero indulgentiae magnae et magna promissa omnibus accidentibus, et gratiae vix ab hominibus credibiles, alias ita authenticae, et a dominis apostolicis ita roboratae per testes et per bullas, quod non est plus homini de ipsis nullo modo dubitare. Nam etsi contradiceret, vel non crederet, indignationem Dei omnipotens incurret. Et forte plaga manifesta puniretur, sicut jam multi, inquit, pro simili incredulitate sunt puniti. Jordan, s. 80: Nec per hoc ego curo negare, imagines rationabiliter fieri in Ecclesia et poni, cum hoc teneat universitas sanctae Ecclesiae, et dicatur communiter, quod tales imagines sunt scriptura laicorum. Decoretur igitur templum statuis imaginum: huic ego non obsto,—dummodo in talibus cautela contra daemonia, sicut et in aliis, habeatur. Sed hoc audacter dico, quod quam cito una imago amplius reveretur quam aliae imagines in templo, vel habet concursum ampliorem plebis cum candelis, genuflexionibus vel aliter, mox est de templo ejicienda, tamquam offendiculum populi. Item si adjungantur aliqua signa facta quasi per imaginem aut ratione imaginis vel aliter, iterum illico illa statua est cassanda; quia jam valde timendum est plebi Christi, ne fortasse tunc accesserit ibi jam daemonium, volens ludificare plebejos, et polluere adorationem Jesu Christi corporis et sanguinis pretiosi.

became the token of their party, were not right in appealing to them as supporters of this doctrine. At first, the contest of Matthias v. Janow for more frequent communion was misunderstood, as though he had demanded the cup for the laity, and administered it to them.¹⁴ Much later, Hussite writers conjectured, without any reason, that the efforts of all the three men here mentioned were connected with the Graeco-Sclavonian modes of worship, which were supposed to have held their ground until this time, and that they especially opposed the withholding of the cup.¹⁵

¹⁵ Paulus Stransky, De Republica Bojema 1633, c. vi. § 5 (also in Goldasti Comm. de Regni Bohem. Juribus, ed. Schminckii II, 511), is the first who presents this view, without however making any particular mention of the cup; next after him comes Jo. Amos Comenius (Historia Persecutionum Ecclesiae Bohemicae 1648, p. 19 ss., and Historia Fratrum Bohemorum 1660, ed. Buddei, p. 6), who is the first to make these men champions of the chalice. All later writers followed him, especially Augustin Zitte, in his uncritical and fancifully illustrated Lives of the three most distinguished precursors of the renowned M. John Huss, Prague, 1786 (in the Kurze Lebensbeschreibung berühmter Männer Böhmens Bd. 1), to which even Schröckh, xxxiv. 566, gives too much credit. The following reasons are opposed to the above-mentioned view: 1. In the earlier sources there is no trace to be found of a Graeco-Slavonic ritual in the time of Charles IV., nor of a persecution on account of it; on the other hand, this emperor built the monastery of Emaus, in Prague, for the Latino-Slavonic ritual, A.D. 1347; compare Dobner in the Abhandl. der Böhmischen Gesellsch. der Wissensch. for 1785, s. 174, for 1786, s. 433: and 2, in the numerous works and treatises which followed the introduction of the cup by James of Misa (with the exception of that remarked on in note 14) there are no hints whatever of any earlier attempts of the kind to be found.* The Bohemian brethren in their Apologia Verae Doctrinae, A.D. 1538 (see vol. iv. Div. 1, § 14, note 4 of Gieseler's Chh. Hist.) in Lydii Waldensia II., 292, state expressly: Mag. Jacobellus primus omnium communionem utriusque speciei in Bohemia practicare cepit.

In England the oppressions of the Papal See were felt with double force after the latter had become openly dependent upon the hostile power of France. Government and Parliament, impelled and supported by the general voice of the nation, resisted them with resolution and success.¹ But in consequence of this; the eyes of many were opened to other ecclesiastical corruptions;² especially was the influence of the mendicants, the Pope's most zealous officers, visited with censure from all sides.³

² Thus Robert Longland, a priest, about 1350, published an allegorical poem, "The Visions of Peirce Plowman" (with comm. by Whitaker, Lond. 1813. 4.), which lashed the ecclesiastical superstition, the monks, etc., and proclaimed a reformation of the Church. It soon became very popular. Compare Warton, History of English Poetry (Lond. 1774, 2 voll. 4.), i. 287; Vaughan, ii. 148. The monk John Ball also, who afterward joined Wycliffe, had already preached in this strain; see Schlosser's Weltgeschichte, ii. 266.

a firm basis in his love for his father-land, and his zeal for true Christianity.⁵ He was the first to come forward as a bold champion in the quarrels of the University with the mendicant monks, A.D. 1360, and to denounce without disguise the corruptions of these Orders.⁶ When Edward III., in 1366, with the help of his Parliament, delivered himself from the shameful tax paid to the Pope, Wycliffe boldly defended this step likewise.⁷ As he addressed himself in numerous works in his native language to the whole nation, he met with great sympathy among all classes, except the monks; this was further strengthened by the fact that Geoffrey Chaucer († 1400), the father of English poetry, joined in the assault upon the mendicants.⁸ Wycliffe became professor of divinity at Oxford in 1372, and in 1375 rector of Lutterworth; and when the government endeavored more seriously than ever to withdraw the Church of England from the Pope's arbitrary power, Wycliffe was one of the ambassadors who negotiated a convention for this purpose with the Papal delegates at Bruges in 1374.⁹ Under these circumstances he had opportunities enough to see the corruption of the Papacy,¹⁰ as well as the injurious effects of monasticism.¹¹ Since he declared his convictions with boldness, he was accused before the Pope, in 1376, of nineteen errors philosophia nulli reputabatur secundus, in scholasticis disciplinis incomparabilis. His numerous works (enumerated by Lewis, p. 143, sq. Vaughan, ii. 379) can not, unfortunately, for the most part, be arranged with any certainty in chronological order.

⁵ On his first work, The Last Age of the Church, A.D. 1356 (Ed. James Henthorn Todd, Dublin, 1841), see Vaughan 1, 254.

⁷ Compare above, § 101, note 12. Lewis, p. 17. Vaughan, i. 278. Ruever Groneman, p. 87. A monk had written against it, and maintained, quod sit falsum et pseudoevangelicum, quod domini temporales possunt in aliquo casu legitime auferre ab Ecclesiasticis bona sua. Wycliffe wrote in answer a Determinatio de Dominio, printed in Lewis, p. 363 ss.

in doctrine. Gregory XI. instituted an inquiry against him.¹² All danger on this account, however, was warded off from him by the favor of the secular nobles, especially the Duke of Lancaster, who held the regency after Edward's death († 1377).¹³

From the great Papal schism (1378) Wycliffe derived a fresh impulse, as well as greater freedom, in searching out the defects of the Church and proposing amendment. He summoned the secular powers to avail themselves of this favorable time for the reformation of the Church,¹⁴ and sent out his disciples through the country (poor Priests, called Lollards by their adversaries),¹⁵ to oppose a genuine apostolical agency to the pretended one of the

At the second hearing, in the archbishop's palace at Lambeth in London, where, as Walsingham, p. 205, complains—non dico cives tantum Londonienses, sed viles ipsius civitatis se impudenter ingerere praesumpserunt in eandem capellam, et verba facere pro eodem, et istud negotium impedire, Wycliffe gave in a Declaratio of those propositions (p. 206), in which on some points at any rate, he yielded skillfully, e. g. ad I.: patet non esse in hominum potestate impedire adventum Christi ad finale judicium.—Ad VI.: Si Deus est, ipse est omnipotens. Et si sic, ipse potest praecipere dominis temporalibus, sic auferre:—sed absit ex illo credere, quod intentionis meae sit, saeculares dominos licete posse auferre, quandocunque et quomodo cunque voluerint vel nuda auctoritate sua, sed omnino auctoritate Ecclesiae in casibus et forma limitatis a jure. But others he defended, e. g. ad VIII.: patet ex fide catholica, cum oportet dominum [in] omni operatione vicaria tenere primatum. Ideo sicut in omni habilitatione subjecti prius exigitur gratia et dignitas habilitati, sic in omni habilitatione prius exigitur dignitas ex demerito inhabilitati, et per consequens non pure ex ministerio vicarii Christi fit talis habilitatio vel inhabilitatio. begging friars, and to preach against the anti-Christian hierarchy and the abuses in the Church. Hitherto he had attacked only matters that concerned the ecclesiastical constitution and discipline; now he advanced with bolder steps. In 1380 he began to translate the Bible into English, and as this undertaking was forthwith assailed as heretical, he maintained the people's right to the Holy Scriptures.¹⁶ When he began, in the year 1381, to impugn even the doctrine of transubstantiation, many who were his partisans up to this point were alarmed;¹⁷ but Wycliffe had already so many adherents among the learned, especially in Oxford, that he could not be wholly put down. William Courtney distinguished his promotion to the archiepiscopal see of Canterbury by condemning a series of Wycliffite opinions as heretical, at a council in London (May and June, 1382).¹⁸ When the hiequo corpus Christi est in Eucharistia et Sanctis per gratiam. Et tertius est modus essendi sacramentalis, quo corpus Christi singulariter [est] in hostia consecrata. Sed praeter istos tres modos essendi sunt alii tres modi realiores et veriores quos corpus Christi appropriate habet in caelo, scil. modus essendi substantialiter, corporaliter et dimensionaliter. Et grosse concipientes non intelligunt alium modum essendi naturalis substantiae praeter illos. Illi autem sunt valde indispositi ad concipiendum arcana Eucharistiae, et subtilitatem Scripturae. These adherents of transubstantiation were designated as—secta cultorum accidentium, cultores signorum, and refuted from several passages of the Fathers of the Church. The conclusion: Vae generationi adulterae, quae plus credit testimonio Innocentii vel Raymundi, quam sensui Evangelii capto a testibus supradictis. Idem enim esset scandalizare illos in isto, et imporrere eis haeresim ex perversione sensus Scripturae, praecipue et iterum de ore perverso Apostatae accumulantis super Ecclesiam Romanam mendacia, quibus fingit, quod Ecclesia posterior priori contraria correxit fidem, quod sacramentum istud sit accidens sine subjecto, et non verus panis et vinum, ut dicit Evangelium cum Decreto. Nam teste Augustino tale accidens sine subjecto non potest sacerdos confidere. Et tamen tantum magnificant sacerdotes Baal mendaciter, indubie juxta scholam patris sui, consecrationem hujus accidentis, quod reputant Missas alias indignas audiri, vel dissentientes suis mendaciis inhabiles alicubi graduari: sed credo, quod finaliter veritas vincet eos. Before the people he defended his doctrine in his work The Wicket, printed at Nuremberg in 1546, ed. by H. Jackson, Oxford, 1612, and in Writings of John Wycliff, printed for the Religious Tract Society, London (without date, probably 1836), p. 153. Compare Vaughan, ii. 64. Ruver Groneman, p. 181.

¹⁶ Henr. de Knyghton, p. 2644: Hic Magister Jo. Wyclif Evangelium, quod Christus contulit Clericis et Ecclesiae Doctoribus, ut ipsi Laicis et infirmioribus personis secundum temporis exigentiam et personarum indigentiam cum mentis esurie dulciter ministrarent, transtulit de Latino in Anglicam linguam, non angelicam, unde per ipsum fit vulgare et magis apertum laicis et mulieribus legere scientibus, quam solet esse Clericis admodum literatis et bene intelligentibus: et sic evangelica margarita spargitur, et a porcis conculcatur, etc. Wycliffe defended his translation in his work, On the Truth and Meaning of Scripture; see Vaughan, ii. 7. Passages from it may be seen in Wharton Auctarium Historiae Dogmaticae J. Usserii de Scripturis et sacris Vernaculis. Londin. 1689. 4. p. 432 ss., in Lewis, p. 67 ss. E. g. The clergy cry aloud, it is Heresy to speake of the Holy Scripture in English, and so they woulde condempne the Holy Goste that gave it in Tongues to the Apostles of Christe, as it is written, to speake the Worde of God in all Languages that were ordayneed of God under Heaven, as it is wrytten. Wycliffe's translation of the New Testament was published by J. Lewis, 1731, and by H. H. Baber, 1810; [and in four volumes, 4. Univ. Press, Oxford, 1850, edited by Rev. Josiah Forshall and Sir Fred. Madden]. Compare Vaughan, ii. 42. Ruever Grone-man, p. 160, 252.

¹⁸ See Mansi xxvi. 695. The following were condemned as Conclusiones haereticae: I. Quod substantia panis materialis et vini maneat post consecrationem in sacramento altaris. II. Item quod accidentia non maneant sine subjecto post consecrationem in eodem sacramento. III. Item quod Christus non sit in sacramento altaris identice, vere et realiter in propria praesentia corporali. IV. Item quod si Episcopus vel sacerdos existat in peccato mortali, non ordinat, conficit, nec baptizat. V. Item quod si homo fuerit debite contritus, omnis confessio exterior est sibi superflua vel inutilis. VI. Item pertinaciter asserere, non esse fundatum in Evangelio, quod Christus Missam ordinaverit. VII. Item quod Deus debet obedire Diabolo. VIII. Item quod si Papa sit praestigiator et malus homo, ac per consequens membrum Diaboli, non habet potestatem supra fideles Christi ab aliquo sibi datam, nisi forte a Caesare. IX. Item quod post Urbanum sextum non est aliquis recipiendus in Papam, sed vivendum est more Graecorum sub legibus propriis. X. Item asserere, quod est contra sacram Scripturam, quod viri ecclesiastici habeant possessiones temporales. Then follow fourteen Conclusiones erroneae: I. Quod nullus Praelatus debet aliquem excommunicare, nisi prius ipsum sciat esse excommunicatum a Deo. III. Three of Wycliffe's most eminent adherents, men of learning at Oxford, Nicholas de Hereford, John Aston, and Philip Repingdon, had to present themselves in person before this council; but their declarations with regard to these propositions were not satisfactory. Wycliffe complained that many positions were falsely attributed to him at this council; for instance, Deus debet obedire Diabolo, see Lewis, p. 96.

¹⁹ With regard to this, see Knyghton, p. 2633; Walsingham, p. 247; Schlosser's Weltgeschichte, iv. ii. 271; Ruever Groneman, p. 221. John Ball was the spiritual leader of the peasants, as Wat Tyler was the temporal. The end in view was communistic. The rich were to be slain, and all property divided. The peasants' cry was,

Whan Adam dalf and Eve span,
Who was than a gentleman?

ceed without opposition in his zeal against ecclesiastical abuses. Not long before his death († 1384) he wrote the Trialogus, in which the knowledge he had attained with regard to the Church and theology is laid down, being, as it were, his theological bequest.²¹

²¹ Jo. Wiclefi Dialogorum Libri iv. ed. (Basileae), 1525. 4. (compare Baumgarten's Nachrichten von einer hall. Bibl. v. 178); ed. L. Ph. Wirth. Francof. et Lips. 1753. 4. Wycliffe himself calls the work Trialogus; compare the introduction: vidimus quod posset multis utilis quidam esse Trialogus, ubi primo Alithia tanquam solidus theologus loqueretur; secundo infidelis captiosus tanquam Pseudis objiceret; et tertio subtilis theologus et maturus tanquam Phronesis decideret veritatem. Contents: Lib. i. de Deo et ideis (in which Platonic realism is emphatically defended), lib. ii. de rebus creatis (in which, c. 14, a strict Predestinarianism is maintained): Et sic videtur mihi probabile, quod Deus necessitat creaturas singulas activas ad quemlibet actum suum. Et sic sunt aliqui praedestinati, hoc est post laborem ordinati ad gloriam: aliqui praesciti, hoc est post vitam miseram ad poenam perpetuam ordinati (cf. Thomas Bradwardinus, § 116, note 13). Lib. iii. de virtutibus et vitiis (cf. cap. 31: nulla alia scriptura capit auctoritatem vel valorem, nisi de quanto sua sententia a Scriptura sacra sit derivata).—Et hinc Augustinus—saepe praecepit, quod nemo credit scriptis suis vel verbis, nisi de quanto se fundaverint in Scriptura, et in ipsa, ut saepe dicit, omnis veritas implicite vel explicite continetur. Et indubie idem est judicium de scriptis aliorum sanctorum doctorum, et multo magis de scriptis Romanae Ecclesiae, et doctorum novorum.—Et tunc Scriptura sacra foret in reverentia, et bullae papales (sicut debent) forent postpositae, et tam leges papales, quam doctorum novorum sententiae, quae sunt post solutionem Satanae promulgatae, forent in suis limitibus veneratae). Wycliffe comes forward as a reformer of the Church, especially in Lib. iv., in which, beginning with the sacraments, he censures many abuses and errors in the Church. First, de Eucharistia, c. 2–10, where he controverts as heresy the opinion, quod hoc sacramentum sit accidentis sine subiecto. Cap. 2: Ipsa curia ante solutionem diaboli cum antiqua sententia planius concordavit, ut patet Dist. ii. c. Ego Berengarius (see vol. ii. § 29, note 13). Et sic de omnibus sanctis doctoribus, qui usque ad solutionem Satanae istam materiam pertractarunt. A tempore autem solutionis Satanae, dimissa fide Scripturae, multae haereses in ista materia, et specialiter inter Fratres et discipulos eis similes, volitarunt. Cap. 4: Non dubium etiam laico idiota, quin sequitur: iste panis est corpus Christi, ergo iste panis est, et per consequens manet panis, et sic simul est panis et corpus Christi. Exempla autem possunt grossa poni pro ista materia attestanda. Non enim oportet, sed veritati repugnat, quod homo, dum fit dominus vel Praelatus Ecclesiae, desinat esse eadem persona: sed maneat omnino eadem substantia quodammodo exaltata. Sic oportet credere, quod iste panis virtute verborum sacramentalium fit consecratione sacerdotis primi veraciter corpus Christi:—natura panis non ex hinc destruitur, sed in dignorem substantiam exaltatur. Cap. 6: Istam ergo reputo causam lapsus hominum in istam haeresim, quod discredunt Evangelio, et leges papales ac dicta apocrypha plus acceptant. Cap. 7: Ideo si essent centum Papae, et omnes Fratres essent versi in Cardinales, non deberet concedi sententiae suae in materia fidei, nisi de quanto se fundaverint in Scriptura.—Cap. 14: De confirmatione, Doubts—de ejus fundatione ex fide Scripturae.—Cap. 15: De sacramento Ordinis: In primitiva Ecclesia—suffecerunt duo ordines clericorum, scil. sacerdos atque diaconus.—Tunc enim adinventa non fuit distinctio Papae et Cardinalium, Patriarcharum et Archiepiscoporum, Episcoporum et Archidiaconorum, Officialium et Decanorum cum caeteris officiariis, et privatis religionibus, quorum non est numerus neque ordo. De contentiōibus autem circa ista, quod unumquodque istorum est ordo, et in ejus acceptione gratia Dei ac character imprimitur, cum aliis difficultatibus, quas nostri balbutiunt, videtur mihi tacendum, cum sic loquentes nec fundant quod asserunt, nec probant. Sed ex fide Scripturae videtur mihi sufficere, esse Presbyteros atque Diaconos,

So long as Richard II. reigned, the government stood firm in

servantes statum atque officium, quod eis Christus imposuit, quia certum videtur, quod superbia caesarea hos gradus et ordines adinvenit.—Dixit Dominus ad Aaron : in terra eorum nihil possidebitis,—filii autem Levi dedi omnes decimas Israel.—Si ergo Praelati nostri—fundant se in secunda parte hujus dicti dominici ad avide capiendum decimas,—cur non primam partem auctoritatis Domini pro amore Christi pauperis adeo amplectuntur ? Cap. 17 : Habere civiliter, cum necessitat ad sollicitudinem circa temporalia et leges hominum observandas, debet omnino clericis interdici. Et quantum ad Sylvestrum et alios, est mihi probable, quod in recipiendo taliter dotationem graviter peccaverunt. Cap. 18 : Temporales domini in isto graviter peccaverunt. Et hinc credo quod justo Dei judicio taliter in suis mundanis divitiis sunt puniti. Ex hoc enim orta sunt bella, contentio et paupertas multorum saecularium dominorum.—Unde narrant Chronicæ, quod in dotatione Ecclesiae vox audita est in aëre angelica tunc temporis sic dicentis : hodie effusum est venenum in Ecclesia sancta Dei. Unde a tempore Constantini, qui sic dotavit Ecclesiam, decrevit imperium Romanum, et in ipso dominium saeculare.—Nos autem dicimus illis [dominis temporalibus], quod nedum possunt auferre temporalia ab Ecclesia habitudinaliter delinquente, nec solum quod illis licet hoc facere, sed quod debent sub poena damnationis gehennæ, cum debent de sua stultitia poenitere et satisfacere pro peccato, quo Christi Ecclesiam macularunt. Cap. 23 : De poenitentia. Prima est solum in animo et insensibilis, quia contritus Domino confitetur. Illa autem licet sit parvipensa, est tamen virtute maxima, sine qua aliae nihil valent. Secunda vero est poenitentia aggregata ex illa, et expressione vocali singulariter facta Deo, et sic tam Patres legis veteris, quam Patres novi Testamenti communiter sunt confessi. Sed tertia est poenitentia aggregata ex duabus prioribus, et promulgatione secreta private facta Presbytero. Et ad istam poenitentiam magis attendimus propter lucrum. Utrum autem ista poenitentia tertia sit de necessitate salutis, vel qua auctoritate introducta fuerat, est dissensio apud multos.—Sed non credit aliquis, quin sine tali confessione auriculari stat hominem vere conteri et salvare, cum Petrus injunxit generalem poenitentiam. On the passage Matth. xvi. 19 : Quocunque ligaveris, etc. Non videtur hoc dictum in Petro ulteriore sapere potestatem, nisi quod omne, quod ligaverit vel solverit super terram conformiter ad Christi judicium et Ecclesiae triumphantis, erit solutum et in caelis. Cap. 25 : De extrema unctione. This sacrament is not to be grounded upon the passage, James v. 14 : cum fidelis posset dicere satis probabiliter, quod ille sanctus Apostolus non specivocat infirmitatem finalem, sed consolationem faciendam a Presbytero, dum aliquis infirmatur, et quia per viam naturae oleum abundans in illis partibus valet ad corporis sanitatem. Ideo talem meminit unctionem, non quod illud oleum agat in animam, sed quod oratio effusa a sacerdote devoto medicat quenquam, ut Deus infirmitati animae suffragetur. Si enim ista corporalis unctione foret sacramentum, ut modo fingitur, Christus et caeteri Apostoli ejus promulgationem et executionem debitam non tacerent.—Et sic in sacramento baptismatis, in sacramento confirmationis et cunctis aliis Antichristus ritus infundabiles adinvenit, et ad onus Ecclesiae extra fidem Scripturae supra fideles subditos cumulavit. Sacraenta autem alia necessaria praetermisit, ut patet de septem operibus spiritualis misericordiae, quae debent apud fideles, et specialiter Presbyteros, esse sacramentum, etc. Cap. 26 : De speciebus ministrorum : Antichristus habet sub specie cleri procuratores duodecim contra Ecclesiam Christi machinantes, cuiusmodi communiter ponuntur Papae et Cardinales, Patriarchae, Archipraesules, Episcopi, Archidiaconi, Officiales, Decani, Monachi et Canonici bifurcati, Pseudofratres introducti jam ultimo, et Quaestores (from these must be distinguished—sacerdotes Christi, recte ejus Evangelium praedicantes. Et ista pars debet esse quasi anima corpori matris nostræ). Omnes autem isti duodecim, et specialiter Praelati Caesarii et Fratres infundabili introducti sunt manifeste discipuli Antichristi, quia libertatem Christi tollunt, ac onerant sanctam Ecclesiam et impediunt, ne currat lex evangelii libere sicut olim. Cap. 27 : Quod Fratres comminiscant haeresim in Ecclesia. Tres blasphemias de multis ostendi populo de istis Fratribus in vulgari. Prima est de quidditate sacramenti altaris (to wit, quod ipsa consecrata hostia sit accidens sine subiecto); secunda de mendica-

its resistance to ecclesiastical usurpations.²² The Wycliffites, now as a body called Lollards,²³ were but little disturbed in spite of

tione Christi, et tertia de literis fraternitatum falsissimis (in which they pretend, quod personae, quibus istas concedunt, participabunt post mortem de suis meritis). On this point down to c. 31. Cap. 32 : De indulgentiis: Superbia eorum, qui Deum oderunt, ascendit semper. Ideo licet fons haeresis et peccati sit in ipso tenebrarum principio, tamen rivulus Fratrum ab eo descendens nititur, ut dictum est, innaturaliter se extollere supra fontem. Fateor, quod indulgentiae papales, si ita se habeant ut dicuntur, tunc sapient manifestam blasphemiam. Dicitur enim, quod Papa praetendit se habere potentiam ad salvandum singulos viatores :—et nendum ad mitigandum poenas eorum, qui deliquerunt, ad suffragandum eis cum absolutionibus et indulgentiis, ne unquam veniant ad purgatorium, sed ad praecipiendum sanctis angelis, ut anima separata a corpore, indilata ipsam deferant in requiem sempiternam (see § 120, note 10). Et per Fratres coloratur ista blasphemia per hoc, quod Christus est omnipotens.—Sed Papa est plenus vicarius ejus in terris, et ideo potest idem quicquid potest Christus humanitus.—Unde ad declarandum papalem potentiam pseudofratres in secretis fidei sic procedunt. Supponunt enim primo, quod in caelis sint infinita Sanctorum supererogata merita, et specialiter meritum Domini nostri Jesu Christi, quod sufficeret salvare mundos alios infinitos ; et super illum totum thesaurum Christus Papam constituit ad secundum quod sibi libuerit dispensandum : ideo infinitum potest de illo distribuere, cum hoc remaneat infinitum. Contra istam rudem blasphemiam invexi alias primo sic. Nec Papa nec Dominus Jesus Christus potest dispensare cum aliquo, nec dare indulgentias, nisi ut aeternaliter deitas justo consilio definivit.—Item quacro de illis supererogatis meritis sempiternis, in quo membro Ecclesiae subjectantur ? Si in Christo et membris suis, mirabile videtur, quod Papa potest a subjectis propriis illa subtrahere propter multa. Primo quia accidens non potest esse sine subiecto. Secundo quia nullus eorum illa desiderat, praeterit illis hora merendi. Et tertio quia plene juxta suum meritum praemiatur. Quomodo ergo Papa potest per rapinam talem imaginativam facere Deo et illis injuriam ? Item per deducens ad impossible declaratur, quod si viator in tempore alicujus Papae damnabitur, ipse Papa erit reus damnationis propter hoc, quod omittit ipsum salvare, etc.—In tales infinitas blasphemias involvitur infatuata Ecclesia, et specialiter per caudam illius draconis, hoc est sectas Fratrum, quae ad illusionem istam, et alias seductiones Ecclesiae Luciferinae deserviunt. Sed eis milites Christi, abjicite prudenter haec atque ficticias principis tenebrarum, et induimini Iesum Christum,—et excutite ab Ecclesia tales versutias Antichristi, etc.—Cap. 33 to 38 are against the mendicant friars. With this should be compared the collection of his opinions, in the original passages, as given in Lewis, p. 125, among which his statements with regard to the abuse of the mass, artistic Church music, images, consecrations with oil, salt, wax, etc., canonizations, pilgrimages, ecclesiastical asylums, celibacy of the clergy, are worthy of notice. Heresy he defines, p. 140, as Error meyntened agenst holy Writt, and that in Life and Conversation, as well as in Opinion. His condemnation of war and capital punishment is also remarkable. Compare, Die theologische Doctrin J. Wicliffe's von D. E. A. Lewald, in Niedner's Zeitschr. f. d. hist. Theol. 1846, ii. 171; iv. 503. Wicliffe als Prediger, Progr. v. J. G. V. Engelhardt, Erlangen, 1835.

²³ There is a list of Wycliffe's most distinguished adherents in Wood, Hist. Univ. Oxon. p. 186, and in Lewis, p. 175.—Henricus de Knyghton, lib. v. p. 2660 : Erant etiam milites, dominus Thomas Latymer, dom. Johannes Trussel, etc.,—cum Ducibus et Comitibus, isti erant praecipue eis adhaerentes et in omnibus eis faventes.—Cumque aliquis pseudo-prædicator ad partes alicujus istorum militum si diverteret prædicationis causa, in continenti cum omni promptitudine populum patriae convocare, et ad certum locum vel Ecclesiam cum ingenti sollicitudine congregare satagebat, ad audiendum voces eorum, licet invitatos, resistere tamen vel contradicere non audentes. Nam assistere solent juxta sic inepte prædicantes gladio et pelta stipati, ad eorum defensionem, ne all the clerical condemnations.²⁴ They even addressed a request to the King and Parliament, in 1394, to reform the Church upon Wycliffe's principles.²⁵ This, indeed, remained without result, quis contra eos aut eorum doctrinam blasphemam aliquid tentare vel contradicere quandoe auderet.—Crevit populus credentium in ista doctrina, et quasi germinantes multiplicati sunt nimis, et impleverunt ubique orbem regni,—audacesque ad plenum facti sunt.—Sicque a vulgo Wyclif discipuli et Wycliviani sive Lollardi vocati sunt.—Secta illa in maximo honore illis diebus habebatur et in tantum multiplicata fuit, quod vix duos videres in via, quin alter eorum discipulus Wyclefi fuerit.—Thomas Walsingham, in his Hypodigma Neustriae, p. 544: Lollardi sequaces Johannis Wickliff in tantam sunt evicti temeritatem, ut eorum Presbyteri more Pontificum novos crearent Presbyteros, asserentes, quemlibet sacerdotem tantam habere potestatem conferendi sacramenta ecclesiastica, quantam Papa.—Audierunt et cognoverunt haec regni Pontifices, sed abie- runt alius in villam suam, alius ad negotiationem suam: solus Norwicensis temporibus malis ausus est esse bonus. Henricus de Knyghton, p. 2760, says of them: insuper no- vos errores antiquis immiscent, and then gives a catalogue of twenty-five errors, among which, besides the Wycliffite doctrines already noticed, the following appear: VII. quod non est supplicandum Sanctis orare pro viventibus, nec dicenda est Letania: affirmant enim Deum omnia facere, ipsos nihil facere posse, quos Sanctos vocamus. Sed multos eorum praedicant esse in inferno, quorum festa celebrantur. XI. quod nullus intrabit regnum caelorum, nisi omnibus renunciaverit, ea dando pauperibus, solum Deum se- quendo, modo ipsorum. XIII. quod omnia inter clericos debent esse communia. XVI. quod non licet aliquo modo jurare.

but also without punishment. But when, upon the dethronement and murder of Richard II. (1399), the house of Lancaster came into power with Henry IV.,²⁶ the new King believed that he could secure himself on the throne he had usurped only by the help of the clergy. Opposition to them was given up. On the other hand, strict laws of heresy were forthwith issued.²⁷ True, they could not be brought into immediate operation on account of the threatening aspect of the other party; but from the time that Henry V. mounted the throne (1413), principally by the suggestions of the King's confessor, Thomas Waldensis the Carmelite,²⁸ they were brought to bear upon the Wycliffites with such blood-thirsty zeal,²⁹ that their numbers were greatly diminished, and

the remnant withdrew into concealment. Persecuted truth, however, quickly rose again to life in Bohemia, like a phoenix from the ashes; and the renewed condemnation of Wycliffe at the council of Constance, as well as the burning of his bones in 1428,³⁰ only served to bring to light the weakness of earthly power when opposed to truth and spiritual freedom. For even in England Wycliffitism continued, though in deep concealment, and under heavy persecutions, until the great Reformation of the sixteenth century.³¹ losis his Temporibus evenerunt (Basil. 1559 fol.), i. 97; Vaughan, ii. 361; Flathe, ii. 261; Weber, I. i. 117.—Comp. Thomas Waldensis, in prooemio (Raynald. ann. 1414, no. 16): Henricus V., Christo et mundo commendatissimus inter Reges, gaudebat in ipso regni sui primordio contra Wiclevistas haereticos erexisse vexillum, dum scilicet ad Christi natalem cum duce iniquitatibus eorum Joanne Castriveteris (Oldcastle) contra inlycum Regem conspirare cooperunt: nec mora longa processit, quin statutum publicum per omne regni concilium in publico emanavit edictio, quod omnes Wiclevistae, si-c ut Dei proditores essent, sic proditores Regis et regni proscriptis bonis censerentur, duplicili poenae dandi, incendio propter Deum, suspendio propter Regem: factumque est ita. Stat res jure perenni. Multi eorum deprehensi ignibus consumti sunt, contriti sunt: et sic malignantium habita opportunitate relicto regno decesserunt. Si qua alia gens (Bohemians) hujus fascinata criminibus colligere dignum ducat paleas, quas nos auctoritate sanctorum antistitum cum clero regni et principali terrore discussimus, quis imputet Anglicis? Mare nostrum ejicit mortuos nostros, et terra nostra dedit fructum centuplum, quis criminabitur Angliam quod populus circumventus dolo haeretico mor-tuos nostros colit et veneratur ut Deos?

³¹ Burnet, Hist. Reform., i. 15.—The opinion of the earlier Lutheran divines upon Wycliffe was unfavorable. Luther censures the “too acute Wikleff” for his doctrine of the Lord’s Supper (Bekenntniß vom Abendmal Christi, in Walch’s Ausg. Th. 20, s. 1808 and 1294). Melanchthon, in the Apologia August. Confess., ad. art. xvi.: Plane furebat Wiglepus, qui negabat licere sacerdotibus tenere proprium. And again, in the Unschuldige Nachrichten, A.D. 1712, s. 558, it is said that Wycliffe can not “unter die rechten Zeugen der Wahrheit gezehlet werden, weil er selbe vielmehr zufällig bezeuget, und viel sonticos naevos gehabt hat.”

NINTH CHAPTER.

EXTENSION AND LIMITATION OF CHRISTENDOM.

If we were to allow that the mere performance of the baptismal ceremony was equivalent to conversion to Christianity, then the conversion of the last heathen nations in Europe began at this time. In Lithuania individuals had already betaken themselves to the Russian Church, when the Grand Duke Jagello, in order to win the young Hedwig to wife, and with her the crown of Poland, was baptized into the Roman Church, 1386, and required his subjects to follow his example.¹ Many of them were indeed baptized;² but the sentiments of the Lithuanians remained for a long

According to page 104, at the same time with Jagello, his brother Switrigal, and his cousin Witoudt, were baptized; reliqui Lithuaniae Duces, fratres Ducis Jagyellonis cum dudum ante Graecorum ritu baptisma sortiti fuerint, ad iterandum, vel ut significantiori verbo utar, ad supplendum baptisma non poterant induci. Compare Schlözer's Gesch. von Lithauen, in the Allgem. Weltgesch. Th. 50, s. 84 ff.

² Jo. Dlugossus, l. c. p. 109 s. In the year 1387 Jagello, now Wladislao II., went with a great retinue to Lithuania, and had the heathen sanctuaries destroyed. Confractis autem et exterminatis idolis, dum Deorum suorum falsitatem—oculis pervidissent, universa Lithuaniae gens et natio fidem christianam suscipere—prona et obédiens devotione consensit. Per dies autem aliquot de articulis fidei, quos credere oportet, et oratione dominica, atque symbolo per sacerdotes Polonorum, magis tamen per Wladislai Regis, qui linguam gentis noverat et cui facilius assentiebat, [operam] edocta, sacri baptismatis unda renata est, largiente Wladislao Rege singulis ex popularium numero post susceptum baptisma de panno ex Polonia adducto novas vestes, tunicas, et induimenta. Qua quidem provida liberalitate et largitione effecit, ut rudit illa natio et paucis, lineis in eam diem contenta, fama hujusmodi liberalitatis vulgata pro consequendis laneis vestibus catervatim ad suscipiendum baptisma ex omni regione accureret. Et quoniam labor immensus erat, unumquemque creditum baptisare singillatim, concurrentis ad baptisma populi Lithuaniae utriusque sexus multitudine mandante Rege sequestrabatur in turmas et cuneos, et universis de qualibet turmarum benedicta aqua sufficienter conspersis, cuilibet etiam turmae et universis, qui in ea constiterant, nomen christianum et usitatum abrogatis barbaricis, videlicet primae turmae Petrus, secundae Paulus, etc.,—imponebantur. Militaribus tamen et natu majoribus speciale impendebatur baptisma, etc. The facts which follow throw some light on the character of these conversions; the Lithuanian prince, Witoudt, was baptized in Prussia as early as 1384, when he fled to the German Order (see Jahrbücher Johannes Lindenblatt's, a contemporary, edited by Joh. Voigt u. Schubert, Königsberg, 1823, s. 60), and afterward a second time by some Russian priests (see Lucas David, † 1583, Preuss. Chronik, herausgeg. v. Henning, Bd. 7, s. 174, Anm. s. 189, 225), before he received baptism at Cracow. The Samaites (Samogitae), a Lithuanian tribe, asked for baptism from the German Order in 1401 (Lindenblatt, s. 130); in 1413, King Wladislao found the country still entirely heathenish, he overran and converted it (Dlugossus, lib. xi. p. 342 ss.); but in 1418 the time heathenish.³ The case was the same with regard to the conversion of the Laplanders, commenced by Hemming, archbishop of Upsala, in 1335.⁴

The popes still continued to delude themselves with the vain hope of winning the Mongols. Most of their tribes declared themselves all the more decidedly in favor of Mohammedanism.⁵ The young Christian community in China⁶ was completely broken up in 1369 by the expulsion of the Mongols from this country.⁷

PERSECUTIONS AND CONVERSIONS OF THE JEWS.

The mutual fanatical hatred which existed between the Jews and the Christians could only find expression, on the part of the former, in a covert and concealed manner; while, on the side of the Christians, it frequently¹ broke out in bloody persecutions of the Samaites drove out their priests once more, burned their churches, and returned to heathenism again (Lindenblatt, s. 334).

⁷ Mosheim, I. c. p. 119 ss.

¹ Compare Jost's Gesch. der Israeliten seit der Zeit der Maccabäer, vi. 341, and vii. Frequent pretexts for persecution were, the poisoning of fountains, the murder of Christian children, and desecration of the host. The persecution for poisoning fountains was most fearful in the year of the great plague, 1349 (Chron. Mellic. in Pezii Scriptt. Rer. Austr. i. 248: Judaei in Suevia et Bavaria cremati fuerunt, quia convicti quidam profitebantur, se mortalitatem praeditam inter Christianos pulvere toxicato generasse). However much inclined we may be, in this case, to make allowance for popular opinion, misguided by the singularity of the mortality, it is still surprising that it should be stated in the protocol received from the Jews at Freiburg (Schreiber's Urkundenbuch der Stadt Freiburg im Breisgau, i. 378) that in Waldkirch, according to the Jews' own statement, sacks of poison were found in the fountains (s. 383). No less remarkable are

Jews. One of the severest was that which extended from Seville, the proceedings on the death of a Christian child in Diessenhoven, A.D. 1401 (Schreiber, ii. 167). The perpetrator of the crime, a Christian servant, was taken in the very act, and declared he was employed by the Jews to give them the child's blood. By this declaration he could not better his fate, but rather made it worse. The Jews who were arrested confessed; but they are manifestly only responding to the prejudices of the Christians when they are made to say, that they must, at least once in seven years, have the blood of a Christian child under thirteen years of age for their passover; that they partook of it as they had done before of the Paschal Lamb, smeared themselves with it, and swallowed it for the refreshment indeed of the body ("ze Fristung ihres Libes"), but especially that they might not smell of the stench; besides, they said, they were able by means of the dried-up blood to cause a plague within a circle of half a mile, or poison the air. At an examination in Endingen, 1470 (Schreiber, ii. 520), they answered, on the contrary, that they used the blood as an ointment after circumcision. The diversity of these statements proves that they were borrowed from the popular opinions of the day. Torture compelled men in those days to confess all that was desired. And when Jews confessed without torture (as in Schreiber, ii. 110 and 170), we may understand that they foresaw death to be inevitable, and wished to undergo it without previous torments. However, in both the cases mentioned above, the corpora delicti and their weight of evidence do not admit of being denied. That the Jews, according to their law, required no human blood for the Paschal feast is certain, and on occasion of the Jews' persecution at Damascus, in 1840, was demonstrated with overwhelming proofs (see the list of the works in Ilgen's Zeitschrift, f. d. hist. Theol. 1841, iv. 174. Compare also Saalschütz, ibid. s. 139). But it is a different question whether the Jews might not have been misled to criminal deeds by their hatred of the Christians, and whether, among the manifold superstitions which had flowed in among them since the olden time (see vol. i. Div. 1, § 17, note 9), one of them may not have been to require the blood of a child in certain malpractices. Even if there were ground for the charge in isolated cases, yet the innocent may have been still more frequently put to death on this accusation. The desecration of the host is certainly, for the most part, erroneously charged upon the Jews. The very desire which was attributed to them, of crucifying Christ afresh and putting him to shame, is conceived altogether in the strain of the Catholic doctrine of transubstantiation. That the fraud of the Christian priesthood was often active in this matter is plain from Benedicti XII. Epist. ad Albertum Ducem Austriae, in Raynald. ann. 1338, no. 18: When a persecution of the Jews had arisen upon occasion of the discovery of a blood-stained host before the house of a certain Jew in the district of Passau, the Duke took the part of the Jews, and wrote to the Pope, quod olim in ducatu Austriae in oppido Neirmiburch—quaedam hostia non consecrata cruento madefacta per quendam clericum in Ecclesia dicti oppidi posita fuit, qui postmodum—confessus fuit, se dicto cruento praefatam hostiam madidasse ad praesumptionem inducendam, quod a Judaeis contumeliose dehonesta taliter extitisset in opprobrium Salvatoris, quae etiam cum a Christifidelibus per aliquod temporis spatium tanquam verum corpus Christi adoraretur, demum vermis tineisque scaturiens demolita extitit penitus et consumpta. Quam quidam clericus ejusdem Ecclesiae sic consumptam aspiciens suggestione diabolica persuasus, errorem errori accumulans, aliam hostiam non consecratam, cruento per ipsum intactam, loco predictae hostiae sic consumptae reponere minime formidavit, sicut postmodum per confessionem ejusdem clericci talia perpetrantis extit revelatum: eademque hostia in alterius locum supposita—usque ad hodiernum diem tanquam verum corpus dominicum a Christifidelibus hujusmodi fraudem ignorantibus veneratur.—Casus similis ob invidiam et odium Judaeorum in oppido Werchartstof cooperat exoriri, etc. Jo. Vitoduranus also relates another such case, in the Thesaurus Hist. Helvet. p. 44 sq., and adds thereto, the lying priest—suo Dioecesano erat presentatus, qui eum captum et vincum detinuit per plures dies, sed quod arctae custodie carceris traditus fuerit, vel alias secundum exigentiam malitia sua punitus sit, non audivi: quod ex intimis meis doleo praecordiis.—Quod autem Episcopus suus remissus in the year 1390, over a large part of Spain, and effected a great number of seeming conversions.²

HISTORY OF THE GREEK CHURCH.

§ 128.

EFFORTS FOR UNION WITH THE LATIN CHURCH.

Leo Allatius, De Eccl. Occident. et Orient. Perp. Consensione, lib. ii. c. 16–18.

In order to avert the danger which threatened them from the side of the Turks, by the help of the Western Powers the Greek emperors labored, almost without interruption throughout the fourteenth century, to effect a reunion of the two divided Churches. But besides themselves, and a small party at court, no one else on either side would consent to yield, and thus all efforts were necessarily frustrated. First the Emperor Andronicus III. Palæologus (1328–1341) opened fresh negotiations (1333),¹ in consequence of which a Greek embassy negotiated at Avignon (1339), but in vain.² True, the most eminent of these ambassadors, the Greek et negligens fuit,—in eo, ut quidam ajunt, ratio haec est, quia per pecuniam—plebani—corruptus fuit. It is, however, very possible that the Jews, in some of the many cases of the kind, in order to strengthen themselves in their conviction of the idolatry of the Christians, procured consecrated hosts and examined them in every way.

² On this point, see the protocol (in Raynald. ann. 1339, no. 19 ss., and, from another manuscript, in Allatius, l. c. p. 788 ss.), and Benedicti XII. Ep. ad Philippum Regem Franciae, in Raynald. ann. 1339, no. 33. The Greek ambassadors held, quod in generali concilio—articulus de processione Spiritus sancti per disputationes et concertationes ibidem concordaretur inter Latinos et Graecos: quodque ante omnia super recuperatione trium vel quatuor civitatum magnarum, quae per Turcos—detineri dicuntur,—praestaretur auxilium. Barlaam, the Greek ambassador, who was the principal speaker, promised, quaecunque a generali concilio determinata fuerint, omnes Orientales libenter haec recipient.—Si autem aliquis dicet, quia jam factum est de istis generale concilium in Lugduno, in quo fuerunt et Graeci (vol. ii. § 95, note 15): sciat, quod nemo poterit humilare populum Graecum, ut recipient illud concilium sine alio concilio. Quare? quia illi Graeci, qui interfuerunt isti concilio, non fuerunt missi neque a quatuor Patriarchis, qui gubernant orientalem Ecclesiam, neque a populo, sed a solo Imperatore, qui conatus fuit facere unionem vobiscum ex vi, et non voluntarie. But the aid against the Turks—so ran Barlaam's petition—ought to precede the council, first, quod naturaliter omnes homines magis volunt subjugari benefacientibus eis, quam contra facientibus; secondly, because the Emperor could not summon a council before the close of the Turkish war, neque enim dum guerra fit, poterit quatuor Patriarchas et alios Pontifices in unum conjugare, nec concilio poterit interesse. The Pope refused a general council, because—non esset decens,—sic clarum determinatum et definitum articulum fidei—nunc per novas disputationes—in dubium revocare. Then Barlaam made the remarkable proposal, quod saltem, si ad profitendum dictum articulum Graeci forsan induci non possent, reunione facta permetterentur ipsi Graeci quod super eodem articulo tenent credere, Latinique crederent catholice Spiritum sanctum a Patre et Filio procedere; but, responsum extitit, hoc esse nullatenus tolerandum, quia in Ecclesia catholica, in qua una fides esse noscitur, quoad hoe duplicum fidem minus veraciter esset dare. The Pope, on the other hand, proposed that the Greek Church should choose plenipotentiaries, and send them into the west, qui cum aliis viris sapientibus,—per sedem apostolicam super hoc deputandis, non per modum disputationis vel concertationis, sed instructionis, quoad Graecos ipsos, salutifere haberent maturos et diligentes tractatus. Barlaam fell back upon his last proposal: The Pope should send ambassadors to the four Greek Patriarchs and the Emperor with the following declaration: Viri fratres, quoniam vos et nos confitemur in divinis unam substantiam et tres personas, etiam unum principium, et neque vos neque nos adducimus in divinis aut identitatem personarum, aut divisionem substantiae; sufficient ista nobis, ut habeamus unionem. De processione autem Spiritus sancti non dividamur ab invicem; sed sapientes quidem vestri cum nostris disputent de ista quaestione si volunt: communiter vero non habemus propter hoc divisionem, sed tenete vos quod vultis de isto, et nos similiter: et non damnumus propter hoc alterutrum, sed factum sit tantum. Vos quidem date Ecclesiae Romanae illum honorem, quem dabant et antiqui Patriarchae in tempore unionis, quem determinaverunt etiam leges Imperatorum et canones sanctorum Patrum, et plus non petimus a vobis: Nos autem parati sumus dare et firmare Ecclesiae orientali, et specialet Ecclesiae Constantinopolitanae et imperio Constantinopolitanum omnia jura, que sunt vel ab antiqua consuetudine, vel determinata aut a legibus Imperatorum aut a canonibus sanctorum Patrum. Most of the Greeks would yield obedience to such a demand. The Pope's final answer was, quod ex eo justa petitio non videtur, quia si [Graeci] fortificati, ditati, exaltati et confirmati per sedem apostolicam, Reges, Principes et populos catholicos ante reunionem praedictam, postea terga et non faciem verterent Romanae Ecclesiae memoraiae, sicut alias, dum credebantur reuniti,—fecisse noscuntur: proculdubio idem dominus summus Pontifex, Ecclesia, et fideles remanerent delusi, et dici posset opprobrium non modicum, quod suos et fidei juverant et fortificaverant inimicos et hostes, et participassent scandalose cum eis. Sed si per illum, qui omnem hominem venientem in hunc mundum illuminat, eorundem Graecorum cordibus infusione gratiae spiritualis illustratis, per viam tactam per eundem dominum nostrum vel aliam accommodam et honestam ad obedientiam—Romanae Ecclesiae redire curaverint cum effectu; ipsos tunc effusis gaudiis, ac gratis et favoribus largiſſue dispensatis—ipse dominus noster et apostolica sedes recipient,—non solum super his quae petunt, sed super aliis eorum opportunitatis exhibituri tunc—auxilia, consilia et favores. Lastly, Barlaam explained how the way proposed by the Pope—de mittendis pro parte Graecorum sapientibus—was almost impossible, viz.: quia Imperator non audet manifestare se, quod velit uniri vobiscum, quoniam si manifestasset se, multi ex principibus suis, etiam ex populo, timentes ne forte ipse vellet facere, sicut fecit ipsis Michael Palaeologus, quaererent opportuniteatem interficiendi illum. Praeterea Ecclesia Constantinopolitana non mitteret ad hoc negotium legatos suos sine consilio et consensu Patriarcharum Alexandrini, Antiocheni et Jerosolymitani: quare oportet eos in simul congregare, quod est difficile propter guerras: et praeter hoc incertum est, si vocati ad hoc voluissent venire: et dato, quod jam venissent, et omnes unanimiter concordassent ad mittendum legatos super praeditis, ipsi non darent unquam plenum posse super hoc talibus legatis, nec promitterent illud quod factum fuisset per ipsos legatos ratum habere, nisi sub certis articulorum pactis, quae pacta vos nullatenus admitteretis. Barlaam departed with the promise, that he would still labor zealously to accomplish this end; however nothing was done.

abbot, Barlaam,³ induced by his controversy with Gregorius Palamas, went over to the Latin Church himself, A.D. 1341, and invited his former companions in the faith to follow him.⁴ But even the step of the Emperor himself, John V. Palæologus (1341–1391), who, in his straitened circumstances, repeatedly swore allegiance to the Pope (1355 ss.),⁵ failed to move the Greek people to

⁵ He swore to a Papal nuncio, in 1355 (Raynald. ad h. a no. 34): in primis quod ero fidelis, obediens, reverens, et devotus beatissimo patri et domino, domino Innocentio sacrosanctae Romanae ac universalis Ecclesiae—summo Pontifici, et ejus successoribus. —Item quod faciam toto posse meo,—quod omnes populi sub nostro imperio constituti—erunt fideles, obedientes, reverentes et devoti eidem domino nostro et summo Pontifici, et ejus successoribus. Et quia diuturnitas temporis induravit et aggravavit animos populorum, et vix possent a consuetis retrahi, et per viam novam incedere, nisi cum modo sapientiae et moderatione prudentiae: istum modum, qui sequitur,—ordinavi: He was ready to send his son Manuel Palæologus to the Pope; in return, the Pope was to send him fifteen transport ships (usceria), five galleys (galeas), 500 knights, and 1000 foot soldiers for six months, to carry on his war against the Turks, in quo tempore legatus domini nostri Papae dabit beneficia et dignitates ecclesiasticas personis sufficientibus graecis, qui ad unionem et obedientiam Ecclesiae sponte redibunt, secundum quod sibi et nobis melius videbitur. Ubi vero infra sex menses—Graeci sponte ad obedientiam Ecclesiae noluerint redire, quod non credimus, promittimus ex nunc pro tunc, quod faciemus cum consilio et deliberatione legati domini nostri Papae, quod omnino erunt obedientes. He promises to assign to the Papal Légate—palatum magnum, and, pulchram et venerabilem Ecclesiam. Item dabo filio meo primogenito unum magistrum latinum, qui docebit eum literas et linguam latinam de consilio et voluntate dicti legati. Item dabo hospitia tria magna, in quibus tenebuntur scholae literarum latinarum, et ego dabo operam efficacem et favorem cum corde sincero, quod filii magnatum et potentum Graecorum ibunt addiscere literas latinas. In casu ubi praedicta omnia et singula non observarem,—ex nunc pro tunc judico auctoritate imperiali me indignum imperio, et privo memet ipsum jure imperii, et transfero, do, cedo jus et potestatem imperii et imperandi in praedictum filium meum;—transfero jus patriae potestatis in—summum Pontificem super dictum filium meum:—do, concedo et trado potestatem—summo Pontifici, quod possit acquirere—imperium nostrum pro dicto filio nostro tanquam pro vero et legitimo Imperatore, et dare eidem filio meo uxorem, bajulos (governors), tutores et curatores usque ad praefinitum tempus a jure; et possit de praedicto imperio ordinare et disponere tanquam de imperio sibi de jure debito, vice et nomine praedicti filii nostri, etc. In case, however, that he fulfilled all the conditions, the Pope was to support him with troops from several countries, and contribute toward their support; but the Emperor was to be—principalis capitaneus et signifer et vexillarius s. matris Ecclesiae cum mero et mixto imperio et plenaria potestate—over the whole army. If the Emperor were to fail to fulfill all—pro eo quod potentia et non voluntas deficeret, and appear in person before the Pope, the Pope should lend him aid for the reconquest of his kingdom. Nevertheless, just as the Pope's summons to the knights of St. John, to lend their assistance to the Emperor, remained without effect (Raynald. l. c. no. 38 ss.), so also his continued exhortations to the Emperor, to come over to the Church of Rome with all his people, produced no result (Raynald. ann. 1365, no. 22; ann. 1366, no. 1). True, the Emperor took a fresh oath of obedience, as regards the Pope, to Lewis, king of Hungary, to whom he came in follow his example.⁶ His son and successor, Manuel II. (1391–1425), even wrote against the Latins.⁷ Several Greek authors besides him in this century wrote against the distinctive doctrines of the Latin Church.⁸ There was, however, no lack of others, who went over to the Latins after Barlaam's example, and then attacked their former Church.⁹

That vision of Deity which, according to the Pseudo-Dionysius, ought to be pursued as the loftiest aim of mystic zeal,¹ was conceived by the monkish saints on Mount Athos in the rudest manner; they imagined that, by an ascetic repose, they could attain person in quest of aid (Raynald. ann. 1366, no. 4), and ended in going over to the Latin Church at Rome in 1369, by swearing to a Roman confession of faith (Raynald. 1369, no. 2; in Greek, in Allatius, p. 843 ss.): however, neither was the wished-for aid granted, nor the union of the Churches effected.

to a sensuous perception of the divine light (ήσυχασται, ησυχάζοντες). The censure which Barlaam pronounced upon them² involved him in a controversy with Gregorius Palamas, which soon came to turn upon the question, whether this divine light, namely, that which appeared at the transfiguration of Christ, was created or uncreated.³ When a synod assembled at Constantinople in 1341 on this account took the monks under its protection, Bar-

Barlaam had discovered among them a method of contemplation resembling that for which, in still earlier times, an abbot, Simeon, had given the following directions (in Allatius, De Eccl. Occid. et Orient. Perp. Cons. p. 829): καθίσας ἐν μῷ γνωίᾳ κατὰ μόνας πρόσεξαι ποιήσας δὲ λέγω σου κλείσον τὴν θύραν, καὶ ἐπαρον τὸν οὐσίον σου ἀπὸ παντὸς ματάσον ἡγον προσκαίρουν είτα ἐρέσας τῷ στήθει σὸν πάγωνα, κινῶν τὸν αἰσθητὸν ὄφθαλμὸν σὺν δλῷ νοῦ ἐν μέσῳ τῆς κοιλίας ἡγον κατὰ τὸν ὄμφαλὸν, ἄγξον καὶ τὴν τῆς ρινὸς τοῦ πνεύματος ὅχεην, τοῦ μὴ ἀδεῶς πνεύματος ἐρεύνησον ἔνδον ἐν τοῖς ἐγκάτοις εὑρέν τὸν τόπον τῆς καρδίας, ἔνθα ἐμφύλοχωρεῖν πεφύκασι πᾶσαι αἱ ψυχικαὶ δυνάμεις. Καὶ πρῶτον μὲν σκότος εὑρήσεις καὶ πάχος ἀνένδοτον ἐπιμένοντος δέ σου, καὶ τούτου τοῦ ἔργου νυκτὸς καὶ ἡμέρας ποιουμένου, εὑρήσεις, ὡς τὸν θαύματος, ἀληκτον εὐφροσύνην ἀμά γαρ εὑρῇ ὁ νοῦς τὸν τόπον τῆς καρδίας, βλέπει παρενθῆς ἢ οὐδέποτε ἡπίστατο· βλέπει γάρ τὸν μεταξὺ τῆς καρδίας δέρα, καὶ ξανθὸν φωτεινὸν δλὸν καὶ διακρίσεως ἔμπλεον. (There was a similar practice among the ascetics in Siam; see Kämpfer's Gesch. v. Japan, i. 30: and in India; see Franc. Bernier Voyages, ii. 127.)

³ Jo. Cantacuzenus, l. c. Among the ἡσυχάζοντες in Thessalonica, Palamas and his brothers distinguished themselves. They remonstrated with Barlaam, ἐδέοντο παίεσθαι τὸν τοιαύτα καὶ φρονεῖν καὶ λέγειν κατὰ τῶν ἡσυχαζόντων, καὶ μὴ διὰ τὴν ἀπειρίαν ἐνδε τὸ ίσα πάντων καταψήφιζεσθαι, καὶ, τόγε εἰς αὐτὸν ἡκον, τοῦ ἀκροτάτου βίου καὶ τῆς τελεωτάτης πολιτείας (or as it is given below, τῆς ιερᾶς ἡσυχίας) τοὺς ἀνθρώπους ἀποστερεῖν. They endeavored to prove, chiefly from the transfiguration of Jesus upon Mount Tabor, that holy men might be surrounded with a divine light (or, δυνατὸν εἶναι τοῖς σωματικοῖς ὄφθαλμοῖς θεῖον καὶ ἀκτιστὸν φῶς θείασθαι): εἰ οὖν κάκεῖνοι (the apostles), ἀνθρώποι τε δύτες, καὶ ἐτι ἀτελέστερον διακείμενοι, τὸ περιαστράφαν αὐτοὺς θεῖον καὶ ἀκτιστὸν φῶς ἡδυνάθησαν ἰδεῖν, τί θαυμαστὸν, εἰ καὶ νῦν τοὺς ἀγίους φαίημεν φῶς ὄρφν ἀναθεῖν ἐλλαμπομένους ἐκ θεοῦ: however, the uncreated light upon Mount Tabor furnished Barlaam with fresh matter for censure. He exclaimed: τῆς ἀτοπίας! καπνὸν γαρ φεύγοντες ἐμπεπτώκαμεν εἰς πῦρ· ἀκούεις οὐρανὲ καὶ ἐνωτίζου ἡ γῆ· τὸ ἐν Θαβῶρ φῶς ἀκτιστὸν καὶ τί ἄλλο ἡ θεῖος καθ' ὑμᾶς! οὐδὲν γαρ ἀκτιστὸν δτι μὴ θεός εἰ οὖν μῆτε κτίσμα τὸ φῶς ἐκεῖνο, μῆτε θεοῦ οὐδία (θεὸν γαρ οὐδεὶς ἐώρακε πώποτε), τί λοιπὸν ἡ δυσὶ λατρεύειν θεοῖς, ἐνὶ μὲν, τῷ πάντων δημιουργῷ, δν καὶ ὄρατον πᾶς τις ἀν ὄμολογῆσει, δευτέρῳ δὲ, τῷ καθ' ὑμᾶς ὄρωμένῳ ἀκτιστῷ τούτῳ φωτί;

laam withdrew to Italy, and went over to the Roman Church.⁴ But his disciple, Gregorius Akindynos, continued the dispute. Several synods were assembled at Constantinople on this question (1341, 1347, 1350), all decided against the opinion of the apostate Barlaam.⁵ So also did Nicolas Cabasilas, the most distinguished mystic author of this period, after 1350 Archbishop of Thessalonica.⁶

⁶ With regard to his work, περὶ τῆς ἐν Χριστῷ ζωῆς, there is a review of it and some fragments, by A. Jahn, in the Theolog. Studien u. Krit. 1843. iii. 721. There is a complete edition: Die Mystik. des Nicolaus Cabasilas vom Leben in Christo, erste Ausgabe u. einleitende Darstellung von Dr. W. Gass, Greifswald. 1849.

SECOND APPENDIX.

HISTORY OF THE REMAINING ORIENTAL CHURCHES.

The kings of Armenia continually desiring the help of the Western World against the Mohammedans, sought on this very account to maintain inviolate the union of the Armenian with the Roman Church.¹ However, this remained, like the efforts for union on the part of the Greek Emperors, a merely political measure, for which the court alone felt any desire. Notwithstanding all the efforts of the popes, the people would not suffer themselves to be deprived of their ancient and characteristic opinions.² As

² John XXII. sent some Dominicans to the Armenians, who were to preach to the people, and open Latin schools (Raynald. 1318, no. 15); but the Latin monks were quickly driven away again by the Armenians (see the work of an anonymous Dominican, of the year 1330, in Quetif et Echard Script. Ord. Praedic. i. 573). In the year 1341, Benedict XII. complains to the King and the Catholicos of Armenia (Raynald. ad h. a. no. 45), that he had heard from incontrovertible witnesses, quod tam in majori quam in minori Armenia nonnulli execrandi errores tenentur a multis et dogmatizantur, and requires that these should be condemned by an Armenian synod. The list of them in 117 articles, in l. c. no. 49 ss. E. g. I. and II.; the early Armenian teachers had rightly taught—quod Spir. s. procedit a filio sicut et a Patre (hoc fuerat determinatum in concilii Constantinopolitano et Ephesino); but, 612 years before, a general Armenian council, according to Art. 85—concilium Manesguerdense, quod congregatum fuit ibi de mandato cuiusdam Sarraceni, nepotis Machometi (the council assembled at Manascherti, by command of the Saracen Caliph Omar; see Galani Hist. Armen. c. 17)—had commanded them to maintain only the procession from the Father; most of the Armenians still followed this decree. III. Item quod in dicto concilio reprobaverunt concilium Chalcedonense,—et determinaverunt, quod sicut in Domino Jesu Christo erat unica persona, ita erat una natura scil. divina, et una voluntas et una operatio.—In dicto etiam concilio Dioscorum condemnatum per dictum concilium Chalcedonense canonizaverunt, —et adhuc ter in anno faciunt festum de eo sicut de Sancto,—et maledicunt b. Leonem et concilium Chalcedonense. IV. Item quod Armeni dicunt et tenent, quod peccatum primorum parentum personale ipsorum tam grave fuit, quod omnes eorum filii ex semine eorum propagati usque ad Christi passionem merito dicti peccati personalis ipsorum damnati fuerunt,—non propter hoc quod ipsi ex Adam aliquod peccatum originale contraxerint, cum dicant, pueros nullum omnino habere originale peccatum nec ante Christi pas-sionem nec post:—sed post Domini passionem, in qua peccatum primorum parentum deletum fuit, pueri qui nascuntur ex filiis Adam non sunt damnationi addicti. VIII. The Armenians taught, that the saints—non videbunt Dei essentiam, quia nulla creatura eam videre potest; sed videbunt claritatem Dei, quae ab ejus essentia manat. XVII. Item quod Armeni communiter tenent, quod in alio saeculo non est purgatorium animarum, quia, ut dicunt, si Christianus confiteatur peccata sua, omnia peccata ejus et poenae peccatorum ei dimittuntur. Nec etiam ipsi orant pro defunctis, ut eis in alio saeculo peccata dimittantur; sed generaliter orant pro omnibus mortuis sicut pro b. Maria, Apostolis, Martyribus, et aliis Sanctis, ut in die judicii intrent in regnum caeleste (see vol. i. Part 2, § 99, note 17). XXXII. The Armenians said: Sunt jam trecenti anni, quod omnes daemones sunt disligati, et seduxerunt homines a fide Christi per totum mundum exceptis Armenis: sed a triginta annis citra illos homines de minori Armenia, et a viginti quinque annis citra Armenos de majori Armenia seduxerunt a fide Christi, quia, ut dicunt, ex tunc Armeni posuerunt in sacrificio aquam in vino, et fecerunt festum nativitatis Domini vigesima quinta die Decembris, et sic a daemonibus seducti fidem Christi dimiserunt. XXXIV. Dicunt etiam quod Rex et nobiles minoris Armeniae, quia tenent supradictos articulos cum Ecclesia Romana et Graeca, non sunt de Ecclesia catholica et apostolica. XXXVIII. Item quod Armeni credunt et tenent, quod in aliis Ecclesiis—non datur peccatorum remissio, quia aliae Ecclesiae negaverunt veram fidem, recipiendo concilium Chalcedonense, nec etiam habent verum baptismum. XLVI. Item quod dicti Armeni observant discretionem ciborum mundorum et immundorum animalium secundum quod lex Moysi dicit: et licet aliqui ex Armenis comedant porcum, tamen secundum eos, si sacerdos comedetur de porco, postea non posset expellere daemones de obsessis corporibus, quia, ut dicunt, Dominus expellens daemones de duabus hominibus misit eos in porcos. LVI. Those who were baptized into the Armenian Church, if they went over to the Saracens or Jews, and afterward returned, were not baptized again: si tamen aliquis fuisset baptizatus in Ecclesia alicujus Catholicon Armenorum, et postea converteretur ad fidem Romanae Ecclesiac vel Graecae, si postea vellet venire ad Ecclesiam primam,—illa Ecclesia sic baptizaret eum, ac si nunquam fuisset baptizatus. Likewise—Ecclesia Armena baptizat baptizatos in Ecclesia latina vel graeca, quando veniunt ad eam. LVIII. Item quod Armeni dicunt et tenent, quod ad hoc, quod sit baptismus verus, ista tria requiruntur, scil. aqua, chrisma et Eucharistia. LIX. Many Armenians baptized with wine, others with milk, most with water; all with arbitrary formulas. LXV. Item Armeni dicunt et tenent, quod illa inunctione cum chrismate facta in novem locis (in baptism) valet Christianis, dum vivunt, pro omnibus inunctionibus, quae fiunt per Ecclesiam latinam: unde apud eos non est sacramentum confirmationis, nec extremae unctionis: nec quando consecrantur Presbyteri vel Episcopi, inunguntur eorum manus vel capita. LXXIV. Item quod apud Armenos majoris Armeniae non sit imago Crucifixi, nec aliae imagines tenentur Sanctorum. LXXVII. The Catholicos of lesser Armenia had had many persons ill-treated, who had been baptized in forma Ecclesiae latinae, and, LXXVIII., charged his bishops, quod non celebrarent Missam latinam, sed Armenorum Missam antiquam, quod non servarent jejunia Ecclesiae Romanae, sed antiqua jejunia Armenorum, etc. Ed ad testimonium et confirmationem horum dictorum est hoc, quod—supradictus Catholicos consecravit sex Episcopos Armenos, et accepit ab eis literam publicam, quod ipsi non darent pueros de partibus suis ad addiscendum literam latinam, nec admitterent aliquem praedicatorem latinum, qui praedicaret veritatem s. Romanae Ecclesiae, etc. LXXXII. Item quod quando aliqui communicare debent, per sacerdotem fit confessio generalis,—et postea populus reiterat dictam confessionem: in secreto tamen raro vel nunquam aliquis Armenus confitetur sacerdoti sua peccata:—dicunt et tenent, quod dicta generalis confessio sufficit ad remissionem peccatorum. LXXXIV. Item Armeni dicunt et tenent, quod Catholicos, Episcopi et Presbyteri Armenorum eandem et aequalem potestatem habent ligandi et solvendi, quantam et quamle habuit Petrus Apostolus, cui a Domino dictum est: Quodcunque ligaveris, etc., nec quoad hoc minorem potestatem habent Presbyteri Armenorum quam eorum Catholicos et Episcopi. LXXXV. Item Armeni dicunt et tenent, quod usque ad concilium Nicenum Romanus Pontifex non habuit potestatem majorem, quam alii Patriarchae: sed

nunc de voluntate dicti concilii fuit ordinatum, quod dictus Romanus Pontifex haberet potestatem super alios Patriarchas. Quam potestatem habuerunt Romani Pontifices usque ad concilium Chalcedonense: sed quia in dicto concilio, ad instantiam b. Leonis Papae congregato, fuit determinatum, quod in Christo erant duae naturae et una persona, Romani Pontifices perdiderunt dictam potestatem, et omnes illi, qui dicto concilio consenserunt. XC. Item Armeni dicunt et tenent, quod potestas illa, quam Christus dedit b. Petro, dicendo ei: Quodcumque ligaveris, etc., sit solum data personae Petri et pro ipso solo, ita quod haec potestas non transivit ad aliquem ejus successorem. CX. Item quod apud Armenos sunt multi errores a praedictis, qui errores continentur in infrascriptis libris Armenorum, quorum primus intitulatur Tenophacer, i. e. contra festivitates, quas celebrant Ecclesiae Romana et Graeca. Secundus liber vocatur Anadoarmat, i. e. radix fidei.—Decimus liber vocatur liber canonum Apostolorum, in quo continentur omnes errores Armenorum, etc. CXVI. Item quod cum Rex Armenorum vocatus Ethom, ut Armeni unirent Ecclesiae Romanae, congregasset omnes Episcopos Armeniae, et magistros, et Catholicon, ut disputarent cum legato misso eis per Romanam Ecclesiam, et facta dicta disputatione cognovisset dictus Rex, quod veritatem tenebat s. Romana Ecclesia, et quod Armeni errantes erant a veritate; ex tunc Reges Armeniae minoris tenuerunt fidem s. Romanae Ecclesiae: sed Episcopi, magistri, et Principes Armenorum non fuerunt de hoc contenti. Et post recessum dicti legati quidam magister vocatus Vartan de Nigromonte compositus unum librum de Risma, i. e. versus pedem, contra Papam et suum legatum, et contra Ecclesiam Romanam, in quo vocavit Papam Romanum superbum Pharaonem cum suis subditis in mare haeresis submersum, et legatum ejus, ambaxatorem Pharaonis, fuisse reversum cum maxima verecundia: et dixit, quod Ecclesia Romana erat multum decepta, quia nativitatem et aquam a maledicto Artomonu recepit, et multas alias blasphemias scripsit in dicto libro, qui magnus est. Et multi ministri Armenorum, et Episcopi, ac Presbyteri dictum librum honorant tanquam canones Apostolorum. (So Wartan the Great, † 1271, one of the most highly-prized writers of the Armenians, is no doubt the author of those works written against the Church of Rome, which the Mechitarists consider forged; see Neumann's Gesch. d. armen. Literatur, s. 188.) In order to satisfy the Pope the Armenians held a synod on the question (Raynald. 1341, no. 118): still Clement VI. found it necessary to send to the Armenian bishops two legates, Antonius Episc. Gajetanus and Joannes electus Coronensis (Raynald. 1346, no. 67 ss.), ut per eos de ipsa fide ejusque salutari doctrina informemini plenius et imbuamini viva voce, quam possetis scriptura instrui vel literis informari, and they brought word back (Raynald. 1350, no. 37), quod dicti Rex, Catholicos et populus adhuc in multis a veritate catholicae fidei aberrabant; so that the Pope, on occasion of a fresh request for aid from the Armenians, resolved only to refer the matter to the Archbishop of Nicosia (l. c.), quatenus eidem Regi populoque, cum ipse ac dicti Catholicos et populus aliquas recognitiones super aliquibus, quibus ab ejusdem fidei discrepant veritate, fecerint juxta formam, quam tibi—transmitteremus,—sex millia florenorum auri de pecuniis camerae nostrae tradi et assignari facere non omittas. By means of those ambassadors the Pope had also laid before the Catholicos of Armenia—quaedam capitula pro pleniori eruditione, and received responses; but he represented to him, in a new brief (Raynald. 1351, no. 2 ss.): non potuimus nec possumus ex responsionibus hujusmodi quoad plura elicere, quid tu et eadem Ecclesia minoris Armeniae sincere et pure credatis:—ex quarum (responsionum) aliquibus conditionata, ex quibusdam vero diminuta vel imperfecta, et ex nonnullis, forsitan scriptoris vel interpretis vitio, minus vera confessio manifeste colligitur. Accordingly he examines these responses throughout, and appends to each new questions, to draw forth the interpretation and correction of them. Then: Post praedicta omnia mirari cogimur vehementer, quod—subtrahis de LIII. primis capitulis capitula XVI. Primum, quod Spiritus sanctus procedit a Patre et Filio. Tertium, quod parvuli ex primis parentibus contrahunt originale peccatum. Sextum, elukes, who immediately began a cruel persecution of Christianity.³

The Coptic Christians also, in Egypt, during the fourteenth century, suffered under the dominion of the Mamelukes several severe persecutions, during which many of them went over to the Islam faith.⁴

The invitations of Pope John XXII. to the Ethiopians⁵ and Jacobites⁶ to submit themselves to the Roman Church remained without result.

quod animae ex toto purgatae separatae a suis corporibus manifeste Deum vident. Nonnum, quod animae decedentium in mortali peccato in infernum descendant. Duodecimum, quod baptismus deleaf origine et actuale peccatum. XIII. quod Christus non destruxit, descendendo ad inferos, inferiorem infernum. XV. quod angeli a Deo fuerunt creati boni. XXX. quod effusio sanguinis animalium nullam operatur remissionem peccatorum. XXXII. quod non judicent comedores piscium et olei in diebus jejuniorum. XXXIX. quod in Ecclesia catholica baptizati, si efficiantur infideles, et postmodum convertantur, non sunt iterum baptizandi. XLVI. quod est de necessitate salutis, confiteri proprio sacerdoti, vel de licentia ejus [alii] omnia peccata mortalia perfecte et distincte.—Ideo volumus clare et sine velamine a te scire, si praedicta XVI. capitula diminuisti de LIII. pro eo, quod non credis esse vera neque catholica, vel ex qua causa ipsa capitula diminuisti. Item in scriptis rogasti Archiepiscopum et Episcopum antefatos (the papal legates), ut esset inter eos et te verborum finis :—scias, quod non possemus nos—finem imponere,—nisi prius pure, clare, perfecte et integre tu et Armeni—fidem illam receperitis, quam ipsa Romana tenet et docet Ecclesia.—Caeterum quia fidei dignorum plurimum, et quorundam etiam Armenorum relatio frequenter nostris auribus instillavit, quod tu et antecessores tui—ea, quae circa ipsius fidei nostrae cultum—Romanis Pontificibus—descripsistis et promisistis,—in nullo penitus observatis,—ac fidem ipsius Ecclesiae Romanae, extra quam nulli est gratia, nulli salus, habuistis damnabiliter in derisum : ideo fraternitatem tuam monemus,—quatenus responsiones per te ad interrogations nostras faciendas, et omnia, quae tu et iidem obedientes tibi Armeni circa ipsius fidei nostrae negotium promittetis et dicetis, vos credere ac tenere,—tactis sacrosanctis evangelii, jura mentis solemnibus roboretis : et nihilominus sub juramentis similibus promittatis, quod nobis et successoribus nostris Romanis Pontificibus—parebitis cum effectu, ut ora de te et Armenis eisdem sic graviter—obloquentium obstruas :—sciturus pro certo, quod praeter salutis aeternae praemia, et famae titulos, quae provide conquereris, dabit tibi Deus, ille omnium opulentissimus retributor, unde in praesenti quoque saeculo gratiis et beneficiis affluas.

The Council of Pisa, among the members of which Peter de Alliaco, bishop of Cambray,¹ and John Gerson, chancellor of the University of Paris,² are pre-eminent as the chiefs of the reforming party, opened its sessions on the 25th March, 1409. Notwithstanding the efforts which the Emperor Rupert caused to be made in favor of the Roman Pope, Gregory XII.,³ it proceeded as early as the 5th of June to the deposition of both popes;⁴ and then, after the proposed reformation seemed to be secured by the solemn engagement of all the cardinals,⁵ it caused Alexander V.

In session XV., the 5th of June, there followed the Sententia definitiva et privativa contra praedictos contendentes (Theodor. a Niem, iii. c. 44; Raynald. a. l. no. 71, d'Achery, i. p. 847 ss.): Christi nomine invocato sancta et universalis Synodus universalem Ecclesiam repraesentans, et ad quam cognitio et decisio hujus causae noscitur pertinere,—pronunciat, decernit, definit et declarat,—Angelum Corario et Petrum de Luua de papatu contendentes, et eorum utrumque fuisse et esse notorios schismaticos, et antiqui schismatis nutritores, defensores, fautores, approbatores, et manutentores pertinaces, necon non notorios haereticos, et a fide devios, notoriisque criminibus enormibus perjurii et violationis voti irretitos, universalem Ecclesiam sanctam Dei notorie scandalizantes cum incorrigibilitate, contumacia et pertinacia notoriis, evidentibus et manifestis; et ex his et aliis se reddidisse omni honore et dignitate, etiam papali, indignos; ipsosque et eorum utrumque propter praemissas iniquitates, crimina et excessus ne regnent, vel imperent, aut praesint, a Deo et sacris canonibus fore ipso facto abjectos et privatos, ac etiam ab Ecclesia praecisos; et nihilominus ipsos Petrum et Angelum, et eorum utrumque, per hanc sententiam definitivam in his scriptis privat, abjicit et praecidit, inhibendo eisdem, ne eorum aliquis pro summo Pontifice gerere se praesumat, etc.

to be elected Pope on the 26th of June. Now the reformation was to follow;⁶ but the synod was soon obliged to acknowledge that there was no possibility of reform in union with a Pope. In fact, it required more than ordinary insight, morality, and power in a Pope to close his ears to the suggestions of a curia that seemed entirely devoted to his cause, and himself to help to overthrow all the splendor which his predecessors for centuries appeared to have built up for him, without even being sure of the perpetuity of his work, and the honor of his name in time to come. Alexander's earliest policy displayed the ordinary characteristics of a Pope after the old fashion.⁷ He sought to silence, and not to sat-

⁷ Gerson, De Modo Reformandi Ecclesiam in Conc. Univ., written 1410, cap. 10 (in v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const. t. i. P. v. p. 90): *Et ut sic fieret (viz., ut limitaretur potestas usurpata papalis) fuit omnino inclinatus dictus Dominus Alexander V. ante ejus Papatum, dum ageretur, ut dictum concilium celebraretur in Pisis. Qui etiam hoc dicebat, et etiam super limitatione subsequenda multis argumentis theologicis, philosophicis, juridicis insudabat. Qui creatus in Papam in lucem educere non curabat. Petrus de Alliaco De Difficultate Reformationis in Conc. universali ad Jo. Gersonem, written 1410, cap. 3 (in v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const. t. i. P. vi. p. 262): Alexander prorsus inexpertus erat eorum, quae officii pastoralis honor et sublimitas exigebat, quamvis esset magnus Theologus. Et quicquid dicti Cardinales ab eo petierunt, ipsis absque contradictione concessit, nec audebat ipsis aliquid denegare. Unde ipsi continuo eum importune crebris petitionibus vexarunt, ita ut aliquando propterea in se ipso nimium turbaretur. Nec poterant satiari. Theodoricus a Niem, iii. c. 51: *Fuit autem dictus dominus Petrus (Alexander prius nominatus Petrus de Candia), cum eligeretur in Papam, septuagenarius, vel circa.—Hic quicquid ordinavit et fieri voluit per ipsum dictus dominus Joannes Papa, tunc Diaconus Cardinalis (Balthasar Cossa), in omnibus et per omnia fecit, ab ejus precibus, consiliis aut mandatis—nullatenus recedendo, et in ejus Papatu nihil penitus reformatum, et omnibus studuit complacere, et vix alicui ab eo quicquam petenti a majori usque ad minimum sine personarum discretione scivit denegare. Unde subito postquam in Papam assumptus fuit, adeo deformatum notabiliora officia sua Curiae ad importunam instantiam multorum potentium, excedendo illorum numerum antiquum nulla necessitate aut utilitate urgente, quod in longo tempore in statum debitum vix potuerunt reformari, et tam prodigus fuit in concedendis gratiis beneficialibus, quod nullam novit differentiam inter personas, quibus illa fecit, et quales facere deberet, nec modum nec ordinem debitos et consuetos in talibus observando: fuit enim in illis practicalibus et agibilibus penitus inexpertus.—Aliquos etiam fratres Minores (brethren of his order) sibi caros et sociales publicis officiis et lucrativis, quae prius consueverunt regi per saeculares personas habiles et expertas, in eadem sua Curia praefert, et miro modo conabatur plerosque fratres minores cathedralibus Ecclesiis vacantibus praeficere in pastores: in his praecipue, et etiam in multis aliis Papale officium, cuius gravitatem non novit, in brevi tempore denigrando.—Cap. 52:—statim postquam creatus fuit, et ante ipsius coronationem multos creavit Archiepiscopos, Episcopos et Abbates, et omnibus illis familiaribus dominorum Cardinalium, qui eum elegerunt in Papam, qui dictis Dominis Cardinalibus in conclavi ministrarunt, adeo abusivas et exorbitantes beneficiales gratias, etiam cum dispensationibus ad plura incompatibilia beneficia, qui eas petierunt, absque personarum delectu fecit, sicuti a saeculo nunquam prius auditae fuerunt, ita quod caeteri saltem intelligentes Curiales de indiscreta provisione stupefacti murmu-

A reformation of the Church was not effected; and after Alexander V. died at Bologna, 3d May, 1410, and Balthasar Cossa, infamous for all sorts of crimes, succeeded him, as John XXIII.¹¹ nothing more could be expected from the Pope.¹² John XXIII. used all his stat fuisse certum et indubitatum; Bellarminus, de Conciliis et Ecclesia, lib. i. c. 8, calls it—nec approbatum, nec reprobatum; but he still considers Alexander V. and John XXIII. as the real popes of that age: certe ex tribus, qui tum se pro Pontificibus gerebant, isti maxime ut veri Pontifices colebantur. The later curialists entirely reject the œcumenicity of the Concilium Pisanum (Ballerini, De Potestate Ecclesiastica Summorum Pontificum et Concill. Generall. cap. 6); and, accordingly, they disown its popes also, Alexander V. and John XXIII., and recognize Gregory XII. as the rightful Pope, until his resignation at Constance (Raynald. ann. 1409, no. 79 and 80). The French party, on the other hand, have constantly defended the council and its popes; see Edm. Richerii Hist. Conciliorum Generalium, lib. ii. c. 2, § 6; Bossuet, Defensio Declarat. Cleri Gall. P. ii. lib. 9. c. 11; especially, Natalis Alex. Hist. Eccl., saec. xv. et xvi. Diss. ii.

¹⁰ Probably poisoned by his successor; see the Articuli contra Joh. P. XXIII. laid before the Council of Constance (in v. d. Hardt, *Conc. Sicque, ut praedicitur, fuit dictum, tentum, creditum et reputatum, diciturque, tenetur, creditur et reputatur. Atque fuit et est de praemissis in civitate Bononiensi et extra per totum mundum publica vox et fama, et est graviter et notorie diffamatus. After all his efforts, including even the proclamation of a crusade in 1411,¹³ had remained without result, the King was won over in 1412 by the promise of great advantages; and Gregory XII., faithlessly abandoned, was driven to seek refuge in Rimini with his true friend Charles of Malatesta.¹⁴ But not long afterward Ladislaus broke once more with John XXIII., suddenly marched against Rome in 1413, and forced the Pope to fly into

petratione literae apostolicae in Romana curia confectae traderentur, solveret camerae Apostolicae realiter medietatem fructuum dicti beneficii impetrati unius anni. To this were added also—duae novellae constitutiones. Viz., olim quicunque praefecti fuerant cathedralibus Ecclesiis, aut Monasteriis virorum vacantibus in Praelatos, non arctabantur per sedem Apostolicam, ut in promptu plus solverent Camerae Apostolicae aut collegio Cardinalium pro communi servitio, quam medietatem taxae, ad quam Ecclesiae vel Monasteria ipsa in eadem Camera reperiebantur esse taxata. Et pro alia medietate solvenda promotis—dilatio dabatur.—Quas quidem taxas oportet promotos per ipsum Dom. Johannem integraliter solvere,—antequam literae Apostolicae—tradantur ipsis promotis.—Ex quo contingit, quod plures Ecclesiarum et dignitatum seu monasteriorum, ad quae promoti sunt, possessionem nequeant apprehendere. Further, olim ante schisma—ratione inferiorum dignitatum et beneficiorum Ecclesiasticorum vacantium—non consueverunt impetrantes medios fructus dignitatum et beneficiorum praefatorum eidem camerae solvere, priusquam illa essent pacifice assecuti. Et tunc concordabat super illis cum collectoribus fructuum dictae camerae in diversis partibus debitorum.—Nunc autem extorquentur dicti medii fructus ab impetrantibus ipsis in eadem curia, antequam eis literae Apostolicae confectae super talibus gratis tradantur per officiales dictae camerae.—Et quod deterius est, si forte centum concurrent pro uno beneficio vacante et reservato impetrando, daretur omnibus per Papam. Tamen si literas Apostolicas super ipsis impetrationibus suis vellent habere, quemlibet eorum incunctanter medietatem fructuum dicti beneficii praefatae camerae ante omnia solvere oporteret, licet nisi unus eorum illud assequi posset (compare the anonymous writer in Bulaeus Hist. Univ. Paris, iv. p. 914).—Cap. 3. p. 260: Cum igitur juxta praehabita pateat, quod apud Papam et ejus collegium Cardinalium nulla vigeat charitas quoad alias Praelatos et Christianos, sed perpetua et insatiabilis rapacitas potius ardeat in eisdem, ut qualitercunque dicebatur: dato, quod generale Concilium convocaretur et fieret, sicut dicis et consulis fieri debere, qualis ex hoc utilitas universalis Ecclesiae resultaret? Esto etiam, quod omnes isti tres de papatu contendentes sponte cederent, aut ad cedendum compellerentur inviti, eisque novus Papa, sicut factum fuit in Pisis novissime, surrogaretur: dicti Cardinales in statu eorum nihilominus remanentes dicerent, quod ad eos duntaxat spectaret electio summi Pontificis. Quod si obtinerent, non est dubitandum, quin unum ex se ipsis eligerent, sicut fecerunt in Pisis. Sicque nulla reformatio efficax et fructuosa ex cessione hujusmodi sequeretur, nisi vocalis, et unius personae mutatio tantum. Et hi quidem electus et electores juxta mores veteres eorum similiter perpetuum errorem in ipsa Ecclesia continarent, quoque unus eorum in eodem statu in ipsa Ecclesia remaneret. Certum est enim, quod mystice sacerdotes Bel cum eorum uxoribus et filiis omnes unanimiter in lacum leonum missi fuerint, ut per ipsos leones devorarentur. Quod si aliqui eorum supervixissent, extunc etiam cibos regios, eidem Bel singulis diebus appositos devorassent, prout ante deceptorie facere consueverant. Et ne hoc deinceps fieret taliter, una sententia super omnes justo Dei judicio lata subito perierunt.

COUNCIL OF CONSTANCE (5TH NOVEMBER, 1414—22D APRIL, 1418). MARTIN V. (11TH NOVEMBER, 1417, † 20TH FEBRUARY, 1431).

¹⁵ Leonardus Aretinus in Muratori, xix. p. 928: *unicum remedium et Imperatori et Pontifici videbatur generale Concilium advocari. Sed erant circa hoc ipsum constituenda permulta, ceu locus, tempus, modus. Missi sunt igitur his de causis ad Sigismundum Legati. Horum missio Legatorum ruinae Pontificis initium fuit. Quia in re non videtur praetereundum mirabile quiddam, quod tunc accidit, ut omnia caelitus gubernari cognoscamus. Communicaverat tecum Pontifex arcane mentem et cogitationem suam. In loco, inquit, *Concilii rei summa est, nec ego alicubi esse volo, ubi Imperator plus possit. Legatis igitur istis, qui a me mituntur, mandata amplissima, potestatemque maximam ad honestatis speciem dabo, quae palam ostentare possint, atque proferre: secreto autem mandatum restringam ad loca certa.

However, he altered his mind, he gave the ambassadors only general instructions, ostendens quanti ponderis illa res esset, cuius rei gratia mitterentur, and dismissed them with the injunction: vestrae prudentiae cuncta permitto. Vos, quid mihi tutum, et quid formidandum, cogitetis.

After the ambassadors had come to an agreement with the Emperor as regards Constance, Joannes incredibile quantum indoluit, se ipsum ac fortunam suam detestatus, quod tam leviter a cogitatione, propositoque illo pristino restringendorum locorum descivisset. The bull by which the council was summoned, d. Laudae V. Id. Dec. 1413, may be seen in Raynald, ann. 1413, no. 22; v. d. Hardt, t. vi. p. 9.

minem sanctum, licet volentem disponat ad sanctitatem, sicut faciunt caeterae dignitates ecclesiasticae.—Et si dicatur: illa sedes aut sanctum facit, aut sanctum invenit; intellegitur ita: deberet sanctum invenire. Ridiculum est enim dicere, quod unus homo mortalis dicat se potestatem habere in coelo et in terra ligandi et solvendi a peccatis, et quod ille sit filius perditionis, simoniacus, avarus, mendax, exactor, fornicator, superbus, pomposus, et pejor quam diabolus.—Cap. 9, p. 87: Sed numquid tale Concilium, ubi Papa non praesidet, est supra Papam? Certe sic. Superius in auctoritate, superius in dignitate, superius in officio. Tali enim Concilio ipse Papa in omnibus tenetur obedire, tale Concilium potest potestatem Papae limitare, quia tali Concilio, cum reprezentet Ecclesiam universalem, claves ligandi et solvendi sunt concessae. Tale Concilium jura papalia potest tollere, a tali Concilio nullus potest appellare, tale Concilium potest Papam eligere, privare et deponere, tale Concilium potest jura nova condere, et facta ac antiqua destruere, talis etiam Concilii constitutiones, statuta et regulae sunt immutabiles et indispensabiles per quamecumque personam inferiorem Concilio. Nec potest, nec potuit aliquando Papa dispensare contra canones sanctos in Conciliis generalibus, nisi Concilium specialiter hoc illi commiserit ex magna causa. Nec facta Concilii potest Papa immutare, imo nec interpretari, aut contra ea dispensare, cum sint sicut Evangelia Christi, quae nullam recipiunt dispensationem, et super quae Papa nullam habet jurisdictionem. Cap. 10, p. 90: Coucilium ergo generale, reprezentans universalem Ecclesiam, si affectat unionem integrum videre, si affectat schismata reprimere, si vult schismatis finem statuere, si vult Ecclesiam exaltare; primo ante omnia ad instar sanctorum Patrum, qui nos praecesserunt, limitet ac terminet potestatem coactivam et usurpatam papalem. (Here follows the passage quoted in vol. 3, § 107, note 3.) P. 91: Ideo sacrum universale Concilium reducat et reformat Ecclesiam universalem in jure antiquo. Et abusivam papalem in Decreto et Decretalibus, Sexto et Clementinis, nec non Extravagantibus papalibus praetensam limitet potestatem. Christus enim nullam aliam potestatem Petro tribuit, quam ligandi et solvendi, ligandi per poenitentias, et solvendi culpas. Non enim illi contulit, ut beneficia tribueret, ut regna, castra et civitates haberet, ut Imperatores et Reges privaret. Quod si taliter potestatem Christus Petro contulisset, utique ipse Petrus aut Paulus, quod nefas est dicere, valde peccassent, aut errassent in eo, quod Neronem Imperatorem, quem sciverunt esse pessimum, et Christianorum immanissimum persecutorem, imperio non privarint.—Et quis unquam legit, vel in veritate audivit, quod antiquis temporibus Romanorum Reges vel Imperatores consueverint ante Papam juramentum praestare, potissime antequam primus Otto Magni Augusti semper alter, juramentum reperitur in Decretis praestitis? quod indulatum a quoquam Papae fuerit, ut reservationes cathedralium et aliarum Ecclesiarum ac Monasteriorum faceret? ut propter pecunias homines, Episcopos et Praelatos excommunicaret, atque ab eorum dignitatibus destitueret, seu privaret, ac omni die festivo in valvis Curiae? ut primos fructus in Camera soleret aggregare, et excommunicatos emacaret ac eos scandalizaret? (cf. cap. 17, p. 110: Ita ut jam non videatur Romana Curia esse, nisi quoddam forum publicum, ad quod quo quis plura portaverit, plura mercimonia habebit.)—Reformat etiam Ecclesia quoad Cardinales, qui tot commendas habent sine causa, destruentes tot Ecclesias et Monasteria.—Reformatur etiam Ecclesia in Praelatis, in Monachis et Presbyteris. In Praelatis, ut electi ad Ecclesias vitae honestate, literarum sufficientia, et perfecta aetate excellentes per Ordinarios et Archiepiscopos confirmantur: in Monachis, ut vivant in observantia regulari: in Presbyteris, ut non praeficiantur Ecclesiis, nisi virtutibus clari et literarum sufficientia fuerint imbuti, docti et instructi.—Resciduntur etiam abusivae libertates et exemptiones, concessae illis quatuor Ordinibus fratrum mendicantium, quibus nimium abutuntur.—Et liberentur ab ipsis omnino omnia monasteria Monialium, quia ipsi fratres, seu multi ex eis in plerisque provinciis valde deturpant ipsas moniales eis subjectas.—Nimis etiam multiplicantur hi fratres. Et quid opus est, ut in aliqua domo eorum fratrum, scilicet Coloniae,—continue resideant LXX. eorum, aut plures, inter quos forsitan non sunt quinque vel sex sufficietes ad proponendum verbum Dei populo. Et tot pro una tota provincia sufficere possent. Cap. 12, page 96: Sed timeo, dato etiam, quod ista reformatio fiat in scriptis, etiam certis juramentis et firmamentis ac pactis adjectis, quod post per Papam et Cardinales, ac caeteros ipsius Curiae Officiales et Praelatos non observarentur, dicente Francisco Petrarcha in libro sine nomine: Crescentibus flagitiis hominum crevit veri odium, et regnum blanditiis atque mendacio datum est. Et quia difficile est, consueta relinquere. —Cap. 16, p. 105: Aut ergo concregetur Ecclesia ad hoc, ut sancta et actitata in concilio Pisano demandentur ulteriori et reali executioni, et illi duo (Greg. XII. et Bened. XIII.) privati de jure etiam priventur de facto. Aut ubi hoc remedium reperiri non poterit, quod est verisimile reperiri non posse propter adstrictas obedientias eis subditas, seu potentes obedientes ipsis, qui ab eis deviare nolunt: tunc, si illi duo privati et abjecti petant generale concilium, et promittant, se ibidem personaliter velle comparere, et suo juri de facto, quod habent, libere et pure renunciare in casu, quo Dominus noster Papa Johannes etiam suo juri renunciare velit: tunc in isto casu quid fieri, dicam sine praejudicio, quod ipse Dominus noster Papa, si alias non potest consuli Ecclesiae,—non dico unum Papatum, sed plures, si essent possibles, teneatur in casu isto libenter et voluntarie renunciare, et Papatui suo cedere, ne respublica et tota Ecclesia propter unum hominem peccatorem sine virtutibus et exemplis bonis beat perire. Cap. 17, p. 107: Tunc—universalis Ecclesia—reformabitur. Sed tunc caveat universalis Ecclesia super omnia, ut nunquam sub quovis colore concedat Papae potestatem dispensandi contra statuta generalis Concilii, aut ea interpretandi, seu immutandi propter varietates temporum, et novos supervenientes casus; sed quod solum illa debeant immutari per aliud Concilium generale, fiendum de tempore in tempus propter reformationem Ecclesiae. Luce enim clarius constat, quod pro majori parte facta et ordinata in quatuor generalibus Conciliis principalibus, et aliis Conciliis per temporum successiones statuta, crescente avaritia Pontificum, Cardinalium, et Praelatorum, tam per Papae reservaciones, quam per iniquas Cameræ Apostolicae constitutiones et Cancellariae regulas, et formulas audienciarum causarum Rotae, et ambitionis dispensationes, absolutions, indulgentias, confessionalia, officium poenitentiariae sint fere immutata, annihilata, et quasi in derisum et oblivionem posita.—Cap. 24: Subsequenter autem venio ad illas novellas constitutiones Alexandri et Johannis praedictorum, quibus cavetur, quod promotus ad aliquam Ecclesiam cathedralem, vel aliquod Monasterium, etc., et quod impetrans beneficium reservatum a Papa, etc. (see § 130, note 12.) Huius quaestioni, Pater reverende, cum non sint de jure, sed de facto haec pestiferae constitutiones, satisfacere nequeo ad praesens, cum sint super violentia manifesta, Simonia publica, rapacitate lupina, et ovium Christi dispersione fabricatae, quaeque ad aliud non sunt, nisi ut eorum conditores furentur, mactent et perdant, ipsi videlicet Papae et Cardinales. Quocirca ut futurus Rex vel Imperator Romanus, Domino concedente, adhaereat dictis Angelo (Gregorio XII.), et Petro (Benedicto XIII.), et tali lupo rapaci, et tali raptori tyranno (Joanni XXIII.), qui non regnat in Ecclesia, nec principatur propter bonum commune, sed solum propter bonum privatum, et ejus principatus est manifesta tyrannis, quod sana conscientia compellat, seu compelli faciat, aut audeat compellere, non video.—Sic ergo concludo, quod superioribus sit obedendum in licitis et honestis: non autem compelli debemus ad eorum obedientias, ubi opera eorum sunt notorie prava, et totam Ecclesiam scandalizantia; ubi est patrimonii Christi manifesta dissipatio et injuriosa dispensatio; ubi pastores sunt tonsores; ubi non sunt agni, sed lupi; ubi non sunt dispensatores mysteriorum Christi, sed dissipatores; ubi non sunt sobrii, sed ebrios; ubi non sunt Praefati, ponentes animas suas pro ovibus suis, sed Pilati, satisfacientes aliorum cupiditatibus et desideriis, et ubi non mittunt retia sua in capturam animarum, sed pecuniarum. Omnis enim eorum cura circa acquisitionem pecuniarum est. Et breviter, ubi non Christi, sed mores gerunt Antichristi. Et ideo Christus dixit, talibus non obedendum. In novissimis enim temporibus multi venient in nomine meo, dicentes: ecce hic Christus, ecce illic Christus (Matth. xxiv. 23): sicut modo dicitur: ecce hic est verus Papa, ecce iste alius est verus Papa. Nolite credere eis, ait Christus. Imo, si nos debemus subtrahere ab omni fratre ambulante inordinate, quanto magis a superiori perverso et iniquo, ex cuius exemplo tota corrumptitur respublica, et sancta mater Ecclesia deturpatur.

sembling in such numbers at the synod of Constance² that John XXIII. could not long remain ignorant of the dangers which there threatened him. True, he opened the council with all Papal honors (5th November, 1414); but the preponderance of Italian voices, which at the earlier synods had always been in favor of the popes, was at once lost to him by the resolution that votes should be given by nations.³ From an anxious desire to put an end to the schism, the council immediately adopted the position, to let drop the decrees of Pisa, upon which John XXIII. rested his claim, and to persuade all three popes to a voluntary resigna-

Compare Lenfant, t. ii. p. 365 ss. Dächer's list concludes: Mulieres communes, quas reperi in domibus, et ultra et non minus, exceptis aliis, DCC. Justinger: offen fahrend Dirnen ob 700, denne ander heimlich Dirnen und Curtisanen vast viel.

³ See v. d. Hardt, t. ii. p. 224 ss. The papal party wished, quod in Concilio—soli Praelati majores, Episcopi et Abbates habeant vocem in definitiva sententia agendorum. On the other hand, the Card. Cameracensis (Petrus de Alliaco) gave his opinion, in a schedula, in which he directed attention to the point, quod a tempore nascentis Ecclesiae —varii fuerunt modi observati—in modo congregationis et deliberationis Conciliorum generalium. Nam, *sicut patet in Actibus Apostolorum,—quandoque in Conciliis congregabatur tota communitas Christianorum, quandoque Episcopi, Presbyteri, Diaconi, quandoque soli Episcopi sine Abbatibus quandoque cum Episcopis Abbates, quandoque Imperator convocabat et congregabat Concilium.—Item sciendum est, quod quando in Conciliis generalibus soli Episcopi habebant vocem definitivam, hoc fuit, quia habebant administrationem populi, et erant viri sancti et docti et electi prae caeteris in Ecclesia christiana. Postea fuerunt additi Abbates eadem de causa, et quia habebant administrationem subiectorum. Et eadem ratione addi deberent Piores aut Majores quarumcunque congregationum plus quam Episcopi, vel Abbates inutiles, solum titulares.—Item eadem ratione, qua supra, non sunt excludendi a voce definitiva Sacrae Theologiae Doctores, ac juris canonici et civilis. Quibus, et maxime Theologis, datur auctoritas praedicandi aut docendi ubique terrarum, quae non est parva auctoritas in populo Christiano, sed multo major quam unius Episcopi vel Abbatis ignorantis, et solum titularis. Et quia antiquitus haec Doctorum auctoritas non erat introducta per modum Studiorum generalium, quae hodie auctoritate Ecclesiae observatur, de eis non fit mentio in antiquis juribus communibus, sed in Concilio Pisano et Romano (from 1412) eorum auctoritas allegatur, et in definitiva sententia se subscribunt. Quare eos in simili excludere praesens Concilium, quod est dicti Pisani continuativum non solum esset absurdum, sed dicti Pisani Concilii quodammodo reprobatum.—Item quantum ad materiam terminandi praesens schisma et dandi pacem Ecclesiae, velle excludere Reges, Principes aut Ambasiatores eorum—a voce seu determinatione etiam conclusiva, non videtur justum, aequum, aut rationi consonum: cum hujusmodi pacis conclusio ad eos et populos eis subiectos valde pertineat, et sine eorum consilio, auxilio et favore non possint ea, quae in hoc Concilio concludentur, executioni mandari. To the same effect speaks the Schedula of the Cardinal S. Marci (Guil. Philasterius, Fillastre), p. 226: *Tu, quisquis es, qui praetendis primo, solos majores Praelatos, ut his verbis utar, Episcopos et Abbates, habere vocem in generali Concilio: et ita excludis Doctores, Archidiaconos, Rectores parochialium Ecclesiarum, caeterosque dignitates habentes, quibus cura imminent animarum, Ordines praeterea ecclesiasticos, Sacerdotes et Diaconos, dic, ubi illos non admittendos legisti? Et si legeris Conciliorum antiquorum actiones, reperisti Sacerdotes et Diaconos admissos.—Si Canonista es, vide textum Canonis dicentem, quod Doctorum Ordo quasi praecipuus est in Ecclesia Dei. Illum ergo Ordinem, et quasi praecipuum Ordinem repellis, et admittis indistincte Episcopos et Abbates, quorum pars major indocta. Et attende, quod Rex, vel Praelatus indoctus est asinus coronatus. Cum illis ergo Doctores admitte, ut illorum scientiae defectum, qui tamen auctoritatem habent, istorum scientia et doctrina suppleant. Then it is also maintained: Inter episcopos et Presbyteros, quantum ad ordinationem et meritum, Apostolus nullam differentiam facit. After this question came the other, p. 230: quomodo deciderentur agenda in Concilio, et fieret scrutinium votorum? utrum per nationes in genere, quarum quatuor erant, nimurum Italiae, Galliae, Germaniae et Angliae, vel per capita singula? Et licet clarum de jure videatur, quod perscrutanda sint vota per capita singula: quia tamen plures sunt Praelati Italiae pauperes, quam fere de omnibus nationibus, praeterea Dominus noster fecit in numero excessivo Praelatos Cubicularios ultra quinquaginta; dicitur praeterea, quod multos voluit sibi obligare juramentis et muneribus, alios minis terruisse, ut ita scrutando per capita nihil fieret, nisi quod vellet Dominus noster: in istis quaestionibus Concilium diu peperdit.—Interim Nationes ulterioris Galliae, Germaniae et Angliae, et ita postea Italiae, per se ipsas se congregaverunt et deciderunt de facto quaestionem. Cerretanus in Actis Conc. Const. (v. d. Hardt, iv. ii. p. 40) says: Die Jovis, septima Februarii, post nonnullas disceptationes decretum est, ut in Concilio per Nationes, et non per vota procederetur.

⁴ In the Congregation on 7th December, 1414, a proposal was made by the Italians devoted to John XXIII. (see Schedula in v. d. Hardt, iv. i. p. 24), quod declararetur, Concilium Pisanum, omniaque et singula acta et gesta in eo, indeque secuta, fuisse et esse rationabilia et canonica, et ab omnibus et per omnia admittendum fore, et sub poenis canoniciis admitti debere, et executioni subjacere condemnata in eo. Et pro eorum executione quod Papa teneatur et debeat expellere Petrum de Luna, et persecui Errorium (Gregorium XII.) dejectos, eorumque fautores et defensores. On the other side, Petrus de Alliaco, Card. Cameracensis, sought to avert the confirmation of the council of Pisa (Schedula in v. d. Hardt, ii. p. 194): In praesenti Concilio non est revocandum in dubium, sed pro fundamento supponendum, quod Concilium Pisanum fuit legitimum, et canonice celebratum, et ideo stabile et firmum.—Confirmatio Pisani Concilii, simpliciter et sine nova causa facta, non habet proprie auctoritatem mentes solidandi, sed magis irritandi, nec omnem scrupulositatem in causa dicti Pisani Concilii amovendi, seu errores circa ipsum extirpandi, sed magis novos errores inducendi, et schismatis obstinationem confirmandi, nisi prius convenientia remedia adhibeantur. In a second Schedula he proposed (l. c. p. 196): quia ejectio duorum contendentium de Papatu non est facilis vel verosimilis obtineri via belli, tentandum erit, et diligenter tractandum, quod fiat pax per ipsorum reductionem vel voluntariam cessionem. He came forward afterward with still greater plainness in some Conclusiones (l. c. p. 200): Licet Concilium Pisanum probabiliter credatur repraesentasse universalem Ecclesiam, et vices ejus gessisse, quae Spiritu Sancto regitur, et errare non poterit: tamen propter hoc non est necessario concludendum, quod a quounque fideli sit firmiter credendum, quod illud Concilium errare non potuit, cum plura priora Concilia fuerint generalia reputata, quae errasse leguntur. Nam secundum quosdam magnos Doctores generale Concilium potest errare non solum in facto, sed etiam in jure, et quod magis est, in fide. Quia sola universalis Ecclesia hoc habet privilegium, quod in fide errare non potest. In January, 1415, ambassadors came also from Gregory XII. and Benedict XIII. (v. d. Hardt, iv. ii. p. 33 ss.), and Gregory XII. declared by his (v. d. Hardt, ii. p. 204); viam cessionis Papatus—ex nunc pura et sincera intentione offerimus—juxta determinationem Concilii per Regiam Majestatem de omnibus obedientiis et nationibus in hoc schismate in civitate Constantiensi congregati, dicto Balthasar, qui a nonnullis Johannis XXIII. nuncupatur, non praesidente, nec interessente, cum effectu perficiendam, praefatis Petro de Luna et Balthasar Cossa idem facientibus. In February, the Cardinalis S. Marci (Guilelmus Philasterius, formerly Dean at Rheims) first came forward with the proposal (v. d. Hardt, ii. p. 210) cessionis lead to an examination into his crimes, found himself compelled, on 2d March, 1415, to promise his resignation.⁵ Thereupon, in-

fienda ab omnibus, and on the question—utrum ad illam teneatur Dominus Johannes, declared himself to this effect; in casu, in quo est manifeste Summus Pontifex, quanto verior pastor Ecclesiae, tanto libentius, ferventius et citius debet pro pace et unione Ecclesiae aggredi viam cessionis et offerre. Patet conclusio ex dictis summi pastoris dicentis: bonus pastor animam suam ponit pro oibvs suis (Jo. x. 12).—Si autem animam tenetur ponere, multo magis accidentia vitae, honorem, potestatem, dominatum.—Quia ex praemissis tenetur ad hoc, igitur compelli potest, si recusat.—Nec dubitandum, quin generale Concilium sit iudex competens in hac parte. On the other hand, the papal party gave in several Schedulæ (l. c. p. 214 ss.), in which it was particularly proved, p. 216, that—via cessionis, quae Domino nostro proponitur,—quoad Concilium Pisanum, est irrationabilis et injusta, quia est reprobativa et annullativa ipsius Concilii Pisani. But the Card. Cameracensis answered (p. 220): Licet Concilium (Pisanum) fuerit legitime et canonice convocatum, rite et canonice celebratum, et duo olim contendentes de Papatu juste et canonice condemnati, et electio Domini Alexandri V. fuerit canonice et rite facta,—prout haec omnia tenet Obedientia Domini nostri Papae Johannis XXIII.: tamen duae Obedientiae duorum contendentium probabiliter tenent contrarium. In qua opinionum diversa et adversa varietate non sunt minores difficultates juris et facti, quam ante Concilium Pisanum erant de justitia duorum contendentium. Ex quo sequitur secunda conclusio, quod, sicut ante Concilium Pisanum ad evitandum difficultates juris et facti, et prolixitatem, et dilationem pacis Ecclesiae, tunc acceptata fuit ab omnibus Christifidelibus et laudata via cessionis amborum contendentium, sic et nunc trium contendentium de Papatu, similiter etiam majori ratione acceptanda est et laudanda.—Sexta conclusio: Licet regulariter Papa verus et canonicus, de haeresi aut nullo notorio crimen Ecclesiam scandalizante non infamatus, nec suspectus, nequeat ab aliquo particuliari collegio, seu persona singulari contra ea quae sunt sui juris compelli vel arctari: tamen ab universalis Ecclesia, seu Concilio generali ipsam repraesentante, attenta prolixitate casus praesentis, pro pace Ecclesiae celerius procuranda, juste posset ad cessionem compelli. Septima conclusio: Si in casu praedicto Papa dictam viam pertinaciter recusaret, legitime posset tanquam schismaticus et de fautoria schismatica pravitatis suspectus rationabiliter condemnari. The result of these negotiations was, p. 230: Et finaliter omnes declinarunt ad viam cessionis secundum formam primæ schedulæ super hoc datae per Cardinalem S. Marci. Viz. (v. d. Hardt, iv. ii. p. 41): Die 15. mensis Februarii Germanica, Gallica et Anglicæ nationes viam cessionis tanquam salubriorum ad unionem Ecclesiae conficiendam elegerunt, utque natio Italica eandem approbaret, impetrarunt.

⁵ Theodoricus de Niem de Vita Jo. XXIII. lib. ii. cap. 3. (v. d. Hardt, ii. p. 391): Quibus sic stantibus (toward the middle of February, 1415) quidam, ut praesumitur, Italicus multis articulos valde famosos, et omnia peccata mortalia, necnon infinita quodammodo abominabilia continentis contra eundem Balthasarem in eodem Concilio exhibuit in scriptis, tamen secreto, quod super illis contra eundem Balthasarem fieret inquisitio, et provideretur instanter per Concilium memoratum. Quibus quidem articulis per aliquot maiores nationum Germaniae, Angliae et Poloniae perfectis, ipsi nullatenus consentire volebant, quod dicti articuli publicarentur, aut contra ipsum Balthasarem inquisitio fieret hujusmodi super illos. Et hoc propter honestatem. Et si contrarium fieret, ut asserebant, per hoc macularetur sedes Apostolica, et confunderentur enormiter etiam omnes de obedientia dicti Balthasaris, et ponerentur in dubio promotions et provisiones per ipsum factae, et multa scandala exinde subsequi possent. Plerisque etiam aliis nobilibus viris assentientibus et consulentibus, quod illa via inquisitionis fieret, quae compendiosa foret, et ipsi articuli, et contenta in eis, saltem pro majori parte essent notoria seu manifesta, et propterea modica vel nulla probatione indigerent. Quibus etiam interim clanculo et proditorie ad notitiam dicti Balthasaris deductis illico mente consternatus est, et coepit valde tremere et timere, ac etiam quosdam sibi secretos Cardinales—deed, he withdrew, on 21st March, to Schaffhausen;⁶ but by so doing he only gave an opportunity to the council, encouraged by the firmness of the Emperor, who was present in person, and by the powerful oratory of Gerson,⁷ to assert in solemn decrees its own designs and its own dignity in contrast with the Papacy.⁸

consulere,—asserens, quod quaedam in ipsis articulis descripta tanquam homo peccando commisisset, et aliqua non. Et propositum tunc in mente sua, prout et ore propalavit, quod ipsem dictum Concilium vellet personaliter accedere, et quae de contentis in eisdem articulis perpetrasset, coram ipso Concilio in publico fateri, fundans se in hoc, quod Papa propter quocunque delictum, ut dicebat, nisi propter haeresin, deponi non posset. —Cap. 4. Concilium autem, seu majores deputati in eodem, ignorantes, quod ipse Balthasar praedictos articulos sciret,—accesserunt ad eum, rogantes unanimiter, ut viam cessionis sui Papatus eligeret, ad hoc, quod alii contendentes de Papatu illam similiter acceptarent, quia alias non viderent modum aptum, quod praefata unio fieret in universalis Ecclesia pro hac vice. Ad hoc ipse laeto animo, observata tamen, ex industria, quadam gravitate, respondit, se facturum quod peterent, dum tamen ipsi alii duo contendentes idem facere vellent. Maluit enim illam viam per se, ut existimo, amplecti, quam praedicti articuli ad ejus dejectionem a Papatu admissi et probati fuissent. The first forms of the promise (v. d. Hardt, ii. p. 232), which John XXIII. offered, were not satisfactory to the council, because he promised to yield—non nisi aliis cedentibus, and—propter verba irritativa, quia alii vocantur condemnati de haeresi: at length he adopted, on the first of March, the following formula, and swore to it on the 2d March in the Sessio generalis II. (l. c. p. 240): Ego Johannes Papa XXIII. propter quietem populi Christiani profiteor, spondeo et promitto, juro et voveo Deo et Ecclesiae, ac huic sacro Concilio, sponte et libere dare pacem Christi Ecclesiae per viam meae simplicis cessionis, et eam facere et adimpiere cum effectu juxta deliberationem praesentis Concilii, si et quando Petrus de Luna, Benedictus XIII., Angelus Corario, Gregorius XII. in suis obedientiis nuncupati, Papatui, quem practendunt, per se vel procuratores suos, legitimate cedant: et etiam in quocunque casu cessionis vel decessus, aut alio, in quo per meam cessionem poterit dari unio Ecclesiae Dei per extirpationem praesentis schismatis. Though he was bound to issue literae testimoniales on this point, he refused at first (Theod. de Niem, l. c.). However, on the 7th March he had a bull prepared in which that promise was incorporated word for word (see in v. d. Hardt, iv. ii. p. 53.).

⁶ Theod. de Niem, ii. 7. The letters to the King of France, the Duke of Orleans, and the University of Paris, in which the Pope sought to justify his flight, on the plea that he was neither safe nor free at Constance, that the Emperor Sigismund conducted the council entirely according to his own will, and so on, may be seen in v. d. Hardt, ii. p. 253 ss. There are letters of the same kind to the King of Poland, the Dukes of Berri and Burgundy, in Bourgeois du Chastenet, Preuves p. 318; to the Duke of Orleans, in J. G. Schelhorn's Ergötzlichkeiten aus der Kirchenhistorie u. Literatur. Bd. i. s. 27, f. There are letters of defense from the council to the princes, in v. d. Hardt, iv. p. 108; to the King of France, ibid. p. 129; more fully in Schelhorn, ibid. s. 225. In the first we find, p. 111: Nos igitur, cum omnia diligenter pensamus, et maturo iudicio deliberamus, nil aliud eundem (Papam) attentasse conspicimus, quam hujusmodi Concilii dissolutionem, utpote ad unionem Ecclesiae intendentis. And thus, according to Theod. de Niem, ii. 8, the cardinals of the Pope's party at Constance endeavored to spread the opinion, quod Concilium dissolutum esset propter absentiam et recessum dicti Balthasaris.

sequendum, haec sancta Synodus, sacrum generale Concilium Constantiense nuncupata, pro unione et reformatione dictae Ecclesiae in capite et in membris fienda, in Spiritu Sancto hic debite congregata, decernit, declarat, diffinit, et ordinat, ut sequitur: Et primo, quod ipsa Synodus fuit et est recte et rite convocata ad hunc locum civitatis Constantiensis, et similiter recte et rite initiata et celebrata. Item quod per recessum Domini nostri Papae de hoc loco Constantiensi, vel etiam per recessum aliorum Praelatorum, seu aliorum quorumcunque, non est dissolutum hoc sacrum Concilium, sed remanet in sua integritate et auctoritate, etiamsi quae ordinationes factae essent in contrarium, vel fierent in futurum. Item quod istud sacrum concilium non debet dissolvi, nec dissolvatur usque ad perfectam extirpationem praesentis schismatis, et quoque Ecclesia sit reformata in fide et in moribus, in capite et in membris. Item quod ipsum sacrum Concilium non transferatur ad alium locum, nisi ex causa rationabili, et de consilio hujus sacri Concilii deliberanda et concludenda. Item quod Praelati et alii, qui debent interesse huic Concilio, non recedant ab hoc loco ante finitum Concilium, nisi ex causa rationabili, examinanda per deputatos seu deputandos ab hoc sacro Concilio. Qua causa examinata et approbata possint recedere cum licentia ejus vel illorum, qui habebit vel habebunt auctoritatem. Et tunc recedens teneatur dimittere potestatem suam aliis remanentibus sub poenis juris et aliis per hoc sacrum Concilium indicendis et contra eos exequendis. Still more important resolutions were immediately after adopted by the nations. The cardinals wished for several omissions, and although the nations refused to yield (v. d. Hardt, iv. p. 81 ss.), yet the Cardinal Florentinus (Zabarella) published the resolutions with these omissions in the fourth solemn general session March 30; see l. c. p. 89. General dissatisfaction with the cardinals was caused by this action (l. c. p. 92); compare the violent invective of Benedictus Gentianus, representative of the University of Paris, against them, in v. d. Hardt, ii. p. 279. It was determined, with general assent, that the decree should be repeated unmutilated in the fifth general session April 6; see v. d. Hardt, ii. p. 98 (the part omitted by Zabarella is printed in Italics): In nomine sanctae et individuae Trinitatis, Patris et Filii et Spiritus Sancti, Amen. Haec sancta Synodus Constantiensis, generale Concilium faciens, pro extirpatione praesentis schismatis, et unione ac reformatione Ecclesiae Dei in capite et in membris fienda, ad laudem omnipotentis Dei in Spiritu Sancto legitime congregata, ad consequendum facilius, securius, uberiori, et liberius unionem ac reformationem Ecclesiae Dei, ordinat, diffinit, statuit, decernit et declarat, ut sequitur. Et primo declarat, quod ipsa in Spiritu Sancto legitime congregata, generale Concilium faciens, et Ecclesiam Catholicam militarem repraesentans, potestatem a Christo immediate habet, cui quilibet, cujuscunque status, vel dignitatis, etiamsi papalis, existat, obedire tenetur in his, qua pertinent ad fidem et extirpationem dicti schismatis, ac generalem reformationem Ecclesiae Dei in capite et in membris. Item declarat, quod quicunque, cujuscunque conditionis, status, vel dignitatis, etiamsi papalis, existat, qui mandatis, statutis seu ordinationibus, aut praeeceptis hujus sanctae Synodi et cujuscunque alterius Concilii generalis legitime congregati, super praemissis seu ad ea pertinentibus, factis vel faciendis obedire contumaciter contemserit, nisi resipuerit, condignas poenitentiae subjiciatur, et debite puniatur, etiam ad alia juris subsidia, si opus fuerit, recurrendo. Item diffinit et ordinat sancta Synodus, quod Dominus Johannes XXIII. Romanam Curiam et Officia publica, illius seu illorum Officiarios de hac civitate Constantiensi ad alium locum non mutet aut transferat, seu personas dictorum officiariorum ad sequendum eum directe vel indirecte cogat, sine deliberatione et consensu ipsius s. Synodi.—Item ordinat et diffinit, quod omnes et singulae translationes Praelatorum, necnon privationes eorundem aut aliorum beneficiatorum, officialium, administratorum, quarumeunque commendarum ac donationum revocationes, monitiones, censurae ecclesiasticae, processus, sententiae, et quaecunque acta, gesta, gerenda, agenda aut fienda per praefatum Dominum Johannem Papam, aut suos officiarios vel commissarios in laesionem dicti Concilii seu adhaerentium eidem, a tempore inchoationis ejusdem Concilii—facta seu facienda,—auctoritate hujus sacri Concilii ipso facto sint nulla, cassa, irrita et inania.—Item declarat, quod idem Johannes Papa XXIII., et omnes

Praelati, ac alii ad hoc sacrum Concilium vocati, et alii in eodem Concilio existentes, in plenaria libertate fuerunt et existunt, ut visum est dicto sacro Concilio, nec ad notitiam dictorum vocatorum seu dicti Concilii contrarium deductum est. Et hoc testificatur dictum sacrum Concilium coram Deo et hominibus. Among these decrees, the first of the fifth session has always been particularly offensive to the ultramontanes. So they denied its validity, Card. Cajetanus, De Auctoritate Papae et Concilii, Bellarminus, De Conciliis et Ecclesia, lib. ii. c. 19, Andreas Vallius, De Suprema Potestate Papae, p. iv. q. 7; on the other hand, the Gallicans maintained its validity; see Richerii Hist. Conciliorum, lib. ii. c. 3, § 7. After the Gallican clergy, in their famous propositions of 1682, had declared,—nec probari a Gallicana Ecclesia, qui eorum decretorum, quasi dubiae sint auctoritatis ac minus approbata, robur infringant aut ad solum schismatis tempus Concilii dicta detorqueant, there appeared the work of Emanuel a Schelstraten, viz., Acta Constantiensis Concilii ad expositionem decretorum ejus sessionum quartae et quintae facientia, nunc primum ex Codd. MSS. in lucem eruta ac dissertatione illustrata, Antwerp. 1683. 4, in which not only are the earlier subterfuges repeated, but it is also asserted that the first decree of the fourth session was interpolated by the Council of Basle, which, it was alleged, collected the acts of the Council of Constance first in 1442; and that the genuine decree only read—in his quae pertinent ad extirpationem dicti schismatis; and, further, that the decrees of the fifth session were drawn up without sufficient deliberation, and without the consent of all. On the contrary side are the Gallicans, Louis Maimbourg in his Traité Hist. de l'Etablissement et des Prévrogatives de l'église de Rome et de ses Evêques. Paris, 1685, 12. c. 23-25; Du Pin, De Antiqua Eccl. Disciplina, cap. vi. § 6; Natalis Alexander Hist. Eccl. Saec. xv. et xvi. Diss. 4. After v. d. Hardt had published more exact reports of the deliberations of the congregations, Schelstraten's assertion was seen to be officially refuted.

⁹ In Sess. VI. 17th April, 1415, the council consented to the project of a Procuratorium super renunciatione Papatus, to be executed by John XXIII. (v. d. Hardt, iv. p. 114), by virtue of which the Procuratores to be nominated by him should be legally authorized to make renunciation in his stead, under the conditions sworn to by himself, with the definite statement: Et si quovismodo contingeret, hujusmodi procuratorium seu procuratores nos recovare,—impugnare, etc., ex nunc prout ex tunc ipsi Papatu cedimus et renunciamus ipso facto, et deinceps pro non Papa haberí—volumus. When the Pope refused to execute this Procuratorium thus set before him, in the Sess. Gen. VII., May 2, a citation ensued (l. c. p. 143); in the Sess. Gen. X., May 14, suspension (l. c. p. 183); and, after seventy Articuli (l. c. p. 196), several of which, however, were not read in public because of their scandalous contents (p. 237, 247), had been proved by witnesses (p. 253), in the Sess. Gen. XII., May 29, the Sententia depositionis (l. c. p. 280), in which the synod declared, recessum per—Johannem Papam XXIII. ab hac civitate Constantiensi—clandestine—factum fuisse et esse illicitum, Ecclesiae Dei et dicto Concilio notorie scandalosum, pacis et unionis ipsius Ecclesiae turbativum et impeditivum, schismatis inveterati nutritivum, a voto, promissione et juramento per ipsum Dominum Johannem Papam Deo, et Ecclesiae, ac huic sacro Concilio praestitis deviativum; ipsumque Dominum Johannem Papam Simoniacum notorium, bonorumque et jurium, nedum Romanæ, sed aliarum Ecclesiarum—dilapidatorem notorium, malumque spiritualium et temporalium Ecclesiae administratorem et dispensatorem fuisse et esse, suis detestabilibus in honestisque vita et moribus Ecclesiam Dei et populum Christianum notorie scandalizantem;—postque monitiones debitas et charitativas, iteratis et crebris vicibus eidem factas, in praenissis malis pertinaciter perseverasse, seque ex hoc notorie incorrigibilem reddidisse: ipsumque—tanquam indignum, inutilem, et damnosum a Papatu—amovendum, privandum et deponendum fore. Et eum dicta sancta Synodus amovet, privat et deponit, universos et singulos Christicolas, cuiuscunq[ue] status, dignitatis, vel conditionis existant, ab ejus obedientia, fidelitate et juramento absolutos declarando.—Eumque ad standum et morandum in aliquo loco bono et honesto sub custodia tuta Serenissimi Principis Domini Sigismundi, Romanorum et Hungariae Regis,—nomine dicti sacri

Although the kingdom of Spain renounced his obedience on the 6th January, 1416, and united itself in October to the council as the fifth nation, still all attempts at a compromise with him were vain, and he himself gave no heed to the sentence of deposition pronounced against him by the council, 26th July, 1417.¹¹ However, as his obedience was restricted to the small town of Peniscola in Valencia, there was no need of taking any further notice of him.¹²

The Emperor Sigismund and the Germans, supported at first by the English, taking warning from the Council of Pisa, now desired that the proposed reformation¹³ should be taken in hand

The doings of the council against him may be found scattered in v. d. Hardt, iv. The sentence of deposition, Sess. XXXVII., July 26, in v. d. Hardt, iv. p. 1373, designates him as—perjurum, universalis Ecclesiae scandalizatorem, fautorem et nutritorem inveterati schismatis,—et haereticum a fide devium, et articuli fidei Unam sanctam catholicam Ecclesiam violatorem pertinacem, cum scandalo Ecclesiae Dei incorrigibilem, notorium et manifestum. According to Jo. Niderus (a Dominican at Basle and Vienna, † 1438), De Visionibus ac Revelationibus (or Formicarius) ed v. d. Hardt, Helmstadii, 1692. 8. lib. iii. c. 1., Benedict had received a prophecy from a certain abbot, quod plura passurus esset ab adversariis, quod obsideri deberet,—sed tandem Romam iturus esset, et in unione Ecclesiae ibidem, adepta pacifica possessione et sedato schismate, quieturus.—In praedictam prophetiam fatue confidens remotus a Papatu obdire renuit, in munitiunculam fugit, et tandem in exilio, pertinax in sua opinione, vitam nec Romae, nec in pace, sed in miseria finivit.

¹² Benedict XIII. died in 1424. He left behind him four cardinals, three of whom elected a Clement VIII., the fourth a Benedict XIV. Clement VIII. was obliged to abdicate at a council in Tortosa, A.D. 1429.

Eapropter summopere vigilandum est circa reformationem Ecclesiae. In order to prepare for this reformation, in the Sess. XIII., 15th June, 1415 (v. d. Hardt, iv. p. 335), a committee, consisting of four cardinals and deputies of the nations, was appointed as a Reformatorium; v. d. Hardt, I. x. p. 583 ss., has published their remarkable protocol.

¹⁵ Decrees of the Sessio Gen. XXXIX., 9th October, 1417, in v. d. Hardt, iv. p. 1435:

- I. De Conciliis generalibus: Frequens generalium conciliorum celebratio agri Dominici praecipua cultura est, quae vespes, spinas et tribulos haeresium, errorum et schismatum extirpat, excessus corrigit, deformata reformat, et viam Domini ad frugem uberrimae fertilitatis adducit: illorum vero neglectus praemissa disseminat atque foveat.—Propter hoc edicto perpetuo sancimus,—ut amodo concilia generalia celebrentur, ita quod primum a fine hujus Concilii in quinque annos immediate sequens, secundum vero a fine illius immediate sequentis Concilii in septennium, et deinceps de decennio in decennium perpetuo celebrentur in locis, quae summus Pontifex per mensem ante finem eujuslibet Concilii, approbante et consentiente Concilio, vel in ejus defectu ipsum Concilium deputare et assignare teneatur; ut sic per quandam continuationem semper aut Concilium vigeat, aut per termini pendentiam exspectetur.—II. Provisio adversus futura schismata praecavenda: Si vero, quod absit, in futurum schisma oriri contingeret,—ipso jure terminus Concilii tunc forte ultra annum pendens ad annum proximum breviatus.—Et quilibet ipsorum se pro Romano Pontifice gerentium infra mensem, a die qua scientiam habere potuit, alium vel alias assumssisse Papatus insignia,—teneatur sub intimatione maledictionis aeternae et amissione juris, si quod forte sibi quaesitum esset in Papatu,—Concilium ipsum ad terminum anni praedictum in loco prius deputato celebrandum indicere et publicare, et per suas literas competitoribus—et eaeteris Praelatis ac Principibus—intimare, necnon termino praefixo—ad locum Concilii personaliter se transferre, nec inde discedere, donec per Concilium causa schismatis plenarie sit finita. Hoc adjuncto quod nullus ipsorum contendentium de Papatu in ipso Concilio ut Papa praesideat: quinimo—sint ipsi omnes de Papatu contendentes, postquam dictum Concilium incepsum fuerit, auctoritate hujus sacrae synodi ipso jure ab omni administratione suspensi.—Quod si forte electionem Romani Pontificis per metum, qui caderet in constantem, seu impressionem de cetero fieri contingat, ipsam nullius decernimus efficacie vel momenti, nec posse per sequentem consensum, etiam metu praedicto cessante, ratificari vel approbari. Non tamen liceat Cardinalibus ad aliam electionem procedere, nisi ille, qui fuit electus, forte renunciet, vel decebat, donec per generale Concilium de electione illa fuerit judicatum. Et si procedant, nulla sit electio.—Sed—teneantur electores omnes—quam cito sine periculo personarum poterunt—se transferre ad locum tutum, et metum praedictum allegare coram Notariis publicis, et notabilibus personis ac multitudine populi in loco insigni.—Teneantur insuper—provocare sic electum ad Concilium.—III. De professione facienda per Papam. IV. Ne Praelati transferantur inviti. V. De spoliis et procurationibus. Cum per Papam facta reservatio et exactio et perceptio procurationum Ordinariis et aliis inferioribus Praelatis debitarum ratione visitationis, necnon et spoliorum decadentium Praelatorum, aliorumque clericorum, gravia Ecclesiis, Monasteriis, et aliis beneficiis ecclesiasticisque personis afferant detimenta: praesenti declaramus edicto, ratione fore consentaneum, ac reipublicae accommodum, tales per Papam reservations ac—exactiones seu perceptiones de cetero nullo modo fieri seu attentari. Quinimo procurationes hujusmodi, et quorumcunque Praelatorum—in Curia Romana vel extra—decedentium spolia, seu bona eorum mortis tempore reperta, plane et libere pertineant illis,

(in general intimations to the future pontiff.¹⁶ Otto Colonna was then elected Pope, on 11th November, 1417, under the name of Martin V. The results justified the fears of the Germans. The feeble glimmer of the council grew pale before the splendor of the new Pope, the first for a long time who had been universally acknowledged; and the Papal monarchy was again immediately elevated without opposition above all the limits which the ecclesiastical aristocracy meant to have imposed upon it. The rules in chancery which Martin V. caused to be prepared immediately after his election were but slightly different from those of former popes, about which there had been so much complaint.¹⁷ The proposals for reformation which he set forth did not by any means correspond with the expectations.¹⁸ But the strength and unity

¹⁸ In the beginning of the year 1418 the German nation presented Avisamenta Nationis Germanicae super articulis juxta decretum Concilii, reformatum, exhibenda Domino nostro sanctissimo (v. d. Hardt, i. xxii. p. 999 ss.). Toward the end of January came the Responsio Dom. P. Martini super reformatio capitulorum, in Concilio per decretum statutorum, per modum Avisamenti data Nationibus (l. c. p. 1021 ss.), the concessions of which fell far short of the requisitions made. With reference to Art xiii. the proposal of the German nation (l. c. p. 1008) was: Super decimo tertio articulo videtur, quod summus Pontifex non solum de haeresi, sed etiam de simonia notoria tam circa sacramenta, quam circa beneficia ecclesiastica, et quolibet alio notorio crimine gravi, Ecclesiam universalem notorie scandalizante, de quo canonice monitus incorrigibilis extiterit, per generale Concilium puniri valeat, ac deponi etiam de Papatu. Item videtur, quod sanctissimus Dominus noster sacro approbante Concilio speciale constitutionem super hoc, of the council were already so much broken, that the Pope was able to adjust the most critical points of reformation by concordats with the separate nations;¹⁹ and thus a few general decrees for quod praemittitur, declaratoriam debet promulgare, et insuper declarare, quod nedum circa sacramenta, sed etiam circa beneficia ecclesiastica conventionem seu pactiōnēm pecuniariam per se vel alium faciendo crimen pravitatis Simoniace non evadat (compare vol. iii. § 101, note 29). In the Pope's Responsio we find on this head (l. c. p. 1032) : Art. xiii. : Propter quae et quomodo Papa possit corrigi et deponi. Non videtur, prout nec visum fuit in pluribus nationibus, circa hoc aliquid novum statui vel decerni.

terum Monasteria aut magni Prioratus conventuales habentes ultra decem religiosos, et officia claustralicia, dignitates maiores post pontificales in cathedralibus, sive Ecclesiae parochiales, nulli Praelato, etiam Cardinali, dentur in commendam.—Una etiam Ecclesia metropolitana uni Cardinali vel Patriarchae concedi poterit, provisionem aliam sufficiuentiorem non habenti. Cap. 6. De Simonia in foro conscientiae providetur. Every clerical person was to choose for himself a graduate, or a man otherwise approved for discretion, as his father confessor, who, within the next three months, should absolve him from—simonia active vel passive commissa, and who could remove all the ecclesiastical disabilities resulting from it. Cap. 7. De non vitandis excommunicatis, antequam per iudicem fuerint declarati et denunciati. Cap. 8. De dispensationibus. Ordinat etiam Dominus noster, ad Ecclesias cathedrales, Monasteria, Prioratus conventuales, et parochiales Ecclesias super defectum aetatis ultra triennium nullatenus dispensare: nisi forte in Ecclesias cathedralibus ex ardua et evidenti causa, de consilio Cardinalium—videretur aliter dispensandum. Item Dominus noster in arduis et gravibus casibus sine consilio Cardinalium non intendit dispensare. Cap. 9. De provisione Papae et Cardinalium. Romano Pontifici et s. Romanae Ecclesiae Cardinalibus pro illorum sustentatione, rebus Romanae Ecclesiae stantibus ut sunt, non videtur aliter posse provideri, quam hucusque factum est, scilicet per beneficia et communia servitia, quae vacantiae nuncupantur. Here the definitions of cap. 5 are repeated. Cardinalis de proventibus ecclesiasticis non habeat ultra valorem sex millium florenorum. Cap. 10. De indulgentiis. Cavebit Dominus noster Papa in futurum nimiam indulgentiarum effusionem, ne vilescant. Et in praeteritum concessas ab obitu Gregorii XI. ad instar alterius indulgentiae revocat et annullat. Cap. 11. De horum Concordatorum valore. Item sanctissimus Dominus noster Papa et inclita natio Germanorum consenserunt et protestati sunt, quod omnia et singula supradicta durare et tolerari debeant usque ad quinquennium duntaxat a data praesentium numerandum;—quodque per observantiam illorum nullum jus novum Ramano Pontifici, aut alicui alteri Ecclesiae vel persone acquiratur seu praejudicium generetur, sed lapso dicto quinquennio quaelibet Ecclesia et persona predicta liberam facultatem habeat utendi quolibet jure suo. The concordat with the French (v. d. Hardt, iv. p. 1566 ss.), in which, however, a reservation was made for the King's consent, was likewise published on the 2d May, 1418, and in most of its divisions exactly corresponds with the concordat of the Germans, only here the Pope remitted half the Annates for the next four years; on the other hand: Circa articulum indulgentiarum habita deliberatione matura nihil intendimus circa eas immutare seu ordinare. The concordat with the English was not concluded till the 12th July; see in v. d. Hardt, 1. p. 1079 ss.

²⁰ Sess. Gen. XLIII., 21st March, 1418, the following decrees were published (v. d. Hardt, iv. p. 1535): 1. De Exemptionibus (beginning, Attendentes). 2. De unionibus et incorporationibus, whereby all exemptions, unions, and incorporations made since the death of Gregory XI., were revoked with few exceptions. 3. De fructibus mediis temporis. Item fructus et proventus Ecclesiarum, Monasteriorum et Beneficiarum, vacationis tempore obvenientes, juris et consuetudinis vel privilegii dispositioni relinquimus, illosque nobis vel Apostolicae Camerae prohibemus applicari. 4. De Simoniacis:—Ordinati simoniace ab executione suorum Ordinum sint eo ipso suspensi:—quaevis provisiones simoniace nullae sint ipso jure:—dantes et recipientes eo ipso facto sententiam excommunicationis incurant. 5. De dispensationibus. An abrogation of the Papal dispensations which were granted to persons appointed to ecclesiastical offices, quibus certus Ordo debitus est, ne debitos aut annexos Ordines suscipiant. 6. De decimis et aliis oneribus. Praecipimus et mandamus, jura, quae prohibent inferioribus a Papa decimas et alia onera Ecclesiarum et personis ecclesiasticis imponi, districtius observari. Per nos autem nullatenus imponentur generaliter super totum Clerum, nisi ex magna et ardua causa et utilitate universalem Ecclesiam concernente, et de consilio, et consensu et subscriptione fratrum nostrorum S. R. E. Cardinalium, et Praelatorum, quorum consilium commode haberit poterit: nec specialiter in aliquo regno vel provincia inconsultis Praelatis illius regni vel provinciae et ipsis non consentientibus, vel eorum majori parte, et eo casu per perwhat had been done as being a satisfactory reformation.²¹ However, in the midst of these transactions, not only did the Pope allow himself to grant ecclesiastical tithes to the Emperor Sigismund, notwithstanding all the outcry which had been raised against this kind of church oppression,²² but he even ventured, in direct opposition to an express principle of the council, to pronounce all appeals from the Pope to a general council inadmissible, [when the Poles in their controversy with John of Falckenberg put in such an appeal.²³ Thus the council became so unlike itself, that its sonas ecclesiasticas et auctoritate apostolica duntaxat leventur. 7. De vita et honestate Clericorum, against the worldly pomp of the clergy.

²² The Literae gratiosae from the Pope to the Emperor, dd. 7. Cal. Februar. 1418, in v. d. Hardt, ii. p. 589 ss. Dum praeclara devotionis et fidei Tuæ Serenitatis merita, quibus erga Deum et universalem Ecclesiam sanctam suam glorio[s]issime, prae[st]erit circa unionem ejusdem Ecclesiae—per multa jam tempora curis vigilibus et continuo—mirifice clari[us]t[er],—pensamus;—inducimur non indigne, ut in elevationem onerum et expensarum, quae pro consecutione unionis hujusmodi, nonnulla regna partesque terrarum orbis varias peragrando, Tua Serenitas subiit hactenus, nec subire desinit incessanter, Tua Celsitudo nostram et apostolicae sedis gratiam sibi mirificam sentiat ac super alicujus subventorio auxilio liberalem. Hinc est, quod Nos—una cum ven. fratribus nostris S. R. E. Cardinalibus super his deliberatione præhabita, ac de ipsorum consilio, nec non ven. fratum nostrorum Archiepiscoporum, Episcoporum, et dilectorum filiorum Electorum, Administratorum, necnon Abbatum et aliorum de natione Germanica percepto beneplacito voluntatis, ac etiam prædecessorum nostrorum, Romanorum Pontificum,—circa hoc vestigiis inhaerentes, Decimam integrum unius anni omnium redditum et proventuum ecclesiasticorum in provinciis—nationis Germanicae, totius provinciae Treverensis, necnon Basileensis et Leodiensis civitatum et dioecesum sub Romano Imperio consistentium,—Serenitati Tuae—assignamus. At the same time he appointed three bishops to be commissioners, to collect this tithe by spiritual and secular means (l. c. p. 592 ss.). Seven German Churches remonstrated before the council against this proceeding, by the mouth of the Florentine jurist Dominicus de Germiniano; and he, in his Repudium Decimarum (l. c. p. 608), first took the position, quia haec impositio decimae concessa est non consentientibus Praelatis nationis Almaniae, vel saltem majori parte ipsum, imo inconsultis procuratoribus Cleri dictarum septem Ecclesiarum in Concilio Constantiensi existentibus. Quod tamen fieri non potuit juxta constitutionem Domini nostri Papae (see note 20, 6).—Item ad ejus elevationem invocatur auxilium brachii saecularis. Et sic contra dictam constitutionem, etc. However, at the end he only moves for a milder method of collecting the tithe.

²³ Compare vol. iii. § 118, note 11. Jo. Gersonii, Tract. quomodo et an liceat in Causis Fidei a summo Pontifice appellare (Opp. II. ii. p. 303 ss.): Quaeritur utrum haec assertio sit catholica:—Nulli fas est a supremo iudice, videlicet Apostolica Sede, seu Romano dissolution, which followed soon after (Sess. XLV., 22d April, 1418),²⁴ could be no cause for regret, so little had it done to fulfill the hopes of the people.²⁵

Pontifice, Jesu Christi Vicario in terris, appellare, aut illius judicium in causis fideii, quas tanquam majores ad ipsum et Sedem Apostolicam deferendae sunt, declinare? Arguitur quod sic, auctoritate sanctissimi Domini Martini Papae V. in sua Constitutione ad perpetuam rei memoriam facta, et promulgata in Consistorio generali celebrato Constantiae 6. Idus Martii Pontificatus sui anno primo (10th March, 1418), ubi reperitur haec assertio, sicut dicitur. In the Dialogus Apologeticus pro condemnatione propositionum Jo. Parvi (l. c. p. 390), Gerson stigmatizes this papal bull as, destruens fundamentale penitus robur, nedum Pisani, sed Constantiensis Concilii, et eorum omnium, quae in eis, praesertim super electione Summi Pontificis, et intrusorum ejectione, attentata factave sunt.

²⁵ Compare the remarkable passage on the Council of Constance, with which the contemporary writer, Gobelinus Persona, dean at Bielefeld (see at the head of Division 4), concludes his Cosmodromium, in Meibomii Rerum Germ., t. i. p. 345: Postquam Dominus Martinus Papa praedictus fuit coronatus, per nationes Concilii petebatur fieri reformatio Ecclesiae tam in capite quam in membris, prout in Reformatorio per ad hoc electos conceptum fuerat. Sed quia non omnes aequae ardenter instabant, Cardinalibus etiam in hoc torquentibus, parum profecerunt. Unde natio Gallicana Regem (Sigismundum) adiit, petens ab eo, ut Papam ad Ecclesiam dignaretur informare. Qui respondit eis: dum nos, ut reformatio fieret, priusquam ad electionem summi Pontificis procederetur, instabamus, vos nonolentes acquiescere, Papam priusquam fieret reformatio Ecclesiae, habere voluistis. Et ecce Papam habetis, quem et nos habemus: illum pro expeditione huiusmodi reformationis adite, quoniam pro nunc nostri non interest, prout intererat sede Romana vacante. Sunt tamen quaedam reformata, quamvis respectu conceptorum pauca, verbis quidem et scriptis, quae propter humanam mentis mutabilitatem, divinitatis excusantem se sub umbra, hic inserere non praesumo. Ego quidem jam annis multis statum retractans Ecclesiae, per quem modum ad universalis Ecclesiae reformationem scandalis sublatis omnibus perveniri posset, curiosa mente revolu. Quem quidem modum Dominus fortesse ostendet, cum in spiritu vehementi conteret naves Tharsis.

When France, also, which had refused the concordat offered at the Council of Constance,²⁶ began again, under the young King Charles VII., to bow to the Papal yoke (1425);²⁷ when the general councils held, agreeably to a decision of the Council of Constance, at Pavia and Siena, in 1423 and 1424, remained without influence or efficiency; then the Papacy could return once more to its ancient course, without allowing itself to be held in check by the counteracting laws of single states.²⁸ Martin only

²⁸ Thus Martin (Raynald. 1426, no. 19) makes to Henricus Episc. Wintoniensis the most vehement complaints against an execrable statutum, per quod ita Rex Angliae de Ecclesiarum provisione et administratione disponit, quasi vicarium suum Christus eum instituisset; legem condit super Ecclesias, Beneficia, Clericos et ecclesiasticum statum; ad se suamque laicalem curiam causas spirituales et ecclesiasticas jubet introduci.—Quasdam contra clericos adjicit poenas, quae ne quidem contra Judaeos vel Saracenos per ullum de suis statutis promulgatae inveniunter. Possunt ad Angliae regnum cuiuslibet generis homines libere profici: soli acceptantes beneficia auctoritate summi Pontificis, vicarii Jesu Christi, jubentur exulare, capi, carcerari, omnibusque bonis exui;

curbed the cardinals so far as not to be held in restraint by them himself.²⁹ Thus the old complaints of extortion and church-oppression, as well as of the venality of the curia, began afresh;³⁰

executoresque literarum Apostolicarum, procuratores, notarii, et quicunque alii censuram seu processum ab apostolica sede in regnum mittentes aut deferentes ultimo suppicio deputantur, projectique extra protectionem Regis ab omnibus captivandi. The Bishop is reminded of the example—illius gloriosissimi martyris b. Thomae, qui adversus similia decertans statuta holocaustum se Deo offerens pro libertate ecclesiastica occubuit, and required to make every effort with King and Parliament, that the law might be repealed. Compare the papal letters of admonition to the Parliament (Raynald. 1427, no. 15), and to Henry, archbishop of Canterbury (l. c. no. 16), who was particularly called to account, quod audivimus te dixisse irreverenter et improbe, propter pecunias exhauriendas abolitionem illius statuti apostolicam sedem ipsam quaerere. Similar royal decrees were issued also in Poland; see Martini Ep. ad Wladislaum Regem Poloniae, dd. Kal. Apr. ann. viii. and thus A.D. 1425, unless xiii. (1429) be the correct reading (in Raynald. ann. 1427, no. 17): Refertur nobis quasi omnia in aliam dispositionem mutata esse; in eodem regno conculari jura Ecclesiae, et ecclesiasticam opprimi libertatem; non multum timeri censuras nostras, et hujus sedis auctoritatem; electiones Ecclesiarum et Monasteriorum, quorum tamen omnimoda dispositio ad nos spectat, non esse liberas, sed fieri ad praescriptum tuum; beneficiorum per nos collatorum provisiones contemni, tum in beneficiis generaliter reservatis, atque in ea re non pareri mandatis nostris. In another letter to the same monarch, dd. 7. Kal. Sept. ann. xiii. (in Raynald. ann. 1429, no. 18), the Pope complains of certain royal letters, per quas tua Serenitas Praelatis et Canonicis Ecclesiae Gneznensis mandat sub gravi poena, ne aliquem extraneum in dicta Ecclesia recipient ad possessionem alicujus beneficii, cum inter Praelatos regni ita statutum sit et conclusum.

³⁰ Antonini Summa Hist. tit. xxii. cap. vii. § 3: Hic igitur Pontifex Martinus, antea nequaquam vir sagax aestimatus sed benignus, in pontificatu tamen ita opinionem de se prius habitam redarguit, ut sagacitas quidem in eo summa, benignitas vero non superflua nec nimia reperiretur (transcribed from Leonardus Aretinus, in Muratoriis xix. p. 930).—Hoc in eo communis fama redarguit, nimis cupide insistere cumulationi pecuniae, ut nequaquam dicere valeret id primi Apostolici: argentum et aurum non est mihi (Act. iii. 6). Eberhard Windeck, privy councilor to the Emperor Sigismund, in his Life of the Emperor Sigismund (in Mencken, Scriptt. Rer. Germ. i. p. 1117), says of Martin V.: Im wart zugegeben, das er der armest vnd einfältigste cardinal were vnter allen cardinalen, die zu Costenz dazumale waren.—Dornach wart er der aller reichest vnd der allergutigste, das man meinte man funde einen burnen vol goldein vnd duckaten hinter Im da er starb. Compare the extracts from the private correspondence of the ambassadors of the German Order in Rome with the Grand Master, which John Voigt has contributed in Raumer's Histor. Taschenbuch for 1833, s. 92 ff. The burden of all these communications is the same as the ambassador wrote in 1420 (s. 94): "Lieber Herr Meister, Ihr müsstet Geld senden, denn hier im Hofe alle Freundschaft endet, so sich der Pfennig wendet." In the year 1430 (s. 98) he writes: "Die Gierigkeit hat im Hofe and the Romans only, who after a long interval now shared again the gains of the Papal See, were satisfied with the new posture of affairs.³¹ From councils it seemed impossible to expect any further redress.³² Hence the Pope did not scruple, in obedience to a decree of the Council of Siena,³³ to make active preparations for the dramatic exhibitions of another œcumeneical council, which was to be opened at Basle in 1431.³⁴

zu Rom die Oherhand und weiss von Tag zu Tag mit neuen Listen und Finten das Geld aus Deutschland für die geistl. Lehen auszupressen, dass gross Schreien und Klagen und Aergerniss darüber bey den Gelehrten und den Curtisanen ist, so dass daraus wol grosser Zwist über die Papstschaft entstehen, oder gar der Gehorsam endlich entzogen werden wird, damit man das Geld nicht also jämmerlich viel den Walschen zuschleppe, und das Letzte wäre wol, wie ich vernehme, vielen Landen zu Sinne. In the year 1429 (s. 103):—“Also ist es Noth, den Papst zu erweichen, was man aber nicht anders thun kann, als mit Geld und Gaben. Allhie zu Rom sind wunderliche Finten, um Geld zu erwerben. Ist da irgendwo Friede unter den Landen oder Fürsten und Herren, man bringt es mit List zuwege, dass Zwietracht entsteht um deswillen, dass der Theil, der gerecht ist, seine Gerechtigkeit wehre und bewahre, und dafür muss er denn hier Geld lassen. Wird ein Bischof, Propst, Prälat, oder sonst ein Domherr mit Eintracht gewählt, so wird er in kurzer Zeit nicht bestätigt, auf dass, wenn Jemand käme, der dem Erwählten einen Einfall thun wollte, dieser, um seine Gerechtigkeit zu behaupten, mehr Geld ausgeben muss, als er sonst gethan hätte: doch es sind die mancherlei Finten, die es allhie giebt, um Geld zu erkriegen, gar nicht zu beschreiben. Geld ist allhie der Freund und Förderer aller Dinge, die man durchsetzen will.” When Pope Martin V., in some disputed question, declared himself against the Order, the ambassador wrote to the Grand Master (s. 170): “Der Papst thut dieses nur darum mit so grosser Verfolgung und Uebermuth, weil er uns zu zwingen meint, ihm 10 bis 12,000 Gulden zuzuweisen, was wir doch, ob Got will, nimmer thun wollen: denn er ist so gierig, übermüthig und drückend gegen diejenigen, über die er Macht zu haben meint, als nur jemals ein Papst gewesen ist. Alles, womit er und der ganze Hof zu Rom umgeht, das ist eine Büberei, Gierigkeit, Hypocriftenschaft und Uebermuth: das höre ich von Jedermann sagen, der der Redlichkeit folget. Der Papst, wenn er sich Geldes und grosser Brocken vermuthet, lässt selten Jemanden zur Verantwortung kommen.” The accounts given of rich presents made to the Pope and cardinals, sometimes regularly, sometimes on occasion of disputes, confirm this general verdict.

COUNCIL OF BASLE (1431-1443). EUGENE IV. (3D MARCH, 1431, † 23D FEBRUARY, 1447).

While the long-cherished dissatisfaction of the college of cardinals with Martin V.'s arbitrary government² found its expression equally in the measures by which the cardinals in conclave sought to insure their influence for the future,³ and in the proceedings

³ Compare the bull, dd. 12. Mart. 1431 (in Raynald. ad. h. a. no. 5. ss.), in which Eugene confirmed the Capitula, which all the cardinals in conclave had sworn to observe, in case of their exaltation to the Papal See. In the very introduction we can not but recognize an indirect censure of the former government. The Capitula are, quod (Papa) curiam Romanam in capite et membris reformabit, et incipiet quandocunque et quotiescumque requiretur per dominos Cardinales (Martin V. had only wished to reform it—in membris, see § 131, note 29): Nec dictam curiam educet de urbe Romana, neque transferet de loco ad locum, de provincia ad provinciam,—sine consilio et consensu consimili (Cardinalium, as Martin V. had done; see Raumer's Hist. Taschenbuch for 1833, s. 74, 159). Item quod Concilium generale celebrabit—in loco et tempore, de quibus fuerit sibi consultum per majorem partem Domm. Cardd., et in eo reformabit—universalem Ecclesiam circa fidem, vitam et mores.—Item quod non creabit Cardinales nisi juxta formam et ordinationem factam in Concilio Constantiensi, quam servare tenebitur, nisi de consensu et consilio majoris partis Domm. Cardd., aliud fiendum videretur. Item ut Romano Pontifici a dominis Cardinalibus libera perveniant consilia: non apponet (pledge)—bona alicujus ex eis, nec aliquid in suo statu et provisione immutabit,—nisi de expresso consilio et consensu majoris partis Domm. Cardd. nec damnabit eum nisi convic-

which Eugene IV. commenced against the family and the memory of his predecessor,⁴ the council was assembling so slowly at Basle that at first it seemed likely to remain as insignificant as the former council at Siena. However, the Hussite disturbances, which threatened Germany in many ways, brought the council to a more independent position, which was first displayed by opening negotiations with the Hussites. Alarmed at this step, the Pope wished to dissolve the council;⁵ but even the presiding cardinal legate, Julian Cesarini, resisted him;⁶ and that zeal in the Cardd. requiritur, promotionibus ad Praelaturas dumtaxat exceptis, in literis suis—scribi faciet nomina Cardinalium consilium et consensum praeuentium,—sicut fieri solebat ante Bonifacium VIII., ut excludatur abusus, qui longo tempore servatus est.—In arduis vero requiritur subscriptio Papae et Cardinalium.

As to how far Eugene proceeded against his predecessors, see Andr. Billiūs, p. 145: Ipsum quoque Martini palatum (tantum processit ira) diruit: insignia familiae, aut Pontificatus, ubicumque per urbem eminebant, dejectit.

⁵ The letter of the council to the Bohemians was written on the 15th October (Raynald. 1431, no. 24); the Pope's letter to Cardinal Julian, in which he orders him to dissolve the council, and give notice of another to be opened at Bologna in a year and a half, on the 12th November (l. c. no. 21).

disinclination. Principally because of the Bohemian business. Then, among other reasons: Incitavit etiam me hoc venire deformitas et dissolutio Cleri Alemaniae, ex qua laici supra modum irritantur adversus statum ecclesiasticum. Propter quod valde timendum est, nisi se emendent, ne laici more Hussitarum in totum clerum irruant, ut publice dicunt. Et quidem hujusmodi deformatio magnam audaciam praebet Bohemis, multumque colorat errores eorum, quia praecepit invehunt contra turpitudinem Cleri. Qua de re, etiamsi hic non fuisset generale Concilium institutum, necessarium fuisset facere unum provinciale—pro Clero reformando: quia revera timendum est, nisi iste Clerus se corrigat, quod etiam extincta haeresi Bohemiae suscitetur alia. Then follow the reasons why the council ought not to be dissolved. Quanta hic scandala sequuntur, et quam prope sit eversio fidei auscultet patienter S. V. Primo vocati sunt Bo-hemi ad istud Concilium: literas vocationis alias misi S. V. Hoc factum quilibet probat, tanquam salubre et necessarium, ut postquam armis totiens frustra certatum est, alia via tenetur.—Si Concilium dissolvitur, quid dicent haeretici? Nonne insultabunt in nostros, et fient protviores? Nonne Ecclesia fatebitur se esse victam, cum non ausa fuerit expectare illos, quos vocaverat?—Ecce exercitus armatorum totiens fugit a facie eorum, et nunc similiter Ecclesia universalis fugit. Ecce nec armis, nec literis vinci possunt. Videbitur miraculum Dei evidenter, demonstrans, illos vera sentire, et nos falsa.—Quarto, quid dicet universus orbis, cum hoc sentiet? Nonne judicabit, clerum esse incorrigibilem, et velle semper in suis deformitatibus sordescere? Celebrata tot sunt diebus nostris Concilia, ex quibus nulla sequuta est reformatio. Expectabant gentes, ut ex hoc sequeretur aliquis fructus. Sed si sic dissolvatur, dicetur, quod nos irridemus Deum et homines. Et cum jam nulla spes supererit de nostra correctione, irruent merito laici in nos more Hussitarum: et certe fama publica de hoc est. Animi hominum praegnantes sunt, jam incipiunt evomere venenum, quo nos perimant: putabunt se sacrificium praestare Deo, qui Clericos aut trucidabunt, aut spoliabunt: quoniam reputabuntur jam in profundum malorum venisse, fient odiosi Deo et mundo: et cum modesta nunc ad eos sit devotione, tunc omnis peribit. Erat istud Concilium quoddam retinaculum saecularium: sed cum viderint spem omnem deficere, laxabunt habenas publice proseguendo nos. Ah quis honor erit Romanae Curiae, quae Concilium congregatum pro reformatione turbavit? Certe totum odium, tota culpa, et ignominia transferetur in illam, tanquam causam, auctoritemque tot malorum.—Septimo, his diebus civitas metropolitana Magdeburgensis expulit Archiepiscopum et Clerum, et jam illi cives incedunt more Bohemorum cum curribus, et dicitur quod miserunt pro uno capitaneo Hussitarum. Et quod valde timendum est, habet civitas ista ligam cum multis civitatis et communitatis illarum partium. Item civitas Pataviensis, quae est de domino domini Episcopi, expulit Episcopum, et erexit machinas contra quoddam castrum Episcopi. Utraque istarum civitatum est finitima Bohemis, et si conjungant se cum illis (prout valde timendum est), multarum civitatum habebunt sequelam. Scriptum est utriusque rogando, ut supersedeant a guerra: et si qua controversia inter ipsos sit, offert se Concilium velle illam terminare.—Item quia magna discordia est inter civitatem Bambergensem, et Episcopum et Capitulum, quae est supra modum periculosa propter vicinitatem haereticorum: Concilium dat operam ad interponendum se pro concordia.—Si modo dissolvatur Concilium, nonne populi Germaniae videntes, se non solum destitutos ab Ecclesia, sed deceptos, concordabunt cum haereticis, et fient nobis inimiciores quam illi? Heu, heu, quanta ista erit confusio! Finis pro certo est. Jam, ut video, securis ad radicem posita est: inclinata est arbor, ut cadat, nec potest diutius persistere. Et certe cum per se stare posset, nos ipsam ad terram praecepitamus.—Et quam dicatur, quod talis prorogatio et loci translatio sit ad bonum finem, ut ibi praesente Sanctitate Vestra majora bona sequi possint, nemo hoc credit, quia dicunt: fuius delusi in Concilio Senensi, iterum in isto.—Item, beatissime Pater, per hujusmodi prorationem non tolluntur scandala quae narrata sunt. Essent interrogandi haeretici, si

Without regard to the Pope,⁷ the synod was opened with due volunt expectare usque ad annum cum dimidio, ut non disseminent virus suum. Es-sent et interrogandi, qui scandalizantur de deformitate Cleri, an interim vellent super-sedere. Ecce quotidie pullulat ista haeresis: illi quotidie seducunt Catholicos, aut vi opprimunt, non perdunt minimum temporis momentum. Quotidie nova scandala ex de-formitate Clericorum insurgunt, et nihilominus provisiones ex remedio procrastinantur! Fiat quod fieri potest nunc: reliquum servetur ad annum cum dimidio. Ego timeo, quod usque ad annum cum dimidio, nisi aliter provideatur, magna pars Cleri Alemaniae erit desolata. Si per Germaniam diffunderetur haec vox, quod Concilium esset dissolu-tum, pro certo Clerus omnis daretur in praedam.—Sed audio, quod nonnulli trepidant, quod in hoc Concilio debeat auferri temporalitas ab Ecclesia. Mira res! Si hoc Con-cilium non fieret per viros ecclesiasticos, forsitan dubitandum foret: sed quis erit iste Ecclesiasticus, qui huic determinationi consentiat? Non solum quia esset contra fidem, sed quia redundaret in detrimentum eorum.—Nec etiam umquam fuit aliquod legitime congregatum Concilium, in quo Spiritus Sanctus permiserit aliquid contra fidem deter-minari. Cur timendum est contrarium in hoc? Hoc est diffidere de Spiritu Sancto. Sed vereor ne coatingat nobis, sicut contigit Judaeis, qui dixerunt: si dimittimus hunc, venient Romani, et tollent locum nostrum et gentem (Jo. xi. 48). Ita et nos dicimus: si admittimus fieri Concilium, venient Laici, et tollent temporalitatem nostram. Sed sicut justo Dei judicio factum fuit, quod Judaei perdiderunt locum suum, quia noluerunt dimit-ttere Christum: ita et justo Dei judicio fiet, quod quia nolumus admittere Concilium fieri, perdemus temporalitatem nostram, et utinam non corpora et animas! Quando Deus vult alicui populo aliquod infortunium immittere, primo disponit, ut pericula non intel-ligantur, neque considerentur. Ita videtur nunc contingere viris ecclesiasticis, quos saepe redarguo esse caecos, qui vident ignem, et nihilominus currunt versus illum.—Nunquam fuisset celebratum aliquod Concilium, si hujusmodi timor invasisset corda patrum nostrorum, sicut invadit nostra. Sed et si hunc timorem habemus, cur non op-ponimus remedium? Cur ad evitandum unum malum, volumus incurrire majus? Ecce remedium ad hoc: Mittat huc Sanctitas Vestra aliquos de reverendissimis Domm. Cardinalibus, et aliquos notabiliores Praelatos, qui reperiri possunt, et bene affectos sedi Apostolicae, et qui sint bene inclinati ad bonum universale; det Sanctitas Vestra omnem favorem possibilem huic Concilio, promoveat ipsum quantum potest; scribat ei literas benignas, exhortando ipsos, ad sancta opera, quae proponunt, offerendo se, etc.—Quan-do isti talia videbunt, et audient, in veritate puto, quod, etiamsi haberent malum ani-mum, mutarent illum: et non solum studebunt conservare auctoritatem sedis Apostoli-cae, sed augere.—Sed si videant contrarium, verbi gratia de dissolutione Concilii, tunc scandalizantur: et sequitur hoc, quod, ubi prius erant tepidi, hujusmodi vox reddet ip-los magis acutos et ferventes. Then there is a refutation of the Pope's pretexts for the dismissal of the council.—Ad minus, beatissime Pater, differat S. V. usque ad mensem Julii, quia tunc cessabunt illa inconvenientia et scandala, quae modo obstant, videlicet de haereticis vocatis ad Concilium, et militaribus: quia infra illud tempus omnia ista erunt completa. Poterunt etiam fieri aliquae ordinationes super reformatione Cleri Alemaniae et mitti per Germaniam, et sic videbitur aliquid factum, nec tunc poterit aliquid imputari S. V. Et hoc quidem nunc fieret cum scandalo et sine effectu: tunc honestius fieri poterit.—Aviso Sanctitatem Vestram, quod me hinc recedente, vel dimittente prae-sidentiam, isti statim facient sibi unum praesidentem auctoritate Concilii.

cimus. Et nihilominus in decennio aliud simile Concilium, juxta statuta Constantiensis synodi,—in civitate Avignonensi similiter extunc indicimus.

⁸ The method of deliberation and the course of business were regulated in a peculiar manner by the Articuli de modo procedendi in S. Concilio conclusi in gen. Congregatione, d. 26. September, 1430 (probably 1431), in Mansi xxix. p. 377: Primo sint quatuor deputationes, sicuti sunt, inter quas omnes de Concilio distribuantur aequaliter, quantum commode fieri poterit. Et sint in qualibet deputatione de quolibet statu, scil. Dominorum Cardinalium, Patriarcharum, Archiepiscoporum, Abbatum, Doctorum, Religiosorum, exemptorum et non exemptorum, et aliorum.—Nihil autem ardui proponat Praesidens in congregacione generali ad deliberandum seu concludendum, nisi prius fuerit propositum in singulis deputationibus et agitatum; nisi casus esset repentinus et talis, cujus mora esset nociva. The names of the four committees were Pro Communibus, Reformatoriis, Fidei, Pacis.

¹¹ Sess. IV. 12th July, 1432, it was determined (l. c. p. 32), quod in eventum vacationis Sedis Apostolicae hoc sacro generali durante Concilio electio summi Pontificis in loco istius sacri Concilii fiat.—Item—statuit et ordinat ipsa Synodus, quod de cetero in its champions, among whom Nicholas Cusanus was the most distinguished, laid down certain principles which threatened the Papal See to its lowest foundations.¹² Encouraged by universal support,¹³ the council publicly advanced from exhortations to men-

Romanae Ecclesiae Cardinalem—assumere.—Et si secus attentatum fuerit, ex nunc in ante irritum sit et inane, nulliusque roboris vel momenti. Then the synod intrusted the government of Avignon and Venaissin to the—Cardinal S. Eustachii, cum ad ipsius sacrae Synodi notitiam—sit deductum, quod civitas Avinionensis—certis urgentibus rationibus et causis necessariis Vicarium per summum Pontificem ad ipsius regimen destinatum se admittere non debere praetendat, atque ad eundem summum pontificem ambaxias destinaverit pro utili et salubri gubernatione civitatis ejusdem ac comitatus Venaycini eidem adjacentis, suppliciter postulans, ut de alio utili eis provideretur Vicario, quod hucusque obtinere nequivit, nec sperat posse obtinere: quinimmo is qui pro Vicario destinatus est, intendit et nititur suscipere gubernationis officium invita civitate, congregare satagens multitudinem gentium armatarum.

¹² Nicholas Chryfitz (i. e. Krebs) from Cues on the Moselle, born 1401 † 1464 (see Berichtigungen u. Zusätze zu s. Lebensbeschreibungen in the Tübinger theol. Quartalschrift. Jahrg. 1831, Heft 2. s. 386), who was present at the council as Dean of St. Florinus at Coblenz, now wrote his Libb. iii. de Catholica Concordantia (in his Opp., Paris, 1514, fol. t. iii. and in Sim. Schardii Syntagma Tractatum de Imperiali Jurisdictione Argent. 1609, fol. p. 285. Compare the following principles among others, lib. ii. c. 34: Universale Concilium catholicae Ecclesiae supremam habet potestatem in omnibus super ipsum Romanum Pontificem.—Licet secundum plura Sanctorum scripta potestas Romani Pontificis a Deo sit, et secundum alia ab homine et Conciliis universalibus (comp. vgl. i. § 90 and 92, note 7, etc.): tamen videtur in veritate medium concordantiae per scripturas investigabile ad hoc denum tendere, quod ipsius Pontificis Romani potestas, quoad considerationem praeminentiae prioratus et principatus, sit a Deo per medium hominis et Conciliorum, scilicet mediante consensu electivo.—Unde etsi Romanus Pontifex, aut ex loco et sede Petri, aut principatu civitatis inter caeteros mundi Episcopos in primatu ut praecipuus—veneraretur: tamen nisi subjective ex consensu concurreret electio per eos, qui aliorum omnium vices gerunt, non crederem, ipsum praesidem aliorum omnium et principem sive judicem esse. Quare si per possibile Treverensis Archiepiscopus per Ecclesiam congregatum pro praeside et capite eligeretur, ille proprie plus successor S. Petri in principatu foret, quam Romanus Pontifex. Lib. iii. c. 2: Sunt meo judicio illa de Constantino (the Donatio Constantini) apocrypha, sicut fortassis etiam quaedam alia longa et magna scripta, Sanctis Clementi et Anacleto Papae attributa, in quibus volentes Romanam sedem omni laude dignam plus, quam Ecclesiae sanctae expedit et decet, exaltare, se penitus aut quasi fundant.

aces, and at length to a judicial proceeding against the Pope.¹⁴ At first he seemed inclined to offer a stubborn resistance, but, pressed hard by the Duke of Milan, and the seditious Romans, to whom the defense of the rights of the council offered a welcome pretext for their own undertakings,¹⁵ and forsaken by a large part of his cardinals,¹⁶ he was obliged to conclude to yield upon all points.¹⁷ Even then the Papal legates were not admitted to the Petro in facie restitit, figuram gerenti Pontificum. Etsi enim summus Pontifex in Concilio praeemineat atque praesideat, non suae tamen facultatis est ad arbitrium concludere, sed ad ampliorem numerum concordium sententiarum.

tium, ut pontificalis dignitas et sedis Apostolicae auctoritas submitteretur Concilio contra omnes canonicas sanctiones, quod nunquam antea neque aliquis nostrorum praedecessorum fecit, neque abullo extitit requisitum. However, he issued the bull Dudum on the first of August, 1433 (Mansi xxix. p. 574), with the declaration: volumus et contemtamur, praefatum generale Basileense Concilium a tempore inchoationis suaे continua- tum fuisse et esse, prosecutionemque semper habuisse et continuari, prosecutionemque ad praedicta habere debere, perinde ac si nulla computatio, translatio seu dissolutio facta fuisset: quinimmo praefatam commutationem, translationem, seu dissolutionem revo- cantes ipsum Concilium Basileense pure, simpliciter, cum effectu ac omni caritate amplecti- mur:—ita tamen quod praesidentes nostri ad praefati Concilii praesidentiam admittan- tur cum effectu, ac omnia singula contra personam, auctoritatem ac libertatem nostram et sedis Apostolicae ac venn. fratribus nostrorum S. R. E. Cardinalium, et aliorum quo- rumcunque nobis adhaerentium in dicto Concilio facta et gesta per dictum Concilium prius omnino tollantur. The council was not satisfied with this bull, and in Sess. XIV., 7th November, 1433 (Mansi xxix. p. 72), drew up several formulas of the declaration to be required of the Pope for his choice; and the Pope published a new edition of the bull Dudum, altered to meet their terms, 15th December, 1433 (Mansi l. c. p. 78). This bull runs thus: decernimus et declaramus, praefatum generale Concilium Basileense a tempore praedictae inchoationis suaे legitime continua- tum fuisse et esse, prosecutionemque sem- per habuisse, continuari ac prosecutionem habere debere ad praedicta et pertinentia ad ea, perinde ac si nulla dissolutio facta fuisset: quinimmo praefatam dissolutionem irri- tam et inanem—declarantes, ipsum sacrum generale Concilium Basileense pure, simpliciter et cum effectu ac omni devotione et favore prosequimur.—Praeterea—duas nostras literas,—et alias quascunque, et quidquid per nos aut nostro nomine in prejudicium aut derogationem praedicti sacri Concilii Basileensis, seu contra ejus auctoritatem factum et attentatum seu assertum est, cassamus, revocamus, irritamus et annullamus.—Item re- vocamus quoscumque processus—factos contra supposita hujus sacri Concilii Basileensis et adhaerentes eidem.—Nos autem deinceps a novitatibus et gravaminibus seu praegredi- ciis inferendis ipsi sacro Concilio, vel suppositis ejus et adhaerentibus eidem realiter et cum effectu desistemus. The bulls repealed are inserted word for word.

¹⁸ The Legates had first to swear, on 8th April, in a Congregatio generalis (Mansi xxix. p. 409), fideliter laborare pro statu et honore Concilii Basileensis, et ejus decreta defendere et manuteneret, et specialiter decretum Concilii Constantiensis, cuius tenor sequitur et est talis: Primo quod generalis Synodus Constantiensis necnon quaecunque alia Synodus in Spiritu Sancto legitime congregata—potestatem a Christo immediate habet, etc.—Item de- clarat, quod quicumque, c juscumque status et dignitatis, etc. (see § 131, note 8). Item dare sanum et salubre consilium secundum Deum et conscientias suas, et non revelare vota singulorum, inquantum ex hujusmodi revelatione verisimiliter possit oriri aliquod odium vel scandalum, et non recedere a loco hujus Concilii sine licentia obtenta a deputatis ejusdem. Then in Sess. XVII., 26th April, they were first admitted in the following style (Mansi xxix. p. 90): *Sacrosanta generalis Synodus Basileensis, in Spiritu Sancto legitime congregata, universalem Ecclesiam repraesentans, dilectos Ecclesiae filios Nicolaum tit. s. Crucis in Jerusalem presbyterum, Julianum s. Angeli diaconum, s. Thereupon the council, by this time become very numerous, resumed with earnestness the consideration of the ecclesiastical reforms often deliberated upon at Constance, but imperfectly carried out.¹⁹ So early as Sess. XII., 13th July, 1433, most of the Papal reservations were abolished.²⁰ In Sess. XV., 26th November, 1433, regular diocesan and provincial synods were prescribed.²¹ Then, in Sess. Item quod omnia acta hujus sacri Concilii (sicut hactenus est observatum) fiant et expediantur sub nomine et bulla ipsius Concilii.

²⁰ The Decretum de electionibus et confirmationibus Episcoporum et Praelatorum (in Mansi xxix. p. 61) abolishes the Papal reservations, reservationibus in corpore juris clausis, et his quae in terris Romanae Ecclesiae ratione directi seu utilis dominii media te vel immediate subjectis fieri contigerit, semper exceptis, and appoints—quod per electiones et confirmationes canonicas, secundum juris communis dispositionem, praedictis Metropolitanis, Cathedralibus, Monasteriis, et collegiatis Ecclesias ac dignitatibus electivis vacantibus debite provideatur.—Decernitque haec s. Synodus rationi fore consentaneum et reipublicae accommodum, ut contra hoc salutare decretum Romanus Pontifex nihil attentet, nisi ex magna, rationabili ac evidenti causa, litteris Apostolicis nominatim exprimenda. Et ut eo firmius hoc salubre decretum custodiatur, vult eadem s. Synodus, ut inter alia, quae Romanus Pontifex in sua assumptione profitebitur, juret decretum hoc inviolabiliter observare. Then follow regulations for the election of prelates. No fees whatever were to be paid for their confirmation. Summum vero Pontificem haec s. Synodus exhortatur, ut, cum speculum et norma omnis sanctitatis et munditiae esse debeat, pro confirmatione earum electionum, quas ad eum deferri contigerit, nihil penitus exigat aut recipiat: alioquin, si secus faciendo notorie et incorrigibiliter ex hoc Ecclesiam scandalizet, futuro Concilio deferatur. Pro oneribus autem, quae ipsum pro regimine universalis Ecclesiae subire oportet, proque sustentatione S. R. E. Cardinalium et aliorum necessariorum officialium hoc sacrum Concilium ante sui dissolutionem omnino debite et congruenter provideat.

framed against the concubinage of the clergy,²² against the precipitate employment of the interdict,²³ and against frivolous appeals.²⁴ Sess. XXI., 9th June, the annates were abolished,²⁵ and certain abuses which had crept into divine service were forbidden.²⁶ In Sess. XXIII., 25th March, 1436, there followed regu-dioecesi post octavas dominicae Resurrectionis, vel alia die secundum consuetudinem dioecesum, ad minus semel in anno, ubi non est consuetudo bis annuatim, celestari per dioecesanum propria in persona. These were to last at least two or three days, and be engaged in defining ecclesiastical regulations, the examination of the morals of the priesthood, the removal of disorders, the suppression of heresies, etc. For this purpose testes synodales were to be sworn in.—Provincial councils were to be held at least once every three years.—The monastic orders also were to observe their Capitula regularly.

²² Mansi xxix. p. 101. Sess. XX., Decr. 1. Every clergyman who, two months after the publication of this decree, should still be a publicus concubinarius, was to be, ipso facto, suspended—a perceptione fructuum omnium suorum beneficiorum, for three months, and if he did not immediately dismiss his concubine when required, he was to be deposed from his office. Quia vero in quibusdam regionibus nonnulli jurisdictionem ecclesiasticam habentes, pecunarios quaestus a concubinariis percipere non erubescunt, patiendo eos in tali foeditate sordescere (see vol. iii. § 110, note 9): sub poena maledictionis aeternae praecepit, ne deinceps sub pacto, compositione, aut spe alicujus quaestus, talia quovis modo tolerent aut dissimulent: alioquin ultra praemissam negligentiae poenam duplum ejus, quod propterea acceperint, restituere ad pios usus omnino teneantur et compellantur. Ipsas autem concubinas—Praelati modis omnibus curent a suis subditis, etiam per brachii saecularis auxilium, si opus fuerit, penitus arcere: qui etiam ex tali concubinatu procreatos filios apud patres suos cohabitare non permittant.

Decr. 11 against the Feast of Fools (see vol. ii. § 79): Turpem etiam illum abusum in quibusdam frequentatum Ecclesiis, quo certis anni celebratibus nonnulli cum mitra, baculo ac vestibus pontificalibus more Episcoporum benedicunt, alii in reges ac duces induti, quod festum fatuorum, vel innocentium seu puerorum in quibusdam regionibus nuncupatur, alii larvales et theatrales jocos, alii choreas et tripudia marium ac mulierum facientes homines ad spectacula et cachinnationes movent, alii comessationes et convivia ibidem praeparant: haec s. Synodus detestans, statuit et jubet tam Ordinariis, quam Ecclesiarum Decanis et Rectoribus sub pena suspensionis omnium proventuum ecclesiasticorum trium mensium spatio, ne haec aut similia ludibria, neque etiam mercantias seu negotiations nundinarum in Ecclesia, quae domus orationis esse debet, ac etiam coemeterio exerceri amplius permittant, transgressoresque per censuram ecclesiasticam, alia que juris remedia punire non negligant.

²⁷ Mansi xxix. p. 110. Sess. XXIII., Decr. 1. De electione summi Pontificis. C. 2. The newly elected Pope was to make the profession, which follows in C. 3, before any obedience should be rendered to him. It is the same which had been already prescribed at Constance (§ 131, note 15), with additions. In this he first promises to provide for purity of doctrine, observance of church usages, the extermination of heresy, pro reformatione morum ac pace in populo Christiano. Then, juro etiam prosequi celebrationem Conciliorum generalium et confirmationem electionum juxta decreta sacri Basileensis Concilii. Upon every anniversary of his election or coronation this Professio was to be read over to him during mass by a cardinal, with the addition of the following exhortation: Curet igitur Sanctitas Tua, pro honore Dei, et salute animae Tuae, et utilitate universalis Ecclesiae praedicta omnia pro viribus observare bona fide, sine dolo et fraude. Recogites etiam, cuius vicem geras in terris, etc.—Memineris quid b. Petrus aliqui sibi succedentes Pontifices fecerunt, qui nihil aliud cogitabant, nisi honorem Dei, etc.—Noli Tibi aut Tuis thesaurizare in terris, etc.—In distribuendis dignitatibus et beneficiis non carnem, non munera, non quid aliud temporale, sed solum Deum, et virtutes atque hominum merita Tibi proponas. In corrigendis excessibus ecclesiasticam exerce disciplinam.—Pauperes autem ac miserabiles personas defende, juva et sustenta. Ad omnes autem paternam habe caritatem. Then follow express directions of the council how the Pope was to govern the Church and the States of the Church.

decisive proceeding of the council brought on anew a sharp tension with the Pope, and both sides mutually complained of undue pretensions.³⁰ When the Pope now again made the negotiations pore juris expresse clausis, et his, quas in terris Romanae Ecclesiae ratione directi seu utilis dominii, mediate vel immediate subjectis fieri contigerit, duntaxat exceptis. This was the very thing that the German nation at Constance (see § 131, note 18) had already demanded in their Avisamenta (v. d. Hardt, i. xxii. p. 999), but not obtained; see their concordat at Constance, cap. ii. (§ 131, note 19.)

³⁰ The Council of Basle had already labored long and vainly to bring the Pope to a formal adoption and observance of its decrees, especially the decree de electionibus (note 20), and with this end in view had sent several embassies to him (the names of the ambassadors may be seen in Mansi xxx. p. 1064). The speech of the fourth deputation, consisting of Jo. de Hungaria, Decr. Doctor, and Mag. Matthaeus Mesnage, who had an audience with the Pope, 14th July, 1435, is already full of reproaches and threats (Mansi xxx. p. 939): Si Sanctitas Vestra non servaret decretum de electionibus per sacrum Concilium promulgatum, timendum foret, quod infra decem aut quindecim annos s. catholica Ecclesia divisa reperiatur in tot partes quot sunt dioeceses. Therefore the prayer was repeated, quatenus Sanctitas Vestra deinceps cum effectu servare et servari facere velit decreta edita et edenda per sacrum Concilium Basileense, et in contrarium attentata revocare, alioquin P. B. dicta sacra Synodus multiplicibus jurgiorum ac scandalorum crebris propulsata opprobriis, intendit dare operam efficacem, per quam decreta sua ab omnibus inviolabiliter observentur, etiam quacumque praefulgeant dignitate, prout ei possibile erit.—In omnibus autem Sanctitas Vestra velit sic agere, quod patres in sacro Concilio concipere valeant, Sanctitatem Vestram manuteneare sacrum Concilium, et non per indirectum dissolvere. At the same time the deputation presented the decree de annatis (see note 25), exhorted him to observe it, and on this occasion declared: Sacrum Concilium omnino dispositum est, et jam laborat, per aliquem alium modum honestorem Sanctitati Vestrae et Dominis Cardinalibus talem facere provisionem, de qua Sanctitas Vestra et Domini Cardinales merito poterunt contentari: praesertim autem si sacrum Concilium informatum fuerit, realiter et cum effectu Sanctitatem vestram decreta sacri Concilii Basileensis servare ab aliisque observari facere, et in contrarium attentata revocare. The Pope accordingly sent oratores to Basle to request (Mansi xxx. p. 946), quod aut suspendatur decretum de annatis, aut debita sedi Apostolicae fiat provisio: but they were told (p. 950) that such provision could only be made, si Summus Pontifex ipse circa synodalium decretorum observantiam animum, ut decet, inclinaverit. Then a new embassy to the Pope was resolved on, 20th January, 1436, which bore a still more decided message, and finally declared (see their instructions, l. c. p. 1064), quod sacrum Concilium non valens amplius ista tolerare, mittit dictos oratores, per quos sacrum Concilium rogat ipsum dominum nostrum,—ac solemniter et peremtorie requirit et monet, ut—velit a talibus penitus abstinere, ac efficaciter servare decreta istius sacri Concilii, et tenorem adhaesionis suae; et quod in testimonium hujus infra XXV. dies a die hujuscemodi monitionis publice ac solemniter in Consistorio publico debeat facere legi litteras more Curiae Romanae bullatas infrascripti tenoris, mittendas infra [alios] XXV. dies ad sacrum Concilium, in generali congregacione seu sessione legendas. Quod si—praedicta non fecerit;—ipsum sacrum Concilium protestatur coram Deo et hominibus, quod sine alia dilatione et citatione—procedet contra ipsum juxta decretum Concilii Constantiensis. The formula which was appended to the bull required of the Pope runs thus (p. 1065): Omnes appellatioves interpositas vel interponendas ad nos a sententiis latis per sacrum Concilium, vel Commissarios aut Judices ejusdem ipso durante, annullamus et irritamus, mandantes sub poena excommunicationis latae sententiae omnibus Judicibus et Commissariis auctoritatē nostra deputatis, ne super illis procedere audeant. Revocamus etiam omnia gravamina, et quidquid factum est dicta auctoritate nostra contra tenorem nostrae adhaesionis, ac contra decreta ipsius sacri Concilii Basileensis: ratificamus et approbamus omnia decreta ipsius sacri Concilii Basileensis, et praesertim de elec-

for union with the Greeks a pretext for removing the council into Italy, where the Papal influence could be more powerfully exercised; and when the fathers of Basle, aware of the threatened tionibus et de annatis: pollicemur, quod sine dolo et fraude illa manuteneret et servaret, etc. Then follows the monitorium to be delivered to the Pope, in which the causes of complaint against him are set down in detail. The following grievances belong to their number (p. 1067): quotidie nostrae a diversis personis ac pro variis causis aures pulsantur propter importabilia gravamina eis illata in derogationem per nos nostraque auctoritate gestorum, potissime quod adversum sententias hic latas, quae in rem transiverint judicatam, adversum ipsam etiam causarum pendentiam in hoc sacro Concilio, rescripta concesserit quotidieve concedat, appellations etiam a sententiis per hanc Synodus seu ejusdem Commissarios iatis in Curia et extra commiserit et committat, lites propter hoc faciendo immortales, et divisiones quam plurimas seminando, necon varia supposita (suppōts) ab hoc sacro Concilio avocando, qui in agendo pro universalis Ecclesia plurimum conferebant. We already find here, p. 1068: Intellexit a fide dignis plurimis s. Synodus, eundem Dominum Eugenium ad diversos reges et principes suos nuncios destinasse, ut in earundem annatarum perseverantia sibi adsisterent. A letter of advice for the instruction of the Pope's nuncios about to be sent to the crowned heads, which was composed soon after this time, and adopted by the Pope (in Raynald, ann. 1436, no. 2 ss.), contains an express defense of the Pope, and a complaint about the entire method of proceeding and the decrees of the council. It was here set down as an unheard-of error of the members of the council of Basle (no. 3), Concilia generalia non suscipere auctoritatem et fundamentum a Christi Vicario; so that even, Romanus Pontifex, ut Praelatus quilibet, obedire tenetur decretis—Concilii.—Quod nihil aliud est, quam potestatem Summi Pontificis Christique Vicarii in terris totaliter annihilare, et supremam potestatem ipsi a Christo datam in manibus multitudinis ponere: quod est non tam erroneum, quam etiam ab omni doctrina ss. Patrum totaliter alienum, immo toto statu catholicorum Principum valde perniciosum, quoniam pari modo possent eorum populi, si congregarentur, supra eos praetendere potestatem. The Decretum de annatis, it is added, was made (no. 4)—in grave praejudicium et depressionem Apostolicae sedis, cum a tanto tempore, de cuius contrario non est memoria, et per multa retro saecula (! see vol. iii. § 103, note 26; § 105, note 3), Summus Pontifex—in pacifica fuerit possessione de levandis annatis:—utpote quae nunquam fuerint per aliquod Concilium revocatae, immo potius in generali Viennensi (!) et Constantiensi Concilio susceptae.—Cardinales etiam S. R. E. et caeteri Curiales Romanae Curiae—in praesentia S. D. N. publice sunt protestati,—affirmantes, quod si decretum hujusmodi tam praecipitanter factum debebat observari, compellebantur relinquere sedem Apostolicam et ejus servititia. The Basle council, also, had never thought in earnest of any other provisio for the Pope. However, in no. 6, there was a well-grounded complaint made, that the council unduly interfered in the administration of the Church: Illud summe advertendum est, et ad quos omnis Principum consideratio se convertere debet, quod ii, qui Basileae sunt, omnia administrant et faciunt tam in spiritualibus quam in temporalibus quae spectant et pertinent ad exercitium supremi in Ecclesia Principis, quoniam minores causas agunt, de causis confirmationis cognoscunt, postulationes, quae soli gratiae nituntur, et quos solus Papa consuevit admittere vel rejicere, non solum in Concilio recipient, immo eas contra provisiones Apostolicae sedis admittunt,—de canonizationibus Sanctorum cognoscunt, beneficia et officia—dant, pensiones super beneficiis imponunt, confessionalia concedunt more Romanae Curiae, ab omnibus peccatis absolvunt,—dant indulgentias,—faciunt Doctores in omni facultate nullo vel modico examine praevio, cum illegitimis dispensant ad ordines, dignitates et haereditates, plerisque pallium conferunt, Episcopos consecrari praecipiunt,—in gradibus a jure prohibitis dispensant ita faciliter, ut repertum sit, dispensatum esse per unum Praelatum in secundo gradu consanguinitatis auctoritate, ut dicebatur, Concilii.—Quae omnia nullum umquam generalium Conciliorum—facere praesumpsit, etc.—Accordingly, the legates were to require the princes to take active measures, no. 14, danger, stoutly rejected all these proposals,³¹ the breach between the two parties soon became decisive. In Sess. XXVI., 31st July, 1437, the council placed the Pope under impeachment;³² Eugene viz. if the council of Basle refused to give way (sesto), ipsi Principes velint suos oratores de Basilea revocare, necnon etiam Praelatos eorum et subditos tam ecclesiasticos, quam saeculares. Very characteristic is the close of these instructions (no. 15), in which the legates are charged with a particular message to win the Emperor's good-will, and another to win the King of France. Then : Similiter unicuique Regi et Principi specialia quae-dam dici poterunt pro majori parte, prout erit expediens, quae ipsimet nuntii pro eorum prudentia scient reperire. Non esset etiam malum, quod nuntii—habeant aliquas particularitates etiam in foro conscientiae, ut possent gratificare Regibus et Principibus. Utile praeterea foret, si ii nuntii Apostolici secum portarent sub bulla aliquam Curiae reformationem, quam Regibus et Principibus praesentarent. Hoc enim baculo adversarii nostri semper nos invadunt et percutiunt, quia dicunt multa in Romana Curia fieri, quae agent magna reparatione, nec illa tamen corriguntur. Per hanc reformationem, etiam si usquequa plena non foret, modo essent aliqua, eorum ora obstruerentur, qui continue lacerant et carpunt Romanae Curiae famam,—redderenturque tunc Reges et Principes melius aedificati, et magis proni ad condescendendum petitionibus Domini nostri Papae, etc.

removed the council from Basle to Ferrara by a bull dated 18th September, 1437,³³ and actually opened a new synod for 8th January, 1438. The council, in reply, pronounced upon him sentence of suspension in Sess. XXXI., 24th January, 1438.³⁴ This was at the same time the last session in which a few more reformatory decretés were passed, in order to limit the number of causes dependent upon Rome,³⁵ and effect a worthier occupancy of ecclesiastical offices;³⁶ for henceforth the energies of the synod were exclusively absorbed by the controversy with the Pope.³⁷

enim terras ipse Dominus alienaverit, quantaeque ejus incuria et insolerti regimine deperdite et occupatae sint,—notoria facta testari videntur. Accordingly it summons the Pope to answer for himself within sixty days, and requires the cardinals, under pain of punishment, ut infra eundem terminum in hac civitate Basileensi comparent, saluti s. matris Ecclesiae cum caeteris in Synodo congregatis consulturi et opportune provisuri, prout Spiritus Sanctus dictaverit.

³⁶ Decr. 2. De Collationibus beneficiorum. The Roman pontiff was to grant no more

It was now the interest of the secular princes to secure for their national Churches the reforming decrees of Basle,³⁸ but also at the same time to avert the impending schism. Charles VII., King of France, was indeed dissatisfied with the decrees of Basle against the Pope; but he adopted for the French Church the reformations of this synod with certain modifications, in the Pragmatic Sanction of Bourges, 7th July, 1438,³⁹ and he disowned the synod of Ferrara. In Germany, during the vacancy of the Imperial throne, the electoral princes labored to mediate between the contending parties, and, with a view to effect concessions more readily, on the day before the election of Albert II., 17th March, 1438, they declared the German Church neutral.⁴⁰ Nevertheless the advantages of the Basle reforms were likewise secured to it by a deed of acceptance, executed by the Emperor and Empire at Mayence, 26th March, 1439.⁴¹

The council seems to have been misled by the universal approbation which this reform met with to overestimate its moral power. It refused every approach to concession;⁴² it proceeded in its attack upon Eugene IV.; in Sess. XXXIV., 25th May, 1439, it pronounced sentence of deposition upon him,⁴³ and on 17th November, 1439, elected by commission Amadeus VIII., duke of Savoy, to be Pope by the name of Felix V.⁴⁴

clusion of one wearisome schism, another was introduced, damaged the cause of the council in an extraordinary degree. Felix V. was recognized in a few countries only. By the departure and dissatisfaction of many of its members the council lost more and more of its consequence and weight, and from the 16th May, 1443, when it held its forty-fifth and last session, it existed only in name.⁴⁶ Eugene would have had an easy part to play against tradi consueverunt. Si Diabolus a Basileensibus aliquid peteret et contra fas et jus; dummodo illis vellet assentire, facillime impetraret. Offerunt et ipsi et Antipapa eorum Regibus, Principibus, et Praelatis privilegia, facultates, dignitates, ut illis adsistant, etc.

⁴⁶ Aeneas Sylvius, Descript. Germaniae, c. 10, describes the part taken by the different nations in this schism: Gallia quidem, atque Hispania, Italia quoque, Hungaria et Anglia Eugenium sequebantur: Sabaudia, Suicenses, Basilienses, Argentinenses, ac ex Saxonia Caminenses, simulque de ducibus Bavariae Albertus Monaci Felici obediebant. Rex Aragonum et Siciliae Alphonsus, Polonique et Britones nec Eugenio nec Felici, sed Concilio Basileensem auscultabant. Reliqua Germania neutralitatem quandam induit. Joannes de Polemar (see note 37) thus describes the condition of the council in the year 1443 (Mansi xxxi. p. 206): Nulli Primates, Archiepiscopi, et Episcopi orbis Antipapae adhaeserunt, exceptis paucissimis illis de Pedemontium et Sabaudiae, quos non veritas trahit, sed metus et subjectio compellit, ac illis tanti scleris patratoribus Basileae existentibus, quorum nomina opportunum est inserere, ut pateat, qui et quales sint, qui Ecclesiam perturbant. Arelatensis Episcopus (Lewis Allemand, archbishop of Arles and Cardinal, president of the council), Gratianopolitanus Episcopus (of Grénoble), Basiliensis Ep., Ep. Aquensis, Marsiliensis sine possessione Episcopus, Lacusanensis sine possessione, Ep. Argentinensis titulatus, Ep. Grossetanus titulatus. Fuerunt etiam duo Episcopi de Arragonia, quos D. Rex tencbat ibi, ut terreret S. D. N. ne esset sibi adversarius in regno Neapolitano. Fuerunt autem pauci quidam Abbates de dioecesi Basiliensi, metu ibi manere compulsi; fuerunt quidam Monachi apostatae et fugitivi, et nonnulli vel notarii vel copistae, et quidam alli vix in sacris constituti nullius aestimationis, qui quidem nec in dioecesanis nec in provincialibus Conciliis de jure vel consuetudine admitterentur, qui Basileam ad hoc profecti fuerant, et ad hoc morabantur, ut effugerent superiorum suorum correctionem, vel ut alios litibus vexarent, vel ut scandalum aliquod perpetrarent, etc. Ever since the year 1437 many influential bishops had separated themselves from the council, and the lower clergy had the ascendancy there. Against this Nicholas Panormitanus (comp. note 37) declared, indeed, A.D. 1439, when he pleaded for delay in the proceedings against the Pope (see Aen. Sylv. de Conc. Basil. lib. i. ed. Cattop. 1667, p. 36): Si Episcopi et Abbates computarentur, nemini dubium esse, quin major pars differri praesentem rem vellet. Cumque totius potestas Concilii in Episcopis resideret, haud ferendum esse, ut eis spretis, quod majori parti inferiorum placaret, id concluderetur. But the Cardinalis Arelatensis controverted him with some passages of Augustine and Jerome (l. c. p. 43): si, prout Hieronymo placet, Episcopi sunt sola consuetudine praelati Presbyteris, utique fieri potest, ut consuetudinem contraria tollat consuetudo: at si Presbyteri debent Ecclesiam Dei cum Episcopis in commune regere, satis notum est, quod ad eos quoque decidere res spectat Ecclesiae dubias.—Si soli Episcopi vocem habeant, id demum fiet, quod nationi placebit Italicae, quae sola nationes alias in numero Episcoporum aut superat aut aequat. Utcunque est, opus Dei hac vice fuisse autumno, ut inferiores ad decidendum reciperentur: revelavit enim ea nunc Dominus parvulis, quae sapientibus abscondit. En horum inferiorum zelum, constantiam, rectitudinem, magnanimitatem videtis. Ubi nunc Concilium, si soli Episcopi, solique Cardinales vocem habuissent? Ubi nunc Conciliorum auctoritas? Ubi fides catholica? ubi decreta? ubi reformatio? Nempe omnia libidini Eugenii ac his adversary Felix, if he had not resolved to attack at the same time the reformatory decrees of Basle, which had been already acknowledged by the two most powerful kingdoms of Christendom. As these had found among the higher orders of the clergy their most determined supporters, the Papal policy was so directed as to win the secular princes to its aims. In France, Eugene was obliged to be content that Charles VII. should remain as true to him as to the Pragmatic Sanction.⁴⁷ In Germany, he might hope for better success from the weakness of the new Emperor Frederick III. (since 1440) and the divided state of the country. And those unwonted privileges which he granted to the Duke of Cleves (A.D. 1444),⁴⁸ to the detriment of the Archbishop of Cologne and the temeritati jam diu commissa fuissent; victorque nefandissimi propositi sui ille fuisset, nisi quos modo spernitis inferiores sibi restitissent. Hi sunt, qui privationem ab Eugenio factam contempserunt: hi sunt, qui minas, qui spolia, qui persecutio*n* ipsius flocci fecerunt, etc. Afterward, A.D. 1452, the then converted Aeneas Sylvius, in his Oratio adv. Austriales (in Muratorii Anecdota, t. ii. p. 162), even says: Inter Episcopos, caeterosque Patres conscriptos vidimus in Basilea coquos et stabularios orbis negotia judicantes. Quis horum dicta vel facta judicaverit legi habere vigorem? This composition of the council has always been with the Ultramontanes a principal argument against its validity.

Bishop of Munster, who were both against him, are a proof how earnestly he strove in this country to win over the powerful nobles. He did, indeed, overestimate his power in Germany, when he ventured in 1445 to pronounce sentence of deposition against the Archbishops of Treves and Cologne, as decided adherents to the Council of Basle,⁴⁹ for this step induced the electoral princes to unite at Frankfort-on-Maine (21st March, 1446) in some decisive demands upon the Pope.⁵⁰ However, the Emperor, who rum filiorum, nobilium virorum, Adolphi Ducis Clyphensis, et Johannis ejus primogeniti, petitio continebat, quod cum tam saeculares quam ecclesiasticae personae, necnon collegia—et alia loca ecclesiastica in suis dominiis et terris in Coloniensi et Monasteriensi diocesi consistentia, pro eo quod Archiepiscopus Coloniensis nobis et Apostolicae sedi inobediens et rebellis existit, et iniquitatis filius Henricus, qui se gerit pro Episcopo Monasteriensi, damnationis filio Amedeo, olim Duci Sabaudiae, qui se Felicem V. ausu sacrilego nominare praesumit,—adhaerere praesumisit, plurima in spiritualibus et temporalibus detrimента sustineant: pro parte dictorum Ducis et primogeniti nobis fuit humiliter supplicatum, ut eorum subditorum suorum statui et saluti providere misericorditer dignaremur. Nos igitur—omnia et singula, personas, collegia, capitula, monasteria, Ecclesias et loca qualibet ecclesiastica, dominia, terras et loca supradicta, donec aliud super hoc duxerimus disponendum, ab omni jurisdictione, potestate, et superioritate spirituali Coloniensis Archiepiscopi et Episcopi Monasteriensi eximentes et liberantes, Fraternitati tuae unum Episcopum, etiam titularem,—qui in dictis dominiis,—Clericos ordinare,—omnemque spiritualem jurisdictionem, quae Archiepiscopi Colonienses et Episcopi Monasterienses pro tempore inibi habere et exercere conueverunt,—exercere valeat, necnon contra omnes et singulas personas,—quaes schismatis labe infecta essent, aut praefato Amedeo quomodolibet adhaererent seu faverent,—inquirere et procedere—possit,—deputandi, et illum amovendi, aliumque sui loco ponendi, quotiens pro parte dictorum Ducis et primogeniti fueris requisitus, auctoritate praefata, tenore presentium, concedimus facultatem. Hence rose the proverb: Dux Cliviae est Papa in suis terris; see Wern. Teschenmacheri Annales Cliviae,Juliae, Montium et Marcae Westphalicae, ed. J. Chr. Dithmar. Franc. et Lips. 1729, fol. p. 294.

⁵¹ Aeneas Sylvius, I. c. p. 125: Omnis Caesaris cura in eam diaetam collata erat. Nam sex Electores obligati simul adversus Eugenium videbantur Caesarem spernere, itaque sumnum Caesar studium erat, foedus Electorum solvere, et aliquem ad se trahere, ut Eugenio et sibi consuleret. Contra enim omnes Electores nihil audebat agere, neque adversari Eugenio volebat. Itaque neque solus Eugenium sequi audebat, neque cum Electoribus illi adversari volebat.—Eam ob causam legatis suis (among whom Aeneas was one) id mandati Caesar dederat, ut foedus Electorum omnino rumpere tentarent, et aliquos Electores ad se trahere studerent: quod si duos ex eis habere possent, declarationem pro Eugenio facerent, sin autem, declarationem omitterent. At first the legates of the Council of Basle seemed to have the ascendency in Frankfort, the electoral ambassadors brought a very unfavorable report of their success at Rome. Exinde legati Caesaris summo studio conati sunt Maguntinum Archiepiscopum ex foedore caeterorum Electorum abducere, sic enim et Federicum, Marchionem Brandenburgensem, ab illis extraxisse putabant, qui fidem Archiepiscopi secutus foedus intrarat. Multa in eam rem practicata sunt. Johannes de Lisura foederis et auctor et defensor Maguntinum in sententia tenebat. Cumque res diu inutiliter tractaretur, ad pecuniam tandem recurrere oportet, cui rarae obaudient aures. Haec Domina curiarum est, haec aures omnium aperit, huic omnia serviunt. Haec quoque Maguntinum expugnavit. Non quod sibi quicquam promissum fuerit, sed inter quatuor ejus Consiliarios duo millia florenorum rheňensium erogata sunt, quae bono animo Caesar solvit, ne se spreto Electores ad partem Concilii Felicisve declinarent, quam summam Nicolaus postea per Aeneam Federico reand a German embassy started for Rome to tender obedience to Eugene, on condition that these limited demands were granted.⁵² Even these conditions met with great opposition from one part of the cardinals;⁵³ and Eugene himself, while he seemed, in four bulls, to satisfy the demands of the Germans,⁵⁴ still reserved for misit. Hi ergo Consiliarii non veritatis amore sed auri dulcedine pellecti Archiepiscopum Maguntinum ad voluntatem Caesaris inclinabant. Sed nolebat Pontifex ille iuratum foedus abrumpere sine causa justa, quaerebatque modos honestiores. Cumque legati Caesaris non possent menti ejus satisfacere, Aeneas modum commentus est, qui receptis notulis, secundum quas se Principes obligaverant, nisi Eugenius illas admitteret, velle se eum deserere, omne venenum ex his ademit, novasque notulas compositus (this new compact, a modification of the electoral league, note 50, is printed under the name Concordata Principum Francofordiensia, in Würdtwein Subsidia diplom. t. ix. p. 70), per quas et Archiepiscopi depositi restituerentur (but without declaring their deposition null), et nationi oportune provideretur (but with the adoption of the Papal condition that “die wurdige nation dem heil. Stuhl zu Rom, ohne der Stadt, ein wiederstattung thue”), et auctoritas conciliorum salvaretur (but the Council of Basle is dropped, for, though something is said of another council, yet nothing is said about its deciding between the Pope and the Council of Basle): illasque dixit sua opinione Eugenium non negaturum. —Eas igitur Maguntino ostenderunt, dicentes, iniquum esse ab Eugenio discedere, qui notulas illas concessurus esset honestatis et justitiae plenas. Tunc Maguntinus bona fide se dixit intrasse foedus, sibi dictum fuisse, nihil Electores ab Eugenio velle, quod non esset honestum; at si jam his non contentarentur, ab honestate recederent. Placere igitur sibi, ut notulae in publico legerentur, quaererenturque vota multitudinis. The electors of Mayence and Brandenburg, the Grand Master of Prussia, the Archbishop of Magdeburg, and several German princes signed at once before the public deliberation. Cumque ventum esset in concionem, major pars notulas approbavit: Treverensis et Coloniensis et Dux Saxoniae adversi fuerunt, Palatinus dubius mansit. Sic territi tres Electores nihil concludere ausi sunt. At legati Caesaris cum Maguntino, Brandenburgensi et aliis novum foedus fecerunt, statueruntque in futuro nativitatis Dominicæ festo ad Eugenium mittere, atque ab eo petere, uti notulas approbaret: quod si faceret, mox nomine nationis obedientia sibi praestaretur; sin autem, rursus in deliberationem res adduceretur.

⁵³ Aeneae Sylvii Hist Friderici III., in Kollar, ii. p. 129: Collegium Cardinalium divisum erat, videbaturque magna pars adversari his, quae Francfordiae conclusa erant, atque hi erant maxime Theologi, qui omnia graviora faciunt: ob quam rem Ludovicus Aquileiensis et Johannes Morinensis Cardinales suadent Eugenio, si velit Ecclesiae pacem habere, novos ut Cardinales assumat, qui resistere contradicentibus possint. Sic suasus Eugenius quatuor Cardinales creavit. The opposing cardinals said (see the Oratio Aeneae, in Baluz. vii. p. 533, quoted in note 52), venditam esse Teutonicis Apostolicam sedem, seque quasi bubalos duci naribus. Further still, p. 535: Grave videbatur Cardinalibus annatus remittere, collationes beneficiorum amittere, Concilium convocare, decreta recipere, privatos restituere; ajebantque, non solum in natione Germanica id esse nocivum, sed alias exinde nationes recessuras et Apostolicam sedem perditum iri, nec bene consultum esse caeteris Ecclesiis, quando Romana, quae est caput omnium, langueret: conducere Christianae religioni Romanum Pontificem fore potentem, ut tueri alios Praelatos queat, inter Principes pacem constituere, infidelibus resistere, haereses extirpare: nunquam tot haereses in Christiana religione fuisse, quot fuerunt ante Sylvestrum, quia paupertas Romani Pontificis neglectui fuit.

The Papal See now strove, with Roman craft and steadfastness, to win back what was lost at the Council of Basle. Although Nicolas V., immediately after his accession, expressed himself in the most liberal manner to the German embassadors,¹ and confirmed the bulls of his predecessor,² nevertheless he managed, by the favor of the Emperor and the mediation of Aeneas Sylvius, to introduce once more in the so-called Aschaffenburg Concordat, properly the Concordat of Vienna (17th February, 1448),³ under pretext of the stipulated provision for the Papal See, the articles of the Constance Concordat, so disadvantageous to the German nation.⁴ The more powerful German nobles were won over by concessions,⁵ the less powerful were obliged to follow of their own

¹ He said to them (see the speech of Aeneas cited § 132, note 52, in Baluzii Misc. vii. p. 555) : Ego quae cum natione Germanica meus antecessor fecit non solum approbare confirmareque volo, sed exequi et manutenerem omnia. Nimis, ut mihi videtur, Romani Pontifices fimbrias suas extenderunt, qui nihil jurisdictionis caeteris Episcopis reliquerunt. Nimis quoque Basilienses Apostolicae sedis manus abbreviaverunt. Sed ita evenit: qui facit indigna, ut injusta ferat oportet. Arborem, quae in unam partem peperdit, qui volunt erigere, in partem adversam trahunt. Nobis sententia est, in partem sollicitudinis qui vocati sunt Episcopos suo jure minime spoliare. Sic enim jurisdictionem nostram nos denique servaturos speramus, si non usurpaverimus aliena.

⁵ The Elector of Brandenburg received the right of nominating the bishops of Brandenburg, Lebus, and Havelberg; see the papal deed of September, 1447, in Gercken Cod. Diplom. Brandeb., t. vii. p. 361. The ecclesiastical electors received the Indultum, to ap-motion. Thus the principal results of the Council of Basle and of the acceptation of Mayence were lost to Germany.⁶ Felix V. and the feeble remnant of the Council of Basle, removed in 1448 point to benefices vacated in the months reserved to the Pope (Koch, p. 42), so did the Archbishop of Salzburg likewise (see Nachrichten by Juuvia, s. 280). Only the Elector Dietrich of Cologne would not be won over, but immediately after his death, A.D. 1461, the Concordat was published in the diocese of Cologne also; see Hedderich Elementa Juris Canonici, P. iv. p. 145.

⁶ Jacobus de Paradiso (Carthusian and Doctor of Divinity at Erfurt), De Septem Statibus Eccl., in Brown, Appendix ad Fasc. Rerum Expetend. et Fugiendarum, p. 111: Gaudet quidem nostris temporibus, scil. nunc de anno Domini 1449, Ecclesia de unico et indubitate pastore, scil. Nicolao P. V.; sed luget de conculatione decretorum in transactis Concilii edictorum, et videt quomodo contraria decretis practicantur.—At the end of the Concordat of Vienna is the following passage: In aliis autem, quae per felicis recordationis Dominum Eugenium Papam quartum pro natione praefata usque ad tempus futuri generalis Concilii permissa, concessa, indulta atque decreta, et per memoratum sanctissimum Dominum nostrum Papam Nicolaum confirmata fuere, in quantum illa concordiae praesenti non obviant, ista vice nihil extitit immutatum. According to this the decrees of Basle, accepted at Mayence (§ 132, note 41), which were confirmed by Eugene IV. (in the bull Ad tranquillitatem, § 132, note 54) and by Nicholas V. (see above, note 2), were to remain in force so far as they were not exchanged in this Concordat for other resolutions. This was quite in agreement with the bull Ad tranquillitatem: for according to it there was to be no concordat except with reference to the modification of some of those decrees, and the compensation to be made to the Pope for his loss. However, that acceptance of Mayence was gradually forgotten, and the Concordat of Vienna regarded as an independent compact, and the only result in Germany of the Council of Basle. So early as the year 1457, Aeneas Sylvius, Epist. 383 ad Mart. Mayerum, seems to take it in this sense: Verum cum dicis, decreta Basiliensis Concilii non custodiri, idque putas injuriosum esse nationi, indignam dicimus esse querelam tuam. Propter decreta enim Basiliensis Concilii inter sedem Apostolicam et nationem vestram dissidium coepit, cum vos illa prorsus tenenda diceretis, Apostolica vero sedes omnia rejiceret. Itaque fuit denique compositio facta, in qua nos imperatorio nomine interfuiimus. Ea certam legem dedit, deinde inviolabiliter observandam, per quam aliqua ex decretis Concilii praedicti recepta videntur, aliqua rejecta. Likewise in his Germania, c. 11: Postremo eo modo concordiae locus fuit, ut sententia quorundam decretorum Basiliensis Concilii reciperetur, reliqua vero ejus statuta rejecta viderentur. However, Leibnitz, Cod. Jur. Gentium, P. i. p. 396, already maintained, anteriora concordata et concessa, qualia in decretis Constantiensis et Basileensis Concilii et Eugenii approbatione continentur, hic confirmari, adeoque male vulgo negligi. After Horix discovered again the acceptance of Mayence (see § 132, note 41), the true state of the case was once more revealed by him, and frequently maintained by the canonists, Neller at Trêves, Endres and Gregel, in Würzburg, Jung at Heidelberg, Roth at Mayence, Hedderich at Bonn, especially during the controversy about the nunciature. See particularly, Jo. Phil. Gregel, Diss. de Juribus Nationi Germanicae ex acceptatione Decretorum Basileensium quaeatis, per Concordia Aschaffenburgensia modificatis aut stabilitis. Mogunt. 1787, 4. (reprinted in P. A. Gratz Continuatio Thesauri Juris Eccl. ab A. Schmidt adorati, vol. i. Mogunt. 1829, 8. p. 41 ss.) On the other hand, Spittler (Gesch. der Fundamentalgesetze der deutschkathol. Kirche im Verhältnisse zum röm. Stuhle, in the Götting. histor. Magazin, Bd. 1. St. 2. s. 347. St. 3. s. 474. Bd. 4. St. 1. s. 151), sought to prove that the decrees of Basle were quite abolished by the Aschaffenburg Concordat. See, on the other side, Koch Sanct. Pragm., p. 47 ss. Ueber die Fundamentalgesetze der deutschkathol. Kirche im Verh. zum röm. Stuhle, ein Nachtrag zur Spittler'schen Geschichte. Frankf. u. Leipzig. 1790 (in which Spittler's treatises are first reprinted entire, and then refuted).

to Lausanne,⁷ must now likewise yield. The former resigned his office; the latter was entirely dissolved (1449).⁸ The Pope had reason to expect to bring all things back to their old course in Germany with greater speed, now that the Emperor Frederick III., when he received the long-desired imperial crown at Rome, in 1452, was blind enough in his joy to propose a crusade to the Holy Land instead of the promised council.⁹ The fall of Constantinople, which happened soon after (29th May, 1453), furnished a more earnest pretext for a crusade, and Nicolas V. forthwith issued his summons, and granted tithes from the ecclesiastical revenues for its support.¹⁰ However, the Papacy, now sunk so low in public esteem, could no longer rouse the people as in earlier times, and dissipate the political entanglements of princes by religious enthusiasm. This crusade remained among the number of unfulfilled projects and empty promises, and the Papal See reaped from it no further advantage than that of bringing once more into use, under a decent pretext, many of those methods of raising money which had been abolished by the reforming councils. For this very reason the great mass of the German people, who felt that they had been deceived and bitterly injured

¹⁰ The bull of 30th September, 1458, is in Raynald. ad h. a. no. 9, e. g. In primis universos Principes Christianos—hortamur, requirimus et mandamus in vim professionis factae in sacri susceptione baptismatis, ac in vim juramenti praestiti, cum dignitatum suarum infulas suscepimus, ut ad defensionem Christianae religionis et fidei cum bonis et personis suis pro sua possibilitate verisimiliter et indesinenter assistant, aeterna premia recepturi ab illo, cuius causam egere, et in praesenti vita pariter et in futura. Quod in praesentiarum credimus cuilibet esse de necessitate salutis, cum talis sit necessitatis articulus, a qua se nullus legitime valeat excusare, etc.

by the Pope and the Emperor, saw nothing but Papal avarice at work in these efforts for a crusade.¹¹ And when Calixtus III., immediately after his accession (1455), began to follow up this matter with still greater zeal,¹² the only result effected was that the reforming party once more arose in Germany, to win back the lost freedom of the Church. When the weak Emperor, Frederick III., under the guidance of the crafty Aeneas Sylvius, attached

¹¹ On these efforts and their result in Germany, see Pii II. Pont. Max. Commentarii rerum memorabilium, quae temporibus suis contigerunt, libb. xii., a Joanne Gobellino (the private secretary of Pius II.,—really by the Pope himself; see Platina ed. 1645, p. 760) compositi. Francof. 1614, fol. p. 22 ss. In the diet at Ratisbon a général promise was made, which was to be more fully deliberated upon in the next diet of the empire at Frankfort (compare Müller's Reichstagstheatrum. Th. 1. s. 450). But here (iu September, 1454), mutati erant Theutonum animi, nec cuiquam placebat, expeditionem in Turcas fieri: infectae veluti venenis quibusdam aures neque Imperatoris nomen, neque Romani Praesulis ferre poterant, dicebantque, eos corrodere aurum velle, non bellum gerere: sed alium futurum Concilii exitum, quam sibi persuasissent: nec pecuniam collatueros Germaniae populos, nec in militiam datus nomina: atque in eam sententiam persuasi omnes Imperatori et Papae maledicere, legatos eorum contempnere, Burgundos irridere, qui proni ad expeditionem videbantur, Hungaris durissima verba dare, qui, cum suum regnum tueri nequivissent, nunc Germaniam suis calamitatibus involvere vellent: nec ulla spes reliqua erat rei bene gerendae, cum decretum Ratisponense prorsus rejiceretur. At cum in concionem itum est, locuto Aenea (as Imperial commissioner) omnium repente animi in priorem belli gerendi ardorem rediere. Oravit ille duabus ferme horis, ita intentis animis auditus, ut nemo unquam expuerit, nemo ab orantis vultu oculos suos averterit, etc. (The speech itself may be seen in Müller's Reichstagstheatrum, Th. 1, s. 474 ff.) The oratorical vanity of Aeneas here exaggerates the result. It was indeed determined to send a considerable army to the aid of Hungary; but this was to be more particularly discussed at the ensuing diet in the Neustadt of Vienna. A more impartial account of the success of this diet is given by the Franciscan, Johannes Capistranus, who alone was able at that time to rouse the common people in the style of the ancient preachers of crusades (on his agency see Chr. A. Pescheck in Illgen's Zeitschr. für die hist. Theologie. Bd. 2, St. 2, s. 259 ff.), and who was also present at Frankfort, in his letter to the Pope of 28th October, 1454, in Wadding Annales Minorum ed. 2, t. xii. p. 203: cum apud multos appareat in praesenti dieta magna fuisse conclusa, mihi vero aut nihil, aut parum boni conclusum extitisse visum est. As all was made to depend upon fresh deliberations, the Hungarians might in the meanwhile be driven to make peace with the Turks. He then also informs the Pope of the common feeling as it still prevailed after the diet: Omnes Principes, omnes Domini, totus mundus generaliter dicit: Quomodo volumus contra Turcam proprios sudores, propria nostra bona, panem filiorum nostrorum exponere, quandoquidem summus Pontifex in turribus, in grossis muris, in calce et lapidibus thesaurum S. Petri expendit, quem in defensionem sanctae fidei deberet expendere? However, Nicholas V. died during the diet in the Viennese Neustadt, and now the deliberations were again deferred.

¹² Platina in Vita Calixti III. ed. 1645, p. 727: bellum Turcis statim indixit. Id se ante Pontificatum vovisse ostendens suo chirographo, his verbis scripto, quod in libro quodam suo extabat: Ego Calistus Pontifex Deo omnipotenti voveo et sanctae individuae Trinitati, me bello, maledictis, interdictis, execrationibus, et demum quibuscumque rebus potero, Turcos Christiani nominis hostes saevissimos persecuturum. Admirati sunt omnes qui aderant, quod Pontificatus nomen sibi desumpsisset ante adeptam dignitatem, quodque homo senex ac fere decrepitus tantum animi haberet. ¹⁴ At the Diet of Nuremberg, in 1456, the electors already thought of electing a King of the Romans even against the Emperor's will, Müller's Reichstagtheatrum, Th. 1, s. 555 ff. At an assemblage of the electors of Mayence, Cologne, the Palatinate, Saxony and Brandenburg, with the Archbishops of Saltzburg and Bremen, which was held at Frankfort in 1457, another assembly of the princes was determined upon to meet in Nuremberg at Martinmas-tide, 1457, in which they were to deliberate (see Neue Sammlung der Reichs-Abschiede. Frankf. a. M. 1747, fol. Th. 1, s. 190): anne magis expedit pro honore Principum et nationis, quod decreta Constantiensis et Basileensis Conciliorum, quae ea gravamina contingunt, circa quae magis necessarium fuerit providendum, absque modificatione et simpliciter—repetantur et innoventur: vel quod ordinationes intermediae, de quibus in avisamentis supradictis cautum et actum est, prosequantur et continentur, seu quod alia congrua et honesta via Alemanniae consulatur. Afterward they were to consult—de modo et forma, quibus Romanus Imperator posset induci ad concordum una cum Principibus Alemanniae in re ista, et etiam ad providendum Nationi vel per pragmaticam sanctionem vel alio remedio oportuno. Likewise—anne Dominus Apostolicus vel literis, vel oratoribus, et quibus modis et mediis interpellandus sit super hac re. The Avisamenta here agreed on were to be communicated previously to the other nobles. They may be the Pragmatica Sanctio of which Aeneas speaks, Germania, c. 78 ss. (See below, note 19.)

a. no. 40, complete in Aen. Sylv. Epist. 385):—nuper—sicut nobis relatum est, nonnulli ex venerabilibus fratribus nostris ac dilectis filiis, nobilibus viris, Romani Imperii Electoribus, et alii plerique Principes ac Praelati nationis ejusdem, dieta quadam sive conuentu inter se celebrata (in Frankfort; see above, note 14), Oratores suos ad Te miserunt, qui de nobis, deque curia nostra non parvam querelam facientes, inter caetera exposuisse feruntur, quod nos diversis modis nationem ipsam aggravantes, quae inter Te nomine nationis et antecessorem nostrum—concordata fuerunt, minime adimplere aut observare curemus.—Audivimus rumorem esse, tanquam nos aurum ex natione tua, supra quam deceat, extorqueamus. Injuriantur prefecto nobis, et a vero longe recedunt, qui talia dicunt: nihil unquam nostro nomine ab his extortum est, quibus beneficia contulimus, ut illi gariint: nihil exactum, nihil petitum praeter Annatam vetusto jure debitam: at si qui contra Turcos pecunaria nobis subsidia obtulerunt, non recusavimus, nec recusare quidem debemus pro tanta Christianae religionis necessitate. Pecunias autem hujusmodi—non usurpamus nobis,—non consumimus in deliciis, sed in defensionem fidei convertimus.—Innumerabiles sunt et intolerabiles nobis, quas indies subimus, expensae: nunc in Orientem Legato classis nostraræ, nunc in Albaniam Scanderbechii fortissimo Christi athletæ, indefessoque bellatori, nunc Legatis et Oratoribus in diversas mundi partes emissis, nunc istis, nunc illis per Graeciam et Asiam laborantibus, ne destituti periclitarentur, pecunias mittimus: nec fuerunt inanes hujusmodi sumptus. Licet enim nobis in Domino gloriari, qui per ministros suos, torpentibus ac pene dormientibus cunctis ferme Christianis Principibus, nobis tantummodo instantibus atque urgentibus Turcorum superbissima cornua et insolentissimas acies apud Ungariam confregit (viz., the victory of John Hunyades at Belgrade in 1456), magnumque illum et potentissimum exercitum prostravit, qui sibi non Ungariam modo, sed Germaniam totam, Galliam atque Italiam proterere, legemque Christi funditus evertere promittebat.—Nunc quoque classis nostra Rhodum tuetur, Cyprus, Mitylenem, Chium, et omnes in Oriente Christiani nominis insulas:—quodque laudabilius est,—non tantum quas diximus insulas Legatus noster—tutatus est, sed alias plerasque Turcorum domino servientes ad Apostolicae sedis devotionem obedientiamque rededit. —Quae cum ita sint, audent tamen nonnulli parum quidem religiosi, et ad commune bonum minus intenti nos redarguere, quod ab his pecunias recipimus, qui promoventur, quamvis sponte oblatas in classem contra Turcos emissam. Quod quam inique agunt, jam plane prospicis. Sed ajunt plerique, concordata, de quibus mentionem supra fecimus, per nos minime observari, affirmantes, electiones Episcoporum aliorumque Praelatorum nos parvi pendere, ac prorsus abjicere: quod pari modo neque vere, neque juste nobis objicitur. Neque enim electiones Praelatorum in Germania factas quovis pacto contemnimus, neque ex concordatis omnes passim electiones confirmare tenemur, sed illas tantummodo, quae canonicae experiuntur: quod quidem a nobis diligenter custoditum est.—Super reservationibus autem caeterisque beneficiorum provisionibus, de quibus similiter acceperimus querelas coram Tua Serenitate fuisse propositas, non sumus memores, aliquid a nobis esse concessum contra concordata praedicta. Quod si quid tale factum est, ut saepe in multitudine literarum ac negotiorum aliqua transeunt neque bene gesta, neque bene revisa; non est intentionis nostræ aut Ordinariorum mensibus derogare, aut concordatis ipsis contravenire. Quinimo quamvis liberrima sit Apostolicae sedis auctoritas, nullisque debeat pactiorum vinculis coerceri; ex mera tamen liberalitate nostra, ex zelo, quem gerimus ad pacem, ex caritate, qua te tuamque nationem prosequimur, concordatis ipsis locum esse volumus, nec patiemur ea temere violari, dum Romanæ sedis gubernacula retinebimus. Si quid praeterea est, quod ipsi nationi molestum videatur ex his, quae prodeunt ex nostro solio, idque fortasse dignum emendatione censetur (possimus enim et nos, ut homines, aliquando labi atque errare, in his maxime, quae facti sunt); non decet Episcopos aut alios quosvis mortales super Apostolicam sedem auctoritatem sibi vendicare.—Et tu ergo, Serenissime Imperator, si quid arbitraris tuae nationis Praelatos habere, quod per nos emendari debeat, admone eos, hortare et urge, ut ad nos venientes suas nobis necessitates exponant, gravamina referant, desideria proferant, etc. Under the letter is the note: Dictata per Aeneam Cardinalem Senensem.

Germany nor any other country was the crusade accomplished;¹⁶ and the Pope could not undertake any decisive enterprise against the Turks with the sums which had been collected, not without difficulty, from the different national Churches. Aeneas Sylvius, who for his good service in Germany had been already successively rewarded by Nicolas V. with the bishoprics of Trieste and Siena, and by Calixtus III. (in December, 1456) with the rank of cardinal, still used every means to allay the excited feeling that prevailed in Germany against the Papal See.¹⁷ He sought by his

¹⁷ This is known chiefly from the letters of Martin Meyer, chancellor of Mayence, to his friend, Aeneas Sylvius, dd. 31st August, 1457 (prefixed to Aeneae Sylv. Germania, printed often besides, e. g. in Freheri Scriptt. Rer. Germ. ed. Struve, t. ii. p. 686. Richerii Hist. Conc. Gener., lib. iv. P. I, cap. 1. J. F. Georgii Nationis Germanicae gravamina adv. sedem Rom., p. 244 ss.): Cognovi ex literis amicorum, Te Cardinalem esse creatum. Congratulor et Tibi, qui pro Tua virtute digna consecutus es praemia, et mihi, cuius amicus in ea dignitate constitutus est, in qua me meosque necessarios aliquando juvare poterit. Illud mihi molestum, quod in ea tempora incidisti, quae sedem Apostolicam afflictura videntur. Nam domino meo Archiepiscopo frequentes afferuntur de Romano Pontifice querelae, qui neque Constantiensis neque Basileensis Concilii decreta custodit, neque se pactionibus antecessoris sui teneri arbitratur, nationemque nostram contemnere et prorsus exhaustire videtur. Constat enim, electiones Praelatorum passim rejici, beneficia dignitatesque cuiusvis qualitatis et Cardinalibus et Protonotariis reservari. Et tu quidem ad tres Provincias Teutonici nominis sub ea formula reservationem impetrasti, quae hactenus insolita est et inaudita. Expectativae etiam gratiae sine numero conceduntur: Annatae sive medii fructus absque ulla dilatione temporis exiguntur, et plus etiam, quam debeatur, extorqueri palam est. Ecclesiarum regimina non magis merenti, sed plus offerenti committuntur: ad corradendas pecunias novae indulgentiae indies conceduntur. Decimarum exactiones inconsultis Praelatis nostris (against Conc. Const. Sess. XLIII., see § 131, note 20, Decr. 6) Turcorum causa fieri jubentur. Causae, quae tractandae terminandaque in partibus fuerant, ad Apostolicum tribunal indistincte trahuntur (against Conc. Basil. Sess. XXXI., see § 132, note 35): excogitantur mille modi, quibus Romana sedes aurum ex nobis, tamquam ex barbaris, subtili extrahat ingenio: ob quas res natio nostra quandam inclyta, quae sua virtute suoque sanguine Romanum Imperium coëmit, fuitque mundi domina ac regina, ad inopiam nunc redacta, ancilla et tributaria facta est, et in squalore jacens, suam fortunam, suam pauperiem multos jam annos moeret. Nunc vero, quasi ex somno excitati optimates nostri, quibus remedii huic calamitati obviam pergant, cogitare cooperunt, jugumque prorsus excutere, et se in pristinam vindicare libertatem decreverunt. Erit haec non parva jactura Romanae Curiae, si quod cogitant Romani Principes efficerint. Quantum itaque de tua nova dignitate laetor, tantum commoveor et angor, tuo tempore hoc parari. Sed Dei fortassis alia est cogitatio, et illius profecto sententia obtinebit. Tu interim bonum habeto animum, et quibus repagulis fluminis impetus coērceri possit, pro tua sapientia cogitato, et vale optime. The dissatisfaction with Rome proceeded yet further; see Aeneae Sylvii Ep. 301, ad Martinum Mayer: Sunt nonnulli nationis tuae homines, parum pensi habentes, quibus Romani Pontificis auctoritas neque necessaria esse videtur neque a Christo instituta. The whole letter, which is adopted into Aeneae Germania, c. 89 and 90, has for its aim the refutation of their opinion.

¹⁸ Aeneae Sylvii Ep. 348, ad Laurentium Rovarellam (Legate in Hungary). He was to impress upon the German nobles, quod multo facilius filii Principum promovebuntur per sedem Apostolicam, quam per Capitula vel Ordinarios. Et hoc bene cura in auribus Principum conculcare, quia veritas est. Ep. 319, ad Theodoricum Archiep. Colon. dd. 2. Dec., 1457. Si Romanæ sedis auctoritas deprimeretur, credito, quia nec tua nec aliorum Episcoporum salva manebit. Audito tamen, quae consulis, ut hic quoque ea reformatur, quae odium tuae nationis pariunt, et ego, si mea vox auditetur, ad id operam dabo. Nam et hic aliqua committuntur, quae non laudo omnia. Verum illud salubre puto, ut super gravaminibus, quae vestri allegant, ad Romanum Pontificem recursus habeatur, qui non negabit assensum justa potentibus. Ep. 334, ad Johannem de Lisura (Councilor of Mayence, see § 132, note 51): Per Wigandum Secretarium Moguntini misimus tibi Alphabetum, et nunc duplicamus, si forsitan illud non recepisti: poteris scribere mentis tuae conceptum, et consulere Ecclesiae necessitatibus.—Labore tuo nostroque quietem consecuta est Ecclesia nostris diebus apud Germanos. Faxit Deus, ne lacerari videamus quod aliquando resarcivimus. Multa rumor afferit, et Germanos fieri Gallos imitatione contendit. Nobis illa via salubrior esse videtur, qua patres nostri ambulaverunt.—Nec facile sua in Dioecesi quisque Pontifex Papatum habebit: et sunt, qui quaerunt, et ejus rei causa nigrum in candida vertunt. Ep. 383, ad Martinum Mayer, the answer to the letter quoted in note 17. He first maintains, nec unquam regni coelestis introire januam potuisse, qui Romanorum Pontificum auctoritatem contumaciter contempsero, nec hodie illis gloriandum esse, qui auctoritate propria leges sibi constituunt, quibus pro suo libito Romanæ sedis jussiones spernere possint. Hos enim catholica veritas, nisi resipuerint ante obitum, ignis aeterni mancipio sine intermissione deputat. Fatemur insuper aliquando in Romana Curia, quam regunt homines, aliqua fieri, quae digna essent emendatione, nec dubitamus ipsos Romanæ urbis Praesules etiam, in quantum homines, falli, errare, labi ac decipi posse. Then he refutes the charges, first that the concordats were not observed, afterward that the right of election was not regarded. On this head the same Aeneas Sylvius, who had declared in his Ep. 66, ad Jo. Peregallum: (Nihil est, quod absque argento Romana curia dedit. Nam ipsae manus impositiones et Spiritus Sancti dona venduntur, nec peccatorum venia nisi nummatis impendiatur), writes as follows: Quod deinde subjungis extorqueri multum auri ab his, qui dignitates vel alia beneficia assequuntur, non est cur de hac sede conqueramini, sed potius de cupiditate et ambitione vestrorum hominum, qui currentes pro Episcopatibus, invenientes competitores, his quibus palatum patet certatim pecunias offerunt. Illi vero, qui alloqui Pontificem possunt, non sunt omnes similes Angelis, sed quales in Alemania Galliaque multos reperias: recipiunt enim quod offertur, non extorquent. Romanus autem Praesul solus in thalamo suo nunc hos nunc illos audit, et illos promovere solet, qui magis commendantur, nec scit, nec etiam arbitratur, pecuniae causa hos aut illos commendatione praefferri. Nec sibi plus auri datur, quam concordata permittant; nisi fortasse aliquando occasione expeditionis contra Turcos, aliud super Annatas recepit (the reading, in Germania, c. 25, is corrected thus) quod sibi profecto non fuit in tanta necessitate negandum. Then as regards the complaints about the sale of indulgences and tithes. Complaints of extortion would always be alleged by the avaricious on various grounds. Germany was not impoverished, but richer than ever, yet its prosperity was the happy result of Christianity, and so an advantage conferred by the Roman See which converted ditione Germaniae, was intended principally for the refutation of the complaints of the Germans against the Papal See.¹⁹ At the

the country. Then he defends himself against the reproach of holding insolitae reservations. The reservations made in his favor were not against the concordats. Sed arbitris fortasse, beneficia quae in Germania sunt Germanis potius committi debere quam extraneis, nec nos aliter sentimus. Sed cum nos jam annis supra XXIV. Germaniam incoluerimus, non reputamus extraneos existimari debere: cumque Imperatori ipsique nationi longo tempore, summa fide, magnis laboribus servierimus, et nunc ad Cardinatum recepti ea curemus, quae nationis ipsius honori atque utilitati conductant, et ita prorsus agamus, ut natione Germani potius quam Itali putemur; non judicavimus tribus illis provinciis Moguntinae, Coloniensi, Treverensi indignum videri, aut grave censeri, si annuo duo millia ducatorum in eis obtincremus ex illis beneficiis, quae sedes Apostolica conferre haberet. Putavissemus etiam majora in eadem natione, cui semper servivimus, sponte offerri: sed non sumus nos insatiabiles, contentamur eo, quod pro debiti status conservatione sufficiat, nec plura circa hoc. Quod autem operas tuas ad id offers, ut gratiae nostrae fructum consequamur, agimus tibi gratias, qui partes amici non negligis, idque rogamus, ut interveniente casu opportuno prorsus efficias.—Si qua Praepositura vacaverit, aut Ecclesia parochialis magni reditus, velis ita efficere, ut ad complementum gratiae nostrae (the reservation granted him by the Pope) pervenire possimus.

¹⁹ This work has been many times published separately, e. g. Argent. 1515, small 4to. Romae, 1584, and in Aen. Sylv. Opp. Basil. 1571, fol. p. 1034 ss. It is addressed to Martin Mayer, chancellor of the Electorate, and contains a more detailed answer to the gravamina brought forward by him, which are before given Ep. 383 (note 18). The remarks on the Pragmatic Sanction proposed in Germany are worthy of note (compare above, note 14). Cap. 78: Pugna nobis cum paucis, qui cum sibi docti videantur, nec pro sua opinione dignis efferantur honoribus, miscere omnia divina et humana jura co-nantur, ut inter rerum mutationes cadentium assequi cathedras valeant, etc.—Quid est quod pro libertate molientur, quid parant in Apostolicam sedem, quo sibi modo consulere satagunt? Non scribis tu hoc nobis: fortasse times deferri. Commandamus cautionem tuam: nam Cancellario nihil tam convenit quam pectus arcanorum tenax. Non tamen nos latet hoc: provisi sunt amici nostri, nullis obligati Principibus, quod nobis omnium, quae apud vos aguntur, notitiam fecere, missis exemplaribus ejus Pragmaticae, quae ab aliquibus excogitata, in publicum deferri debuit. Cap. 79: Cujus duae partes sunt. In prima referuntur omnia fere gravamina, quae superius enumeravimus. Quibus ut obvietur, ponitur modus, qui servandus sit in natione vestra circa Praelatorum electiones, beneficiorum collationes, causarum auditiones, indulgentiarum concessiones, decimarum exactiones, et caetera istiusmodi. In secunda ponuntur appellations, ad quas recurrendum sit, si forte Pragmaticae sanctioni Summus Pontifex obviam ierit. Inseritur et poena, qua plectendi sint Germani non obedientes, et foedus Principum pro custodia sanctionis. Fama quoque ad nos delatum est, inter Pragmaticos sermonem habitum esse de mittendis huc oratoribus, qui ex Romano Pontifice sanctionis suae confirmationem expetant, quasi primam sedem eo modo honoraturi, quod, si optatum responsum habuerint, gratias agant, si minus, nihilominus natio Pragmaticae subjiciatur. Scimus nihil horum placere divo Imperatori, majorique parti Principum,—sed agimus, ut dictum est, cum seditionis quibusdam et perditis hominibus, etc. Cap. 80: De Pragmatica igitur imprimis dicamus.—Summam vim ejus respicimus, quae hoc tendit, ne Germanica natio jussionibus Apostolicae sedis obediens cogatur, ne quid pecuniarum ad Romanam curiam deferatur. Nam hoc est, quod omnes sibi querelae volunt, hoc quaeritur, dum causae in partibus retinenda dicuntur, dum Praelatorum electiones ad Metropolitas referuntur, dum beneficiorum collationes Ordinariis reservantur, dum annatarum exactiones prohibentur. Aeneas conceives of the dignity and power of the Papal See quite in an ultramontane sense, but he defends them upon a political and strikingly material platform. Cap. 87: Ecclesiarum ceterarum dignitates et cathedras, ut inquit same time these works expressed so undisguisedly the principles of the most decisive Papal system, that it was already evident from them what was to be expected from this former adherent of the Council of Basle, when, under the name of Pius II., he mounted the Papal throne (1458).²⁰ Pius II. thought, by imita-

Nicolaus, Papa Romanus instituit: Ecclesiam vero illam solus ipse Deus fundavit, et super petram fidei mox nascentis erexit. Qui b. Petro aeternae vitae clavigero terreni simul et caelestis Imperii jura commisit. Cap. 94: An pauperem tu Pontificem maximum esse volueris?—At nos Pontificem maximum, quamvis optimum, non putamus officio suo satisfacere posse, nisi facultatibus praeditus sit.—Convenit Romanum Pontificem, magnum sacerdotem, curare, ut evangelium Christi—omnibus sincere praedicetur, ut omnes errores, omnis blasphemia—eradicetur, ut pellantur a finibus Christianis impugnatores nostrae religionis, ut schismata removeantur, ut bella sopiantur, ut furta, rapinae—de medio tollantur.—Postremo debet Romana sedes, veluti patrocinium orbis terrae, tutusque portus afflorum,—omnibus ad se currentibus non solum benignas aures adhibere, sed opem ultro afferre.—Et quis est, qui haec agere posse pauperem et inopem Papam affirmet?—Quomodo restituentur Episcopi exules, aut haeretici, vel schismatici corridentur?—Implorandum est brachium saeculare, clamabis. At nos ex te quaerimus, an melius per se Romanus Praesul haec agat viribus suis fretus, an per alium?—Quid vero, si Principes ipsi aberrent, et, ut saepe vidimus, haereticis succumbant erroribus, quid ageamus? Quid si Rex coercendus, si arguendus Imperator? Numquid et Regem Franciae inutilem depositum a Romano Praesule legimus? Numquid Henrici Fridericique Caesares contra Ecclesiam debacchati sunt, et digni anathemate putati? Quod ergo an brachium contra se Imperator praebebit, aut pauper eum corripiet Romanus Praesul?—Nos tenemus, potentiam, opes, viresque multo melius in Apostolica sede quam in alio quovis saeculari throno existere. Nam sedes haec tutrix fidei est, quae nunquam erravit, aut erratura est, quia rogavit Dominus, ut non deficiat fides Petri. Imperatores vero, et Reges, et alios Episcopos saepe in haeresim lapsos fuisse legimus. Cap. 101: Caeterum neque illud, quod sequitur de appellationibus, piae aures ferre possunt. Nam si Princeps est Romanus Praesul, si Dominus, si Magister, quo pacto ab eo appellatur?—Nam si leges civiles neque a Senatu, neque a Principe saeculari appellationem admittunt, quanto minus ab ecclesiastico Principe erit? Nam si Papa simul et Imperator conferantur, quantum inter solem et lunam interest, tantum eos differre dicemus, et Papam soli, Imperatorem lunae assimulabimus. Praeterea cum appellatio ab inferiori ad superiorem deferatur, Papa vero prior sit et major omnibus, liquet ab eo non esse provocandum. Sed audio, quod tecum loqui potes: non quispiam singularis homo appellabitur, sed Concilium, quod majus est et potentius Romano Praesule. Nolumus hanc modo quaestionem ingredi, quae longiorem tractatum requirit, et aliud ingenium quam nostrum est. At idem Gelasius sacros canones ait sanxisse, ne unquam ab ea sede appellaretur, neque Concilium exceptit, et amplius de Romana sede, quod illa etiam quos Synodus inique damnaverat absolvit. Quo dicto declarat a Synodo ad Papam appellatum fuisse, eoque modo majorem Synodo Papam extitisse.—Quocirca si quid est quod gravius ille agat, non est recalcitrandum, sed ferendum. Ridiculum profecto, nemo est tam parvae urbis dominus, qui a se appellari ferat, et nos Papam appellationi subjectum dicemus?—At si me ais, Pontifex indigne permitt, quid agam? Redi ad eum supplex, ora onus levet. At si rogatus, interpellatus nolit subvenire misero, quid agam? Quid ages, ubi tuus te Princeps saecularis urget?—Feram, dices, nam aliud nullum est remedium. Et hic ergo feras.—Cap. 102: Et maiores igitur nostri, quamvis Romanum Pontificem aliquando posse injurium esse non dubitarent, non tamen appellandum ab eo sanxerunt. Nam injuriam ab illa sede rarissime venturam arbitrati sunt; privatos vero homines, si provocare possent, non dubitaverunt toties appellaturos, quotiens in eos sententia promulgaretur: quoniam sicut litigare homines injuste audent, ita et provocare audebunt, ac per eum modum nullus erit unquam finis litium.

He founded new ecclesiastical orders of knighthood, but they soon came to an end.²² He summoned a general assemblage of Christian nobles at Mantua,²³ but he could only bring it to an imperfect issue by dint of great labor.²⁴ At this council the nations were to have been united in one crusade; but here, on the contrary, nothing else was brought fully to light but the universal lukewarmness, and the impossibility of any common enterprise by reason of the manifold quarrels of the princes among themselves.²⁵ Pius II.

²¹ Pius II. invested Ferdinand with Naples (Raynald. 1458, no. 20 ss.); but the house of Anjou, supported by France, made unceasing claims for this kingdom, and occasioned wars in Italy.—The Emperor Frederick III. was at issue with the King Matthias about Hungary, but he gave in as early as 1459. On the other side, within Germany itself, there were two hostile parties, the Imperial and the Palatino-Bavarian, opposed to each other.

²³ Gobellinus, lib. ii. p. 34. The writ of summons is in Raynald. 1458, no. 16 ss.

stipulatione per Principes ac Legatos promissa sunt. Veneti quamquam publice nihil promiserint, cum tamen expeditionem paratam viderint, haudquaquam deerunt, neque patientur, ut suis majoribus deteriores videri possint. Idem de Francis, de Castellanis, de Portugallensibus dicimus. Anglia civilibus agitata motibus spem nullam pollicetur, neque Scotia in intimo abscondita Oceano. Dacia quoque, Suecia ac Norvegia remotiores provinciae sunt, quam milites possint mittere, nec solis contentae piscibus pecuniam ministrare possunt. Poloni Turcis per Muldaviam contermini suam causam deserer non audebunt. Bohemos mercede licebit conducere, suo aere extra regnum non militabunt. Sic res Christianae se habent. Classem pecunia Italica parabit, si non Venetiis, ac saltim Genuae, aut in Aragonia: nec minor erit, quam res ipsa depositat. Hungari viginti millia equitum armabunt, peditum haud minorem numerum, qui Germanis juncti ac Burgundis duodenonaginta millia militum in castris habebunt. Et quis non his copiis superatum iri Turcas arbitretur? Hic accedet Georgius Scanderbechius, et Albanorum fortissima manus; et multi per Graeciam ab hoste deficient; et in Asia Charamannus et Armenorum populi Turcas a tergo ferient: non est cur desperemus, tantum Deus ipse coepita secundet!

²⁶ The bull of 23d January, 1460, in Gobellinus, iii. p. 91 (according to Raynald. 1460, no. 10, the date is X. Kal. Febr.): Execrabilis et pristinis temporibus inauditus tempestate nostra inolevit abusus, ut a Romano Pontifice—nonnulli spiritu rebellionis imbuti, non sanioris cupiditate judicii, commissi evasione peccati ad futurum Concilium provocare praesumant: quod quantum sacris canonibus adversetur, quantumque reipublicae Christianae noxiun sit, quisquis non ignarus jurium intelligere potest. Namque, ut alia praetereamus, quae huic corruptelae manifestissime refragantur, quis non illud ridiculum judicaverit, quod ad id appellatur, quod nusquam est, neque scitur quod futurum sit? Pauperes a potentioribus multipliciter opprimuntur, remanent impunita scelera, nutritur adversus primam sedem rebellio, libertas delinquendi conceditur, et omnis ecclesiastica disciplina, et hierarchicus ordo confunditur. Volentes igitur hoc pestiferum virus a Christi Ecclesia procul pellere—hujusmodi provocationis introduciones damnamus, et tanquam erroneas ac detestabiles reprobamus, cassantes, et penitus annullantes, si quae hactenus taliter interpositae reperiantur;—praeincipentes deinceps, ut nemo audeat—ab ordinationibus, sententiis sive mandatis quibuscumque nostris ac successorum nostrorum talem appellationem interponere, aut interpositae per alium adhaerere, seu eis quomodolibet uti. Si quis autem contrafecerit a die publicationis praesentium in Cancellaria Apostolica post duos menses, cujuscunque status, gradus, ordinis vel conditionis fuerit, etiamsi imperiali, regali, vel pontificali praefulgeat dignitate; ipso facto sententiam execrationis incurrat, a qua nisi per Romanum Pontificem et in mortis articulo absolvi non possit. Universitas vero, sive collegium ecclesiastico subjaceat interdicto; et nihilominus tam collegia et universitates, quam praedictae—personae eas poenas ac censuras incurvant, quas rei majestatis, et haereticac pravitatis fautores incurvare dignoscuntur. Tabelliones insuper ac testes, qui hujusmodi actibus interfuerint, et generaliter qui scienter consilium, auxilium dederint vel favorem talibus appellantibus, pari poena plectantur.

able investigations by Gregory of Heimburg, the Archduke's counsellor.⁹² In August, 1461, Pius II. deposed Diether, archbishop ²⁹ Compare Gerardi de Roo (about 1519) Annales Austriaci, lib. vii. p. 222, 261. Jo. Jac. Fugger's (about 1555) Spiegel der Ehren des Erzhauses Oestereich, s. 663, ff. 739. The bishop having been appointed by the Pope against Sigismund's will was always at variance with him, and was thrown into prison by him for laying claim to certain packs of wool, tolls, and saltworks. For this the Pope declared, dd. 1st June, 1460 (Raynald. 1460, no. 33), that the Archduke should be—sicut reus criminis laesae majestatis perpetuo infamis, diffidatus, bannitus, intestabilis, omnique privilegio, honore, et dignitate exutus, privatus, ac etiam majoris excommunicationis sententia innodatus; he warned the Swiss, ne ad observandum pacis et concordiae foedera se adstrictos arbitrentur, and commissioned certain prelates—ut Helvetios ad foedus armorum pro coercendo Sigismundo concident. On the other hand, Sigismund appealed through Gregory of Heimburg to a general council, dd. 13th August, 1460 (the deed is in Goldasti Monarchia, t. ii. p. 1576, and in Brown, Appendix ad Fascicul. Rerum Expetendarum et Fugiendarum, p. 114), et appellationes multarum civitatum Italiae et Alamaniae Ecclesiarum valvis—afungi fecit (Raynald. 1460, no. 35). Now the Pope's bann fell upon Gregory also (Raynald. I. c.), who had been his fellow-embassador at Rome in 1446 (see § 132, note 50). Pius II. wrote to the magistrate of Nuremberg, dd. 18th October, 1460 (in Brown, p. 125): Quidam ex patre Diabolo mendaciorum artifice natus, Gregorius de Heymburg nomine, —a nostra solemni declaratoria sententia, qua —impium Sigismundum —juris scripti poenas declaravimus incurrisse, a nobis ad futurum Concilium improbam, nefariam, temerariam, seditionem denique appellationem dictavit. Et illius interpositionis per dictum Sigismundum factae ipse dictator in originali instrumento Florentiae ad valvas Ecclesiae affixo testis inscribitur. Quod quia loquax ille, praesumptuosus et praeceps, mendax atque turbulentus, temerarius ob istud facinus excommunicatus existit, criminque et poenas incidunt laesae majestatis atque haeresis, adeo ut ultra execrationem honore omni et bonis jure sit privatus; Devotiones vestras in Domino requirentes admoneamus, hujusmodi pestiferum hominem pro tali excommunicato habeatis;—ipsumque non solum vitetis, sed procul ejiciatis ad oppido et dominio vestro; et bona quaecunque habet apud vos, tam mobilia quam immobilia, fisco vestro applicetis; et alia omnia faciat, quae contra haereticos de jure canonico fieri mandantur. Gregory answered this bull by an Appellatio ad Concilium futurum (in Goldast. p. 1592; Brown, p. 126), in which he speaks very contemptuously of the Pope: E. g. voluit Papa iste abuti potestate sua,—et sub velamento militaris expeditionis in Turcam instaurandae facultates Germaniae—medullitus exhaustire. —Ipse aliquando audiet, quid gesserit, qualem vitam egerit, et quid apud Comas: sed reproto me, etc.—Mihi satis est didicisse civiles sentencias, etc.—ipse in numero sit illorum, qui putant haec omnia vi et artificio rhetorum contineri. Ergo si Papa ob id facinus me excommunicatum dicit, quis erit ejector ipso, qui praeter verbositatem nihil habet in se virtutis? He refutes especially here the Pope's assertion, Concilium supra Papam non esse, and defends appeals to general councils. Theodorus Laelius, Episc. Feltensis, Referendarius Apostolicus, answered this appeal with a Confutatio (in Goldast. p. 1595); which, however, Gregory refuted by an Apologia contra detractiones et blasphemias Theod. Laelii (in Goldast. p. 1604). Then Pius II. summoned the Archduke before his judgment-seat, dd. 22d January, 1462 (Raynald. 1461, no. 11), as—de damnatissima haeresi, quae est omnium haeresum haeresis, non solum suspectum notorie, sed sensibiliter maculatum, tanquam sacrae fidei non recipientem articulum:—Credo in unam Sanctam et Apostolicam Ecclesiam. Nam cum ipsius Ecclesiae Romanus Pontifex caput sit, canonesque et censurae sic sint Ecclesiae, quod quisque in Ecclesia positus et credens capiti, canonibus et ejus censuris teneatur obediens; dictus quidem Sigismundus non solum illis non obedit, sed praedicat insuper, quod minime obediens teneatur. When Sigismund did not appear, excommunication was once more pronounced against him and Gregory, die coenae Domini (Gobell. lib. viii. p. 203). In 1464 Sigismund received the Pope's absolution; compare Jacobi Picolominei Card.

of Mayence, in an arbitrary manner;³⁰ but the Pope's word of Papiensis Epist. 282 (at the end of Gobellinus, p. 668): Sigismundus—divino tandem est humiliatus miraculo, atque eo quidem usque humiliatus, ut Romanorum Imperator,—consanguinitate illum attingens, cum summa Sedis gloria ante genua Legati apostolici procidens non ante surgendum putaverit,—quam poenitenti et satis pro injuriis facienti poenarum abolitionem, restitutionemque est consecutus. On the other hand, Gregory of Heimburg remained firm, he struggled long against the popes, first on the side of Diether, archbishop of Mayence, afterward on the side of George Podiebrad, king of Bohemia, until he at length, shortly before his death at Dresden in 1472, sought and obtained absolution. There is a documentary narrative of these last events by J. G. Horn in the Nüztl. Sammlungen zu einer histor. Handbibliothek von Sachsen, Th. 4. (Leipzig, 1728, 4) s. 382 ff.

³⁰ Diether was elected in June, 1459, and, after much negotiation, confirmed by Pius II. in Mantua, 1460. The bull of deposition, dated 21st August, 1461 (in Raynald, 1461, no. 21, more fully in Müller's Reichstagstheatrum, Th. 2, s. 31), gives first as the reason for the sentence, that Diether had obtained the majority in the election by bribery. The Pope, who was not aware of this fact, when his confirmation was applied for, considering, quam conventui Mantuanensi—sua praesentia admodum utilis esset, required that Diether, sicut jura volunt, pro confirmatione—should appear in person: he, however, modo corporis infirmitatem, modo pauperiem praetendens, had evaded this, and so the Pope at last had granted confirmation to his proctors: procuratores Dietheri ejus nomine et in animam ejus ea nobis juraverunt, quae caeteri Episcopi Romanis Pontificibus jurare consueverant et ultra hoc venturum ipsum personaliter infra annum ad praesentiam nostram. However, he had disappointed all the hopes entertained of him: cum—expectaremus, hunc hominem—ea curare, quae pro tutela Christianae religionis in Mantuensi conventu concluseramus, invitare homines suae nationis ad expeditionem contra Turcos obeundam, ad obediendum in ea re carissimo filio nostro, Friderico Romanorum Imperatori Augusto, ad quem idcirco legatum de latere miseramus ad parandos exercitus, ad solvendas decimas, ac vigesimas et trigesimas contribuendas, et alia praesidia praestanda; homo in reprobum sensum datus—mox cornua erexit in Apostolicam sedem,—Legatum nostrum calumniatus est, qui decimas conaretur exigere, quibus copiae contra Turcos armari possent, palamque dicere non est veritus, nos argentum nationis, non fidei defensionem quaerere (this refers to the transactions at Vienna, and the appeal of the electors, note 28).—Inter haec accidit, ut ad instantiam mercatorum, qui pecunias Apostolicae sedi debitas sibi mutuo concesserunt, cum jam satisfactionis tempus præteriisset, Dietherus ipse excommunicaretur absque nostra conscientia: nam id per judices inferiores in forma Camerae fieri solet. Quod ubi ad ejus notitiam pervenit,—non recurrerit ad nos,—sed—Apostolicam sedem blasphemans conficto quodam infamatorio libello ad futurum Concilium contra Mantuanam bullam appellavit, excommunicationem ipso facto, a qua nisi a nobis absolvvi non potest, et alias poenas contra reos majestatis et haereticæ pravitatis fautores a jure fulminatas incurrens. Nec animo irreverenti et infrunito satis fuit, primam sedem his modis contempsisse, nisi et divina quoque contemneret, illis se publice immiscens palam et notorie excommunicatus, et in irregularitatem incidens. Then he is charged with not having appeared before the Pope within a year according to his oath, and with having summoned a meeting of the nobles at Frankfort, against the Emperor's will. The Pope had then sent ambassadors to him, qui male vadentem retraherent et in viam reducerent: they had arrived during the meeting of the nobles which Diether had removed to Mayence; here he had admitted also the excommunicated Gregory of Heimburg as Sigismund's ambassador in spite of their warnings. As his designs against the Pope met with no success, he had secretly disavowed the appeal before the legates, but had returned immediately afterward to his former courses. Accordingly, sentence of deposition was pronounced against him. Another bull of the same day (in Müller, s. 35) appoints Adolphus, count of Nassau, to be Archbishop of Mayence. The true state of the case appears even from the Pope's bull of deposition; but still plainer from Diether's own defense, viz. from the appellatio mentioned command, though supported by the Emperor, produced no decided effect: it roused a contest, and the issue of the struggle was not the complete overthrow of Diether, but a partial compromise (Oct.

in that bull (in Senckenberg, Selecta Juris et Hist. t. iv. p. 393), from the Defense written in answer to that bull on the Thursday after Michaelmas, 1461 (in Müller, s. 38), and from a second work, printed by the first printer at Mayence, dated the Tuesday after the Sunday Laetare, 1462 (in Lehmann's Speyerscher Chronik, Buch vii. cap. 105, s. 859). The first charge of simony he refutes in his Defense (Müller, s. 39), by the account of the proceedings at the election, according to which he was unanimously appointed. At Mantua the Pope required from the electoral ambassadors (see Appellatio in Senckenberg, iv. p. 393), quatenus se nomine nostro obligarent, ne futuro Concilio daremus operam, neve Principes Germanicae nationis convocaremus. (Schrift in Lehmann: Dann wolten wir—in die Uffsatzung und Schatzung des zehenden, zwantigsten und dreyssigsten Pfennings, von seiner Heiligkeit uff Teutschland geschlagen, verwilligt und uns verbunden haben, unser Mit-Churfürsten bey Zeit unsers Lebens ohne S. Heiligm. Wissen und Gefallen nit zu versamlen, unser Bischoff und Suffraganien und Pfaffheit unter uns seyn, nicht zu beruffen, und kein gemein Concilium fürzunehmen gestatten als dz an unser Bottschaft, wir zu S. Heiligm. gesandt hatten, zu mehrmalen gesonnen ist, zweiffelt uns nicht, wir waren solcher Beschwerung vertragen). As the ambassadors would not consent to this, they were dismissed without effecting the object of their mission. Some months after a second embassy was sent to the Pope, to obtain confirmation without those conditions; Cum autem Oratores nostri, antequam ad Cameram Apostolicam pervenissent, litteras nostras atque efficacem obligationem facere cogebantur pro Annata ipsi Camerae persolvenda, qua praestita et recepta illico eis nuncupata est quaedam pecuniarum summa gravissima, scilicet XXM. VC. et I. floren. Rhenen-sium:—obstupuerunt Oratores nostri, nec tamen aliter literas extrahere potuerunt, nisi in illa obligatione persistenter. Cumque de gravi taxa conquererentur, nihil aliud supererat, quam Camerae ipsi Apostolicae de taxa expressata [satisfacere], subordinatis etiam numulariis, campsoribus vel mercatoribus appellatis, qui obligationem respectu Camerae Apostolicae in se receperunt, et a nostris Oratoribus, nedum nostro verum etiam ipsorum propriis nominibus, obligationem seu cautionem acceperunt. Et ita Oratores nostri una cum litteris confirmationis et caeteris, quae ad consecrationem obtinendam requiruntur, a Romana Curia dimissi sunt. Nos vero admirati, cur tanta summa a nobis exigeretur, cum tamen a praedecessoribus nostris longe minor fuerit persoluta, sciscitati sumus, quena vera taxa esset ab Ecclesia Magunt. Camerae Apostolicae debita. Cum vero in hujusmodi investigatione fluctuaremus ambigue nonnihil, certe summam pecuniarum persolvimus, ut jam putaremus illi summae satis appropinquasse, quae a praedecessore nostro tempore suae confirmationis fuit persoluta. Obtulimus ergo et nunc offerimus talem summam, qualem praedecessor noster exposuit, seu quae de jure vel antiqua consuetudine ipsi Camerae Apostolicae ab Ecclesia nostra debita esset. Papa vero, his non contentus, processus poenales contra nos et Oratores nostros supradictos dicitur instituisse, aut comminatur instituere velle. Nobis vero allegantibus, quod ad solutionem promissio a nobis et a nostris extorta est, et error factus, qui nos merito excusat:—responsum est nobis, jam non agere contra nos Romanum Pont. et Collegium Cardinalium, sed mercatores illos, qui se debitores pro nobis constituerunt, quibus et nos de sua cavimus indemnitate; ideo, si Camera nos gravasset, nihilominus mercatoribus illis indemnitatem promissam exequi teneamur. Quod et nos profecto justum censeremus, nisi collusio expressa sufficienter mercatoribus ipsis obstarret, qui agentibus Camerae subordinati et submissi machinationis hujusmodi non erant inscii. Quod etiam ex hoc fonte clarius deprehenditur, quod, cum mercatores ipsi pecuniam constitutam Dominis Cardinalibus exsolverunt, ipsi sibi caverunt, quod si pecunia illa ipsis mercatoribus per nos soluta non fuerit, mercatoribus ipsis a Dominis Cardinalibus persolveretur, prout ipsorum Card. litteris ad nos missis clare edocti sumus. Rudolf, dean of the cathedral of Worms, Papal legate at the diet of Mayence, contradicted that statement with regard tober, 1463).³¹ In Germany, where the liberal-minded Aeneas Sylvius was not yet forgotten, the opposite policy of Pius II. could not fail to awaken a mingled feeling of doubt and discontent. Thus the Pope was induced to issue a bulla retractationum addressed to the University of Cologne (26th April, 1463); but in this his inconsistency was rather brought to light than justified.³² Pius II. met with but little better success in France than to the Annates (in Gobellinus, lib. vi. p. 144): mentiti omnes sunt, qui vel nummum unum abs te flagitatum asserunt ultra summam in Camera praetaxatam: decem millia auri nummum principalis taxatio requirit, minutaque quae vocant servitia et litterarum expeditio, et oratorum sumptus circiter quatuor millia depositum. —Ecclesia Treverensis, quae multo minor est, sub Calisto tertio triginta millia dedit. From this, however, it would only follow that the money-lender in league with the Curia claimed usury to the amount of 6000 florius. According to the Aschaffenburg concordat, which in this point agrees entirely with that of Constance (§ 131, note 19), one half of the annates was to be paid in the first, the other half in the second year.

dulgentia reputetur, et quod sanabile vulnus est, fiat mortale, et nos a consortio vestro oporteat abstinere: quoniam sicut in veteri lege (Lev. xxi. 11), sancitum est, super omnem animam, quae mortua est, non ingreditur Pontifex: quod teste Hieronymo perinde accipiendum est ac si dicat, ubicumque peccatum est et in peccato mors, illuc Pontifex non accedat. Cupimus sanctam esse Francorum gentem, et omni carere macula:—at hoc fieri non potest, nisi haec Sanctionis macula seu ruga deponatur, quae quomodo introducta sit ipsi nostis. Certe non auctoritate generalis Synodi, nec Romanorum decreto Pontificum recepta est, quamvis de causis ecclesiasticis tractatus absque placito Romanae sedis stare non possit. Ferunt aliqui idcirco initium ei datum, quia nimis onerarent Romani Pontifices Regnum Franciae, nimiasque pecunias inde corraderent. Mirum si haec ratio Carolum movit, quem praedecessoris sui magni Caroli decebat imitatorem esse, cuius haec verba leguntur: In memoriam b. Petri Apostoli honoremus s. Romanam Ecclesiam:—et licet vix ferendum ab illa s. Sede imponatur jugum, tamen feramus, et pia devotione toleremus (rather Conc. Tribur. ann. 895, c. 30; see vol. ii. § 25, note 4). Non est credibile Carolum, qui modo regnat, suo sensu hanc Pragmaticam introduxisse. Deceptum putamus, et piae menti suggesta fuisse non vera. Nam quo pacto religiosus Princeps ea servari jussisset, quorum praetextbox summa sedis Apostolicae auctoritas laeditur, religionis nostrae vires enervantur, unitasque Ecclesiae et libertas perimitur?—Non ponderamus causarum auditionem, non beneficiorum collationem, non alia multa, quae curare putamur. Illud nos angit, quod animarum perditionem ruinamque cernimus, et nobilissimi Regis gloriam labefactari. Nam quo pacto tolerandum est Clericorum judices laicos esse factos? Pastorum causas oves cognoscere? Siccine regale genus et sacerdotale sumus? Non explicabimus honoris causa, quantum diminuta est in Gallia sacerdotalis auctoritas. Episcopi norunt, qui pro nutu saecularis potestatis spiritualem gladium nunc exercent, nunc recludunt. Praesul vero Romanus, cuius parochia orbis est, cuius provincia nec oceano clauditur, in regno Franciae tantum jurisdictionis habet, quantum placet Parlamento. Non sacrilegum, non parricidam, non haereticum punire permittitur, quamvis Ecclesiasticum, nisi Parlamenti consensus adsit: cuius tantam esse auctoritatem nonnulli existimant, ut censuris etiam nostris paecludere aditum possit. Sic iudex judicium Romanus Pontifex judicio Parlamenti subjectus est. Si hoc admittimus, monstruosam Ecclesiam facimus, et hydram multorum capitum introducimus, et unitatem prorsus extinguiimus. Periculosa haec res esset, venerabiles fratres, quae hierarchiam omnem confunderet. Nam cur Regibus, cur aliis Praesulibus sui subditi parerent, cum ipsi superiori suo non pareant. Quam quisque legem in alium statuit, eam sibi servandam putet. Verendum est, ne prope adsit quod ad Thessalonicenses (2 Thess. ii. 3), significare videtur Apostolus, quia post discessionem revelabitur homo peccati. Adventum quippe Antichristi sollicitant, qui discessionem a Romana Ecclesia quaerunt, qualem prae se ferre videntur, quae sub obtentu Pragmaticae Sanctionis fieri dicuntur. Sed credimus haec, ut ante diximus, Regi vestro incognita esse, cuius natura benigna est, et inimica mali. Docendus est et instruendus, ne pestem hanc in suo regno debacchari amplius et animas interficere sinat. Vos Episcopi lucernae estis ardentis coram eo, et candelabra lucentia in domo Domini: sic lucete, ut lux vestra tenebras omnes ac caligines Pragmaticae Sanctionis ex nobili et Christianissima Francorum gente depellat; solumque lumen solis, id est veritatis splendor et veritas eluceat. Quod si Rex vester opera vestra fecerit, et vos mercedem Prophetae recipietis a Domino, et ipse, par suis progenitoribus majorque, per omnes orbis Ecclesias, et in Romana potissimum, jure merito et erit et vocabitur Christianissimus.

Pont. habitam in Conventu Mantuano, comminationes ejusdem et censuras publicatas in Carolum VII. Regem Francorum, dd. 10. Febr., 1460 (viz. more Gallicano, and so 1461), in the Preuves des libertes de l'église Gallicane, chap. xiii. no. 10, and in Richerii Hist. Concill. Generall., lib. iv. P. i. c. 1. 1461, in the hope that the Pope might thus be gained over to support the claims of the house of Anjou to the throne of Naples.³⁵ But as this was not the case, he did not trouble himself to compel his reluctant Parliament to adopt the repeal; and there sprung up in the constitution of the French Church only a wavering state.³⁶ All these political combinations hindered the lum plenarium orbis congregare in loco tuto ac libero.—Quod etiam hic maxime necessarium esse videtur pro succurrere fidei orthodoxae: nam licet plura hinc inde invocentur auxilia, et diversae pecuniarum summae variis modis hujus rei praetextu hactenus petitiae et collectae sint, parvum tamen aut nullum efficax adversus invasores christianae religionis—praestatur, dum differtur nimium plenarii Concilii provisio.—Et jam tempus decem annorum effluxum dudum est, in quo secundum instituta magnae Synodi Constantiensis ipsum Concilium debebat celebrari. Illis vero, quae in praefato Concilio determinabuntur, Rex devoto et benigno animo acquiescere paratus erit.—Si sanctissimus Dominus noster celebrationem plenarii Concilii in loco libero—facere recusaverit, aut nimium distulerit; volens ipse Dominus noster Rex, quantum in eo erit, necessitatibus fidei orthodoxae et universae Ecclesiae succurrere, intendit alios Principes Christianos exhortari, ut omnes unanimiter universalem Ecclesiam in plenario Concilio congregari laborent.

efforts of Pius II. against the Turks. His more peculiar attempt, et decrevit. As oppression, impoverishment, and scandal could not fail to be thus occasioned, and the rights of the crown were assailed, the King now decrees, ut subsidia et onera praemissa, ac alia similia, quae Collectores, Subcollectores, atque alii Officarii seu Commissarii Romanorum Pontificum—levare et exigere mitterentur, minime levabuntur, colligentur, aut exigentur. All officials were to be on their guard against them, the disobedient were to be punished. Dd. 13th August, 1464, l. c. no. 22: As this decree was not every where obeyed, many of the clergy paid these taxes, for—plusieurs s'efforcent par bulles et commissions Apostoliques, proceder par excommunicemens, fulminations, et censures ecclesiastiques, et privation de benefices contre les gens d'Eglise de nostre dit Royaume, qui refusent, ou different de payer les despouilles des trespassez, et la moyté des benefices incompatibles, et des commandes; so the King gave orders, que ausdits Commissaires ou Executeurs ne soit obey: mais leur soit prohibé et defendu de faire lesdites exactions, sur peine de confiscation de corps et de biens, et de banissement de nostre Royaume. He likewise forbade his own subjects to pay, under pain of banishment and confiscation of property, Dd. 10th September, 1464, l. c. no. 23: Although, according to the laws of the French Church, no graces expectatives could be granted, still, depuis l'obeyssance par nous faite à feu nostre sainte Pere le Pape puis derniere-ment et n'agueres trespassé, such grants had been made, en si grand et excessif nombre, et multitude et à toutes manieres de gens, tant estrangers et non lettrez, qu'autres personnes quelsconques, que la chose est venue à telle confusion, qu'à peine y avoit homme d'Eglise en nosdits Royaume et Dauphiné, qui à cause d'icelles graces se peust dire seur en l'asssecuation d'aucun benefice, à l'occasion des Anteferris, et autres clauses et prerogatiues, qui ont esté mises en icelles graces expectatives, diversitez de regles de Chancellerie Apostolique derogatoires à droit commun, et autrement. Thereby much money had passed out of the country; the competitors were reduced to poverty with their relations: these gratiae expectativae were made the occasion of attempting the lives of incumbents of benefices: unknown strangers had thrust themselves into benefices in this manner. The King accordingly forbade his subjects—que d'oresenavant ils n'aillett, n'envoyent, soit par bulles (par billets), lettres de change n'autres moyens quelsconques, querir, pourchasser, ne obtenir en Cour de Rome graces expectatives; further, qu'aucun d'eux voysent, ou envoyent en ladite Cour de Rome pour avoir, n'obtenir quelques Eueschez,—ou autres benefices electifs, sans premierement avoir nos vouloir et consentement de ce faire, le tout sur peine d'encourir nostre indignation, de perdre les deniers, dont leurs procureurs—seroyent trouvez saisis par bulles, lettres de change, ou autres pour porter et envoyer en ladite Cour de Rome à la cause dessusdite, et d'amende arbitraire envers nous. With regard to those who had already obtained such gratiae expectativae the officers were charged, qu'ils les contraignent à eux en desister et departir; et à revoquer, faire casser et annuler à leurs despens tout ce qu'ils auroyent fait au contraire. Nevertheless, that even after this edict much money went to Rome is plain from the representation of the Parliament to the King, A.D. 1465, not 1461 (see § 17, laquelle loy—the Pragmatic Sanction—a esté gardée jusques puis quatre ans, et par le tems de vingt-deux et vingt-trois ans a duré), which is contributed in a Latin translation by Franc. Duarenus De sacris Ministeriis et Beneficiis. Paris, 1551, p. 332 ss., and from him by Flacius in the Catal. Test. Verit. no. 179, but in the original French by Jean du Tillet in the Mémoire sur les libertez de l'Eglise Gallicane in his Recueil des Roys de France, à Paris, 1607, 4. P. iii. p. 339: The mention in the introduction of the cassation, que l'on dit avoir esté des decrets, constitutions et ordonnances appellées la Pragmatique Sanction, is a proof that it could not have been recognized by Parliament. Still it runs, § 72: Et par experiance, quae est rerum magistra, soit avisé et consideré à l'evacuation, qui a esté si excessive depuis la cassation de ladite Pragmatique, quae par experiance l'on cognosse et appare, comment ce Royaume est presque tary (exhausted), d'or principalement:—tellement qu'il n'est demouré que monnoye. In the succeeding §§ follows a calculation of the immense sums which had found their way to Rome since the repeal of the Pragmatic Sanction—tempore Pii et de present, for Annates, gratiae expectativae though in this also he acted in imitation of the ancient pontiffs, to convert the Sultan Mohammed to Christianity by a long letter (1461),³⁷ remained naturally enough without success. At last he resolved to go forth in person at the head of a crusade; but even this announcement (1463),³⁸ which in earlier times would have inflamed all princes and nations, now drew together only a worthless rabble.³⁹ Pius II. intended at any rate to accompany the tivae, and the like, and how by this means, and the frequency of grants in commendam the Church was going to ruin.

³⁹ Vita Pii II. per Joh. Anton. Campanum Episc. Aprutinum (in Muratori Scriptt. Rer. Ital. III. ii. p. 990), relates how Pius traveled sick from Rome to Ancona: Supra Oriculum maxime consternatus est obvia Crucesignatorum multitudine, quos morae impatientes retinere Carvajalius (the cardinal sent for the purpose) minime poterat, et agmine quum reverterentur, nec rapinis abstinebant: quo circa Medici aversari eo spectaculo illius oculos, obduci lectiae velum perpetuo itinere, causati ventos, jussérunt. Jacob. Card. Papiensis Comment. lib. i. (at the end of Gobell. Comm.) p. 357: Confluxerat eo loci turba multa ex variis gentibus: non satis considerate domo egressa. Etenim cum eos solos evocasset Pius peccatorum proposita venia, qui vel annum, vel anni dimidium suo stipendio in exercitu militarent:—illi tamen nescio quo inconsulto zelo com-

Venetian fleet, but he died at Ancona (15th August, 1464), before he could embark. Paul II.⁴⁰ at once distinguished the first days of his rule by the violent repudiation of the conditions of the election which had just before been agreed upon.⁴¹ As much pulsi veniendum statuerant, credentes stipendum ac victum ministrante Pontifice non defuturum. Cum autem non invenirent, quae sibi animis fixerant,—venditis armis regrediebantur in patriam. Quorum nihilominus misertus ille, ne omnino frustra venisse se angerentur, decreti sui eos participes fecit (i. e. according to Platina, p. 750: absolutos peccatis in patriam remisit). Erant vero inter hos, qui consideratus venientes tolerare ad diem praefinitam militiam possent. Horum ergo traducendorum causa naves Venetorum duas dies jam multos in horas singulas expectabat: sic enim illi facturos se ante receperant; sed cum eae diutius tardarent quam oportaret, qui superfuerant crucesignati morae impatientes catervatim abibant, ita ut non multo post appulsis jam navibus miles non superesset, qui illis posset imponi. Ea res causae quoque plurimum accelerandae mortis Pio dedit, dolente eo ac supra modum tristante, quod retineri in eam horam non potuissent.

⁴¹ To those conditions of election, which Eugene IV. had already been obliged to swear to (see § 132, note 3), several others had been gradually added; compare the Capitulation of Pius II. in Raynald. 1458, no. 5. Those which had been sworn to by the cardinals before the election of Paul II. may be seen in Jacobi Card. Papiensis Comm., libb. ii. p. 371: *Jurabat vovebatque Deo sanctisque Apostolis Petro et Paulo, quisquis Patrum ad Pontificatum esset assumptus, inchoatam expeditionem in Turcos, quantum Romanae Ecclesiae paterentur opes, continuare, proventumque aluminis ad eam rem integrum adhibere; lapsos etiam curialium nostrorum mores ad Patrum disciplinam restringere; Curiam porro ipsam de provincia in provinciam sine plurimum ex Patribus—assensu—non transferre; Concilium generale Christianorum intra triennium cogere, in quo et Principes saeculi ad tuendam religionis causam accenderentur, aegraeque partes Ecclesiae communi medicamento sanitatem reciperent; Cardinales non ante creare, quam ii qui creati jam haberentur, intra viginti quatuor essent reducti, majoremque hoc numero non pati in Ecclesia esse; neminem quoque assumere, qui non trigesimum annum excederet, quique non professus esset vel pontificium jus, vel civile, vel literas sacras; nec nisi unum eumque hujus generis hominem de cognatione sua eligere; in omnibus autem eligendis sententias Patrum non tacitas in aurem, ut ante, sed ex subselliis ad declinandos errores palam accipere; de majoribus insuper committendis sacerdotiis non nisi in Consistorio sententiis auditis decernere; jus ad ea nominandorum nulli omnino permettere; diplomata etiam non dare, quibus ad alienum arbitrium eadem se collaturum promitteret; si qua essent antea data, uno edicto adimere; non destituere sede sua Episcopum quemquam Abbatem postulatione ulla principum, nisi et talionem ex juris forma in se ante reciperent, auditique rei solemni judicio essent; non Cardinalem, remve suam approchendere, nisi ex Patrum sententiis; non damnare etiam, nisi ex synodali constitutione, cuius est initium Praesul; nil porro ex omni Ecclesiae patrimonio, quod paulo insignius esset, in quemquam distrahere, aut ejus censem minuere, nisi et assenserint Patres, et concessioni subscripserint: iisdem quoque non consulentibus nulli non subditto bellum inferre, aut ad infrendum foedus quodquam inire; testamenta defunctorum Curialium libera sinere; portoria nova nulla inducere, nec vetera augere; Principi Potentatui tributum de Clericis sine ratione nullum concedere; arcum custodes jurejando, vadimoniiisque adigere de iis vacante Sede Collegio reposcenti tradendis; eas, quae essent momenti majoris, solis Clericis, qui tamen sua cognitionis non essent, com-* money as possible continued to be collected for the Turkish war, but no expedition was undertaken. Germany was crippled not only by the indolence of the Emperor and the tediousness of the imperial diets, but also by the Pope's instigations against George Podiebrad, the heretical King of the Bohemians.⁴² The adventurous pilgrimage of the Emperor to Rome (1468) only increased the number of fruitless negotiations.⁴³ In Italy, Paul was in an incessant controversy with Ferdinand, king of Naples, who desired a release from his feudal tribute; in 1469 this broke out into open war.⁴⁴ In France his labors to obtain a formal repeal of the Pragmatic Sanction were thwarted by the steadfastness of the Parliament (1467).⁴⁵ mittere; eundem vero et arcis custodem et praesidem civitatis non facere; Praesidibus provincia decendentibus administratorum omnium judices dare; ducem ecclesiastici exercitus ex suo genere non constituere; nil in diplomatis factum dicere ex fratrum consilio, quod ad verum consulentibus eis decretum non esset; demum primo quoque mensium omnium Consistorio imperare has leges ad innovandam memoriam ex scripto praesenti se recitari. Additum et his est, ut bis quotannis per Calendas Decembres Majasque Patres seorsum a Pontifice convenientes cognoscerent inter se, an servatae illae judicarentur; id si minus factum intelligerent, charitate, quae filii in parentes est debita usque ad tertia rememorationis officia, transgressionis et perjurii illum monerent, ad servandumque precarentur. The Pope's flatterers represented it to him as—indignum, vicariam Christi potestatem humanis conditionibus subdi; ipsumque non tam sui arbitrii, quam alienae moderationis ministrum videri; quaerendam libertatem esse, idque agendum, ut auctoritatem Ecclesiae apud se, non Cardinales esse omnes agnoscerent. By their advice the Pope took the following course: novae quaedam leges quasi ex persona Patrum scribuntur, quarum erat obtentus, quod priores illae cognoscebantur inutiles, induxisse eos has novas, quibus tantum obnoxium esse Pontificem vellent. The cardinals were partly persuaded, partly compelled to subscribe this: one alone, Carvalhal, was firm in his refusal.

and bad success ; but his chief motive was the small ambition to raise his family from their low estate to the highest rank ; and so he allowed his nephew, Jerome Riario,² to beguile him into steps which increased still more the embarrassments of Italy, sullied his reputation, and hindered every enterprise against the Turks. First, he favored the conspiracy of the Pazzi against the Medici in Florence, 1478:³ when this miscarried, and vengeance was taken even upon the clergy, by capital punishment, he made war upon Florence with spiritual weapons, and, in alliance with Naples, with secular arms also.⁴ The universal indignation roused by

² According to Nicol. Macchiavelli Hist. Florent., lib. vii., both brothers Jerome Riario, count of Imola, and Peter Riario, cardinal, were sons of the Pope : on both, see Raph. Volaterranus, Anthrop. l. xxii., below.

⁴ The Pope's bull of excommunication, dd. 1st June, 1478 (in Raynald. ad h. a. no. 5 ss.), first alleges charges of many kinds against Lorenzo de' Medici, chiefly because of the murder of the clergy, and then declares, quamvis—a praedecessoribus nostris in magnos Principes ob minora facinora acriter saevitum esse conspiciamus,—iniquitatis filios Laurentium, Priores, Vexilliferum, octo de Balia antedictos, and pronounces all those who had given their assistance against the murdered clergy as criminis laesae majestatis reos, sacrilegos, excommunicatos, anathematizatos, infames, diffidatos, intestabilis. It was further decreed, eorundem aedificia in ruinam dari debere,—nullum eis debita reddere, nullumve in judicio respondere teneri, nulli quoque filiorum aut nepotum praedictorum—alicujus aperiri debere januam dignitatis aut honoris ecclesiastici vel mundani.—Quidquid in bonis tunc inveniebatur eorundem, fisci et Republicae domino applicatum fore. The city and domain of Florence were placed under interdict. On the other hand, the Florentines asked for the opinions of the most renowned canon-lawyers who advised an appeal to a general council (see Fabronius, 1, p. 81. The opinion of Franc. Accoltus Aretinus may be seen in his Consilia s. Responsa. Venet. 1573, p. 174). Accordingly, a synod of all the clergy of the Florentine dominions was summoned, which appealed from the Pope to a general council (Macchiavelli Istoria Florent., lib. 8), and in a declaration composed by Gentilis, bishop of Arezzo, on 23d July, 1478, proved the Pope's participation in the crime by means of an accurate account of the transaction, and the confession of John Baptist Montesecchio, which was quoted word for word, and also declared his ban and interdict invalid, with the severest reproaches against him. This declaration was printed at the time; see Storia della Toscana di Lorenzo Pignotti, t. iv. (Livorno, 1820, 12) p. 122: It was published again, but erroneously, under the title, Synodus Florentina contra Sextum IV. 1770, 8 (without stating the place where it was printed, but still in Italy), and may be found, increased with new errors of the press, in K. Walchner's polit. Gesch. der im Jahre 1478 zu Florenz gehaltenen grossen Kirchensynode u. des Zwistes dieser Republik mit d. röm. Papste Sixt. IV. Rotweil, 1825, 8. s. 132 ff. Fabronius in Laurentii Medicis Vita, vol. ii. p. 136, has published it from the autograph. Here we find, p. 139: Causam tam insolentis odii, et inexaspectatae retributionis in familiam de Medicis, quae semper ei et sedi Apostolicae servierat, nullam invenimus, nisi quandam perditam carnis et sanguinis revelationem, qua ob comitem illum suum Hieronymum, in cuius manibus nunc Ecclesia Dei est, delirat, furiit, et insanit. Habet hic suus Imolam, s. Romanae Ecclesiae urbem, quam ejecto Thaddeo Manfredo se tenere post mortem sui Pontificis posse diffidebat, nisi vicinum dominium Florentinum aliquo foedere amicitiae obligaret. Major autem obligatio inveniri posse non videbatur, quam si suo beneficio praeessent, qui in ea Republica primates essent: fieri autem id sine status mutatione non poterat, mutari autem status sine morte Laurentii, et Juliani de Medicis impossibile videbatur.—Hac igitur impellente rabiie Comes oblitus omnis humani divinique juris, oblitus beneficiorum, oblitus conditionis suae, qui cerdo fuerat, stirpem Cosmanam delere aggreditur, etc. P. 144: Sic se res habuit, Christiani lectores, hac de causa, hoc ordine, his mediis tentata eversio Florentina est. Per haec vestigia eum, qui venit, ut vitam habeant et abundantius habeant, Sextus secutus est. Sanguis optime de Christiana religione meritus per Principem religionis fusus, violata per Pontificem Ecclesia, polluta per summum sacerdotem sacra sunt. Et haec ne quis ignoret aut excusare possit, confirmat aperto bello, et promulgatis censuris coeptam conjurationem sequitur. Eam mulierculam imitatur, quae vento detectum calvitium ut posteriori veste retegeret, nates detexit. In cubiculo suo, ut vidistis, tractata res est, suus Comes Pactios ad necem armavit, suus Cardinalis familiam caedi, praesentiam sceleri praestitit, suus exercitus fideles fines nostros pro Turcis ingressus est. Quis jam non videat, delirum senem his suis promulgatis censuris voluisse notam macula, lutum stercore lavare?—Sed ad repellendam sententiam ejus—veniamus, etc.—At last, with regard to the murder of the Archbishop, p. 156: *Suspensus leno, suspensus parricula, suspensus lusor, suspensus proditor, et id in ipsa enormitate criminis, dum fureret populus in proditores patriae, quorum hic erat caput, dum cives primarii de salute patriae trepidabant. Archiepiscopus non erat, quem popularis ille furor, dum palatium suum defendit, suspendit: Archiepiscopi enim talia non faciunt. Armatus scuto et ense captus est, invasor curiae retentus: equis hunc pro Archiepiscopo cognovisset, aut cognitum sacerdotaliter tractasset? Noluissemus ipsum Sextum sic inventum fuisse a Savonensis suis. Quod si injiciens manum quocumque modo in Clericum excommunicandus sit, cur non hi, qui manus injecerunt, excommunicantur? Quid miser Laurentius vulneratus et confectus dolore interempti fratris,—de sua vita, de suo statu, de salute patriae anxius impetravit? Quid additur afflito afflictio, et pro medela illati vulneris vulnus adjungitur? Estne haec illa manifesta et rationabilis causa, pro qua tantam ferri censuram sacri Canones statuerunt? Est hic gladius ille bis acutus ex ore sedentis in throno procedens, ut laudetur peccator in desideriis animae suae, et inquis benedicatur? Maledicitur innocens, qui pene occisus est: occisor, et proditor patriae bonae memoriae filius appellatur! Haecce memoria, Sixte Pontifex, tuae bonitatis et justitiae? Parricidarumne patrem te Cardinales isti creaverunt?—Perfidia fidem, nocentia innocentiam, scelus bonitatem perdidit, et vis ad noinen censurarum benedictum maledictum existimemus?—Caeterum libenter hic intelligeremus ab eo, qui tot tam constanter proponit, unde nunc maledicat, quod modo benedixit. Nonne illa sua vox fuit, cum audivit suspensem fuisse ob proditionem Archiepiscopum et stipatores: benedicti vos a Domino, qui hominem suspenditis: nunquam voluissemus praefecisse eum illi Ecclesiae! Nonne etiam mentionem habuit de mittendo Florentiam Legato, qui afflictos consolaretur? Et unde post tam repens exorta in contrarium sententia, tam subito mutata in crudelitatem commiseratio? Nondum erat forsan captus Joannes Baptista (Montesecco), qui sua confessione Sixti occultam voluntatem in apertam necessitatem converteret: vel pendet ab alio, et est Vicarius alicujus hostis nobis ignoti, et hominis, utinam boni, non ejus, qui Ecclesiam suam super firmam petram fundavit.—P. 162: Restat ut sententia nulla sit, quae nullam habuit judicandi causam, falsum sit iudicium, quod mendacio nititur, excommunicatus sit, qui alias excommunicare vult violenter et injuste. Accepit Spiritum Sanctum, non simoniace sit creatus, qui vocem suam veri pastoris, non haeretici hominis vult haberit.—P. 164: *Ad alterum igitur lumen, ipsum scilicet Caesarem semper Augustum configinus, id enim Dominus, ut huic

nocti praeesset, creavit: Christianissimum Regem Francorum, in cuius tutela Christi Ecclesia est,—invocabimus: omnes Principes et populos Christianos implorabimus, ut, quamdo jam vident, simoniace creatum Pontificem tempa, Cardinales, Missas ad homicidia fidelium exercere, Concilium, ad quod appellavimus, amplius non dfferant, sponsam illius, in cuius sanguine baptizati sunt, a tanta turpitudine liberent.—Abeat itaque leno, casta erit mater, angularem lapidem non premat petra scandali, etc. The seignory of Florence, on 21st July, 1478, issued a letter to the Pope (first published by Francis Henry Egerton: Lettre inédite de la Seigneurie de Florence au Pape Sixte IV. Paris, Mars, 1814, 4; reprinted in Millin, Magasin Encyclopédique, Avril, 1814; in Pignotti, t. iv. p. 117; Walchner, s. 159), in which it refutes the charges against Lorenzo de Medici. E. g. Ejicere vis nos e civitate Laurentium de Medicis: hujus autem voluntatis Tuae duas in literis Tuis potissimum causas colligimus, et quod tyrannus noster sit, et quod publico religionis christianaee bono aduersetur. Quo ergo pacto, ut primam causam primum diluamus, nos liberi erimus Laurentio ejecto, si tuo jussu erit ejectus? Contraria tuae literae loquuntur, quae, dum libertatem pollicentur, imperando auferunt: et, ut isto te labore liberemus, ejicere nos malos cives Tyrannosque didicimus, et administrare rem nostram publicam sine monitoribus. Redi paulum ad te, beatissime pater, oramus: da locum affectibus, qui sacrosanctam istam sedem, istam gravitatem et sanctitatem pontificalem adeo decorant. Laurentium de Medicis tyrannum clamitas: at nos populusque noster defensorem nostrae libertatis cum caeteris, quos tu arguis, civibus experimur, et una omnium voce appellamus; parati, in quemcunque rerum eventum omnia ponere pro Laurentii de Medicis salute, et civium reliquorum, in qua quidem publicam salutem et libertatem contineri nemo nostrum dubitat. Quod involvuntur in Laurentium illae literae liberius, nihil est quod contradicamus in praesentia: veritas ipsa satis contradicit et tua conscientia: hoc tamen fatebimur, beatissime pater, movent risum omnibus nobis, tam inaniter, ne dicamus maligne, conficta auditentibus.—Movet te fortasse, et de ea re Laurentium succenses, quod e furentibus populi armis Raphaelem Cardinalem, tuum nepotcm, eripi curaverit, et salvum reddiderit! Movet, quod trucidato Julianu fratre sauciis ipse divina potius quam humana aliqua ope sceleratos gladios sacrilegosque parricidarum et mortem evitaverit! Si caedi se passus sit ab missis a vobis efferatissimis satellitibus, si arcem libertatis nostrae, publicum Palatium, captum dolis a proditoribus vestris, non recuperassemus, si trucidandos nosmet, ac magistratus nostros, et cives tradidissemus vobis; nihil modo tecum contentionis haberemus.

⁵ See the credentials of the King's ambassadors to the Pope, on 20th November, 1478, in the Preuves des Libertez de l'église Gall. chap. xiii. no. 12. The King complains in them that, during the threatened danger from the Turks, the Pope and the King of Naples had stirred up dissensiones et guerras in Italy. On this account he had gathered together the ecclesiastical and temporal nobles of his kingdom at Orleans, and there it was determined, necessarium esse Concilium generale convocari, et sanctissimo Patri nostro Summo Pontifici fore supplicandum, ut—Concilium generale convocari et teueri faceret,—quodque ipse Summus Pontifex exemplo Christi vellet pacem praedicare, et cum dicta illustrissima Liga (Florence and her allies) pacis unionem inire. Accordingly the King sent this embassy, which was empowered at the same time, casu quo ipse summus Pontifex praemissa facere denegaverit, seu plus debito distulerit, vel aliqua in contrarium praemissorum, aut aliquid contra nos, regnum et regnicolas nostros fecerit, seu in futurum attentare praeumpsuerit, ad intimandum et appellationem ab ipso interjectam in congregatione predicta Aurelianis, et de novo si opus fuerit appellandum ab ipso summo Pontifice male consulto ad eundem summum Pontificem bene consultum, seu praefatum proximum futurum Concilium universalis Ecclesiae. The embassy was received in January, 1479, in full consistory; see Jacobi Volaterrani (a contemporary Secretarius Apostolicus) Diarium Romanum in Muratorii Scriptt. Rer. Ital. xxiii. p. 97 s., and here threatened more definitely, that if the Pope refused to yield, nullae vacationes, nullae pecuniae sinerentur ad Apostolicam sedem ex regno illo venire, or, according to their written declaration in Raynald. 1478, no. 19: quod si non fecerit (Papa), eo ipso petit (Rex) con-

which Ferdinand of Naples concluded with Florence in 1480,⁶ and the conquest of Otranto by the Turks (11th August, 1480), forced him to yield.⁷ Next the Pope's nephew hankered after the dominions of the house of Este, which ruled in Ferrara: forthwith Sixtus allied himself with Venice against this family; war broke out in May, 1482, and Ferrara, though supported by Naples, seemed upon the point of being forced to submission.⁸ Then the nephew allowed himself to be won over by Naples;⁹ Sixtus suddenly went over to the other side (December, 1482), and excommunicated Venice.¹⁰ However, this Republic remained so suc-

gregari generale Concilium in aliqua civitate regni sui, et illico Pragmaticam indicit Sanctionem, quam servari jubet in regno suo integerrime. Postremo Praelatos, et quasvis ecclesiasticas personas in Romana curia degentes, et in regno suo habentes beneficia ad ipsa beneficia revocat, et per subtractionem fructuum redire compellit. The Pope decidedly refused all these proposals (l. c. no. 20, ss.): however, the Emperor and Matthias, king of Hungary, were also urgent for peace: the Venetians purchased peace from the Turks, that they might be able to support the Florentines (l. c. no. 30).

⁷ The capture of Otranto alarmed the Pope so much, that at first he thought of taking flight to Avignon; but afterward he began most earnestly to invite all Christian powers to concord, especially to persuade the Italian states to an armistice, and to render their assistance; see Raynald. 1480, no. 17 ss. On the reconciliation of the Florentines with the Pope, see Raph. Volaterranus, l. c.: *Quamobrem oratores xii. ad eum missi, qui veniam praeteritorum peterent ac populum Florentinum communi causa expiarent. —Praesul caput legationis orationem in senatu habuit, veniamque petit praeceptorum. Die deinde dominico primo Adventus (the third of December), anno 1480, omnes mane in porticum basilicae Petri convenient, Pontificem atque Patres praestellantes. Ibi Pontifex pro foribus templi procumbentes ad genua viritim de more virga converberatos terga expiavit. Ingressi deinde basilicam sacrificio interfuerent, quo peracto domum reduciti sunt omnium Patrum familiis comitantibus. Nam prius urbem nemine de more obviam procedente ingressi fuerant. However, the interdict could not be carried out in Venice; the Franciscans, who attempted it, were exiled; see Marinus Sanutus († about 1535), in his Lives of the Doges, in Muratori, Script. Rer. Ital. xxii. p. 1228. The Venetians proceeded still further; see Sixti bulla, dd. 15. ¹¹ The conditions of peace may be found in Sabellicus, l. c. p. 863 ss. How great an impression they made on the sick Pope, may be seen in Jacobi Volaterrani Diarium Rom. in Muratori, xxiii. p. 198 s. Stephani Infessurae Diarium urbis Romae in Eccardi Corpus Histor. Medii Aevi, ii. p. 1938: Deinde undecima die (Augusti) accesserunt ad eum Ambasciatores Potentiarum, putantes forte afferre ei aliquod gaudium, et exposuerunt ei, qualiter conclusa esset pax per totam Italianam.—De quo ipse multum obstupuit, et miratus est, quare pax esset conclusa sine eo, attento, ut ipse dicebat, ipsum debuisse principaliter intervenire. Et cum hoc saepius interrogasset ab eis, et audivisset, quod dicta pax esset conclusa adeo, ut non posset amplius retractari, doluit valde. Et causa doloris communis omnium existimatione haec fuit, quia semper in omnibus operibus suis animum ostendit suum in hunc finem et propositum, ut aliquem statum, potentiam sive dominium acquireret Comiti Hieronymo.—Putabat modo in hac pacis conclusione, se posse aliquid dicto Comiti acquirere. Et ista de causa intravit in talem confoederationem, et pecuniam Ecclesiae expendit. Sed postquam vidi, se esse illusum, et cecidisse ab hac spe;—doluit valde, ita ut tam ex primo dolore quam ex novissimo infirmatus sit febre,—et—XII. d. Aug.—mortuus sit Sixtus IV. In quo felicissimo die Deus ipse omnipotens ostendit potentiam suam super terram, liberavitque populum suum Christianum de manu talis impiissimi et iniquissimi regis, cui nullus Dei timor, nullus regendi populi Christiani amor, nulla caritatis et dilectionis affectio; sed solum voluptas inhonesta, avaritia, pompa, seu vana gloria semper et continue praecipue viguit, et in consideratione fuit. Hic, ut fertur vulgo, et experientia demonstravit, puerorum amator et Sodomita fuit. Nam quid fecerit pro pueris, qui serviebant ei in cubiculo, experientia docet, quibus non solum multorum millium ducatorum donavit redditus, verum Cardinatum, et magnos Episcopatus largiri ausus est. Nam et non propter aliud, ut dicunt quidam, dilexit Comitem Hieronymum, et fratrem Petrum, ejus germanum, ac post Cardinalem s. Sixti, nisi propter Sodomiam.—Hic avarissimus: namque ut notum est

ed to his place; who, in defiance of the conditions of his election,¹² sought with a still more profligate vileness to exalt and encompass, nullum unquam contulit beneficium cuiuscunq[ue] generis; nisi soluta pecunia.—Interdum etiam subhastabatur, ut nulla habita ratione peccati, bonus an malus, dignus vel indignus, literatus an illiteratus esset, qui plus offerret, beneficium consequeretur. Cardinalatus quoque et Episcopatus vendidit infinitissimos, de quibus hic narrare non expedit. Hic pecuniarum quaerendarum causa, quas in bellis et pompis consumebat, multa et inexcoigitata in Curia Romana officia adinvenit, et vendidit his, qui Seytharum vocabulo denominabantur Stradioti, Jannizari, et Mamaluchi. Hi officiales habebant varia exercitia in Curia, et ex his lucrabantur, et sine dubio ut ex illis pecunias, quas pro consequendis exposuerant, rehabere possent, citra modum lucrum extorquebant. Hic officia multa in urbe, non citra avaritiae causam, perpetua et venalia fecit.—Hic gabellam novam imposuit, ut fornarii sive pistores pro quolibet sacco grani, quod macinandum (to be ground) mittebant, ultra consuetam solutionem unum grossum papale solverent. Hic Datium (dážio, impost) sub nomine decimae immoderatum tam a Clericis, quam ab Officialibus exigebat, et quidem sine aliqua misericordia. Figebat enim praecemptum in ostio Ecclesiae, ut intra certum brevissimum spatium sub excommunicationis et privationis poena et ultra illam, alias centum, et alias quinquaginta Ducati solverentur: quod si ita, ut ponebatur, derepente non esset solutum, Ecclesia ipsa erat interdicta, et Canonici privabantur. Hic Romae dum vixit, panis penuriam semper induxit pecuniarum quaerendarum causa. Nam emebat granum de messibus per omnes ecclesiasticas regiones uno Ducato:—deinde penuria facta—quatuor vel quinque Ducatis revendebat. Aliquando ex regno Regis Ferdinandi granum foetidum et putridum parvo pretio comparabat, illudque in loco quodam, qui Abundantia vocabatur,—non minori quam tribus Ducatis pro rubio distrahebat. Et quia saepe contingebat, quod tanta grani multitudo ibi consumi non poterat, inter fornarios distribuebat, mandabatque illis, ut sub certa poena non possent aliud quam dictum suum granum consumere seu operari, pro pretio tamen XL. Carlinorum pro quolibet rubio, quod nisi solverent, statim carcerabantur. Panis vero, qui ex dicto frumento siebat, erat ater, foetidus et abominabilis, et ex necessitate comedebatur, ex quo saepenumero in civitate morbus viguit. Hic poenas omnes cuiuscunq[ue] generis ad pecuniam reduxit, ita ut, si ignem quis meritus fuisset, soluta aliqua pecunia liberaretur.—Et tandem tantum vigebat in eo avaritiae vitium, ut non puderet, nec erubesceret, si aliquando Camera esset debitrix alicujus, et ipse debitum promiserit, denegare, et in sua fide deficere, et aliquando, quod clarissimum erat, denegare.—Hic literatorum et bonos mores habentium inimicus, solum illi grati erant mali, etc. Raphael Volaterranus Comm. urban. Anthropologia, lib. xxii.: Suorum imprimis amantissimus ac indulgentissimus fuit, quorum causa pleaque praeter fas jusque et agebat et concedebat. Petrum ante omnes ejusdem Ordinis (Franciscani) ac patriae, quem a puero una cum Hieronymo fratre sibi educaverat, ad Cardinalatum usque provexit, virum aliquoquin natum perdunda pecuniae: nam biennio, quo tantum postea vixit, ducenta aureorum millia in luxu vicitando solum absumpsit, LX. millia aeris alieni, argenteorum item CCC. pondo dimisit. Decessit tabidus voluptate annorum XXVIII., opificibus maxime desideratus, quorum officinas novis semper lucris et opibus replebat. Hieronymus vero frater, Forolivii Forocorneliique princeps factus, post eum rem omnem Ecclesiae administravit, vir ingenio severiore ac voluppatibus praeter unicam venationem minimum deditus. Xistus itaque post hos fratrum sororumque filios extulit: neque enim alter propinquis foecundior fuit. Then follows an enumeration of these advancements, and of the wars which he carried on, ad arma conversus, quibus magis quam religioni natus fuerat. Quum igitur tot tumultibus absunta pecunia indigeret, nova Collegia primus excogitavit, quae liceretur. These are recounted. Verum haec seu necessitati, seu verius proximis ac ministris tribuenda, nam eo Pontificum nullus nec animo munificentior, nec in dando hilarior, nec in promovendis hominibus promptior repertus fuit. The manner in which he entertained foreign nobles, and beautified Rome with buildings, is then told.

¹² These may be seen in Raynald. 1484, no. 28 ss. The provisions directed against rich his seven illegitimate children.¹³ He carried on two wars with Ferdinand, king of Naples, until the year 1492, and brought forward Renatus, duke of Lorraine, as pretender to his crown.¹⁴ True, he proceeded, as his predecessor had done, to encourage princes and people to undertake expeditions against the Turks;¹⁵ but when Dschem (called Zizim or Zemes in the Western World), the brother and the rival of the Turkish Sultan Bajazet, was delivered over to him in 1489 by the knights of Rhodes, instead of sending him at the head of an army against the Turks, he chose rather to detain him in prison on consideration of an annual tribute from the Turkish Sultan.¹⁶ Alexander VI. likewise, the most nepotism are no. 30 : De parentela et consanguinitate sua non plures quam unum dumtaxat qualificatum (ad Cardinalatum) promovebit; and no. 38: quod arces S. Angeli, civitatis vetulac, Tiburis, Spoleti et Caesenae non concedet alicui de parentela sua, nec Praelato, nec saeculari; sed aliis Praelatis et ecclesiasticis personis; neque faciet eundem Castellanum et gubernatorem alicujus civitatis,—nec Capitaneatum generalem Ecclesiae nepoti, nec alicui consanguineo suo concedet.

¹³ Infessura (in Murat. III. ii. p. 1189; Eccard. ii. p. 1947) enumerates the grants, which, according to report, Innocent had promised, pro habendis vocibus; and then adds: Quare negari non potest, quin considerata qualitate et vita Viri, qui juvenis et Januensis est, et ex pluribus mulieribus septem filios inter mares et foeminas habet,—ac considerata qualitate electionis, quae multo deterior fuit electione Xisti, quomodo longe pejora et deteriora non sequantur? As early as the fourth day after the election, Cardinales animo insatiabili et quadam voracitate inter se omnia officia saecularia tam urbis quam extra urbem diviserrunt. The promise, omnia officia et beneficia Romana concedere Romanis, was not observed. Et sic in ejus principio sequitur vestigia Xisti, etsi grave est unicuique fidem fallere, sed magis Principi. Sed non est mirum, si populum Romanum decepit, quia Deum omnipotentem, cui in promotione castitatem vovit et promisit, et tamen post septem filios habuit, turpiter fecellit atque decepit. Raph. Volaterranus Comment. urban. Anthropologia, lib. xxii. : Xisti deinde secutus exemplum quaestus gratia Secretariorum collegium instituit pristinum numerum augendo; Pontificum etiam primus, qui novum et ipse exemplum introduceret palam liberos nothos jactandi, ac soluta omni antiqua disciplina divitiis eos omnibus cumulandi. The epigram of the day,

Octo Nocens puoros genuit totidemque puellas, Hunc merito poterit dicere Roma patrem, probably adopted the number 8, because Innocent was the eighth of this name.

against the Turks. Thus Innocent wrote to the Duke of Bourbon (Raynald. 1489, no. 12): Hortamur nobilitatem tuam, et quanto possumus studio per Redemptoris nostri sanctissimam passionem requirimus, ut pro religione animi tui, et pro communi omnium salute,—[nolueris] pati, ut idem Turci frater ad alias quam nostras manus deveniat: nam si in nostra fuerit potestate, modum et viam adinveniemus, quibus illo tamquam instrumento ad res magnas pro religione Christiana et Dei laude gerendas uti possimus. With regard to Dschem's entry into Rome, 13th March, 1489, and his appearance before the consistory, see Infessura in Murat. III. ii. p. 1224 s. Negotiations with the Sultan were immediately opened at Rome. The Papal legate, Angelus Pechinolius (see the report sent by him to the Pope in June, 1489, in Justus Fontaninus De Antiquitatibus Hortae Coloniae Etruscorum. Rom, 1723, 4, p. 488), had to hear from the King of Hungary: Orator Soldani, qui est Romae, supplicavit Domino sanctissimo pro parte istius Turci, quod sua Sanctitas sit contenta recipere a Soldano ducenta millia Ducatorum, et quod eum det ad manus Soldani, et sua Sanctitas fuit contenta. Sic misit unum hominem ad Rhodum sub praetextu, quod pro aliquibus fratribus religiosissimis Rhodiensium vadat ad Rhodum: sed inde mutatis vestibus ibit ad Soldanum pro compositione istius pecuniae et aliarum rerum.—Quantum autem deceat unum Papam ista facere, sua Sanctitas, quae prudentissima est, potest melius considerare, et quid sint dicturi alii Christiani Principes, quando ista audierint. The legate could only answer, that the Pope would never deliver up Dschem for 200,000 ducats, as the Sultan had already bidden 600,000 for him. However, the King stood to his point: Domine Legate, si non scit Paternitas vestra, scio ego: et forte, quod plus sunt: sed de ducentis millibus ego sum bene certus. The King himself had wished to get Dschem in his power for his war with the Turks: since it now seemed as if the Pope were going to commit him to a Venetian fleet, the King was on the point of entering into a treaty with the Sultan, for he thought (p. 484): Veneti non in bellum contra Turcum proficiscentur, sed privata aliqua commoda et privatas eorum passiones ulcisci intendunt, and declared forthwith to the legate (p. 482): sua Sanctitas vult decimas habere: vere non habebitis:—si portabitis illum Turcum per mare, ego portabo fratrem suum, Turcorum Imperatorem per terram in Italianam. Meanwhile the Sultan made an attempt to have Dschem and the Pope poisoned (Infessura, p. 1232); but afterward (Infess. p. 1234) an Ambassador magni Turci made his appearance, 30th November, 1490, with rich gifts for the Pope (the lance with which the side of Christ was pierced belonged to their number, and the Pope received it as genuine, regardless of the representations made to him that the lance was already shown in Nuremberg and Paris; see Burchard, in the Notices et extraits, t. i. p. 94), and offered to him, quod, si retineret dictum Turcam, pro censu se daturum quadraginta millia Ducatorum pro qualibet anno, quousque ipsum retinuerit. Item obtulit pacem et perpetuam securitatem inter Christianos et Turcas, et quod Christiani de caetero possent ire et redire in terras ejus libere et absque aliquo timore. However, an interview with Dschem must be granted him, for he declared, se nolle solvere tributum praedictum, nisi eum oculata fide videret. Et ita dixit se habuisse, in mandatis, no forte dicetur vivus, et mortuus esset. Compare, with reference to Dschem's history, the Abbot Ludovicus Tubero Comm. de Temporibus suis, from 1490-1522, lib. vi. § 6 and 7, in Schwandtner Scriptt. Rerum Hungaricarum, t. ii. p. 214 s. He first relates, § 7, how Matthias, king of Hungary, had toiled in vain with the King of France to get Dschem into his power, sperans, si Gemium in potestate haberet, non solum facile consecuturum, ut Bajazethes intra fines suos sese contineret, atque invalidior viribus fieret (certo enim sciebat, Gemium a popularibus studio, ut fit, novarum rerum valde desiderari); verum etiam se bonam Imperii partem eo facto Turcis admitturum: quippe arbitrabatur, Bajazethem fraterno metu nullam pacis conditionem ab se dictam recusaturum. Then he proceeds: Non ita multo post Innocentius VIII. Pontifex Romanus et sibi amplum fore putans, Regem Turcam tributarium habere, et tanto auro, cuiusquidem sacerdotes hac tempestate maxime avidi sunt, potiri cupiens, oblata Rhodiorum Principi dignitate, qua Cardinales sacerdotes Romanae Ecclesiae insigniti sunt, agit cum illo, ut Turcam sibi traderet. Rhodius, non parvum fortunae suaee additamentum existimans, in collegium Cardinalium cooptari, accepta conditione hominem suaee fidei commissum hujuscemodi depraved of all the Popes (from 11th August, 1492),¹⁷ recognized no loftier aim than to heap honors and possessions upon his five illegitimate children, and among them especially his favorite, Caesar Borgia.¹⁸ When Charles VIII., king of France, wished to assert the claims of the house of Anjou upon Naples, Alexander at first suffered himself to be won over, by large gifts bestowed upon his sons, to the side of Ferdinand, king of Naples, and after his death (25th January, 1494), to favor his son Alphonso II.,¹⁹ he threatened Charles with excommunication,²⁰ and sought aid from Turkey for himself.²¹ However, when Charles appeared in facile permutat magistratu. Itaque vidimus, si Deo placet, non pecunia modo, quod jam solemne est, sed etiam perfidia atque humano sanguine sacerdotia apud Christianos parari, si Christiani appellandi sunt, qui nihil praeter nomen habent Christianorum.

¹⁸ Thus, on 10th June, 1493, he married his daughter Lucretia to Alexander, lord of Pezaro, after separating her from her former husband, and satisfying him with money: he held a magnificent bridal feast in the Papal palace, the proceedings at which were by no means peculiarly decorous; see Infessura in Eccard. ii. p. 2011 sq. Infessura remarks on the occasion: Alexander consuetudinem jam coeptam per Innocentium de maritanda prole foeminina prosecutus est et ampliavit. Incumbit igitur Clerus omnis, et quidem cum diligentia circa sobolem procreandam. Itaque a majori usque ad minimum concubinas in figura matrimonii, et quidem publice attinent. Quod nisi a Deo provideatur, transibit haec corruptio usque ad Monachos et Religiosos, quamvis Monasteria urbis quasi omnia jam facta sint lapanaria, nemine contradicente. Raphael Volaterranus Comm. urb. Anthropologia, lib. xxii.: Alexander deinde nihil prius habuit quam Innocentii exemplo suos nothos honoribus, verum longe majoribus extollere, quando jam res haec honori et gloriae coepit esse. Itaque Lucretiam filiam prius Jo. Sfortiae Pisaurensi Principi locavit, deinde abdicatam (forsaken by her husband; see Machiavelli, Hist. Fragmenta, translated by Leo, s. 114) Aloisio Aragoni Alfonsi Regis filio notho, quo demum interfecto Alfonso Estensi Ferrariae Duci, cum quo adhuc perseverat. Ex filiis vero alterum minorem natu in regno Siciliae Principem fecit (see note 19), alium Caesarum Cardinalem (1493). Ludov. Tubero, lib. viii. § 15: vix puberem Cardinalem designavit, ementitus, non ex se genitum esse, sed ex viro, cuius uxorem, quod satis constat, ipse adulteraverat), majorem quoque in Hispania ducem (John Borgia of Aragon, duke of Gandia, whom in 1497 he invested with the dukedom of Benevento also; see Burchardus in Eccard. ii. p. 2081).

For instance, Giuffredi Borgia received a natural daughter of King Alphonso for his wife, and with her the dukedom of Squillace by way of dowry.

²¹ In July, 1494, the Pope held a conference with Alphonso, king of Naples, at Vico-

Rome (31st December, 1494), the Pope went over to his side immediately, and delivered up to him Prince Dschem; but he took care to have him poisoned immediately, that he might not lose the varium, in consequence of which both sent ambassadors to the Turkish Sultan (Burchardi Diarium in Eccard, ii. p. 2047, and Raynald, 1494, no. 21). The Papal envoy was arrested, and the instructions given him by the Pope found upon him. These instructions, and five letters from the Sultan to the Pope, may be seen in Burchardi Diarium in Eccard, ii. p. 2053 ss., and in the Mémoires de Phil. de Comines, nouvelle édition par Messieurs Godefroy, augmentée par M. l'Abbé Lenglet du Fresnoy, t. iv. P. ii. (Londres et Paris, 1747, 4), p. 47 ss. The Sultan's five letters are also given in the Fundgruben des Orients, Bd. 5 (Wien, 1816, fol.), s. 183 (all three editions are from different MSS.): The Papal instructions of June, 1494, charge the nuncio George Bocciardo to set plainly before the Magnus Turca, Sultan Bajazet, qualiter Rex Franciae properat cum maxima potentia terrestri et maritima—huc Romam veniens eripere e manibus nostris Gem Sultan, fratrem Celsitudinis suae, et acquirere Regnum Neapolitanum,—sed etiam in Graeciam transfretare, et patrias Celsitudinis suae debellare.—Et cum nobis opus sit resistere,—cogimur ad subsidium praefati Sultan Bajazet recurrere, sperantes in amicitia bona, quam ad invicem habemus, quod in tali necessitate juvabit nos: quem rogabis, et nomine nostro exhortaberis, ac ex te persuadebis cum omni instantia, ut placeat sibi quam citius mittere nobis Ducatos quadraginta millia in auro Venetos pro annata anni praesentis, quae finiet ultimo die Novembris venturi (the annual payment for Dschem's detention). As much advantage might be gained by the support of the Venetians, persuadebis et exhortaberis Majestatem suam, quam tenemur certiores reddere ob veram et bonam amicitiam, quam habemus ad invicem, ne patiatur aliquod interesse, ut statim mittat unum Oratorem ad Dominium Venetorum:—quos exhortetur et adstringat, quod pro quanto cari pendant amicitiam suam, debeant esse adjumento et defensioni nostrae et Regis Alfonsi terra marique.—Denotabis pariter magno Turco adventum Oratoris magni Soldani (Sultan of Egypt) ad nos cum litteris et muneribus, quae transmisit nobis,—et promissiones, quas nobis fecit de magno thesauro, ac de multis aliis rebus (that is, if Dschem were delivered up to him); significabis Majestati suae intentionem nostram, in quantum sibi promisimus, firmiter tenebimus, et nunquam contraveniemus in aliqua re: imo nostrae intentionis est accrescere et meliorare nostram bonam amicitiam. Bene gratum nobis esset, et de hoc multum precamur et hortamur D. Serenissimum, quod pro aliquo tempore non impedit Hungarum, neque in aliqua parte Christianitatis, et maxime in Croatia et civitatibus Ragusiae et Leguiae: quod faciendo et observando nos faciemus, quod Hungarus non inferat ei aliquod damnum, et in hoc Majestas sua habebit compassionem complacendi nobis, attento maxime motu Francorum, et aliorum Principum. Quodsi in bellando perseveraret, habeat pro comperto sua Magnitudo quod in ejus auxilio essent quam plures Principes Christiani, et doleret Majestatem suam non fecisse secundum consilium nostrum, quod damus sibi primo ex officio, quando simus pater et dominus omnium Christianorum, postea desideramus quietem Majestatis suae ad bonam et mutuam amicitiam: quoniam si aliter Majestas sua statueret prosequi et molestare Christianos, cogeremur rebus consulere, cum aliter non possemus obviare maximis apparatibus, qui fiunt contra Majestatem suam. In the Sultan's answers, all of the 15th and 18th September, 1494, beside the concession of the Pope's requests, the following noticeable passages occur. In the fourth: notum sit Tuo supremo Pontificio, quemadmodum Rev. Dominus Nicolaus Cibo Archiepiscopus Arelatensis est dignus et fidelis homo.—Hujus igitur rei causa justum est a vobis decerni, majori in ordine ipsum esse debere: unde et rogavimus dictum supremum Pontificem (Innocentium VIII.), ut faceret illum Cardinalem, et assensus est nostrae petitioni.—Verum quia non erat tempus, id est Septembri mensis, non sedet in ordine suo.—Ea de causa scribimus et rogamus Tuam Magnitudinem,—ut adimpleat ipsi Tuum Pontificium, videlicet ut faceret ipsum perfectum Cardinalem. In the fifth: Inter alia mihi retulit (Georgius Bussardus), quomodo Rex Franciae animatus est habere Gem fratrem nostrum, qui est in manibus promised price set upon his head by the Sultan.²² In March, 1495, the Pope allied himself again with the Emperor and the King of Spain, in order to drive the French out of Italy.²³ But vestrae Potentiae : quod esset multum contra voluntatem nostram, et vestrae Magnitudini sequeretur maximum damnum, vosque et omnes Christiani paterentur detrimentum. Idcirco una cum praedicto Georgio cogitare coepimus : pro quiete, utilitate et honore vestrae Potentiae, et adhuc pro mea satisfactione bonum esset, quod dictum Gem meum fratrem, qui subjectus est morti et detinetur in manibus vestrae Magnitudinis, omnino mori faceretis, quod, si vita careret, esset et vestrae Potentiae utile, et quieti commodissimum, mihique gratissimum. Et si in hoc Magnitudo vestra contentabat complacere nobis, prout in sua prudentia confidimus facere velle, debet pro meliori Suae Potentiae, et pro majori nostra satisfactione, quanto citius poterit, illo meliori modo, quo placebit Vestrae Magnitudini, dictum Gem levare facere de angustiis istius mundi, et transferri ejus animam in alterum saeculum, ubi meliorem habebit quietem. Et si hoc adimplere faciet Vestra Potentia, et mandabit nobis corpus suum in qualicumque loco citra mare nostrum ; promittimus Nos Sultan Bajazet suprascriptus in quocumque loco placuerit Vestrae Magnitudini Ducatorum trecenta millia ad emenda filiis suis aliqua dominia, quae Ducatorum trecenta millia consignare faciemus illi cui ordinabit Vestra Magnitudo, antequam sit nobis dictum corpus datum, et per vestros meis consignatum. Adhuc promitto Vestrae Potentiae, quod vita mea comite et quamdiu vixerem, habebimus semper bonam et magnam amicitiam cum eadem Vestra Magnitudine sine aliqua deceptione, et eidem faciemus omnia beneplacita et gratias nobiles. The Sultan also agreed to disquiet the Christians no more, and at last he confirmed all these promises with a solemn oath.

Francorum Regis, tunc Neapolitanum regnum petentis, coactus—permisit potestatem, dato ei prius veneno haud quidem praesentaneo, sed quod ad occultandam facinoris invidiā aliquot diebus mortem protraheret. Ferunt autem, hunc Pontificem adeo deplo- rata vita, atque ad extremum perditum fuisse, ut omnia sacra pretio venderet. Quos- dam insuper Cardinales divitiis notos veneno sustulisse dicitur, quo eorum pecuniis liberorum suorum ex adulterio susceptorum fortunam augeret. Vendit Alexander claves, Altaria, Christum :
Emerat ista prius, vendere jure potest.

Unde omnibus persuasum est, ipsum Pontificem, qui verius Carnificis nomen obtinere debuit, Venetis quoque non solum consciis, sed etiam internuntiis, propter simultatem, quam cum Rege Carolo habebant, ingentis pecuniae pactione ad hoc scelus a Bajazeth esse inductum, qui quidem in securitatem suam—fratrem e medio tolli magnopere optabat. Atque in hunc maxime modum Christiani, Turcis praesertim finitimi, a quibus minime oportuit, pene proditi sunt. not long after he quarreled with Frederick, the new King of Naples, brother of Alphonso II., who refused to satisfy the extravagant demands of Caesar Borgia,²⁴ and once more made proposals to Lewis XII., king of France. Every thing was now possible in Rome: the Cardinal, Caesar Borgia, was released from his ecclesiastical profession,²⁵ Lewis XII. was divorced from his wife.²⁶ In acknowledgment of this, Lewis raised the former to the duke-

Et reverendissimos Domino Cardinales rogavit, quatenus hujusmodi dispensationi consentire vellent, et cum eo S. D. N. supplicare.—Cardinales omnes communiter concordi voto remiserunt dispensationem hujusmodi arbitrio et voluntati ejusdem S. D. N.—Lud. Tubero, lib. viii. § 15; in Schwandtner, ii. p. 282: Hoc paricidio (the murder of his brother, note 24) admissos Caesar Cardinalatum, quem a patre ultro oblatum non religionis studio, sed spe, ut plerique faciunt, opulentioris fortunae acceperat, sese sponte abdicavit, palam professus, se a Pontifice progenitum, et ob id tanto nequaquam idoneum sacerdotio: aequo ac majus flagitium esset, illegitime natum sumnum sacerdotium obtinere, quam sacris Deoque dicatis pecuniis, ac in hospitalitatem absumentis abuti, atque his ipsis regna, pulsis justis regibus, per nefas parare. Thereupon, in 1500, Caesar was raised by the Pope to be Capitaneus Generalis et Confalonierius S. Romanae Ecclesiae, Burchard, p. 2115.

²⁷ Raph. Volaterrani Comm. Urb. Anthropologia, lib. xxii.: Post ejus (the Duke John of Borgia) mortem Caesar Cardinalis spredo sacerdotio ejusque ordine, cupidus dominandi se ad Ludovicum Galliae Regem cum magna vi auri ac suppellestilis contulit, ejusque propinquam de Lebreto (Charlotte d'Albret, sister of the King of Navarre) in matrimonium una cum oppido Valentia accepit. Regis deinde auxilio perpetuoque foedere multum in Italia sibi ditionis paravit, Aemiliam imprimis omnem praeter Bononię ejectis partimque necatis antiquis familiarum possessoribus (out of which the Pope created the dukedom of Romagna for Caesar in 1501), in Etruria Populinum, in Piceno Camerinum, Senogalliam, Urbinum, quod ex omnibus per proditionem cepit. Nam cum ut hospes et amicus a Guidone Duce cum exercitu apud Callium exciperetur, extemplo dato signo urbem eam corripuit: inde propere Urbinum invadi mandat. Guido vero cum non satis virium improvisus ad resistendum haberet, ne in manus hostis perveniret, statim relictis omnibus nocte sequenti paucis comitibus ad sororium suum Mantuam auffigit. Pontifex interim Roma supplementa res agenti mittebat, una tamen cogitatione occupatus, quoniam modo eum maximum Principum constitueret: eapropter in animum induxit proceres urbi finitos alia atque alia de causa prorsus omnes extinguere: cepitque a Cajetanis, vetusta familia, qui nonnulla apud Volscos oppida possidebant, Jacobum Protonotarium ex ea gente Honorati filium carcere inclusum necavit, adolescentem unicum Colac filium familiae superstitem absentem trucidari jussit, Columensem deinde Gallorum auxilio expulsorum imperium omne invasit. Quod reliquum erat cum ad Ursinos anhelaret, nec satis causae haberet, occasionem est nactus, quam optanti hominum promittere nemo potuisse, ipsa dies jam obtulit ultro. Contigit nempe, ut ipsimet Ursini tantos Caesaris successus tantamque imperandi cupiditatem adspicientes sibi quamque amicis timerent, ne cunctis jam sublati ipsi quoque delerentur. Itaque cum his, qui pari formidine adficiebantur una conspirant. Erant autem hi Joannes Bentivolius, Joannes Paulus Balio Perusinus, Vitellocius Tifernas, Liberocetus Firmanus, Pandulfus Petruscius Senensis, Baptista Cardinalis et Paulus Ursini. Qui omnes prope Perusiam concilio facto contra Caesarem conjurant, e vestigioque irruptione facta Urbinum recipiunt et Camerinum, cohortesque Caesarianas quae ad succurrendum mittebantur in itinere adorti adfigunt, aliaque Aemilie oppida tentare continuo festinant. Pontifex hoc accepto nuntio magnopere commotus omni studio placare sibi Ursinos imprimis conabatur, quod facile cunctos ipsorum sperabat auctoritatem secururos. Itaque omni pollicitatione, humanitate, conditioneque definitos in suam sententiam adduxit. Illi conciliati jam capta restituent, de novoque Senogalliam Caesari acquirunt, ubi Paulus et Gravinae dux Ursini, Vitellocius et Liberocetus una convenerant. Caesar igitur, qui Forocornelii se continebat, opportunum tempus se vindicandi ratus, eo cum exercitu Vasconum de improviso proficiscitur; illi obviam inermes procedentes veniam petunt praeteritorum; humaniter excepti sunt, custodiaeque interim clam adhibitae, ne fugere possent. Itaque jam deducendi officio functi cum discedere vellent, simulatione simul colloquendi restare jussi sunt. Cum in conclave venissent, extemplo clausa janua, et a militibus ad hoc ordinatis capti Vitellocius et Liberocetus eodem die strangulati, paucis post diebus reliqui (December, 1502, January, 1503). Nec mora, Perusia Tifernumque ejectis Vitelliis ac Balionibus Pontifici sese dediderunt. Pontifex interea Romae ubi per nuntium celerem noctu captos hos esse accepit, Cardinalem Ursinum, quem multa prius blanditia speque securum reddiderat, mane hortatur ad Palatium venire, fingitque Columnenses prope urbem adesse, pontesque cepisse. Ille credulus ubi obtemperavit, capitur et in molem Hadriani conjicitur cum Abbatore Alviano Ursinarum partium. Praesul vero Florentinus et Jacobus Sanctacrucius eadem hora capti in Palatio sunt custoditi. Sanctacrucius postera die dimissus vadibus datis, consentiente Car-

of the Pope, was plundered by France and Spain together (1501);²⁸ but so early as 1503 it fell under the sole dominion of Spain.²⁹ Meanwhile Alexander was seeking, by traffic in benefices, sale of indulgences, exercise of the right of spoils, and taxes for the Turkish war, as well as by the murder of rich or troublesome persons, to scrape together as much money as possible, to support the wanton luxury and shameful licentiousness of his court, and provide treasures for his children.³⁰ At length the poison which

Compare Paulus in the Sophronizon, Bd. 8, Heft 5, s. 8 ff. With regard to Alexander's character see Raph. Volaterranus Anthropol. lib. xxii.: In Alexandro, ut de Annibale Livius scribit, aequabant vitia virtutes. Inerant namque ingenium, ratio, cogitatio, memoria, diligentia, eloquentia vero quaedam naturalis, et ad persuadendum apta, ut nemo rem cautius proponeret, aut acrius defensitaret, seu quovis cuperet impelleret, sese unum omnium animis adcommendando: cum jucundis de remissione, cum severis de disciplina, cum patribus de republica loquebatur. Suos adversarios placabilitate ac patientia devinciebat: nam eorum, qui de numero Patrum exulabant, quosve suspectos habuerat, nihil de pristina dignitate detraxit: Gallorum animos contumacissimos ita sedavit, ut amicissimi discederent; in tanta procerum Romanorum vastatione, quod sane incredibile, nullum in urbe tumultum, nulla sensimus arma: omnia ipse obire, parum in rebus arduis cuiquam fidere. Idem in otio solutissimus, in metu constantissimus: nunquam negotia seu legationes audiendas voluptate praevertit, res in multam noctem protrahebat, brevissimi somni cibique. Artes liberales, si non colebat, admirabatur, juris praesertim scientiam ubi esse contingret. Salaria doctoribus, stipendia militibus, mercedem operariis nunquam est differre, nedum auferre, visus, cujus rei gratia exercitum, quem magnum saepe nutriebat ductore filio, fidelissimum habuit: breve tempore ac negotio totam fere Aemiliam, quae tributa non exsolverat, ei subegit. In annonae difficultate, quae bis contigit, advecta e Sicilia magna vi frumenti ita diligenter urbi providerat, ut plebes nullum fere sentiret incommodum. Has igitur animi dotes magnis obruerat vitiis, quae narrare non attinet: tantum referam, quae vulgus adspexit. Si quando rerum fasce non premeretur, omni se remissionis generi sine discrimine dedidit: quapropter comoedias Plautinas, cateraque ludicra libenter spectavit, frequenterque in Hadriani molem ventitabat, ut palam personatos per eorum ferias, ac omnes dies festos si quid elegantius in hominum genere per viam praeteriret, proprius adspiceret. In nuptiis filiae, quae ad virum Ferrariam profectura erat, equestres ludos et venationem in Vaticano extra ordinem dedit. In urbe gladiatorum nunquam licentia major, nunquam populo Romano libertas minor. Delatorum magna frequentia, brevissimo maledicto poena mortis erat. Grassatorum insuper omnia plena; nec noctu tutum per urbem iter, nec interdiu extra urbem. Roma, gentium refugium, et arx populorum omnibus saeculis, nobilis jam carnificina facta erat. Quae quidem omnia suorum causa, quibus omnia indulserat, permittebat. Ipse quoque Caesar, dum haec ei liciuere, ea fuit indeole, ut si ab initio in bonos incidisset vitae monstratores, perpetuam sibi reique Romanae gloriae peperisset: nam et iu ea adolescentia, quantum perspicere potuimus, nec deliberanti consilium, nec ductanti exercitum majorum disciplina, neque sermonem habenti facundia defuere: eaque demum a natura liberalitate, ut patris avaritiam saepe palam detestaretur: a justitia quoque, uti videbatur, minime abhorrens; quin in Aemilia jam adepta summa aequitate populos regebat, ac judicem gravissimum Antonium Montanum juri dicundo praeposuit, tanta subditorum probatione, ut illi vel defuncto Alexandro, quod minime putabatur, in officio persisterent. Verum ut sterile solum et intemperies coeli bona frugum semina praecipitant, sic et hunc prava institutio, ac proximorum libido a recta virtutis semita detorserunt, ex quo seque ac omnem Italianam variis calamitatibus involvit.

After Alexander's death the newly created state of Caesar Borgia straightway fell to pieces. The separate portions submitted, some to their former banished lords, some to the Pope; but in the midst of this embarrassment the Venetians began to make conquests in Romagna.¹ The warlike Julius II. wished to reduce the whole country again to subjection to the Papal dominion. He began by wresting Perugia and Bologna from their lords (1506). As the powerful state of Venice refused to surrender her conquests, he resolved at length, albeit unwillingly, to avail himself of foreign aid; he joined the league of Cambray,² concluded between

² Ranke, Bd. 1, s. 273 ff. 302 f. The Pope, the Emperor, and the kings of France and Aragon bound themselves by this alliance against Venice (Raynald. 1509, no. 4) —pro recuperatione seu reintegratione omnium deperditorum.—Nec prius a praedicta invasione, seu guerra, aut armis per aliquem eorum desistetur, quam omnino et integre Apostolica sedes recuperaverit Ravennam, Cerviam, Faventiam, et Ariminum,—ac omnia alia, quae de statu et juribus Ecclesiae Romanae dicti Veneti occupant et detinent; et—Imperator recuperaverit Roveretum, Veronam, Paduam, Vicentiam, Tarvisium, Forumjulium,—necnon Patriarchatum Aquileiensem,—omniisque alia loca et dominia per ipsos Venetos in hoc ultimo bello capta et occupata ex terris et dominiis domus Austriae: et pari modo ipse Christianissimus Francorum Rex recuperaverit totaliter Brixiam, Bergomum,—et generaliter omnia ea, quae fuerunt antiquitus de ducatu et domino Mediolani;—et similiter ipse serenissimus Rex Aragonum recuperaverit ea omnia, quae ipsi Veneti de regno Neapolitano—quovis modo abstulerunt,—videlicet Tranum, Brundusium, Otrantum et Gallipolim. With regard to the attempt which Julius made, notwithstanding the league, for reconciliation with Venice, see Petrus Bembus (from Venice, Cardinal, † 1547), Hist. Venetae, lib. vii. in the Istorici delle cose Veneziane, i quali hanno scritto per publico Decreto, t. ii. p. 260: Confecto foedere Julius tametsi cupiditate ferebatur Arimino Faventiaque potiundi, quia tamen et Gallorum Regem magnae per se potentiae multo majorem suo permisso fieri solebat, et cum illam nationem, tum Germaniae populos in possessionem Italiae venire, optimeaque ejus partis atque po-

France and the Emperor on the 10th December, 1508, and assisted with spiritual and temporal weapons to subdue the Republic.³ Venice, now hard pressed, yielded to the Pope, in order to divide this overwhelming alliance. Julius, already alarmed at the progress of the French in Italy, readily granted his forgiveness (20th February, 1510),⁴ and now commenced hostilities against the French and their ally, Alphonso, duke of Ferrara. On the third of July, 1510, he declared that the King of France had forfeited his claim on Naples, and invested Ferdinand, the Catholic, with the sole dominion of this realm.⁵ On the ninth of August he issued a sentence of condemnation against the Duke of Ferrara.⁶ Lewis XII. strove in vain to alarm him by the National Council at Tours (September, 1510),⁷ Germany, by severe gra-

The chancellor, by the King's command, opened the council (p. 32), narrant tous les biens et grans plaisirs, que ledit Seigneur Roy avoit fait au Pape avant et après sa Papalité et mesmement pour le faire eslier Pape, narrant aussi l'ingratitude et la mécongnissance dudit Pape envers ledit Seigneur Roy, et comme sans cause ny raison il avoit rompue l'alliance faicté à Cambray entre si nobles Princes de Chrestienté, aussy l'emotion qu'il avoit fait des Suisses, et ce qu'il avoit voulu faire contre Gennes, et la ligue qu'il avoit faite avec les Venitiens, et semblablement ce qu'il faisait contre le Duc de Ferrare son alié: et leur a fait donner aucun articles par escript, sur lesquels il demandoit leur avis et conseil. Of these articles or questions, and the answers given to them by the council, there are three texts extant. The first in the Collections of Councils (e. g. Harduin, ix. p. 1555); the second vamina, and the threat of a Pragmatic Sanction (1510).⁸ Not in a French translation in Nic. Gilles Croniques et Annales de France (Paris, 1566, fol.), vol. ii. fol. 133 b.; the third in J. E. Kappen's Nachlese einiger zur Erläuterung der Reformationsgesch. nützlichen Urkunden, Th. 4, s. 490; all three in Kapp, s. 470 ff. The council here decided that, in self-defense against the Pope, as notorium hostem suum, the King might even invade the States of the Church, and renounce obedience to such a pontiff: to the question, What, then, was to be done? the answer given in the first text is: servandum esse jus commune antiquum et pragmaticam sanctionem regni, ex decretis sacrosancti Concilii Basileensis desumptam: in the third, appellare in omnibus ad futurum Concilium. At last, to the question: si Pontifex injuste, ordine juris non servato, procedens de facto, et manu armata, pronunciet—aliquas censuras contra principes sibi resistentes,—an ei parendum sit, et quod remedium adhibendum? the answer given in the first text is, conclusum est unanimiter per Concilium, talem sententiam nullam esse, nec de jure, vel alio quocumque modo ligare; in the third, non esse parendum, sed appellandum ad futurum Concilium. At the end some further Conclusiones follow in the third text (in Kapp, s. 493), the purport of which is also stated in the report of the imperial ambassadors (Lettres du Roy Louis XII., t. 2, p. 47). In these there is first a remonstrance against the—oppressiones et indebitas exactiones contra stilum in Romana Curia Ecclesiae Gallicanae impositas, quibus nulla provisio adhibetur per S. D. N. nec per ejus officiales, et quod deterius est, nulli licet libere de hujusmodi gravaminibus querelam facere in dicta Curia Romana:—et quasi in cunctis ita oppressa est dicta Ecclesia Gallicana, ut nunquam antea. Then the Pope's hatred of the King was proved, and it was accordingly resolved,—Oratores instituendos ad ipsum S. D. N. Julium secundum—et Reverendissimos Cardinales, qui qua decet reverentia supplicant,—ut Sanctitas sua velit congregare Concilium Ecclesiae in loco tuto et convenienti ad determinationem ultimorum Conciliorum generalium, quatenus fieri poterit; idemque procuret Christianissimus Rex apud Imperatorem et alios Principes Christianos, ut sibi adsint et opem ac auxilium ferant pro eodem Concilio generali congregando ad reformationem Ecclesiae universalis in capite et in membris: et supplicare etiam eidem S. D. N.,—ut interim—durantibus dissensionibus, quae nunc sunt inter S. D. N. et eundem Regem suosque subditos, det Poenitentiarium in regno Franciae—cum potestate dispensandi et providendi in omnibus casibus, votis, absolutionibus ab excommunicationibus, irregularitatibus, et aliis censuris intervenientibus, et dispensationibus in gradibus consanguinitatis et affinitatis, et universaliter cum plenaria potestate providendi in omnibus casibus concernentibus forum poenitentiae et salutem animarum: in casu quo S. D. N. recusaret Concilium generale vel nimis differret,—vel recusaret Poenitentiarium deputare, cum protestatione expressa nominibus Christianissimi Regis et Ecclesiae Gallicanae contra praefatum D. Francf. et Lips. 1725, 4, p. 279 ss.: Münch's Concordate, Th. 1, s. 96 ff., and in several other collections. From the agreement of these with Jac. Wimpfelingii Replica contra Aeneae Sylvii Tract. de Germania (see § 133, note 19), Tentzel (Hist. Bericht vom Anfang n. ersten Fortgang der Reform. Lutheri, s. 64, Anm.) concludes with justice that they were drawn up by Wimpfeling. The Gravamina may have been written by him under the direction of the states, but hardly so the articles which follow; one sees most plainly from the Avisamenta, that they were the advice of an individual man given to the Emperor. First come X. Gravamina nationis Germanicae: I. Quod ad servandas bullas, pacta, privilegia et literas, ab antecessoribus absque omni derogatione concessas, successores Pontifices teneri se non arbitraantur: imo per crebras dispensationes, suspensiones, revocationes ad cujuscunque (etiam vilis) personae instantiam contraveniunt. II. Quod electiones Praelatorum quandoque rejiciuntur. III. Quod electionibus Praepositurarum, quas quarundam Ecclesiarum Capitula multo aere impetrarunt, contravenitur.—IV. Quod beneficia et dignitates maiores Cardinalibus even a General Council, summoned at Pisa by the two monarchs for the first September, 1511, with the dread phantom of a refor-

et Protonotariis reservantur. V. Quod expectativae gratiae absque numero conceduntur, et multae interdum ad unum collatorem. Unde surgunt quotidianae lites, et pecuniae dilapidantur.—VI. Quod annatae absque dilatione et sine misericordia, etiam Episcopis intra paucos annos mortuis, exiguntur. Interdum plus, quam debeatur, extorqueatur propter nova officia et novos familiares.—VII. Ecclesiarum regiunina minus dignis (Romae videlicet) committuntur, qui ad mulos magis, quam homines pascendos et regendos essent idonei. VIII. Indulgentialae novae cum revocatione aut suspensione veterum, laicis contra Clerum murmurantibus, ad corradendas pecunias conceduntur. IX. Decimae sub praetextu expugnandorum Turcarum exiguntur, nulla expeditione subsequenta. X. Causae, quae in Germania, in qua etiam docti et justi judices sunt, terminari poterant, ad tribunalia Romana indistincte trahuntur. Then follows the Remedium contra gravamina nationis Germ.; some representations which should be made to the Pope, partly drawn from the greatness and injustice of this oppression, partly from the state of Germany. For instance, a statement was made, that, although the See of Mayence had formerly paid but 10,000 florins for annates, at first 20,000, and afterward—propter nova officia—even as much as 25,000 at one time, 27,000 at another, 24,000 at another, had been extorted from it. Non sine causa Jacobus Archiepiscopus Moguntinus jam fero moriens dixit, se de morte sua non adeo dolere, quam ob id, quod subditu sui pauperes iterum pro pallio gravem exactionem dare cogerentur. Mitius ergo summus Pontifex, velut pius pater filiorum suorum amator, et fidelis ac prudens pastor, cum filiis suis Germanicae nationis agat, ne propediem vel in universos Christi sacerdotes persecutio subroriatur, vel instar Bohemorum plerique ab Ecclesia deficiant Romana. In the Remedium pro civitatibus Imperii et animarum salute, proposals follow next for the abolishment of plurality of benefices, and a worthier occupation of canonries and parochial churches. Then come the Avisamenta ad Caesaream Majestatem; in which a pragmatic sanction was suggested similar to the French one, as, indeed, had been already proposed in vain before (see § 133, note 19). Sicut regnum Franciae pragmaticam habet sanctionem, cui in conferendis beneficiis innititur, sic Imperium Romanum habet concordata Principum, utque ea illaesa conserventur, interest Caesareae Majestatis.—Posset etiam Caesarea Majestas per literas aut oratores facile in regno Franciac experiri, quomodo illic beneficia conferantur, et quam auctoritatem in conferendis beneficiis habeat summus Pontifex. Secundum hoc posset moderamen fieri in Imperio Romano, et frenum inexplebili avaritiae Curtisanorum adhiberi. Si praeclarae universitates, praeципue facultas theologiae Parisiensis approbaverit modum illum, qui de disponendis et conferendis beneficiis in Francia servatur: nemo dubitet, Caesaream Majestatem et Principes Germanos, si se isto modo conformaverint, apud Deum tutos fore et excusat. Praesumendum enim est, quod tanti Praelati, tanti doctores, tam probati viri, qui in regno Franciac ac in Studio Parisensi vivunt, nihil approbent, quod contra Deum aut justitiam committeretur. Provideat tamen Caesarea Majestas, ne Archiepiscopi Electores in hoc sancto instituto a se dissentiant—propter censuras Apostolicas quas timebunt: et populus interdictum diu non sustinebit. Provideat etiam Caesarea Majestas, ne fratres mendicantes contra ipsam praedicent, qui sedi Apostolicae libenter deferunt, timentes perdere privilegia sua.—Timeat Caesarea Majestas, ne Papa mandet Electoribus, ut ad electionem novi Regis Rom. procedant, sicut contra Fridericum secundum Lantgravium Thuringiae et Guilelmus Hollandiae comes jubente Papa fuerunt electi. Timeat Caes. Majestas omnes Praelatos Ecclesiarum, praecipue Praepositos (the Pope appointed to all the deaneries, see § 133, note 4), qui ex juramento tenentur avisare Papam, etc. The Conclusio et pia exhortatio ad Caes. Majestatem concludes the whole work. The imperial edict appended, dd. Oeniponte, 1510, against plurality of benefices, and against fraudulent and simoniacal acquisition of them, which were forbidden—sub pena criminis laesae Majestatis et gravissimae nostrae offense, must be regarded as the result of this work. Afterward, in accordance with the advice suggested in the Avisamenta, the Em-mation in the Church, could bend the violent Pope.⁹ Julius, on the other hand, convoked, on the 18th July, an Ecumenical Lateran Council (Conc. Lateranense V.),¹⁰ for April, 1512, and then concluded peror assigned to Jacob Wimpfeling a commission, to adapt the Sanctio Pragmatica of France to Germany. Maximilian's letters to Wimpfeling, his answer, and a proposal by which the Pragmatic Sanction might be altered for Germany, may be seen in Flacii Catal. ed. Francof. 1666, p. 474; Georgii, p. 315 ss.

⁹ Immediately after the council of Tours, Matthew Lang, bishop of Gurk, made his appearance as the Emperor's ambassador, first in France, with a view to renew the League of Cambray (Lettres du Roy Louis XII. t. ii. p. 67 ss.), and afterward betook himself to Italy, in order to restore the relations of both parties with the Pope. However, after all the efforts of the Pope to corrupt the bishop (l. c. p. 107), and of the bishop to withdraw the Pope from his stubborn resolution (p. 168, pour mettre le Pape hors de la obstinée et dyabolique pertinaxité où il est), remained fruitless (compare the letters of the Bishop of Gurk to the Bishop of Paris, p. 160 ss.), the Bishop of Gurk returned at the end of April, 1511, without effecting his purpose (p. 205). Paris de Grassis in Raynal. 1511, no. 57; compare Leo's Gesch. v. Italien, Th. 5, s. 229 ff. Meanwhile several French prelates assembled at Lyons in April to make preparations for the council (Lettres, ii. p. 145); but in Milan three cardinals, who had deserted from Julius, negotiated in their own names and the names of six other cardinals, with imperial and French envoys, and upon their requisition issued a summons on the 16th May, 1511, for a general council at Pisa to be held the first of September, as it runs in the Convocatio Concilii in Richerii Hist. Concill. lib. iv. p. i. cap. 3,—considerantes quantum reipublicae Christianae utilitatem Concilia generalia universalis Ecclesiae attulerint, quantumque detimenti ex eorum intermissione Christiana respublica sit passa; cumque impraesentiarum conspiciant clare, magnam instare necessitatem universalis Concilii congregandi pro vera pace Christianorum fundanda, et sufficienti bello contra infideles stabiliendo: necnon potissimum pro reformatione morum universalis Ecclesiae in capite et in membris plurimum collapsorum, ac emendatione criminum gravissimorum notiorum, continuorum ac incorrigibilium universalem Ecclesiam scandalizantium;—quumque tempus decennii post ultimum universale Concilium jamdudum sit effluxum, et saluberrima decretali Constantiensi constitutione edita, quae incipit Frequens, singulis decenniis universale Concilium congregari debeat, et S. D. N. Dominus Julius P. II., cui primo curae esse deberet illud convocandi, tanto tempore hoc neglexerit, maxime cum voverit et juraverit post biennium a creatione sua illud tenere, et nedum negligens in praecepto Ecclesiae et Concilii, sed et voti et juramenti hujusmodi transgressor, illud non tenuerit, tempusque interpellet pro homine, cumqne nunquam sua auctoritate aut voluntate futurum Concilium credatur celebrandum: et cum de gravibus Ecclesiae scandalis in capite agendum sit, quo casu—ad sumnum Pontificem congregatio Concilii non attinet, sed secundo loco ad Revv. DD. Cardinales. The Pope was then required, abstinere a creatione novorum Cardinalium, et a publicatione creatorum,—et processu contra antiquos Cardinales, aliosque Praelatos et personas ad Concilium ipsum accedere volentes,—necnon ab impediendo hujusmodi convocationem Concilii directe vel indirecte, publice vel occulte, quovis quaésito colore, et ab alienatione feudorum seu terrarum S. R. E. In quibus omnibus causis cum omni humilitate protestamur de nullitate actus, etc. Two letters from the cardinals to Charles, prince of Spain and archduke of Austria, and to Margaret, archduchess of Austria and governor of the Netherlands, may be seen in the Lettres du Roy Louis XII. t. ii. p. 235 ss.

a close alliance with Venice and Spain (October, 1511).¹¹ The synod of Pisa was quite without influence, from the fact that it was composed almost entirely of French prelates, and their method of procedure against the Pope, imitated from that of the Basle fathers, seemed only an empty show.¹² When the French were driven from Italy by the Swiss, and the Emperor had declared himself on the side of the Pope and the Lateran Council,¹³ this synod

¹³ When Julius lay on his death-bed, in August, 1511, Maximilian conceived the idea of becoming Pope himself, Cf. ejus Epist. ad Baronem Paulum a Lichtenstein, dd. 16th September, 1511 (in the Lettres du Roy Louis XII., t. iii. p. 324 ss.): nihil nobis honorabilius, nihil gloriiosius, nihil melius obtingere posse, quam si praefatum Pontificatum, ad nos proprie pertinentem, Imperio nostro recuperaremus. He intrusts the Bishop of Gurk with the negotiations to induce the Pope to adopt him as his coadjutor; he gave him quickly vanished from Pisa, while the Lateran Council, as the instrument of Papal vengeance, launched the thunders of excommunication against it, against the Pragmatic Sanction, and against the whole realm of France.¹⁴ Under the peaceful rule of Leo X. the relations with France soon became more friendly, and Lewis XII., in December, 1513, even gave in his adherence to the Lateran Council.¹⁵ Nevertheless, peace was not fully restored when the young King, Francis I., entered Italy with irresistible force in 1515.¹⁶ Leo, however, contrived to change the defeat with which he was threatened into a victory, by concluding a treaty of peace with him without delay,¹⁷ and persuading him, at a personal interview in Bologna (December, 1515), with the help of Du Prat sums to bribe the cardinals, and declared to his daughter, Margaret, Stadholder of the Netherlands, dd. 18th September (probably 1511), his intention (Lettres, t. iv. p. 1 ss.), de avoir le Papat et devenir Prester et après estre Saint, et que yl vous sera de nécessité, que après ma mort vous serés contraint de me adorer, dont je me trouveré bien gloryoes. See E. S. Cyprianus de Maximiliano I. Imper. Pontificatum maximum affectante, in his Dissertationes Varii Argumenti. Coburg, 1755. Maximilian let himself be drawn into the league, by Ferdinand the Catholic, in April, 1512 (Ranke Gesch. der Roman. u. German. Völker. Bd. 1, s. 371 f.). Matthew Lang, bishop of Gurk, made his appearance at the third session of the Lateran Council, 3d December, 1512, to give in his adherence formally to the council in the name of the Emperor (Paris de Grassis in Raynald. 1512, no. 92. The deed of adherence is in Labbei et Cossartii Concil., t. xiv. p. 80 ss.).

the chancellor of France, whom he had won over to his interests, entirely to annul the Pragmatic Sanction; for this purpose he drew up a concordat with him, in which the Pope and the King shared between themselves the ancient privileges of the Gallican Church.¹⁸ The Lateran Council was thereupon compelled to pro-

¹⁸ Paris de Grassis in Raynald. 1515, no. 29 ss., relates very minutely the outward circumstances of this interview, but says nothing about the negotiations. The result was first disclosed by Leo X. in the eleventh session of the Lateran Council, 19th December, 1516, by the bull Primitiva illa ecclesia (Labbei et Cossartii Concill xiv. p. 292 ss.); sane inter arcana nostrae mentis revolventes, quot tractatus inter piae memoriae—Romanos Pontifices, praedecessores nostros, et clarae memoriae Reges Franciae Christianissimos super abrogatione certae constitutionis in dicto regno Franciae vigentis, quae Pragmatica vocatur, habiti fuerunt; et licet Pius II. praefatus, nuntiis ad cl. m. Ludovicum XI. Franciae Regem Christianissimum destinatis, tantis eidem persuaserit rationibus, ut Rex ipse pragmaticam sanctionem hujusmodi, tanquam in seditione et schismatis tempore natam, suis patentibus literis abrogaverit; tamen hujusmodi abrogatio, nec etiam literae apostolicae praefati Sixti super concordata, cum oratoribus praefati Regis Ludovici ad praefatum Sextum praedecessorem destinatis habita, expeditae per Praelatos et personas ecclesiasticas dicti regni receptac fuerunt, nec ipsi Praelati et personae ecclesiasticae illis parere, nec monitis Innocentii et Julii praedictorum aures praebere, sed eidem pragmaticae constitutioni inhaerere voluerunt. Unde—Julius—in praesenti Concilio Lateranensi—abrogationis pragmaticae sanctionis hujusmodi negotium—congregationibus—commisit, Gallicosque Praelatos, etc.—citari—ad comparendum coram eo—jussit.—Et cum super his in forma juris—procederetur,—nosque—ad summi Apostolatus apicem assumpti fuissemus, et contra Praelatos, Capitula, conventus, et personas hujusmodi ad nonnullos actus processissemus: tandem considerantes, pacem esse vinculum caritatis,—matura deliberatione cognovimus, non per nuntios aut legatos nostros, sed in praestatione obedientiae filialis, quam carissimus in Christo filius noster Franciscus, Francorum Rex Christianissimus, personaliter nobis praestitit, haec cum Majestate sua coram discutere, eamque paternis hortari monitis, ut ad laudem Dei et sui honorem prompto animo libens ac volens dictae pragmaticae sanctioni abrenuntiare, et secundum canones et constitutiones s. (2. De reservationibus): Volumus quoque et ordinamus, quod in Regno, Delphinatu et Comitatu praeditis de caetero non dentur aliquae gratiae expectativa, ac speciales vel generales reservations ad vacatura beneficia per nos et sedem praedictam non fiant: et si de facto per importunitatem, aut alias, a nobis et successoribus nostris et sede praedicta emanaverint, illas irritas et inanies esse decernimus. In cathedralibus tamen—et collegiatis Ecclesiis, in quarum statutis caveretur expresse, quod nullus ibidem dignitatem—obtinere possit, nisi in illis actu Canonicus existat, Canonicos ad effectum dumtaxat inibi obtinendi dignitatem—creare posse intendimus. (3. De collationibus): In every cathedral church one—Canonicatus et praebenda theologalis—was to be conferred upon a—Magistro, seu Licentiato, aut Baccalaureo formato in theologia, qui per decennium in Universitate studii generalis privilegiata studuerit, ac onus residentiae, lecturae et praedicacionis actu subire voluerit. Besides, all collators were to confer the third part of their benefices upon—viris literatis, graduatis et per Universitatis nominatis, and this in such a manner that the benefices falling vacant in the first, fourth, seventh, and tenth months should be given to them. At the same time a period to be afterward defined by them was prescribed for the University studies, which was abridged in the case of noblemen. (4. De mandatis apostolicis): Statuimus quoque et ordinamus, quod quilibet Romanus Pontifex semel dumtaxat tempore sui Pontificatus literas in forma mandati, juxta formam inferius annotatam, et non ultra dare possit hoc modo; videlicet unum collatorem habentem collationem decem beneficiorum in uno, habentem autem collationem quinquaginta beneficiorum et ultra in duabus beneficiis gravare possit.—(5. De appellationibus): Statuimus quoque et ordinamus, quod in Regno, Delphinatu et Comitatu praeditis omnes et singulae causae, exceptis majoribus, in jure expresse denominatis, apud illos judices in partibus, qui—illarum cognitionem habent, terminari et finiri debeant. Et ne sub umbra appellationum, quae nimium et nonnunquam frivole interponi consueverunt atque etiam in eadem instantia ad prorogationem litium saepe multiplicari, injustis vexationibus materia praebeatur: volumus, quod si quis offensus coram suo judice justitiae complementum habere non possit, ad immediatum superiorem per appellationem recursum habeat, nec ad aliquem superiorem, etiam ad nos et successores nostros—omisso medio. Nec a gravamine in quacunque instantia ante diffinitivam sententiam quomodolibet appelletur, nisi forsitan tale gravamen extiterit, quod in diffinitiva reparari nequirit, et eo casu non nisi ad immediatum superiorem liceat appellari. Si quis vero immediate subjectus sedi Apostolicae ad eandem sedem duxerit appellandum, causa committatur in partibus per rescriptum usque ad finem litis, videlicet usque ad power.²⁰ Now, at last, the Papacy seemed once more to have entirely quelled the hostile spirit which had grown up at Constance and Basle, and found its stronghold in France; and at this very time it was near its most grievous fall.

²⁰ Compare, Relation de ce qui se passa sur la Publication et l'Enregistrement du Concordat au Parlement de Paris (in Münch's Sammlung aller Konkordate. Th. 1, s. 255; in a Latin translation in Richerii Hist. Concill., lib. iv. P. ii. cap. 4, § 13). In February, 1517, the King first summoned a great assemblage of prelates, members of Parliament, and learned men from the University, and had a representation made to them by his Chancellor with regard to the concordat which had been concluded. The latter first discoursed upon the hostility of the Popes to the King and the Pragmatic Sanction, and upon the citation of the King and the Gallican Church before the Lateran Council. It was universally foreseen that a defense of the Sanction at Rome would end in its condemnation, parceque l'assemblée de Latran n'était composée que de courtisans de la cour de Rome, qui à cause de leur extrême avarice, et de leur ambition avaient la pragmatique en horreur, et étaient résolus de l'anéantir à droit ou à tort. Il paraissait donc plus avantageux de se laisser condamner par défaut et sans que la partie fût entendue. Mais comme le Roi savait que, s'il voulait s'opposer à l'abolition de la pragmatique, Leon X. avec son assemblée de Latran procéderait contre lui et contre son Royaume par des censures et par des interdits, et que si ces interdits et ces censures subsistaient une année entière, il s'en suivrait contre l'église gallicane une condamnation de schisme et d'hérésie, et que le Pontife Romain, ayant recours à la ruse et aux ligues, à l'exemple de Jules II., livrerait en proie le Royaume de France. Il voyait aussi, qu'il n'avait aucun moyen d'empêcher l'abrogation de la pragmatique, et il n'ignorait pas, que, s'il n'y consentait, la France serait bientôt livrée au trouble et à la confusion, qui y régnait avant le Concile de Constance et de Basle à cause des abus insupportables des réserves et des grâces expectatives. Enfin, pour remédier à tous ces inconveniens, pour s'assurer ainsi qu'aux princes du Royaume et à toute son armée un retour facile et tranquille en France, pour dissiper les ligues faites contre lui, le Royaume de France, et ses principautés d'Italie, François Ier fut forcé de traiter avec le Pape Léon X.; et malgré tous ses efforts il ne put le faire, qu'en consentant à l'abolition de la pragmatique et à l'institution des Concordats. Then by an edict of 12th May, 1517 (in Leibnitii Mantissa Cod. Jur. Gent. P. I. p. 161 ss.; and in Münch, Th. 1, s. 224), the King published the concordat. Here he repeats, that now, since the Pragmatic Sanction could no longer be maintained, he was bound to consider how he might provide by law against the recurrence of the former disorder, which prevailed before the Sanction was given. The concordat furnished him with the means, and in such a manner, ut pleraque pragmatiae sanctionis capita firma nobis posthac rataque futura sint.—Quod vero ad electiones pertinet, minime quod optabamus obtinere potuimus, causis in dictis conventis latissime insertis. The Parliament, however, refused to register and publish the concordat, and presented to the King two successive remonstrances against it (in Leibnitii Mantissa, P. ii. p. 335 ss., and in Münch, Th. 1, s. 268 ff.). The restoration of the annates was here chiefly objected to, which was in the highest degree perilous, pour évacuer en peu de temps ce Royaume d'or, d'argent et de finances, and which—ne se pourroit pratiquer sans commettre le péché de Simonie. The Parliament likewise declared itself against the position, que les grandes causes, les causes des Cardinaux et officiers de Cour de Rome ne seront traictées en ce Royaume, mais en la dicte Cour, and shows the dangerous results that would follow; moreover, against the Pope having power to appoint to benefices, qui vacqueront par mort en Cour de Rome; also, that he had only renounced the reservation of the—beneficia vacatura, and so he might reserve them—post illorum vacationem. Then there were express remonstrances made against the dissolution of the elections of bishops and abbots, which right was—moult ancien, et fondé en droit divin. Lastly, the danger of the bull by which the Pragmatic Sanction was abolished, was shown. The second of the Remonstrances closed with the declaration, que les dicti

ON THE GENERAL POSITION OF THE PAPACY.

By means of the reforming councils at Constance and Basle, in opposition to the doctrine of the Pope's universal monarchy which had been hitherto maintained, the other theory of the limitation of the Papacy by the ecclesiastical aristocracy, which had already reached its full growth in France, obtained full recognition in the Church.¹ The controversy between these two systems was waged incessantly from this time onward. General council was raised

Concordats sont contre l'honneur de Dieu, les libertés de l'Eglise, l'honneur du Roy et le bien public de son Royaume. However, the King remained firm in his desire, and became still more violent and menacing. The Parliament appealed on the 19th of March, 1518 (see the Relation in Münch, Th. 1, s. 267), au Pape mieux conseillé, et au premier concile général légitimement assemblé: and when the King nevertheless had the concordat published in Parliament on the 22d of March, it repeated this appeal on the 24th March (see the Appendix to the Relation of this day, which is wanting in Münch, given in a Latin translation by Richer). The University of Paris followed this example on the 27th March, 1518 (stylo gall. 1517), and appealed likewise—a Domino nostro Papa non recte consulto, et jam dicti sacri Basileensis Concilii et ei adhaerentis pragmatae sanctionis statutorum abrogatione, novorum statutorum editione, consensus praestatione, et attentata illorum quadam publicatione, et omnibus inde sequutis et sequuturis—ad futurum Concilium legitime ac in loco tuto [congregatum], et quod libere et cum securitate—adire poterimus, et ad illum vel ad illos, ad quem seu ad quos de jure—vel alias nobis provocare et appellare licet. (The text of this appeal in Leibnitii Mantissa, t. ii. p. 358 ss., and quoted thence in Münch, Th. 1, s. 307, is full of errors, and in many places unintelligible: a purer text may be seen in Richerii Hist. Concill., lib. iv. P. ii. c. 4, § 14, and in the Preuves des Libertez de l'église Gallicane, chap. xiii. no. 18.) Both appeals were forced to yield to the King's power; still a strong feeling against the concordat lasted a long time. Thus Gilbertus Genebrardus (Professor of the Hebrew language at Paris, from 1593 Archbishop of Aix, † 1597), Chronographia, Paris, 1580, fol. ad ann. 1515, says of Leo X.: Pragmaticam sanctionem sustulit, Concordata quae vocantur cum Rege Francisco agitans de nominatione Episcoporum et Abbatum, specioso praetextu, ut Rex propter electionum abusus—nominare teneretur: revera autem ageatur mysterium illud iniquitatis, quo perditam Ecclesiam Gallicanam cernimus, and further also below: Anno 1516, abrogata est in Galliis pragmata sanctio, et Concordata, ut vocant, substituuntur, fremente universo clero, scholasticis, populo, bonis denique et doctis omnibus. He also wrote, De Sacrarum Electionum Jure et Necessitate ad Ecclesiae Gallicanae Redintegrationem; but this book was condemned to the flames.

clesiasticam deprimens subjeciebat temporali; altera sustollebat in immensum, velut ad similitudinem Altissimi, confundens jura cuiuslibet alterius potestatis. Tolle, tolle, clamat Detractio, temporalitatem omnem, jus vel dominium ab Ecclesiasticis. Quare? quia sic instituit Christus, cuius ista vox est: Nisi quis renuntiaverit omnibus, quae possidet, non potest meus esse discipulus (Luc. xiv. 33).—Addit Detractio, quod Ecclesiastici nequaquam capaces sunt jurisdictionis temporalis, etiamsi Principes illis conferre voluerint. Inducit Apostolum, quia Nemo militans Deo implicat se negotiis saecularibus (2 Tim. ii. 2). Addit Detractio, nihil habere Ecclesiasticos, neque decimas neque oblationes, quantominus alias dotationes vel possessiones, nisi ex pura eleemosyna donantium: et quod ab Ecclesiasticis peccantibus, saltem habitualiter, possent per saecularem potestatem optimo jure tolli; quia data est potestas hacc saecularis in vindictam malefactorum, neque sine causa gladium portat (Rom. xiii. 4). Addit quarto innitens Apostoli verbis: habentes alimenta et quibus tegamur, his contenti simus (1 Tim. vi. 8), quia quicquid habent Ecclesiastici ultra simplicem victimum et vestitum, totum illud est pauperum, cuius retentio nedum furtum vel rapina simplex est, sed sacrilegium.—Vult tandem Detractio Ecclesiasticos omnes ad illam Apostolorum et discipulorum primam paupertatem sine equis, sine thesauris, sine calceamentis, sine possessionibus de necessitate salutis redigere, execrans in Ecclesiasticis pompam omnem.—Consurgit ex adverso blandiens et subdola Adulatio, et ad aures Ecclesiasticorum, praecipue summi Pontificis, insursum: o quanta est, quanta sublimitas ecclesiasticae potestatis tuae! o sacer Clere, quam nihil est saecularis auctoritas tuae comparata! Quoniam, sicut Christo collata est omnis potestas in celo et in terra, sic eam Christus omnem Petro suisque successoribus dereliquit. Unde et nec Constantinus quidquam Sylvestro Papae contulit, quod non esset prius suum, sed reddidit injuste detentum. Porro sicut non est potestas nisi a Deo (Rom. xiii. 1), sic nec aliqua temporalis vel ecclesiastica, imperialis vel regalis, nisi a Papa, in cuius femore scripsit Christus: Rex Regum, Dominus Dominantium (1 Tim. vi. 15). De cuius potestate disputare instar sacrilegii est: cui neque quisquam dicere potest: cur ita facis? si etiam temporalia omnia, si ecclesiastica bona atque dominia mutaverit, diripuerit, distraxerit. Mentior, si non inveniuntur haec scripta, ab illis etiam, qui sapientes sunt in oculis suis; si praeterea non inveniuntur fuisse per aliquos summos Pontifices haec credita. Notum est illud Satyrici: Nihil est quod credere de se non possit cum laudatur diis aequa potestas; et illud Comici de adulatore: hic profecto ex stultis insanos facit. Sentiens autem Adulatio quandoque nimis sc cognosci, studet quasi modestiori sermone depressius uti, ut credibilior appareat. Concedit saeculari potestati possessiones et jurisdictiones proprias, quas tollere nequit pro libito Papa; recognoscit, Constantimum, vel alios Principes aliquid Ecclesiae noviter contulisse: nihilominus tradit, quod summus Poutifex supremus est Monarcha, nedum in spiritualibus, sed temporalibus, habens potestatem hanc immediate a Christo, sed alii Reges omnes et Principes suam recipiunt dominationem ab eo, et solum mediate a Deo. Alioquin, ait, monstruosus esset hic mundus, si haberet tot capita, quae non sub unico regerentur, rediretque Manichaei deliramentum, ponentis duo principia, unum bonorum et spiritualium, aliud malorum et temporalium. Unde et sicut corpus est propter animam, et ab anima vivit et regitur; sic potestas saecularis propter spiritualem, a qua recipit suum esse legitimum. Quam auctoritatem spiritualem qui negant vel impugnant, sint intus, sint foris Ecclesiam, possunt gladio, vel spirituali excommunicationis, sicut Catholici, vel debellationis, sicut infideles, feriri, et eorum dominia vel bona in alios transferri.—Rursus animadvertis Adulatio, durum esse multis hunc sermonem, et ideo minus credibilem, studet loqui restrictius, concedens, quod, sicut ante Petrum fuerunt apud infideles vera dominia, quemadmodum irrefragabilis auctoritas sacrae Scripturae et evangelicae narrationis testis est, sic nou oportet nunc post Petrum, ut omnis potestas imperialis, regalis, vel altera saecularis sit immediate robur habens a summo Pontifice, sicut Rex Francorum Christianissimus superiorem hoc modo non habet, nec recognoscit in terris.

al theory, so the Council of Florence² and the fifth Lateran vindicated the Papal system. Among the quarrels of authors upon this subject, the most remarkable is that at the end of this period between the Dominican, Thomas de Vio Cajetan, and Jacobus Almainus, doctor of the Sorbonne.³ The chief principles of the newly risen monarchical-aristocratic system were these: that the secular power is independent of the ecclesiastical;⁴ that the supreme and legislating sovereignty in the Church belongs to gen-

Idecirco transfert verbum suum Adulatio loqui de dignitatibus, officiis, et bonis Ecclesiasticorum, quae omnia sic subjicit summo Pontifici, ut quidquid circa ea placuerit disponere mutando, transferendo, appropriando, hoc possit, hoc teneat, et ratum sit, licet hoc sine causa, licet cum peccato suo peregerit: quamvis peccatum circa hoc vult Adulatio longe a Papa sic facere, ut cum simoniam posse neget committere, quoniam sua sunt omnia ecclesiastica bona, concedit insuper quod super jus est, potens ab altero jus suum tollere; et quod nec ab eo appellari, neque eum judicialiter evocari, nec obedientiam ab eo subtrahi, praesertim extra casum haeresis, sit aliquatenus possibile. Hic solus symbolum fidei condere, hic solus causas ejusdem fidei, et majores caeteras tractare potest; solus, ut jam tactum est, definitiones, regulas, leges et canones condit: alioquin quidquid per alios definitur, decernitur, conditur, statuitur, irritum est et inane; nec aliquid ex eis quae statuerit potest, nisi per ipsum, quomodolibet cassari vel infringi: ipsum vero aliena qualiscumque constitutio ligat nulla. Fallor, si non ante celebracionem hujus sacrosanctae Constantiensis Synodi sic occupaverat mentes plurimorum, literarium magis quam literatorum, ista traditio, ut oppositorum dogmatizator fuisset de haeretica pravitate vel notatus, vel damnatus. Hujus rei signum accipe, quia post declarationem ex theologiae principiis luce clariorem, et quod urgentius est, post determinationem et practicationem ejusdem sanctae Synodi inveniuntur, qui talia palam assertere non paveant: tam radicatum, et ut cancer serpens tam medullitus imbibitum fuit hoc priscae adulacionis virus letiferum.

³ Cajetan wrote in 1511 against the Synod of Pisa, his Tract. de Comparatione Auctoritatis Papae et Concilii (in Rocaberti, Biblioth. Max. Pontificia, t. xix. p. 443, and elsewhere), in which he defends the Papal system in the most unmitigated manner. The Synod of Pisa sent this book with a letter, dd. 10th January, 1512 (see in Richerii Hist. Concill., lib. iv. P. i. c. 2, § 9), to the University of Paris with a requisition to refute it. Jac. Almainus, thus encouraged, wrote his Tract. de Auctoritate Ecclesiae et Conciliorum Generalium (in Gersonii Opp. ed. du Pin, ii. p. 976), in June, 1512. Cajetan wrote in answer, De Comparata Auctoritate Papae et Concilii Apologiae, in two parts (in Rocaberti, xix. p. 493), and afterward, A.D. 1521, De Romani Pontificis Institutione et Auctoritate (l. c. p. 526). Almainus was hindered from answering by his death, in 1513. At the same time, the Doctor of the Sorbonne, Johannes Major, a Scot, controverted Cajetan in several works published in Gersonii Opp. ed. du Pin, ii. p. 1121 ss.

⁵ Gerson, De Potest, Eccl. consid. xi. (Opp. ii. p. 243): Potestas ecclesiastica in sua plenitudine est in Ecclesia, sicut in fine, et sicut in regulante applicationem et usum hujusmodi plenitudinis ecclesiasticae potestatis per se ipsam, vel per generale Concilium, ipsam sufficienter et legitime repraesentans. Constat itaque, datam fuisse Petro plenitudinem ecclesiasticae potestatis a Christo ad aedificationem Ecclesiae suae, sicut conformiter ad Apostolum ponit descriptio. Propterea loquitur Augustinus cum aliis quibusdam, quod claves Ecclesiae datae sunt non uni, sed unitati, et quod, datae sunt Ecclesiae.—Potest etiam dici in Ecclesia vel in Concilio haec plenitudo ecclesiasticae potestatis nedum in se formaliter, sed aliis duobus modis, videlicet quoad applicationem ad hanc vel illam personam, et quoad usum regulandum, si fortassis in abusum verti quereretur.—Cum igitur summus Pontifex habens eam subjective sit peccabilis, et possit hanc potestatem in destructionem Ecclesiae velle convertere; similiter sacrum Collegium, quod ei datum est et coassistiit quasi communitas aristocratica, non est in gratia vel fide confirmatum: superest, ut aliqua sit relicta iuobliquabilis et indeviabilis regula ab optimo legislatore Christo, secundum quam possit abusus hujusmodi potestatis reprimi, dirigi atque moderari. Haec autem regula est vel Ecclesia, vel generale Concilium.—Hic fundantur ea multa, quae per hoc sacrum Concilium (Constantiense) et constituta et practicata sunt: ut quod Papa judicari potest et deponi per Concilium, etc. Nicolaus Cusanus De Concord. Cathol., lib. ii. c. 34, in Schardius, p. 349: Si universalis catholica Ecclesia infallibiliter per Christi assistentiam dirigitur; tunc concurrente omnium Christianorum consensu ad quamcumque conclusionem necessitatem salutis in cludentem, necessario sequitur, illam christianam, fidelem et veram. Universale vero Concilium dictans tales conclusionem consensu et legatione omnium fidelium, necessario ex Christi assistentia et Spiritu Sancto inspirante vere et infallibiliter dictat eandem. —Omnes autem provinciales Synodos, ac etiam Romanos Pontifices hoc privilegium non attingit. P. 351: Nec fuit Petrus ex illo primatu Ecclesiae major: quoniam ipse ab Ecclesia et propter eam nominatur secundum Augustinum.—Quare illa Petri majoritas non fuit majoritas supra, sed infra Ecclesiam. Unde licet os sive caput esset Apostolorum ac Ecclesiae,—tamen nihilominus tanquam membrum subfuit.—Unitas fidelium est illa, ad cuius servitium et observantiam praesidentia est super singulos. Hinc unitas fidelium, quam nos Ecclesiam dicimus, sive universale Concilium catholicae Ecclesiae ipsam repraesentans est supra suum ministrum ac singulorum praesidem. Andreas, Episc. Megarense, Gubernac. Concill. (see § 132, note 19), in v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const. vi., iv. p. 147: haec plenitudo potestatis papalis non fuit data Petro, ut Petro, sed fuit data universalis Ecclesiae. P. 162: quando Petrus claves accepit, has potius tota Ecclesia suppositaliter accepit in ipso Petro, sive per ipsum Petrum, et ipse Petrus claves accepit in typo, mystice; et ministerialiter ab ipsa Ecclesia universalis. Claves enim, quas Ecclesia non poterat per omnes exercere universaliter, voluit quod exequerentur per Petrum et ejus successores particulariter. P. 158: potestas universalis Ecclesiae seu Synodi generalis convocatae canonice est major, quam potestas Papae:—quia potestas Concilii est a Deo, Christo Jesu immediate, duntaxat; et potestas Papae est a Christo et Conciliis. Alphonsus Tostatus (Lecturer at Salamanca, afterward Episc. Abulensis, and the King's Councilor, † 1454) Comm. in Numer. c. 15, quaest. 48: Claves Ecclesiae datae sunt a Christo toti Ecclesiae: quia tamen non poterat tota Ecclesia dispensare illas, cum non esset aliqua persona, tradidit eas Petro nomine Ecclesiae. Si tamen intelligeretur, claves traditas esse Petro specialiter, non solum sequeretur inconveniens commune, quod alii Apostoli non habuissent aliquam auctoritatem clavium, quod falsum est, quia illis data est potestas remittendi peccata, ut patet Joannis 20. Cap. scil. accipite Spiritum Sanctum, et quorum remiseritis peccata, remissa erunt, et quorum retinueritis, retenta erunt: ista tamen est sola potestas clavis: ergo alii Apostoli suscepserunt claves. Sed aliud inconveniens majus erat, scil. quod defuncto Petro non mansisset claves, quod necesse erat, si soli Petro datae fuissent, et non solum si ipsi soli, sed etiam si omnibus Apostolis datae fuissent claves specialiter tanquam determinatis personis, defunctis illis non mansisset claves in Ecclesia, quia isti non habebant potestatem dandi aliis

claves, faciendo eos successores suos, cum nemo posset Praelatum successorem sibi facere. Et tamen omnes successores b. Petri et aliorum Episcoporum habent claves, sicut habuit Petrus et alii Apostoli: ergo non fuerunt datae claves illis tanquam determinatis personis, sed tanquam ministris Ecclesiae, et tunc magis dabantur claves Ecclesiae, cum Ecclesia, quae habet ipsas radicaliter, nunquam moriatur. Quaest. 49: Ecclesia suscepit claves a Christo, et Apostoli tanquam ministri Ecclesiae; et nunc Ecclesia illas habet, et Praelati etiam, sed aliter Ecclesia quam Praelati: nam Ecclesia habet secundum originem et virtutem, Praelati autem habent secundum usum earum. Dicitur Ecclesia habere secundum virtutem claves, quia potest illas conferre Praelato per electionem:—Ecclesia autem a nullo suscipit, postquam semel a Christo suscepit, ideo illas per originem et virtutem habet. Praef. ad Evang. b. Matthaei with reference to the Council of the Apostles: Hoc factum est Spiritu S. dictante, ut recognosceretur per hoc auctoritas et potestas Concilii generalis, qua nulla est major super terram, et non potest errare in pertinentibus ad fidem, nec errat in pertinentibus ad mores. Quilibet autem homo, quantumcunque sanctus et quantaecunque potestatis potest errare in fide et effici haereticus. Sicut de multis summis Pontificibus legimus, ut de Liberio, de Joanne XXII., et aliis quibusdam. Dionysius Carthusianus (properly de Leewis of Ryckel, a Carthusian at Ruremonde † 1471), De anuctoritate Papae et Concilii, lib. i. art. 31: Concilium generale nonni propter causas singulariter magnas et arduas, utputa quae aliter congrue expediri non queunt, congregandum celebrandumque esse omnes fatentur. Porro haec causae sunt extirpatio haereticarum pravitatis ac schismatis, declaratio fidei atque editio Symboli Ejus, universalis reformatio Ecclesiae in capite et in membris. Itaque in expeditione istorum major dicitur potestas Concilii generalis quam Papae, quoniam Christus promisit Ecclesiae seu Concilio ipsam repraesentanti infallibilem directionem et gloriosam assistantiam incessanter; ita quod errare non potest in fide, neque in his, quae ad bonos pertinent mores, eo quod in talium determinatione regatur immediate a Spiritu Sancto. Unde et Papa in talibus tenetur stare determinationi Ecclesiae, seu statuto Concilii, tanquam ordinationi et sententiae Spiritus Sancti. Cumque Papa possit errare in fide et moribus et caeteris, quae sunt de necessitate salutis; ejus judicio non videtur ultimate et certitudinaliter standum in istis, cum non sit infallibilis regula, neque indeviabile fundamentum. Jac. Almainus De Auct. Eccl. et Concill. generall. c. 7 ss. (Opp. Gersonii, ii. p. 989 ss.)

⁶ The infallibility of general councils came before the Council of Basle only as a controverted doctrine in the schools, and as such was denied even at the council itself without causing any offense, by Petrus de Alliaco; see above, § 131, note 4. This doctrine gathered shape after the Council of Constance; see (Blau's) krit. Gesch. der kirchl. Unfehlbarkeit, Frankf. a. M. 1791, s. 240 ff.; and was maintained decidedly by John Gerson, Alphonsus Tostatus, Dionysius Carthusianus, Nicolaus Cusannus. There were others indeed who held as an article of faith the infallibility of the universal Church, but not of general councils: thus Joannes Bréviscoxa (Doctor Paris, from 1420 Bishop of Paris, from 1422 Bishop of Geneva), Tract de Fide, Ecclesia, Romano Pontifice et Concilio. Art. 3, in Gersonii Opp. ed. du Pin, i. p. 898; Thomas Netterus Waldensis (Provincial of the Carmelites in England † 1430) Doctrinale Antiquitatum Fidei Cathol. adv. Wiclevitas et Hussitas. T. i. lib. ii. c. 19, 27; Nicolans de Tudesco, Archiep. Panormitanus (famous as a member of the Council of Basle, and as a canon-lawyer, under the names Abbas or Panormitanus) Comm. in Decretal, lib. i. Tit. 6, c. 4: Antoninus Archiep. Florentinus Summa Theol. P. iii. Tit. 23, c. 2, § 6; see Blau, ibid. s. 241 ff. However, the doctrine of the infallibility of general councils gradually obtained universal ascendancy among the liberal theologians as the counterpoint to the curialist theory of the infallibility of the Pope. See Jac. Almainus De Auct. Eccl. et Conc. Gen. c. 10. (Gersonii, Opp. ii. p. 1001): Papa potest errare errore judiciali, de errore personali omnibus notum est. Probatur ista proposizio: duo summi Pontifices determinaverunt contraria, etiam in his, quae fidem tangunt, ergo alter eorum erravit errore judiciali. Antecedens patet de Joanne XXII. et Nicolao, quorum unus determinavit judicialiter, Christum et Apostolos nihil habuisse in communi, nec in proprio; alter oppositum, ut videre est in eorum ex-

Pope being subordinate to them, was only a caput ministeriale Ecclesiae, and not authorized to give laws to the Church;⁷ and that appeals might be made from the Pope to a general council;⁸ in fine, that the episcopal power did not rest upon the Papal power, but shared the same foundation.⁹ Although the reasons travagantibus. Secundo Innocentius III. et Caelestinus determinaverunt contraria super ista propositione: uno conjugum ad haeresim transeunte, alter qui remanet in fide potest ad secunda vota transire. Determinatio Innocentii III., quod non potest, ponitur in cap. Quanto, De divortiis. Determinatio Caelestini, ut dicit Glossa in eodem Cap. olim ponebatur in Decretalibns ed conversione conjugatorum in fine. Tertio, aliqui statuerunt contra Evangelium, ut Pelagius, qui fecit constitutionem, quod omnes Subdiaconi Siciliae a suis uxoribus abstinerent, quas in minoribus Ordinibus duxerant, aut ab officio cessarent: quam (quia erat iniqua et contra Evangelium) retractavit Gregorius I., ejus successor, ut patet 31. Dist. Can. Ante triennium, in textu et in glossa. —Ex his satis patet, quod summus Pontifex potest errare, sententiendo in materia fidei. —Sequitur secundo, quod ultima resolutio in his quae fidei sunt, non spectat ad sumnum Pontificem.—Concilium universale in his quae fidei sunt errare non potest, et sic ad ipsum ultima fidei decisio spectat.

⁷ See note 5. Gerson, De Modis uniendi ac reformandi Ecclesiam in Conc. Univ. c. 2; see § 131, note 1. Responsio synodalnis Conc. Basil. ann. 1432 (see § 132, note 14), in Mansi xxix. p. 249: Etsi sit caput ministeriale Ecclesiae, non tamen est major tota Ecclesia. With regard to the binding force of Papal decrees see Gerson, De Potest. Eccl. consid. iv. (Opp. ii. p. 232): Ecclesia potest condere leges obligantes, et regulantes etiam ipsum Papam, tam quoad personam, quam respectu usus potestatis. Non sic et contra potest Papa judicare totam Ecclesiam, vel usum suae potestatis limitare: immo si Papa condat leges et canones, videtur observandum illud quod dicit Augustinus: leges instituuntur cum promulgantur, firmantur autem cum moribus utentium approbantur. Hoc enim dicitur ad reprimendam praesumptionem quorundam summorum Pontificum vel eis adulantium, etc. Nicolaus Cusanus De Concord. Cath. lib. ii. c. 9; Ecclesiastici canones non possunt nisi per ecclesiasticam congregationem, quae Synodus vel coetus dicitur, statui. Et ideo nisi, quicunque ille fuerit, aut Papa, aut Patriarcha, decreta secundum canones ecclesiasticos promulgaverit, non possunt illa statuta, canones, sive ecclesiastica statuta vocari; et nihil habent firmitatis, cujuscunque particularis statuta, nisi in quantum per acceptationem et usum seu consensum confirmantur, seu canonibus consentiant. Almainus De Auct. Eccl. et Conc. gen. c. 12. (Gersonii Opp. ii. p. 1008): Summus Pontifex non solum deponi potest ab Ecclesia seu Concilio pro haeresi, verum etiam et pro alio crimen notorio Ecclesiam scandalizante.

in defense of this theory were principally drawn from the earlier ecclesiastical laws, which had been still retained in the collections of statutes in force; yet, as the investigation of these laws could have easily led to more comprehensive historical researches, its champions took their ground almost exclusively upon the dogmatical scholastic platform. Undoubtedly individuals had attained, by the help of the newly-awakened knowledge of antiquity, to deeper insight into history. The fraud of the Pseudo-Isidorian decretals and the spuriousness of the grant of Constantine were known to many, and the latter had been publicly announced by Laurentius Valla.¹⁰ However, these discoveries were neither as yet made public property, nor used by the liberal canonists for their own advantage, and so the weapon of history, most fatal to the Papacy, was not yet directed against it with any effect.

Against this new monarchic-aristocratical system, which had grown up especially in France, and was regarded and defended as

potestatis a Christo recepit aliis Apostolis.—Nihil enim dictum est ad Petrum, quod etiam aliis dictum non sit.—Ideo recte dicimus, omnes Apostolos in potestate cum Petro aequales.—Unde cum potestas ligandi et solvendi, in qua fundatur omnis ecclesiastica jurisdiction, sit immediate a Christo;—et quia ab illa potestate ligandi et solvendi est divinae jurisdictionis potestas; patet, omnes Episcopos, et forte etiam Presbyteros aequalis potestatis esse quoad jurisdictionem, licet non exequutionis. Quod quidem exercitium exequutivum sub certis positivis terminis clauditur et restringitur propter melius et causam cum majori parte perducendi omnes homines ad finem suum, scil. Deum: ob quem finem finaliter omnis potestas, et jurisdiction, et statuta humana per media proportionata tempori et loco tendere debent. Unde cessante causa statui illius,—puta vel ob negligentiam inferiorum, vel necessitatem, tunc cessant illa positiva jura.—Quare dicimus,—quod omnes Episcopi unius sunt potestatis et dignitatis: quae supra sunt, scil. Archiepiscopalis, Patriarchalis, et Papalis sunt administrationes.—Quare hoc solum singularitatis in Petro inveniems, quod ipse fuit major in administratione, ad quam volentibus Apostolis a Christo est electus, quia senior.—Sicut principatus Petri a legatione Christi dependebat, ita et omnium Episcoporum:—quare qui eos audit, Christum audit.—Apostolicum praeceptum habent omnes Episcopi regendi se et gregem.—Si dicas, Papam subditos Episcoporum absolvare et ligare, dico idem in aliis, quando consensus proprietum intervenit. Actus enim, aliter nullus, per consensum aut gratificationem proprii sacerdotis in hac materia validus efficitur.—Cum ergo usu communis sit hoc introductum, et ex usu consensus elicetur, patet quod efficacia hujus vigorem ex consensu recipit.—Igitur non legitur, antiquos Romanos Pontifices se de his intromisisse, et talia confessionalia et alia consimilia concessisse, et forte non fuisset permisum. Unde si Concilium Africanum, cui se subscriptis s. Augustinus, non admisit appellationem a Synodo ad Papam (see vol. i. § 92, note 52),—quomodo tunc adminisissent ista, et ea quae hodie exorbitanter fiunt? Sed quia consensus ex usu longaevo hoc nunc introduxit, valida illa sunt quoad animarum salutem, quam diu patiuntur: tolli autem possent per Concilium, et hoc reformatio depositit.—Et dum hanc partem defendimus, quod Papa non est universalis Episcopus, sed super alios primus, et sacrorum Conciliorum non in Papa, sed in consensu omnium vigorem fundamus: tunc quia veritatem defendimus, et unicuique suum honorem reservamus, recte Papam honoramus.

the groundwork of all Church freedom, the ancient Papal system, under the protection of the popes, found no less decided champions principally in Italy, among the throng of men who were bound to the Curia partly by favors received, partly by their hopes;¹¹ roused by opposition, they maintained this system in its most unmitigated form, and without avoiding its most obnoxious results.¹² According to them the Pope's authority was exalted immeasurably above every other dignity on earth;¹³ the Pope was the lord of

illis intermissis, immediate in quemcunque Christianum operari, ut immediatus ordinarius Pastor et Praelatus, quando viderit expedire.—8. in exemptione inferiorum Praelatorum a superiori.—9. in hoc, quod non ligatur legibus a se factis, aut etiam sacrorum Conciliorum canonibus, sed potest ex plenitudine potestatis super jus et leges positas facere, et in canonibus Conciliorum *juxta*¹⁵ temporum opportunitatem aut locorum, et personarum conditiones dispensare.—10. in dispensatione actionum humanarum, puta votorum et juramentorum.—11. in administratione et dispensatione rerum ecclesiasticarum. Alli autem Praelati et Collegia habent potestatem coarctatam in administrando et dispensando res suas, et transferendo dominium ipsarum, obligando, et alienando, quia nonnisi ex certis causis et cum certis solemnitatibus jure possunt res Ecclesiae alienare:—Papa vero in istis solus sine consensu etiam cuiuscumque, et sine solemnitatibus potest res quascumque cuiuslibet Ecclesiae alienare, et alienando dominium transferre, dum tamen hoc faciat ex justa causa.—12. in hoc,—quod quaedam sunt superiorum Ordinum, quae potest Papa committere inferioribus quibusdam: sicut Presbyteris concedit conferre minores Ordines, quod pertinet ad potestatem Episcopalem:—13. in dispensatione thesauri Ecclesiae, quoniam ipse solus, utpote Christi principalis vicarius et dispensator, dat plenariam indulgentiam, et omni homini fideli de toto mundo.—14. in hoc, quod dispositio totius ecclesiastici ordinis quoad dignitates ecclesiasticas,—et dispensatio beneficiorum, tanquam ad servum, quem constituit Dominus super familiam, ut det illis tritici mensuram, pertinent ad Romanum Pontificem.—15. in canonizatione Sanctorum. Rodericus Sancius, Episc. Zamorensis et Referendarius, P. Pauli II., Speculum Vitae Humanae (Romae, 1468, frequently published, e. g. Argent. 1507, fol.), lib. ii. c. 1: Summi Pontificatus excellentiam, dignitatem et auctoritatem,—illiusque necessitatem et utilitatem ostendere, hodie munus suscepi, grande quidem negotium, sed parvum ingenium. Cujus tanta est sublimitas et eminentia, tanta immensitas, ut nullus mortalium nedium comprehendere, aut satis exprimere, sed nec cogitare posset. Obtundit enim omnem humanum intellectum illius sacratissimi et omnium eminentissimi status majestas et excellentia, quia scriptum est: scrutator majestatis opprimetur a gloria. Si—nihil in hoc saeculo excellentius—inveniri potest statu et dignitate simplicium sacerdotum,—quid cogitandum est de eo summo Pontifice, qui vices veri Dei gerit in terris? qui ad plenitudinem status, qui ad apostolicum thronum, qui ad culmen omnium dignitatum assumitur, ex qua certe, ut rivuli a fonte, rami ab arbore procedunt. Qui non ad humanum tantum principatum, sed ad divinum; non ad principandum solum mortalibus, nec modo hominibus, sed angelis; non ad judicandum vivos, sed mortuos; non in terra solum, sed in caelo; non ad praesidendum solis fidelibus, sed infidelibus: et (ut paucis agam) qui ad eam ipsam dignitatem, ad eandem jurisdictionem et coactiōnem, ac universalem toto orbe supremum principatum a summo Deo et ejus loco super cunctos mortales institutus et erectus est. De quo per Job scriptum est, quod coram eo curvantur, qui portant orbem, et Reges seculi atque tyranni ridiculum sunt, qui solus omnem potestatem ambit. Et, sicut Scriptura commemorat, unus est, et secundum non habet.—Cujus, teste propheta, suae sunt justitiae, potestas et imperium. Quem iterum David signat inquiens: dedit ei potestatem et regnum, et omnes populi et linguae servient ei, etc.

orbis Dominus, or, Rex aut Imperator orbis; it did not follow, ut quemadmodum omnes dignitates ecclesiasticae a sede Apostolica pendere dicuntur ab ea jurisdictionem sumentes,—ita principatus et jurisdictiones Regum et Principum saecularium dependent ab ea. Neither any more, quod de feudis Principum saecularium, aut de possessionibus directe se intromittere aut judicare valeat regulariter; and, quod a quoconque judice saeculari passim et regulariter ad eum possit appellari. Moreover—Papa non habet potestatem, sive jurisdictionem in temporalibus, ut Reges in bonis temporalibus habent dominium, nec ita ut sit regulariter eorum dispensator:—non habet ita plenam jurisdictionem in temporalibus, sicut in spiritualibus, ita quod sicut deponere potest Praelatum ecclesiasticum, etiam sine culpa sua, ita possit deponere Principem saecularem, sive laicum. On the other hand, cap. 114: potestatis spiritualis, et maxime Papae, qui est universalis dux et rector populi Christiani, est dirigere et regulare, praeccipere atque leges dare potestati saeculari, quibus in administratione sui officii dirigatur in finem ultimum felicitatis aeternae. Et secundum hoc Romanus Pontifex se habet ad Reges et Principes, tanquam architectonicus ad artifices: ille enim propter quid et regulas judicandi scit: isti autem, scil. artifices mechanici, tanquam experti in multis ipsum quia sciunt, propter quid autem ignorant: propter quod debet illis Papa leges dare, secundum quas debent jurisdictionem suam exerci, et populum regere in ordine ad beatitudinem supernaturalem.—Ex cura ergo pastorali, quam Romanus Pontifex habet super omnes fideles, cuiuscumque status, dignitatis vel conditionis existant, statim datur intelligi, quod apostolum non tantum spiritualis potestatis, sed etiam temporalis aliquo modo habere dicendus sit.—Sine ulla dubitatione ad Praelatos Ecclesiae, et maxime ad Praelatum Praetorium pertinet jure sibi a deo collato recognoscere et judicare de peccato quoconque.—Non solum Principes saeculares circa usum suae jurisdictionis delinquentes potest per ceusuram ecclesiasticam coercere, verum etiam eos notabiliter negligentes a dignitate deponere. This moderation of Torquemada, by means of which, however, not one of the Papal pretensions was rescinded, was probably the fruit of circumstances during the Council of Basle. Afterward the Ultramontanes spoke with less disguise. Thus Dominicus Venetus (Episc. Torcellanus, afterward Brixensis, about 1465), in Marci Antonii de Dominis De Republ. Eccles. lib. vi. c. 10, § 3): Papa est verus Dominus mundi, et verus Monarchia, et apud ipsum est ultraque monarchia. Papa potest tollere Imperium, praesertim si videatur sibi, quod aliter mundus melius gubernaretur: et quod nullus esset Monarcha praeter ipsum, et quod Reges immediate ipsum recognoscerent, et nullum alium superiorem. Papa temporalem jurisdictionem habet universaliter in omni loco, et potest eam exerci. Papa non solum potest deponere Imperatores et Reges, verum etiam Imperium et Regnum extinguere in laicis, etiam sine causa, et Principatus supprimere, et nova regna aut Principatus erigere. Rodericus Sancius, Bp. of Zamorra (see note 11), in his work, De Origine et Differentia Principatum (in Le Bret's Magazin f. Staaten- und Kirchengesch. Th. 4, s. 520): Est vero naturaliter, moraliter et divino iure cum recta fide tenendum, Principatum Romani Pontificis esse verum, unicunq; immediatum Principatum totius orbis, nedium quoad spiritualia, sed quoad temporalia; et principatum imperiale esse ab ipso dependentem et mediatum, ministeriale et instrumentale, eidem subministrantem et deservientem, foreque ab eo ordinatum et institutum, et ad jussum Principatus papalis mobilem, revocabilem, corrigibilem et punibilem. Especially remarkable in this point of view is the reprimand received by an imperial ambassador in the Papal consistory, A.D. 1473; see Jac. Volaterrani, Diarium Romanum in Muratori Scriptt. Rer. Ital. xxiii. p. 94: Thomas quidam, vir acris ingenii, quum Imperatoris Federici nomine assumi ad dignitatem Cardinalatus Dominicum Episcopum Brixensem contendenter, eamque ob causam postulato Senatu ac dato servidius loqueretur, saepe inter agendum Monarcham orbis Imperatorem appellabat. Tum Cardinalis Rotomagensis, qui etiam causae Dominici minus favebat, paulo commotior factus: male, inquit, agis, Thoma; non tuus Imperator, sed hic noster Pontifex Monarcha est orbis: pati non possum, Romanae amplitudini detrahi. Tum ille: non omnium, inquit, Monarcham Imperatorem ajo; temporalium tantum intelligo. Et Rotomagensis: nec temporalium quoque illi est Monarchia: jure divino et pontificio tota Romani est Praesul. Idem qui ex Patribus jus didicere, uno judicio confirmarunt.

Pontifex non solum auctoritatem in canonibus sanctorum Conciliorum, etiam universalium, et decretis suorum praedecessorum dispensans habet, verum etiam tollendi, aut revocandi, aut mutandi, prout temporum aut causarum necessitas exposcit. C. 62: Quemadmodum ad Romanum Pontificem, ut ad Ecclesiae Principem, pertinet, Concilia universalia, si bene processerint, approbatione et auctoritate sua confirmando honorare; ita ipsius est, ea Concilia quae in perniciem fidei, aut totius Ecclesiae perturbationem celebrata reperta fuerint, corrigere, reprobare, ac cassare, ea, quae minus juste, minusque bene acta sunt, retractando et condemnando. Thom. Cajetanus, De Auctor. Papae et Concilii, c. 7 ss. (Rocaberti, xix. p. 455), c. 20, p. 474, it was allowed—quod Papa factus haereticus subest potestati ministeriali Ecclesiae, et non auctoritativa super Papam; on the other hand, c. 24, p. 482 ss., it was resolutely denied, quod Papa propter incorrigibilitatem in quocumque notorio crimine scandalizante Ecclesiam subjiciatur Concilii potestati, ita quod possit deponi: viz. because, c. 26, p. 487, it was written in Matth. xviii., quod pes, manus, vel oculus, nou tamen caput scandalizans amputaretur. Apologiae, P. I. c. i. Et cum Princeps iste unus atque idem Dominus Jesus heri, hodie, et in saecula vivat et regnet; secundum naturalis juris consequentiam oportet, ut ad ipsum Principem, non ad communitatem Ecclesiae spectet in sua absentia ordinare de Vicario, non communitatis Ecclesiae, quae utpote serva nata principandi jure caret, sed ipsis Principis, naturalis Domini communitatis Ecclesiae. Et hoc ipsum Salvator noster per semetipsum exequi dignatus est, dum Petrum Apostolum solum instituit suum Vicarium post resurrectionem, antequam coelos ascenderet, ut patet Joan. ult.

¹⁷ Jo. de Turrecremata, ii. c. 107: Ad Romani Pontificis auctoritatem spectat, tanquam ad generalem totius orbis principalem magistrum et doctorem, determinare ea, quae fidei sunt, et per consequens edere symbolum fidei, sacrae Scripturae interpretari sensus, et doctorum singulorum dicta ad fidem spectantia approbare vel reprobare. C. 109: tanta soliditate veritatis apostolicum thronum clementia Divinitatis firmaverat, quod judicium ejus in his, quae fidei sunt, errare a veritati non possit. Decebat sane ut sedes illa, quae superni dispositione Concilii magistra fide, et cardo omnium instituebatur Ecclesiarum, in his, quae fidei sunt, hominumque necessaria saluti, ab ipso omnium auctore Deo,—hoc singulari infallibilitatis munere donaretur. In cuius rei sacramentum primo illius sedis Pontifici—nomen firmitatis imponitur, scil. Petrus, quod Syra lingua rupes interpretatur. C. 112: Ubi—bene advertendum, quod non dicitur, quoad Papa errare non possit, aut male sentire aut judicare in his, quae fidei sunt;—sed dicitur, quod sententia, quam in iudicio Rom. Pontifex profert in his, quae fidei sunt, errare non possit, aut quod sedis Apostolicae iudicium, quod idem est, errare non possit.—Sedis autem Apostolicae—sententia in iudicio prolat a Rom. Pontifice intelligitur, non quae occulta, malitiosa, aut inconsulte per solum Rom. Pontificem, aut etiam quae per ipsum cum paucis sibi faventibus, aliis in fraudem contemptis sive non vocatis, ad partem profertur; sed quae a Rom. Pontifice cum maturo et gravi virorum sapientum, et maxime dominorum Cardinalium primo Concilio digesta et maturata sancitur et proferuntur. Lib. iii. c. 58: On the question, utrum universale Concilium in his, quae fidei sunt, errare possit? Ad quam questionem nobis videtur sub distinctione respondendum. De Concilio universalis loqui possumus duplicitate: uno modo de Concilio universalis plenario, plenarium autem Concilium dicimus, in quo cum Ecclesiae patribus Romanus Pontifex eorum caput—concurrit.—Secundo modo loqui possumus de Concilio, prout dicitur corpus tantum patrum, distinctum a capite suo Romano Pontifice. Si primo modo loquamur de Concilio, fit ista conclusio: Concilium universale in his, quae ad fidem pertinent, errare non potest, quae tam patrum Ecclesiae, quam Romani Pontificis unanimi consensu definita sunt.—Apostolicae sedis iudicium in his, quae fidei sunt, errare non potest; ergo nec Concilium universale, in quo Apostolicae sedis intervenit, sive concurrit auctoritas et consensus.—But, on the hand, Concilium universale non interveniente consensus et approbatione Apostolicae sedis errare potest in his, quae fidei sunt.—Phantasia stulta eorum, qui omni Concilio non errandi gratiam quasi essentialiter inesse affirman, cum tam ex Evangelio, quam ex actibus Apostolorum, et gestis antiquorum Conciliorum manifeste oppositum habeatur. Dominicus Venetus (see note 12), de Cardinalium legitima creatione (published at the end of Marci Ant. de Dominis De Republ. Eccl. P. i.), Propos. vii.: Universale Concilium legitime congregatum, et auctoritate Romani Pontificis confirmatum, in se et decretis suis universalem Ecclesiam repreäsentat: et id, quod facit aut determinat cum tali approbatione et consensus Maximi Pontificis, tenendum est ratum et firmum, ac si universalis Ecclesia determinaret, quae non permittitur a Deo errare in fide, nec in determinando ea, quae ad bene vivendum pertinent.—Haec autem infallibilis regula non est Concilium, etiam legitime congregatum.—Nam multa Concilia errasse leguntur;—Ephesina secunda universalis fuit, et legitime congregata, utpote auctoritate Leonis Max. Pont. et pro justa causa, utpote pro damnatione haeresis: quae tamen errasse legitur.—In cuius correctionem Synodus Chalced. convocata est ejusdem Leonis auctoritate; et hoc quia non requiritur solum auctoritas Rom. Pontificis in congregando, sed etiam in definita et sancita approbando.—Similiter etiam nec Papa solus est illa regula infallibilis, quia aliqui errasse leguntur in fide, ut patet de Liberio, et de Anastasio secundo, qui communicavit Acacio haeretico, ideo percussus est a Deo (evidently a mistake for the Emperor Anastasius): ergo infallibilis regula erit Papa, exhibito debito consilio peritorum; a fortiori ergo si cum generali Concilio, quod pro arduis causis congregatur, quia difficilius errant plures, quam pauci. Thom. Cajetanus, De Auctor. Papae et Conciliis, c. 9 (Rocaberti, xix. p. 460): Magis potest errare communitas Ecclesiae sine auctoritate Papae, quam Papa. Et ratio est, quia error Papae in definitiva sententia fidei est error totius Ecclesiae,—quia ad ipsa

on so far, that many persons exalted the donatio Constantini, denied by Laurentius Valla, into a restitutio,¹⁸ and hailed the Pope as a god on earth.¹⁹

Each of these systems declared the opposite view to be a pernicious error; but the imminent danger of an irremediable schism hindered these condemnations from being recklessly carried into effect. Besides, a peculiar embarrassment was at hand for the popes, from the fact that they were obliged to regard the Council of Constance as ecumenical, in order to prove the validity of spectat determinare finaliter de fide quid tenendum, et quid repellendum.—Impossibile est autem universalem Ecclesiam errare in fide, ergo impossibile est, Papam in judicio definitivo auctoritative errare in fide.—Papa in hujusmodi judicio est rectissimus propter assistentiam Spiritus Sancti.

¹⁸ Antonini Summa Historialis Pars i. Tit. 8, c. 2, § 8: Quaestio adhuc agitur inter Canonistas et Legistas, utrum illa tenuerit donatio. Quod Canonistae omnino firmant, et Theologi magis confirmant eo quia non fuit simplex donatio, sed potius restitutio Ecclesiae facta juris sui, cum omnia sint de Christi dominio, cuius Papa est vicarius in terris: caetera vero dimisit dominis temporalibus. Jo. Major (see note 2), Comm. in Matth. c. 16, in Gersonii Opp. ed. du Pin, ii. p. 1158: Quaeritur, an Constantinus contulerit justum titulum Pontifici in terris, quae nunc vocantur Ecclesiae. Est hic modus dicendi: aliqui volunt, quod nunquam ei dedit terras in Italia, nec Romanam urbem; aliquibus placet, quod nec dare poterat Italianam, sive istas terras quae dicuntur Ecclesiae; alii tenentes, Pontificem habere dominium tam in spiritualibus, quam in temporalibus, dicunt, quod nihil dedit, sed solum detentum injuste restituit. He maintained, on the other hand: Ecclesia licite cepit, and, Constantinus M. licite multa contulit Ecclesiis, thus, Rom. Pont. juste possidet. It is worthy of note, that the Cardinal Bernardinus Carvajal, Card. S. Crucis, who stood at the head of the cardinals that forsook Julius II. and summoned the Council of Pisa in 1511, had formerly written in defense of this Restitutio: Jo. Boutzbachius (Prior in the Monastery of Laach near Andernach) writes of him in the year 1511, in his Auctarium in librum Jo. Trithemii de Scriptoribus ecclesiasticis (MS. in the library of the University of Bonn): Scripsit quidem preclara opera, e quibus unum exstat, quod mihi dudum innotuit contra Laurentium Vallam et alios, qui vesana sua loquacitate audent latrare in summum Christi Vicarium et s. Romanam Ecclesiam, quasi non vera, sed falsa et conficta sit donatio Constantini Imperatoris. In quo quidem praegrandi volumine omnem istorum assertionem ita subnervavit, ut non tantum veram, sed quod magis est, legitimam et debitam restitutionem potius quam donationem fuisse probet. Omnem itaque bestialem Laurentii invectionem elidens scripsit contra eundem: De restitutione Constantini l. I.

their own succession; and yet they were compelled to reject its fundamental principles, which were the groundwork of the Gallican system. For this reason they greatly preferred to pass over the unpleasant decrees of Constance in silence:²⁰ when they were forced to speak, they helped themselves by evasive interpretations; many of their adherents did not shrink from a downright denial of the validity of these decrees.²¹

Since this controversy had its root in the hierarchy, the secular power thereby regained such ascendancy in the different countries that it principally depended upon this power which system should prevail.²² But the temporal governments allowed themselves to be principally swayed by political aims in their demeanor toward the Pope. While in France the principles of the Papal system, when they were made prominent, were immediately condemned by the Parliament and the University of Paris,²³ in other coun-

²¹ Jo. de Turrecremata Summa, ii. c. 99 (Rocaberti, xiii. p. 426), sets aside the conclusions drawn from the decrees of Constance and Basle for the statement—Concilium generale potestatem a Christo habere immediate. With reference to the decree of Constance Sess. V. (see § 131, note 8), in which this statement was expressly maintained, he first remarks: Ecce manifeste, quod decretum illorem Patrum non loquitur universaliter de qualibet Synodo universaliter, sed de illa singulariter, pro cuius tempore non erat in Ecclesia unus pastor totius Ecclesiae indubitatus; but also, apart from this, he holds that that decree was not binding (non habet necessitatem): because, Decreta illa si ita sunt appellanda, facta sunt solum a Patribus aliquibus obedientiae Johannis XXIII. The Council of Constance did not become universal until the three obediences were united. Besides, praefatum decretum Constantiense non militat, quoniam per Apostolicam sedem non fuit approbatum, immo videtur per Dominum Martinum reprobatum, sive annullatum in condemnatione erroris Joannis Vicleff et Joannis Hus, inter quos unus articulus condemnatus est: quod Petrus non est nec fuit caput Ecclesiae sanctae catholicae. In like manner, cap. 100, he proves the corresponding decrees of Basle to be invalid. The argument drawn from the confirmation of them by Eugene IV. (see § 132, note 17) he disposes of thus, quod praefatae bullae magis extortae fuerunt minis, quam de mente Domini Eugenii emanaverint. But independently of this, nihil eorum, quae in praefatis bullis continentur, suffragatur adversariis, quoniam Dominus Eugenius numquam praebuit consensum decretis Concilii Basileensis. Compare his Responsio de summi Pont. et gen. Concilii Potestate, l. c. p. 578. In like manner Cajetanus De Auct. Papae et Conc. c. 8 (Rocaberti, xix. p. 456), denies the validity of the decrees of Constance, and seeks to prove that the confirmation by Martin V. (see § 131, note 24), did not extend to the decrees of the fourth and fifth session. Compare Apologiae, P. ii. c. 11. (l. c. p. 508).

²³ The mendicant monks in particular, the natural adherents of the Papal system from the peculiar relations of their order, drew upon themselves such censures. Thus the Dominican, Johannes Sarrazin, in the year 1429, was obliged to recant the following statements (d'Argentré Collectio Judiciorum de Novis Erroribus, I. ii. p. 227): Omnis potestates jurisdictionis Ecclesiae—sunt ab ipso Papa quantum ad institutionem et colla-

tries the same fate befell the opposite doctrines of the Gallican system.²⁴ And if, from the side of France and Germany, humiliating demands were not unfrequently made upon the popes, Spain and Portugal found it for their interest to receive from them the right of possession to the countries which they had conquered, and which were for the most part newly discovered;²⁵ thus conditionem. Hujusmodi potestates non sunt de jure divino, nec immediate institutae a Deo. —Quandocumque in aliquo Concilio aliqua instituuntur, tota auctoritas dans vigorem statutis in solo summo residet Pontificio. —Summus Pontifex canonicam simoniam a jure positivo prohibitam non potest committere. The Augustin, Nicolaus Quadrigarius, 1442, had to revoke the statement (I. c. p. 240): sola Papae potestas in tota Ecclesia immediate est a Christo. The Franciscan, Joannes Angeli, in February, 1483, the assertions (I. c. p. 305): Papa posset totum jus canonicum destruere et novum construere. —Papa posset ab uno Ecclesiastico tollere medietatem redditum beneficiorum suorum et uni alteri dare, non exprimendo aliquam causam. Quicumque contradicit voluntati Papae, paganizat, et sententiam excommunicationis incurrit ipso facto: et a nullo Papa reprehendi potest, nisi in materia haeresis.

²⁴ Thus an assembly of divines and canon-lawyers, convoked by the Archbishop of Toledo at Complutum, in 1479, condemned the following propositions among others, which Petrus de Osma, a Doctor from Paris who lectured at Salamanca, had published in a Libellus Confessionis (Barth. Caranza Summa Conciliorum, Duaci, 1659. 8, p. 660): VII. quod Ecclesia urbis Romae errare potest. VIII. quod Papa non potest dispensare in statutis universalis Ecclesiae (similarly Gerson De Modis uniendi ac reformandi Ecclesiam c. 9; see above, § 181, note 1. Jac. Almaini Expositio circa Doctrinam M. Occami c. 12, in Gersonii Opp. ed du Pin, ii. p. 1055). In the bull with which Sixtus IV. confirms this decision (in Raynald. 1479, no. 32, complete in de Aguirre Concill. Hispaniae, v. p. 353 ss.), Prop. VII. is not to be found: it is, however, sufficient that in Spain it was considered worthy of condemnation. The theological faculty at Vienna, in the year 1492, accused one of its members, Johannes Kaltenmarkter, before Pope Innocent VIII., for having taught: Concilium esse supra Papam; Papam non posse revocare per Concilium generale conclusum; Romanum Pontificem non posse dare licentiam Parochianis quibuscumque, ut alteri, quam proprio sacerdoti Curato libere confiteantur; Papam non posse dare generalem potestatem audiendi confessiones. Kaltenmarkter had to make his appearance in Rome, undergo a penance imposed upon him, and afterward recant his assertions at Vienna: see the extracts from the proceedings, printed in 1493, in (Dietrich) Auctarium Catalogi Testium Veritatis, p. 260.; cf. Mitterdorfferi Conspectus Hist. Univ. Viennensis Saec. ii. Viennae, 1724. 8, p. 54 ss.; Hansizii. Germ. Sacra, t. i. p. 597.

²⁵ See the letter of Nicolas V. to Alphonso, king of Portugal, A.D. 1452 (Raynald. ad. h. a. no. 11): tibi Saracenos et Paganos, aliosque infideles et Christi inimicos quoscumque, et ubicumque constitutos, regna, ducatus,—aliaque dominia, terras,—et quaecumque alia—bona mobilia et immobilia—per eosdem—possessa—invadendi—et subjugandi, illorum personas in perpetuam servitutem redigendi, regna quoque,—aliaque dominia—et bona hujusmodi tibi et successoribus tuis, Regibus Portugalliae, perpetuo applicandi—plenam et liberam auctoritate apostolica tenore praesentium concedimus facultatem. With reference thereto Nicolas V., in 1454, granted to the King the new discoveries on the west coast of Africa as his own domain (Raynald. ad h. a. no. 9): de apostolicae potestatis plenitudine literas facultatis praefatas—ad Ceptensem et praedicta et quaecumque alia, etiam ante datam dictarum facultatem literarum acquisita, et ea quae in posterum nomine—Alfonsi Regis suorumque successorum in ipsis—et ulterioribus—partibus de infidelium—manibus acquiri poterunt,—sub ejusdem facultatis literis contineri praelibatis,—ipsamque conquestam, quam a capitibus de Bonador et de Nam usque per totam Ghineam—extendi harum serie declaramus, etiam ad ipsos Alfonsum Regem, ceding to the Papal See its loftiest pretensions. On the whole, then, the Pope, both on account of his spiritual sway over men's minds and his temporal dominions in Italy, at that time the apple of discord to the most powerful monarchs, was of so great importance that all princes necessarily attached great value to his friendship, and that even a King of France was ready to sacrifice for it the welfare of his National Church.²⁶ These political connections now constituted the strongest hold of the Papal See;²⁷ praedecessores suos ac infantem—spectasse—et in perpetuum spectare,—decernimus et declaramus: ac pro potioris juris et cantelae suffragio jam acquisita et quae in posterum acquiri contigerit provincias—praeditis Alfonso Regi ac successoribus—perpetuo donamus, concedimus, et appropriamus per praesentes. Alexander VI., dd. v. non. Maji 1493 (in Raynald. h. a. no. 18), granted the newly discovered regions of America to Ferdinand and Isabella, sovereigns of Spain, quite in the same form, and defined this grant more accurately in a letter to them on the same day (l. c. no. 19): de nostra mera liberalitate, et ex certa scientia ac de apostolicae potestatis plenitudine omnes insulas et terras firmas inventas et inveniendas,—fabricando et construendo unam lineam a polo arctico—ad polum antarcticum,—quae linea distet a qualibet insularum, quae vulgariter nuncupantur de los Azores y cabo Verde, centum leucis versus occidentem et meridiem, ita quod omnes insulae et terrae firmae repertae et reperiendae—a praefata linea versus occidentem et meridiem, quae per alium Regem aut Principem Christianum non fuerint actualiter possessae,—auctoritate omnipotentis Dei nobis in b. Petro concessa, ac vicariatus Jesu Christi, qua fungimur in terris, cum omnibus illarum dominii, civitatibus,—juribusque et jurisdictionibus, ac pertinentiis universis vobis haeredibusque—vestris—in perpetuum tenore praesentium donamus, concedimus, assignamus. As early as 1494 Ferdinand conceded to the King of Portugal that this line should be drawn 360 leagues westward of the Azores instead of 100.

and so it became the aim of Papal policy to win the support of the temporal princes against the encroachments of the ecclesiastical aristocracy.

True, the devotion of the nations to the Papacy had not now for a long time rested, as it had done in the period of the crusades, upon religious enthusiasm, but only upon custom. However, even this would hardly have been destroyed by all the theories, had not the immorality of the curia, its avarice, its venality, and injustice, so greatly injured the common weal, and outraged moral sentiment.²⁸ The more closely any nation was brought into connection with the doings of the popes and their court, the lower sank their feeling of reverence toward the Pope; and in Italy itself, although the Papal system seemed there to reign supreme, nevertheless the Pope's excommunication was least regarded.²⁹

Accordingly, their most faithful councilors recommended to the popes an abatement of their oppressions, and a reform of the abuses prevailing at their court; and the whole of the fifteenth century was pervaded by a strong feeling that, if there was here no change from above downward, there would be a compulsory reformation rising upward from below, not effected without vio-

Chemensis Onus Ecclesiae (see note 28), cap. 19, § 14: Quamobrem vehementer prae sumendum est, ac provide est timendum, propinquam nunc esse ruinam Ecclesiae latinae circa dignitatem ecclesiasticam, quoniam debile fundamentum ruinam causat. Unde columna Dei viventis jam pene videtur nutare, et sagena summi piscatoris, scil. Petri, procellis intumescentibus cogitur in naufragii profunda submergi: quod nemo percipit corde, neque ad praedictas revelationes et avisations fit cuiuspiam emendatio, sed singuli Pontifices, tam summi quam inferiores, carnalia sequentes, exhibent se magis mixti Antichristi praecursores, quam veri Christi fideles servitores.

gens aut natio fidelium tantam resistantiam faciat reformationi universali Ecclesiae, sicut natio Italica, et alii eis applaudentes, spe promotionis, aut lucri, aut temporalis commodi, aut timore amissionis dignitatum ligati. Contremiscunt enim solo auditu congregationis generalis Concilii, cum sciant per experientiam, quod Concilia generalia palpare nesciunt, sed corrigeret et emendare sine personarum acceptione: cum ibi congregentur de omnibus mundi partibus, qui vitiis non parcunt, nec amore nec timore seducti.—Praesidentes ex parte Papae Conciliis, quia vident contra dominum suum et contra se negotium Conciliorum disponi, quid aliud agere existimandi sunt, quam ut tota auctoritate decretis Conciliorum obicem ponant, aut per dissolutionem Conciliorum, aut per discordiarum seminationem: sicque opus totum redditur infectum, ac per hoc itur in antiquam sylvam, scil. erroris et tenebrarum.—Et ex hoc ortum est vulnus nescio quando curabile contra auctoritatem Conciliorum generalium, ut abscedentibus Papa aut suis praesidentibus a loco Concilii, vel differentia exorta inter patres ejusdem, censatur Concilium dissolutum, resideatque in persona Papae de plenitudine potestatis auctoritas dissolvendi aut transferendi generalia Concilia, prout Eugenius olim Papa de anno Domini 1437, fecisse comprobatur. Hocque venenum effusum est per eum in Ecclesiam, per adversarios Conciliorum indelebiliter observandum,—ad quod refugium habebunt in fulcimentum sui erroris, ut subterfugere valeant correctionem et reformationem: ita ut etiam modernis temporibus frontose aliqui altarum scientiarum viri dogmatizare audeant, in quolibet Papa residere plenitudinem potestatis, non solum super quolibet membro singulari Ecclesiae, sed et super totam Ecclesiam conciliariter congregatam, ad libitum ipsius disponendi, decretandi, dissolvendi, transferendi, corrigendi, et auctorizandi: ut nullus ei audeat dicere: cur ita facis? Et sic totalitur nituntur suffocare auctoritatem Conciliorum. P. 48: Et nisi in futuro Concilio celeri remedio provideatur huic veneno recenter introducto, de auctoritate Conciliorum supra Papam, cuius contrarium dogmatizant aliqui, et maxime de curia Papae et ejusdem assentatores: clarum est quanta inconvenientia inde sequantur. Primo quia datur Papae audacia impune peccandi et disponendi omnia negotia Ecclesiae ad libitum suum. Secundo quia datur subjectis in toto orbe occasio vilipendendi, imo contemnendi omnes constitutiones, ordinationes et mandata Papae.—Tertio sequitur, quod si in antea fieret convocatio Concilii generalis, totius Germaniae Principes et Praelati, Doctores ac Magistri se subducerent a Concilio.—Exinde iudibrio ducerentur Concilia: maxime quia videmus, quod omnia, quae tantis laboribus, impendiis in retroactis Concilii elaborata sunt, penitus irritantur, et tanquam pulveres ventis obnoxii conculecantur. Fontale vero principium omnium illorum malorum secundum Apostolum est cupiditas, quae sibi vendicat locum pene in omnibus Clericis: quoniam secundum Jeremiam a maximo usque ad minimum omnes avaritiae student. Ad quam satiandem non reperiunt ecclesiastici viri commodiorem opportunatatem, quam in adipiscendis dignitatibus et beneficiis ecclesiasticis. Et haec sentiunt couferri per Papam, qui sibi per haec attrahere consuevit pene totam ecclesiasticorum virorum cohortem. Ideo adhaerentiam copiosam sibi parit per horum provisionem. P. 58: Quid ergo, putamusne, Ecclesiam posse recipere reformationem generalem, et quidem ad hunc statum devenire, ut omnia vitia tollantur ab Ecclesia? Ego judico impossibile humano modo.—Sed est alia reformatio, de qua quaeritur, ut scilicet ea quae sint decolorativa statuum et personaram tam saecularium quam spiritualium ad rectam formam perducantur, ut reformatio pacis inter regna et principes, extirpatio haeresium et schismatum, simoniacee pravitatis a Curia Romana et ab omnibus Ecclesiae Praelatis, et concubinariorum repressionis, etc.—Et quis omnia enarrare ac enumerare sufficiat, quibus Ecclesia modernis temporibus cernitur deformata? Putamusne haec omnia aliquando posse reformari? Persuaderi mihi videor, quod nec aetas nostra nec futura haec patientur: quum non habeam rationes probantes, quomodo illud fieri possit. Primo propter inveteratam et inolitam consuetudinem, quae difficile curatur: secundo propter potentium tam in scripturis quam in altis dignitatibus resistantiam: tertio propter avaritiae morbum, qui ubique invaluit, maximeque in altis sedibus, quae nullo modo patientur sibi auferri honoris, fastus, divitiarum et voluptatis amplitudinem. Et qui amplius insistere deberent reformationibus, his pompis amplius delectantur, fingentes ipsis colores sub specie defensionis ecclesiasticae, ut ideo eos oportet.

SECOND CHAPTER.

HISTORY OF THE HIERARCHY OF THE NATIONAL CHURCHES.

THEIR RELATION TO THE STATE.

THE secular princes, whose power was continually increasing, began at this time more generally, after the example of France, to reduce the ecclesiastical power within narrower bounds. Not only was it stoutly maintained that the ecclesiastical tribunals should not arrogate to themselves the right of jurisdiction over the secular affairs of laymen;¹ but it already often happened that the sec-teat abundare, ne status eorum vilescat, et ut habeant armatam militiam, qua compescere valeant violentos et bonorum ecclesiasticorum detentores. Et ideo oportet, ut dicunt, eos fulcitos esse pluralitatibus beneficiorum atque dignitatum. P. 62: Aestimo igitur mundum dietim decrescere in pravis moribus—usque ad profundum delictorum, quousque veniat filius perditionis, etc. Joannes Episc. Chemensis Onus Ecclesiae (see note 28) writes likewise, A.D. 1519, cap. 19, § 16: Reformatio vero non fiet, nisi in aliquo generali et libero candidoque Concilio, ubi Spiritui Sancto, non maligno, locus ad spirandum detur. Heu cum formidine conjicio, nostrum saeculum non esse dignum congregazione legitimie Concilii, in quo vitiis reprehensis et virtutibus promotis Ecclésia reformatur: adeo errorum illudimur operationibus. Concilia profecto debita raro et segniter celebrantur, vel Romae seu alibi coram potentibus tractantur, ubi humilibus et fidelibus non libera est expressio, ut in eis lente corringtont ea quae divinum cultum, et Christianam religionem, reformationemque concernunt.

² After the example of France (see § 108, note 13). Instances during this period may be found in the Preuves des Libertez de l'église Gall. chap. viii. no. 1 ss.) in Hesse also; see Kopp in the work quoted above, Th. 1, s. 198 f. Accordingly, the clergy of the Rhine complain at an assembly in Coblenz, A.D. 1479 (see Georgii Nationis Germaniae Gravamina, p. 257), § 20: Item Laici interdum cognoscunt de causis et super bonis Clericorum, et bona eorum arrestant et occupant, et sibi ipsis appropriant. § 21: Item juramenta Laici exigunt a subditis, ne unus Laicorum alium impetat coram judice ecclesiastico sed ipsimet cognoscunt de causis ecclesiasticis.

by the same, and that the interference of foreign ecclesiastical tribunals was forbidden.⁴ Still more generally the governing powers vindicated their claim to examine the decrees of ecclesiastical authorities before their publication.⁵ And the dangerous increase of landed property in the Church induced many princes to follow the previous example of several free cities, and either to forbid altogether the augmentation of Church possessions, or else to require the legal sanction of the sovereign for each acquisition.⁶

libus trahi facere Clericos etiam in sacerdotio constitutos de foro ecclesiastico ad judices saeculares, et per eos condemnari atque puniri. The Parliament of Paris not unfrequently condemned bishops to imprisonment. See Preuves des Libertez de l'église Gall. chap. vii. no. 34 ss. Besides, the free towns especially asserted the right of criminal jurisdiction over the clergy—for instance, Heilbronn; see Jäger's Mittheilungen zur schwäbischen und fränkischen Reformations-Geschichte. Bd. 1. (Stuttgart, 1828), s. 7 f.

⁵ The so-called jus Placei regii, in France Regium Pareatis, in Naples Regium Exequatur, named after the different forms of the assent. How this right was maintained in France, see Preuves des Libertez de l'église Gall. chap. x. Lewis XI., in 1495, appointed a commissioner at Amiens to examine all persons coming from Rome, whether they had any papal briefs upon them, et icelles voir et visiter, pour sçavoir s'elles sont aucunement contraires ou prejudiciables à nous, et à la dite église Gallicane. Et au cas qu'en trouverez aucunes qui y fussent contraires ou prejudiciables, prenez les et retenez par devers vous, et les porteurs arrestez et constituez prisonniers, si vous voyez que la matière y soit sujette; et du contenu esdites lettres nous advertissez, ou les nous envoyez à toute diligence, pour y donner la provision nécessaire. Martin V., in the letter quoted above in note 3, complains of Portugal, A.D. 1427: Dicitur etiam nobis, quod statuto regio mandatum est, ne quis audeat sine ipsis Regis licentia sub pena mortis et perditionis bonorum in dictis regnis literas apostolicas publicare. When John II., king of Portugal, instigated by Innocent VIII., repealed the Placatum Regium, 1486, the peers of the realm resisted, and declared that without the consent of the States such a repeal was void; see Augustini Manuelis Hist. Joan. II. Philip the Good, duke of Burgundy, decreed, 3d January, 1447: dat niemandt en brynghe, oft en exequere eenighe geestelycke monitien, inhibitien oft andere gheboden, op ecniche ondersaeten des Landts van Brabant, uyt wat saecke dat het zy, hy eerst kome by onse Officiere ende Wethouderen, ende geve hem klaerlyck te kennen de saecke waerom, ende verkryghe oorlof ende consent.—Den gene die dat dede, sal daer an verbeurt hebben alle sine goederen, ende te dien aen syn lyf eenen wegh te S. Peter ende S. Pauls te Roomen te doen. This and several later edicts issued in the Netherlands, together with references to similar laws of other nations—for instance, an order of Ferdinand the Catholic to the Viceroy of Naples, A.D. 1508—may be seen in P. Stockmans Jus Belgarum circa Bullarum pontificiarum Receptionem (in his Opp. Omn.), cap. ii.

INTERNAL RELATIONS OF THE DIOCESAN HIERARCHY.

The reforming councils of Constance and Basle certainly intended to restore the original power of the bishops.¹ However, their decrees came into full operation in France only as long as the Pragmatic Sanction existed. On the other hand, the theory which grew up in the struggle with the mendicant friars was stoutly upheld in France, that the parochial clergy derived their spiritual authority not from the bishops, but, like the bishops themselves, through the institution of Christ.² Out of France this theory was of ecclesiastics or religious houses with landed property, tithes, rentals, etc. See the Nederlanschen Sulpitius van Jacobus Baselius, s. 236. Philip the Good, duke of Burgundy, passed a law for Holland in 1446, that no members of religious orders should purchase or receive property without previous examination and consent of commissioners (Brandt, Historie der Reformatie, Th. 1, s. 38. Groot, Hollandsch Plakaatboek, Th. 1, s. 1471); the same also for Brabant in 1461 (Brabandsch Plakaatboek, Th. 1, s. 238). William III., landgrave of Hesse, in 1491 ordered a public proclamation to be made, dat niemants, wer der sy, keyne werntliche Gutere, es sy an Zinsen, Renthen ader Gefellen, geistlichen Personen noch Cloistern nicht mehr verkeuffe, and that it should not be lawful for such property in any way to accrue to ecclesiastics: whoever should disobey, dem wollet nach libe und gude, als demjhenen der uns mit libe und gude verfallen ist, griffen, und die gutere, die den geistlichen hieruber zugeeignet werden von unserwegen innemen, und ine die ane unsern Beschiet nit widder folgen lassen (the documents may be seen in the Beurkundete Nachricht von dem Closterhaus Schiffenberg, 2ter Theil. Giessen, 1755, Fol. Beilagen, no. 166). Albert the Peaceful, duke of Mecklenburg, forbade the clergy of Güstrow the acquisition of property; see Analecta Gustrovensis, p. 86. Similar prohibitions, issued by Saxon princes for individual ecclesiastical corporations, may be seen in J. G. Reinhardi Meditationes de jure Principum Germaniae, cum primis Saxoniae circa sacra ante tempora reformationis exercito. Halae, 1717. 4. p. 230 ss.

² See vol. ii. § 62, note 23; and above, § 112, note 3. Gerson, De Potest. Eccl. Consid. 12 (Opp. ii. p. 250), adduces the following—determinatio sacrae facultatis theologiae Parisiensis nuper edita contra temeritatem extollentium privilegiatos super Curatos in praedicationibus et confessionibus, from which the occasion and the purport of this opinion are plain; Art. i.: Domini Curati sunt in Ecclesia minores Praelati et Hierarchae ex primaria institutione Christi, quibus competit ex statu jus praedicandi, jus confessiones audiendi, jus sacramenta ecclesiastica secundum exigentiam sui status et pa-

rochianorum ministrandi, jus sepulturas dandi, jus insuper decimas et alia jura parochialia recipiendi. Art. ii.: Jus praedicandi et confessandi competit Praelatis et Curatis principaliter et essentialiter, et Mendicantibus de per accidens ex privilegio; quoniam sunt introducti vel admissi ex concessione et beneplacito Dominorum Praelatorum. Compare Gerson, De Statibus Ecclesiasticis, and, particularly, De Statu Curatorum, sixteen considerationes (Opp. ii. p. 534): E. g. Consid. i.: Status Curatorum succedit statui lxxii. discipulorum Christi quoad legem novam, et figuratus est in antiqua lege per Levitas. Ac proinde status Curatorum est de institutione Christi et Apostolorum suorum. Cons. ii.: Status Curatorum est de essentiali ac intrinseca Ecclesiae hierarchia, sicut status Praelatorum, quamvis inferior sit, et pro sua perfectione variabilior. Qua ratione Curati simplices non aequae proprie dicuntur sponsi, sicut Episcopi, liberius que permittuntur cedere, vel renuntiare curis suis. Cons. vii.: Status Curatorum Ecclesias parochiales sibi deputatas habet in tali libertate, quod nulli alteri sacerdoti fas est, ipsis invitis, aut sine eorum licentia praedicare in eadem, praesertim dum praedicare voluerint ipsi, sed nec confessiones illuc audire, nec sacramenta ministrare: salva semper auctoritate, vel rationabili ordinatione superiorum Praelatorum. Viz. De Potest. Eccl. Epilogus Coucl. 2 (Opp. ii. p. 256): Extenditur plenitudo potestatis Papae super omnes inferiores solum dum subest necessitas ex defectu Ordinariorum inferiorum, vel dum appareat evidens utilitas Ecclesiae: quemadmodum dici potest de Episcopis respectu Plebanorum, seu priorum sacerdotum, quorum possunt supplere defectus. Thus, Sermo contra bullam Mendicantium (l. c. p. 437): Ad Curatos spectat ex statu eorum, jure, aut facultate concionari. —Sequitur, Papam aut alium quemvis jus hoc Curatis auferre, aut impedire non debere. Et ideo nullus in Ecclesia eorum concionari debet absque eorum facultate.—Ad Curatos pertinet jus audiendi confessiones. —Sequitur Papam —non debere auferre istam potestatem aut jus ipsis Curatis absque eorum placito et voluntate, saltem expediens non est. Sequitur, nullum Privilegium confessionem audire debere in loco parochialis Ecclesiae absque consensu et facultate Curati. Almainus would even have granted to the parochial clergy a voice at the Councils. Cf. Expositio circa decisiones M. Occam super potestate summi Pontif. Qu. i. c. 18, sect. 1. (Gersonii Opp. ii. p. 1067). Secundo, dicitur Concilium debere congregari ex omni statu hierarchico: nam sunt duo status hierarchici in Ecclesia, scil. status Praelatorum superiorum et inferiorum: unde in tali Concilio debent interesse singuli Episcopi, similiter ex parte Cleri et Curatorum de singulis Episcopatibus aliquis debet interesse, et tales habent voces et auctoritatem deliberandi in Concilio. All opinions which contravened this theory were condemned by the Sorbonne, and had to be recanted. Thus the Dominican, Jo. Sarrazin (see § 136, note 23), in 1429, was also obliged to recant the statement (d'Argentré I., ii. p. 227): Dicere, inferiorum Praelatorum potestatem jurisdictionis, sive sint Episcopi sive Curati, esse immediate a Deo, sicut potestatem Papae, veritati quodammodo repugnat; and to acknowledge instead: evangelicae et apostolicae consonat veritati. The Franciscan, Joannes Bartholomeus, in 1451, was refused the degree of licentiate in theology, because he had preached (d'Argentré I., ii. p. 251), quod Parochiani possunt libere se Mendicantibus per Ordinarios admissis confiteri absque Curatorum licentia. Among the fourteen propositions of the Franciscan, Joannes Angelus (see § 136, note 23), which were condemned in 1482, was this (d'Argentré I., ii. p. 305): I. Fratres minores praesentati Episcopo et admissi sunt proprii Sacerdotes et veri Curati, et melius quam Presbyteri parochiales, quia facultatem suam habent a summo Pontifice, et dicti Presbyteri ab ipso Episcopo dumtaxat, and others of the same kind.

³ For instance, not by Alphonsus Tostatus (see § 136, note 5), Quaest. 87, in Matth. xvi.: Episcopus sub se nullos habet habentes ordinariam jurisdictionem, sed Curati omnes sunt Commissarii: et sic tota jurisdictione est Episcopi immediate. Et si nollet ponere Curatos, sed ipse administraret, liceat faceret, si sufficeret ad hoc.

clergy were not unfrequently subjected to severe oppression from their ecclesiastical superiors.⁵

MORAL CONDITION OF THE CLERGY.

The reformation of the deeply degraded clergy was the principal part of that reformation of the Church in head and members, the call for which was resounding through this entire period. But in this respect also all efforts for reform seemed generally fruitless, and the lamentations over the coarseness and ignorance, over the unspiritual and immoral conduct of the clergy, remain down to the end of this period unaltered and the same.¹ The foulest stain

(see § 136, note 12) of Johannes de Poliaco (see above, § 112, note 3) in his Summa de Ecclesia, ii. c. 59 ss. He declares himself, c. 63, in the words of Petrus de Palude, to this effect, quia Christus per se non fecit nisi unum Curatum, scilicet Petrum :—sed quia impossibile erat, quod per se solum (Petrus) perfecte totius gregis curam ageret, ideo per consequens (Christus) commisit illi facere alios Curatos, quotquot ipse pro adjutorio suo et populi salute opus esse cognosceret. Nec Christus per se instituit, nisi unam solam curam ;—sed Petrus postmodum per se et per alios divisit provincias, et dioeceses, et parochias. The last two propositions which John Kaltenmarkter was obliged to recant at Vienna in 1492 (see § 136, note 24), only differ from the Gallican theory in form, and this form itself probably does not belong to the accused ; see Gersonii Sermo contra Bull. Mendicant. above, note 2.

Nulla jam in ordinandis Clericis vitae sanctitas requiritur, literarum eruditio nulla postulatur, conscientiae puritas non attenditur. Sufficit apud eos, si currentem sortem possint construere, si cuius partis orationis sit Dominus, respondere, si ita, et non, intelligere. Vae nostrae tempestatis Episcopis, qui saecularibus negotiis intenti ordinationes clericorum non considerant, sed curam examinandi imperitis locant ! Quam districtam sunt subituri sententiam, qui se totius in Ecclesia mali exhibent causam ! Romana lingua scribere vel loqui nesciunt, vix in vulgari exponere Evangelia didicerunt. Quantos errores, fabulas et haereses in Ecclesia praedicando populis enuncient, quis nisi expertus credere posset ! Pro libris sibi liberos comparant, pro studio concubinas amant. Isti sunt caeci duces caecorum, qui populum Dei ad justitiam non erudiunt, sed potius seducunt.—Non possum non dolere, videns omne malum in Ecclesia ex ignorantia sacerdotum procedere. of the clergy, their unchastity, seemed only to increase in proportion as it was assailed with greater zeal.² As the sternest denunciations of the reforming councils of Constance and Basle could not even produce external decorum in a large part of the ecclesiastics³ there present, so the decrees of these councils upon this subject continued to have no visible effect upon the Church.⁴ No century can produce so many decrees of synods and bishops against the concubinarii as the fifteenth.⁵ And yet in no century are the complaints, as well as the scandal, caused by the licentiousness of the clergy, which in Italy not unfrequently amounted to unnatural crimes,⁶ and by the fruitlessness of all remedies, so numerous as in this.⁷ The severer sentences could not, for the most corrigere vitiosos non praesumunt, quia se deliquisse in majoribus agnoscant.—Nec mirum, si minores vacent a studio scripturarum, cum inter Praelatos paucos invenias, qui veterum exemplis inhaereant. Eliguntur enim ut plurimum non doctiores, sed ad congregandas divitias perituras avidiores. Codices scripturarum aut nullos habent, aut paucos, quippe qui odio scientiam persequuntur. Et quia, sicut Dominus per prophetam (Malach. ii.) loquitur, sacerdotes notitiam legis abjecerunt, propterea contemptibles in populo facti sunt. Clamat quidem in tribulatione ad Dominum, sed non exaudit eos: quoniam qui avertit aures suas ne audiat legem, oratio ejus erit execrabilis. Non ergo mirentur sacerdotes, quod eos contemnunt Laici, quoniam ipsi spernunt mandata Christi. Timeo autem vehementer, in brevi contra Clerum graviora futura.

I. x. p. 635); however, no canon was composed upon this subject, for all the reforms which were deferred till after the Papal election came to nothing. See the canon of Basle, Sess. XX. § 132, note 22. ⁵ See the works of Theiner and Carové, quoted above.

Antea per sacerdotis prolem tota nostra salus profluxit, nunc autem non nisi scandalum venit. Olim unusquisque sacerdotum in sua legitima contentabatur: nunc vero sacerdos, qui propriam non habet, feminis indifferenter utitur. De illis nemo quod malum est promebat: de istis, quomodo luxuriantur, etiam puer cantat!

(see § 132, note 22), and, instead, sentence of suspension and degradation pronounced against the concubinarii; nevertheless, Peter II., Bp. of Breslau, at a council assembled there between 1447 and 1456, again decreed (Hartzheim Concil. Germ. v., p. 445), quatenus omnes Clerici—concubinas, sive focarias, aut alias mulieres quasquinque de incontinentia suspectas—rejicant et desistant,—sub poena decem florenorum nobis ad Cameram nostram irremissibiliter persolvendorum. Hermannus Ryd de Reen De Vita et Honestate Clericorum, c. 1, in Brownii App. p. 133. Jacobus Siberti De Calamitatibus hujus Temporis tells (Vater's Archiv. 1826, s. 181) how a certain Archbishop of Cologne (Theoderich, 1423) charged the concubinarii, under pain of heavy penalties, to dismiss their concubines, but soon changed his tone, p. 184: accepit nempe antistes a sacerdotibus pecunias, et dimisit illis concubinas: forte vel nesciebat alio remedio malitia temporum obviare,—vel multitudine territus proficere desperabat. When John Busch, provost of the monastery of Neuwerk in Halle, about 1450, imposed upon the clergy of his archdeaconry the dismissal of their concubines (see his own story in Leibnitii Scriptt. Brunsv. ii. p. 819), quidam eorum potius elegerunt Ecclesias suas quam famulas suas dimittere. Ecclesias enim suas sine rectore relinquentes cum famulabus suis inde recesserunt. A certain knight laid his complaints and his opinion on this point before the provost: Populus illarum Ecclesiarum missas non habent, nec sermones, nec alia divina, sed vadunt quasi sine Deo sicut gentiles. Melius esset, quod permitteretis, ut Plebani suas retinerent concubinas, quam ut populus ille tanquam gentilis efficeretur: hoc enim esset minus malum.

⁹ Stephani Episc. Brandenburgensis (from 1422-1459) Comm. ad Orat. Domin. c. 17 (in Ph. W. Gercken's ausführl. Stiftshistorie von Brandenburg. Braunschweig u. Wolfenbüttel, 1766. 4, s. 226): Quid ergo dicemus de Clero nostro et sacerdotibus, inter quos etsi pauci sunt simoniaci, pauciores vero schismatici, paucissimi vel nulli, ut speramus, extant haereticci, a quibus ut sic populus ad ipsorum perniciem ecclesiastica reciperet sacramenta; sunt tamen, quod cum dolore et non sine magnis gemitibus dicere nos veritas compellit, heu plurimi concubinarii et fornicatores etiam notorii, ex quorum vita plurimi scandalizantur, non solum vulgares et plebeji, sed etiam Magnates et principes. Et adeo pestis ista et crimen hoc invaluit, ut talibus sacerdotibus frons meretricis facta sit, sic ut pro modico ducent, fornicationem et adulteria committere.—Nam etsi ex lapsu carnis impraecegnantur ab eis, vel forte ab aliis, focariae et meretrices eorum, non inficiantur vel abnegant peccatum, sed pro summo honore arbitrantur, se parentes illorum esse, qui de damnabili coitu procreantur. Unde et gloriando de malitia sua convicinos presbyteros et alios laicos utriusque sexus convocant, et per se patrinos ad filiorum suorum baptismam invitant, magnamque festivitatem pro talium filiorum generatione et solemnitatem et gaudium faciunt de quo potius deberent luctum suspicere, etc. Compare the levity with which Aeneas Sylvius, already in orders, and engaged at the Council of Basle, informs his father of the birth of a son begotten at Strasburg, Ep. 15: Certe nec lapideum nec ferreum genuisti filium, cum esse tu carneus. Scis, qualis tu gallus fueris: at nec ego castratus sum, neque ex frigidorum numero. Nec sum hypocrita, ut videri bonus quam esse malum. Fateor ingenuum meum erratum, quia nec sanctior sum David Rege, nec Salomone sapientior. Antiquum et vetus est hoc delictum, nec scio, quis eo careat. Late patet haec pestis (si pestis est, naturalibus uti), quanquam non video, cur tantoperē damni coitus debeat, cum natura, quae nihil perperam operatur, omnibus ingenerit animantibus hunc appetitum, ut genus continuaretur humanum, etc. In the diocese of Spires two zealous bishops in succession never ceased bringing to the recollection of their diocesan synods the canons against the concubinarii; these were Lewis of Helmstadt, 1478–1504 (see the Synodal acts in Würdtwein Subsidia Diplom. xii. p. 196 ss.), and Philip of Rosenberg, 1504–1513 (Würdtwein Nova Subsid. Dipl. viii. p. 294 ss.). In return the latter had to learn (see Jubilee-synod, 1505, Nova Subsid. Dipl. viii. p. 299) that his clergy complained—inter convivas et scortorum consortia, in Episcopatu Spirensi solam luxuriam esse peccatum, et pene neminem fuisse punitur, nisi solum illos aut eos frequentius, qui castitatis vitio laborabant, caeteros vero longe enigmioribus gravioribusque irretitos criminibus aut a poena fuisse immunes, aut saltem mediocriter in comparatione lascivorum mulctatos; cum tamen sancti Doctores et jura canonica afferant, incontinentiam inter peccata mortalia esse minimum. The bishop persisted with his decrees, moti ex hoc verbo Gregorii, quo dicit, fornicationem minoris quidem esse culpae, majoris autem diffamiae, cuius auctoritatis huic vitio dediti prima verba, nos vero ultima attendimus, propter quod ipsi peccatum hoc suum in se parvi faciunt, nos diffamiam et scandalum magnificamus. Pensamus haec et multa alia innumera-bilia mala corporis, famae et animae, quae haec cum mulieribus suspectis conversatio et cohabitatio secum afferunt, in primis autem illud, quod raro tales vere et catholice peccata sua confitentur: emendandi propositum, quod habere se dicunt, regulariter aut fictum est aut falsum, et—legitime et coram Deo non absolvuntur. Hermannus Ryd de Reen de Vita et Honestate Clericorum, c. 1, in Brown, App. ad Fasciculuin, p. 133: Antiquitus—mali Clerici et sacerdotes fuerunt hypocritae,—quibus valde erat infestus Salvator,—cum saepe eos redarguit, contra eos praedicavit.—Moderni autem Clerici pejores sunt illis hypocritis, qui, licet mali sunt et pessimi praevaricatores pro majori parte, non tamen talia in occulto hominibus nescientibus, ut hypocritae, fecerunt. Utinam foret ita bonum, ut justi coram hominibus apparerent, ne homines in eis scandalizarentur. Sed aliter est negotium: quoniam minus verecundantur laicis, gloriantes de malitia eorum et male actis. Quot publicos fornicatus sive fornicarios videmus! imo, quod pejus est, tales et hujusmodi sic vivere permittuntur publice ab eorum Praelatis, solum quod omni anno porrigant certam quotam pecuniarum Officialibus eorum!

¹⁰ The Council of Paris, ann. 1429, c. 23, laments emphatically over this effect of the example of the clergy (Mansi xxviii. p. 1107). Cum propter crimen concubinatus, quo multi ecclesiastic et religiosi viri inficiuntur, habeantur Ecclesia Dei et totus Clerus in derisum, abominationem, et opprobrium cunctis gentibus; et illud nefandissimum scelus in Ecclesia Dei adeo invaluit, ut jam non credant Christiani, simplicem fornicationem esse peccatum mortale (see Huss, Sermo Syn., ann. 1405, below, § 150, note 5); nos volentes ad extirpationem tanti facinoris—providere, etc. In the summons to the Martinmastide synod of 1486, Bishop Lewis of Spires complains (Würdtwein, Subsidia Diplom. xii. p. 247): licet—nos contra concubinarios nostrarum civitatis et diocesis Spirensis processus nostros varios, et quidem formidabiles et diras in se continentes poenas pro hujusmodi vitio concubinatus extinguendo promulgaverimus; nihilominus tamen validus et frequens clamor ad nos perduxit, quod nonnulli, immo ut asseritur multi, per civitatem et diocesim nostras adeo patale et publice secum tenuerint et teneant mulieres suspectas et concubinas, tamque reprehensibilem cum eis agant vitam, quod exinde Laici non tantum scandalisantur, sed et ipsi eorum exemplo similiter peccandi sumant occasionem, etc. Lavacrum Conscientiae, c. vii.: Propter quod secundum b. Bernardum in districto Dei judicio judicantur non solum quia in his peccaverunt, sed etiam ideo quia suis nefandis exemplis rudibus et simplicibus occasionem peccandi dederunt. Propter quod etiam in hac vita corda eorum indurantur, quod raro aut nunquam poenitent, praeceperit hi, qui peste luxuria et avaritiae infecti sunt, quia a nullo volunt corrigi nec aliquibus informationem accipere. Citius enim decem laici vel plures ab errore suo revocantur, quam unus Clericus vel literatus perverse vivens. Et ideo in sensum reprobum multi tales traduntur, et caecitate justo Dei judicio percutiuntur, etc.

at the end of the fifteenth century new and loathsome diseases.¹¹ So early as the time of the council of Constance it was loudly asserted that this abuse could only be remedied by legalizing the marriage of the clergy.¹² But even such men as the Chancellor Gerson, who in other respects belonged to the liberal party, fettered by prejudice, declared themselves against any alteration in the ecclesiastical law.¹³ However, after this time men of penetration arose, in unbroken succession, who inclined toward the marriage of the clergy.¹⁴ But this question was so much interwoven

¹⁴ The Reformation of Sigismund (first published by John Bämler, Augsburg, 1476, and in Goldasti Constitt. Imperial, i. p. 170, with arbitrary alterations at Basle, 1521), was, indeed, neither laid before the Council of Basle, as the title of the edition of 1476 asserts, nor before the Council of Constance, as is stated on the title of the edition of 1521, as a plan for reform; moreover, it does not derive its origin from Sigismund, but was probably composed (as v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const. I. xxvii. p. 1121, thinks) by the Emperor's Councilor, Frederick von Landskron, after Sigismund's death; it is, however, an important testimony from that period. In the chapter, Von Ordenung aller Pfarrkirchen (on the ordering of all Parish Churches), after lamenting that none of the regulations against the Concubinarii were of any use, it proceeds: so ist es weger das man lebe als man zu Orient lebt und an andern etlichen Enden, do die Priester Eeweyer nemen, wann unser Herr Christus hat es nit verbotten der Priesterschaft. Ich mein aber, es sey meer übelns auffgestanden in dem Teil der Christenheit, die Bapst Calixtus Gebott (see on this head, Jo. To this end it was proposed that every parish church should maintain two priests, that these should undertake the divine service each for a week by turns, and that each during his week of service should refrain from his wife. In the so-called Reformation Rechtsgesch.*, Th. 3, s. 103 f.), we find in a declaration upon the sixth article, the fourth illustration: Was in (the clergy) Sündt, ist uns recht; und was in recht, ist uns Sündt. Nimbt ihr ayner ein Weib, das ist ihm nit recht, aber uns Leyen. Nimbt ihr ayner ein frummen Man sein ehelich Weib, und setzt die zu ihm, ist ihm nit Unrecht, wer aber cim Leyen Sündt. Taurin. 1577, fol. 361, proposes the question, Numquid hodie Ecclesia possit statuere, ut Clericus possit contrahere matrimonium, sicut Graeci? and answers: Credo, quod sic,—et non solum credo, potestatem inesse Ecclesiae hoc condendi, sed credo pro bono et salute animarum quod esset salubre statutum, ut volentes continere et magis mereri, relinquentur voluntati eorum; non volentes autem continere, possint contrahere: quia experientia docente contrarius prorsus effectus sequitur ex illa lege continentiae, quum hodie non vivant spiritualiter, nec sint mundi, sed maculentur illicito coitu cum eorum gravissimo peccato, ubi cum propria uxore esset castitas, ut dicitur Cap. Nicaena (Decretum Grat. P. i. Dist. xxxi. c. 12). Unde deberet Ecclesia facere, sicut bonus medicus, ut si medicina, experientia docente, potius officit quam prosit, eam tollat. Et utinam idem esset in omnibus constitutionibus positivis, ut saltem obligarent quoad poenam, et non quoad culpam. Non tamen haec Pontificis sententia, ut dispensandum censeat: stat in sua severitate.—Expectandus est ergo, ut tute agas, alterius Apostolatus, qui mitior sit. The same opinion he maintained as Pius II.; the following is one of his proverbial sayings (Platina, De Vitis Pontiff. ed. 1645, p. 762): Sacerdotibus magna ratione sublatas nuptias, majori restituendas videri.—Thomas of Rennes, also, the French Carmelite (Thomas Rhedonensis), who zealously strove against the corruption of the curia in France and Italy, and pressed for a reformation of the Church, for which he was burned to death at Rome in 1436, is said to have been favorable to the marriage of the clergy. However, the passage in Flacius Catalog., no. 365, attributed to him, is that passage of the Panormitanus, which is printed above. Compare Baleus, Centur. vii. c. 100.—Felix Hämmerlin also, in his work De Libertate Eccl., desired the permission of the marriage of the clergy; see Müller's *Schweizer. Pars i. c. 2: Tria praeincipue Ecclesiae universalis magnum damnum attulere, nimirum ambitio, avaritiae mater, omissione seu neglegentia Conciliorum generalium, legitimi matrimonii sacerdotum in Ecclesia latina prohibito: de quibus singulis ample fuseque in toto hoc opere dicetur. With reference to the last subject he quotes passages from Chartier, P. iii. c. 15, and afterward remarks, cap. 16: quantumvis diligenter investigarim, quo Papa auctore, vel cuius Concilii decreto conjugium sacerdotibus sit interdictum in Ecclesia latina, id tamen nusquam invenire potui. Alii siquidem id tempore Gregorii septimi, monachi Cluniacensis, factum esse tradunt:—alii id multo ante factum esse existimant in Concilio Nicaeno, cuius tamen decreto Graeci subscribere noluerunt: in Belgico, seu inferiori Germania sentiunt, id auctore Papa Calixto factum, et ad hoc versiculos hosce, cum barbaros, tum ridiculos allegant:—

The Bishop of Merseburg, Adolphus, duke of Anhalt († 1526), was also of this opinion; see the preface by George of Anhalt to the sermons of the false prophets; “das unzüchtige ehelose Leben der Geistlichkeit war vor Augen. HISTORY OF MONASTICISM.

EFFORTS FOR REFORM IN THE MORE ANCIENT ORDERS.

The decay of monastic life could not remain unnoticed in this period,¹ so earnest in designs for reform; and it abounds no less with lamentations over the corruption than with labors for the reformation of the monastic houses. The Synod of Constance began the work by summoning a provincial chapter of the German Benedictines, the first for a long time, to be held under its own su-

Jo. Marius Belga, *De Schismat. et Concill. The acts of this chapter may be seen in Trithemii Opp. Pia, ed. Busaeus, p. 1030 ss., more fully in Von d. Hardt, Conc. Const. i. xxvi. 1086 ss. That most important decrees for reform of monastic life were prepared at Constance is evident from the Reformatum (see § 131, note 13), in v. d. Hardt, 1, x. p. 703 ss. However, this remained a mere proposal.

⁴ The chief work on this subject is Jo. Buschius (from Zwolle, in 1419 canon at Windsheim, afterward prior of Sulta in Hildesheim, provost of the monastery of Neuwerk at Halle, and again prior at Sulta, † 1479), De Reformatione Monasteriorum quorundam Saxoniae, lib. iv. in Leibnitii Scriptt. Brunsivc., ii. p. 476 ss., and p. 806 ss. The monastery of Windsheim, in Zwolle, was the most celebrated of the houses of regular canons, which were connected with the fratres vitae communis, and the seat of the general chapter, which assembled annually from all these monasteries. Strictly as these canons maintained the accurate observance of their rule, they were no less widely removed from overstrained laws of abstinence. Jo. Busch Chron. Windesemense (ed. Herib. Rosweydis, Antwerp, 1621. 8.), lib. ii. c. 5, p. 276, relates, duo fratres in Windesem propter hujusmodi rigidam abstinentiam et occultam alimentorum sibi necessariorum subtractionem cerebrum et naturalia conturbantes, rationis facti sunt impotentes.—Perpendentes igitur Patres nostri et seniores, hujusmodi rigidam abstinentiam pro animarum non esse salute, nec corporum sanitatem, sed in personarum et Ordinis nostri perpetuam vergere destructionem,—plenam dederunt licentiam omnibus fratribus et familiaribus suis bene comedendi, et de cibariis quea dantur in communi quantum poterant sine scrupulo et cum bona conscientia libere assumendi, immo etiamsi noluerunt, natura ne deficiat, ad sumendum compellendi.—Unde et mos apud nos inolevit, ut, cum Clericus quis ad religionem se suscipi deprecatur, tria primum puncta ab ipso interrogentur, videlicet an bene possit comedere, an possit bene dormire, et an velit libenter obedire: quoniam in istis tribus punctis fundamentum perseverantiae in religione consistit, et cum ex praemissis unum defuerit, ad religionem aptus et idoneus non erit. The great repute of this fraternity caused them to be soon summoned to the reformation of other houses of their order in the Netherlands and on the Rhine. In Lower Saxony the monastery at Wittenburg, in the Hildesheim district, was the first to be reformed by them, 1423 (Busch, De Reform. Monast., i. c. 11, p. 488). The Council of Basle thereupon (1435) intrusted the Priors of Windsheim and Wittenburg with the reformation of the fraternities and sisterhoods of their order—in Ducatu Brunsicensi, ac Hildesemensi, Halberstadiensi, Verdensi dioecesi, and granted them the fullest powers for this purpose (see the commission in Busch, p. 486). John Busch went, in 1437, as subprior, to Wittenburg; he was afterward employed, 1439, first in the reformation of the monastery of Sulta in Hildesheim (l. c. p. 491 ss.), and was actively engaged from this time forth, for many years, as a reformer of several religious houses. Later still the canons of Windsheim, and Jo. Mauburnus at their head, were employed in the reformation of Augustin and Benedictine foundations in France; see Gallia Christiana, vii, p. 836, 1744; xii, p. 1770. Compare the correspondence between Mauburnus and Erasmus, ibid. vii. Instrum. p. 280.

reformation of the Benedictines of the monastery of Bursfeld was effected.⁵ Thereupon the Cardinal, Nicholas of Cusa, made his appearance as Papal legate in Germany (1450, 1451), for the general purpose of bringing about a reformation in the Church, as far as Rome recognized the necessity of reform; he likewise favored these reformations of religious houses.⁶

⁵ On this head, Busch, i. c. 43 ss., in Leibnitius, p. 841 ss. Trithemii Chron. Hirsaug., ii. p. 350 ss.; ejusd. Chron. Spanhemiense in Opp. Hist. ed. Freheri, P. ii. 350 ss. J. G. Leuckfeld's Antiquitates Bursfeldenses, od. histor. Beschreibung des ehemal. Klosters Bursfelde, und der daher rührenden Bursfeldischen Societät Benedictinerordens. Leipzig u. Wolfenbüttel, 1713. 4. It was begun by John of Minden, who was present as monk of the monastery of Rheinhausen at the meeting of Benedictines in Constance, and from that time forth was very zealous in the cause of reform. Otto, the one-eyed, duke of Brunswick, made him abbot of the house of Clus, in Gandersheim, in 1430; he reformed it, and likewise the monastery of Bursfeld, of which he became abbot in 1433. Then he entered into a combination with John Rode, abbot of the monastery of St. Matthias in Tréves, who had distinguished himself by a similar zeal for reform: the combination of these two houses laid the foundation for the Bursfeld Congregation. Many Benedictine houses in Saxony and Westphalia were reformed from Bursfeld; many on the Rhine from Treves (see the author's [Gieseler's] Symbolae ad Hist. Monasterii Lacensis ex codd. Bonnensibus depromtae. Bonnae, 1826. 4. p. 8 ss.), which afterward united themselves to that league. The reformed Canonici regulares also assisted in these reforms; see Busch, i. c. 46, p. 844 ss. The same Busch, i. c. 43, p. 841, relates, Praefati patres Johannes (of Minden, whom he calls De Northem), et Rembertus (prior at Wittenburg), a Concilio Basileensi bullas impetrarant, ut unusquisque eorum sui Ordinis monasteria sexus utriusque per Saxoniam et Ducatum Brunsvicensem assumto adjutorio cum invocatione brachii saecularis possent reformare: et cuncta ad id necessaria in bullis eorum sunt expressa, videlicet ut per censuras ecclesiasticas eos ad se reformandum possent compellere cum invocatione brachii saecularis, cum absolutionibus a sententiis quibuscunque. He, indeed, places the issue of these bulls before the time of the reformation of the monastery of Clus, at a time when the Council of Basle was not yet assembled: they probably both belong to the year 1435; see note 4. The council issued renewed summons and instruction for the reform of the Benedictine houses, dd. x. Kal. Martii, 1439 (Trithemii Opp. Pia, ed. Busaeus, p. 1016 ss.).

the revenues which had been introduced into most of the foundations, and the independence and freedom from restraint which ensued, had now too great a charm for the monks.⁸ At Constance, a Cistercian even undertook to justify in form the possession of private property by monks.⁹ And thus even afterward the most latn reformari potutit propter quorundam inhabitantium vitam malam et eisdem junctam saevitiam : quid quaeso sperandum est de virorum nobilium vel literatorum collegiis, qui ruinas et deformitates suas, in spiritualibus existentes domibus, non modo armis chalybeis, sed etiam quae deteriora sunt verbalibus et ligneis possunt defendere ! The Augustin eremite, Jo. Schiphower de Meppis, in 1504, says in his Chron. Oldenburgen-sium Archicomitum, in Meibomii Rerum Germ., t. ii. p. 170, ad ann. 1426 : Circa haec tempora reformatio magna plurimorum monasteriorum in diversis, mundi partibus fuit. Et nota, quod hujusmodi reformationes leguntur factae, sed pene nulla remansit, quin solito more per successum temporis ad pristinum relaberetur languorem post venerabilium patrum mortem.

⁹ Anonymi Ordinis Cisterc. Propositio Affirmativa, in Constant. Conc. ann. 1417, oblata et examinata, quod monachi Cistercienses possint propria possidere bona (in v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const., iii. p. 120 ss.) c. 1. Licitum et fas est interdum dispensare, quod monachus seu religiosus de scitu Praelati sui habet res temporales ad usum bonum et necessarium, quando cogit necessitas excusabilis, aut suadet utilitas notabilis. C. 5: For the prevention of discontent and murmurs—proficuum est, quod in retroactis temporibus Abbates vel fecerunt conventuum consensu tacite, vel expresse in rei veritate, vel saltem gratiose cum religiosis eis subditis, quod ipsi et eorum quilibet habeant et possideant aliqua pro victu et vestitu.—Non tamen sic possidentes de scientia, scitu et sensu Abbatis, tales sunt dicendi proprietarii. Quia solum possident ad usum et non ad proprietatem, et possident nomine monasterii, et non nomine proprio. (Then, c. 3: illud in Monacho est proprium, quod celatur Abbati. C. 5: That follows from 12, qu. I. Non dicatis. Nam ibi textus dicit, quod nihil possidere possent sine Abbatis licentia. Ergo Abbatis licentia possunt). levit, etiam dudum pacifice observata et praescripta, propriis Praelatis et etiam Dominis Visitatoribus scientibus et consentientibus. Quae consuetudo non debet leviter tolli, maxime ubi timetur verisimiliter scandalum plurimorum. Against this work appeared Magni Monarchorum Visitatoris Constitutio Negativa, quod monachi propria non debeat possidere bona (l. c. p. 130 ss.). The Reformatorium likewise declares itself opposed to the practice, and points out the evil effects of the possession of private property by monks (lib. iii. tit. x. c. 2, in v. d. Hardt, 1, x. p. 705): Cum abdicatio proprietatis ita monasticae professioni et regulae sit annexa, quod nec summus Pontifex contra eandem valeat dispensare; nihilominus tamen quamplures regulares personae utriusque sexus, et quasi indifferenter omnes, paucis duntaxat exceptis, salutis suae immemores interdum ante ingressum religionis et quandoque post, pecunia sibi industrioce congregata vel recepta ab amicis et parentibus, necnon jura, possessiones, redditus, pensiones, portiones, praebandas, animalia, et alia bona emerunt, seu emi fecerunt et procurarunt; proprio et saepe nomine alieno multos contractus tanquam negotiatores exercent; pecunias inde acquisitas, vel alias undecunque provenientes ad libitum propriae voluntatis expendunt: quamplures quoque hujusmodi pecuniam et alia praedicta contra scitum et voluntatem superiorum suorum occulte vel illicite tenent in suarum pericula animarum. Quorum praetextu et occasione ex tunc vestitum emunt, claustralia loca ad placitum deserunt, mansiones sibi seorsim procurant, victum et potum singularem extra conventualem locum sibi disponunt, vel in mensa communi in praesentia pauperum fratum aut sororum eadem scandalose consumunt, reliquis fratribus aut sororibus, similia non habentibus, magnam egestatem cum amaritudine animi patientibus. Ex quibus surgunt invidiae, detractiones, rancores, scandala, applausiones, comessationes, inobedientia, incontinentia, aliaeque infinitae exorbitantiae regularis disciplinae. Allegantes, se posse hujusmodiabus detestabiles de licentia et indulitu suorum superiorum talibus consentientium, aut talia dissimulantium, lice exercere.

Helmst. 1693, Praef. p. 30 ss.), refutes, lib. 1, c. 4 ss. quindecim argumenta deformatorum Clericorum et religiosorum, quibus se tuentur, ne a forma saeculi recedant, in the same number of chapters. Viz., objiciunt complexionis debilitatem; receptam consuetudinem; Praelatorum peccata; reformationem esse novitatem et singularitatem; esse expectandum cum reformatione usque ad generalem reformationem Ecclesiae; reformare esse Ordinem dividere, et notam personarum in eo ponere; se jactant vivere ut proceres eorum; objiciunt dispensationem eis datam; dicunt, necessaria in victu se non habere; objiciunt status nobilitatem vel dignitatem; timent sequi in divino officio personarum paucitatem; conqueruntur, reformationem sequi pacis turbationem; arguunt, sequi lapsum graviorem et apostasiam vel hujusmodi; ostendere nituntur, quod ex laxa vita majora sequant bona quam ex reformatione; objiciunt, modum procedendi in reformatione ineptum. Lib. ii. c. 9, also is worthy of notice on the question, unde proveniat, quod communiter omnes in Ecclesia clament reformationem debere fieri, et tamen fere nullus, quando reformari incipitur, id ferat. With regard to the difficulties of the reform of the Camaldulensian Order, the works of Ambrosius, who was general of the Order from the year 1431, † 1439, viz., the Hodoëporicon, ed Florent., 1678. 4, the description of his visitation-circuit, and, Epistolarum lib. xx., in Martene et Durand Veterum Scriptorum Amplissima Collectio, t. iii. p. 1 ss., compare Meiner's Lebensbeschreibungen berühmter Männer aus den Zeiten der Wiederherstellung der Wissenschaft., Th. 2, s. 222 ff.: with reference to the regular canons and Benedictines the work of John Busch may be consulted.

the monastery, his brother sent him a letter of defiance (Jo. Busch. i. c. 50, in Leibnit. ii. p. 850: frater ejus carnalis militaris, in Ducatu habitans Brunswicensi, literam diffidationis sigillatam mihi misit, ad me et fratres meos captivandum, occidendum, bona nostra diripienda, et domos nostras comburendas), but he was forced to recall it by the bishop of Hildesheim, and the duke of Brunswick-Luneburg. When the monastery of St. Michael, in Luneburg, was to be reformed in 1470, the monks rang the alarm bell and roused the townsmen, so that the Duke Otto and the bishop of Verdun, as well as the abbots who were come to the reformation, were obliged to fly (Busch, i. c. 53, p. 852). When, about the same time, James de Fredis as prior, with certain reformed monks, was sent from Cologne for the reformation of the monastery of Laach, he was continually in peril of his life (see Jo. Boutzbach, from 1499 monk of this house, in the author's [Gieseiler's] Symbolae ad Hist. Monast. Lacensis, p. 25: in tautum scse irreformati—opposuit, ut solus ipse, utpote prae caeteris constantior, ipsis magis odiosus habitus fuerit et oneri. Hinc saepe conclave illius effringentes, eumque effugantes, evaginatis gladiis de dormitorio per fenestras fugientem persecuti sunt), and was forced after one half year to fly to Treves with his followers (l. c. p. 24). The elector of Treves was then obliged to have the obstinate monks ejected by his lieutenant, cum assumpto sibi exercitu (l. c. p. 27). The nuns gave the reformers almost more trouble. The canonesses of Wennigen told William, duke of Brunswick, and the reformers to their faces (Busch, ii. c. 1, p. 858): nos omnes pariter conclusimus et simul juravimus, quod nolumus nos reformare, nec regulam nostram observare: rogamus, ut non faciatis nos perjurias. Then they raised a hymn of imprecation: exeuntibus nobis de choro circa dormitorium, moniales statim omnes extensis brachiis et pedibus in modum crucis ad pavimentum chori super ventres suos se posuerunt, et altissimis vocibus antiphonam: Media vita in morte sumus, per totum exclamaverunt. Nos autem hujusmodi voces audientes putabamus, responsorium fuisse: revelabunt coeli iniquitatem Iudeæ. Unde Dux territus totam suam terram metuebat interire. Next the knightly kinsmen of the nuns came forward to intercede. When this measure also proved vain, the nuns shut up their convent, and would not allow the duke to come in again, so that the door had to be broken down. They were only brought to submission by the threat that they would be immediately carried off in carriages standing ready. But on the next day they changed their minds again, and the duke, who had already taken his departure, had to return with an armed band, to force them to submission once more. One nun was so affected by this that she—statim corruens in terram, sensus suos amisit. However, this was immediately regarded as a miraculous punishment, and made the rest more submissive. But when they were required to produce their private effects, many of them were so indignant that they—ollas suas tam valide a se projecerunt, ut pedes earum ad pavimentum confringerent. Busch, on his return, was twice attacked by armed men, and escaped with considerable difficulty. In the Cistercian convent of Mariensee also (l. c. c. 3, p. 862 ss.), the nuns raised the hymn of imprecation, in choro incipientes antiphonam: Media vita super nos altissimis vocibus decantaverunt, et per Ecclesiam cum tali cantu nos prosequentes, etiam candelas de cera ardentes super nos et contra nos in terram projecerunt: et una juvencula, extra Ecclesiam super cimiterium nos secuta, cum cantarent: Sancte Deus, Sancte fortis, sancte et immortalis, etc., trina vice cantando, genibus flexis etiam terram in signum nostrae maledictionis ter momordit, et lapides ac terram post nos projicit. Then they fled to the arches, super testudinem chori et Ecclesiae satis alte et late concenderunt, and could only be induced to come down and deliver themselves up by the threat to transport them immediately out of the country. Busch, prior of Sulta, was to reform the neighboring convent of Derneburg, but he found great difficulty in the task (l. c. c. 13 ss. p. 874 ss.). The nuns gave away their means of subsistence (c. 14), ut dicere nobis possent, quod non haberent, unde in communi viveant, et ita earum reformatio propter paupertatem impeditur. Etiam per hoc efficere gestiebant, ut parentes et cognati earum, qui annuos eis redditus dare consueverunt, jure haereditario aut alias apud-se dispositos ante reformationem, quando in propriis vivebant; post assumptam communem vitam tales eis redditus dare denegarent, communiam nutrire nolentes, qui proprias filias seu neptes de propriis bonis suis libenter enutri- free consent of the monks: more generally it had to be enforced by the secular princes or the bishops,¹² or else it was necessitated by the poverty into which the monasteries had been betrayed by wild licentiousness.¹³ Nevertheless, though the severest measurant. Busch was attacked with a long knife by a man who wished to rid the nuns of the troublesome reformer. When he visited the separate cells of the nuns, one of them let him go first into hers, then she shut to the spring-door and kept him prisoner a long time. De caetero nunquam in aliquo Monialium monasterio in aliquam clausuram praecedere volui, ne mihi aliquid simile ibidem contingere, praesertim unde leviter exire non potui. Sed quando duae vel tres me praecedebant, tunc eas bene sequebar. Una sola praecedens non mihi sufficiebat, ne cum una sola ad tempus me recluderent, dicentes super me, quod non cogitasse. At last, after three years, the nuns contrived, by means of their kinsmen, that their reformation should be taken out of the hands of Prior Busch, and given over to the Cistercian abbot in Marienrode. But he had most of them carried off into other convents, and introduced the Cistercian rule into their house.

¹³ Jac. Junterburgii (see § 136, note 31), De negligientia Praetitorum, lib. in Walchii Monimenta Medii Aevi, II. ii. p. 109: Divitias peperit—religio,—proleque vastata mater, nec proles beata, dum disciplina cessat, regnatque similitas, i. e. hypocrisis, deficit Ecclesiae virtus pariterque facultas. Nam aperte videmus, quod monasteria olim in reformatione opulentissima jam adeo depauperantur, quod etiam cum paucō et tenui victu parietes et tecta aedificiorum a ruina conservari non possunt. Et ubi quondam reformationis tempore LXX. aut plures fratres commode nutriebantur regnatis nondum proprietarii, octo aut decem vix educari possunt sine penuria. In hoc manum Domini contra proprietarios ad ulciscendum manifeste cernimus armatam. Deficiente nunc causa donationis temporalium bonorum, scil. magna antiquorum patrum devotione et vitae sanctitate, propter quam bona collata sunt, deficere et cessare debet effectus in ipsa bona temporalia, ideo non immerito eis modo auferuntur. The contrary result also often occurred, Buschius, i. c. 52, p. 852: in monasteriis, ubi ante reformationem vix decem aut duodecim homines de bonis Monasterii vivere poterant et se nutritre, vidimus post reformationem plus quam quinquaginta aut centum in copia omnium rerum abundantissime se nunc nutritre. Thus events such as the following occurred; see Bern. Wittii (Benedictine monk at Liesborn, about 1517) Hist. Antiquae Occidentalis Saxoniae, seu nunc Westphaliae, Monasterii, 1778. 4. lib. viii. p. 558, ad ann. 1460. Eodem fere tempore in ipsa item Padeburnensi diocesi in monte dicto Hallesberge (Jacobsberg), in desolata quadam Ecclesia, nescio cui opilio revelationem factam fuisse vulgatum est, quasi S. Jacobus, ejusdem Ecclesiae patronus, se ibi, prout in Compostella Gallatiae hactenus, peregrinis suis patrocinium concessurum spopondisset. Curritur certatim ad locum, prodigia et signa ibidem fieri publicatur, multa a peregrinis pecunia defertur. Fuere tamen, qui rem profundius ruminarent ac dicerent, nullum unquam ibidem verum miraculum factum fuisse, illusione diabolica rem procuratam, ut scilicet novam jam assumptam in Corbiensi monasterio reformationem eliminaret. Locus enim Corbiensi monasterio subiectus erat; hoc ipsum autem monasterium jam diu a regulari observatione defecerat, unde aliquando necessariorum defectu reformationem accipere aut loco cedere artati sunt. At Abbas S. Jacobi thesauris ac peregrinorum oblationibus sustentatus aratrum deseruit, ures were employed, again and again, to humble the headstrong monks,¹⁴ it was still impossible to expect a general reformation of all religious houses, and complaints of the corruption of monasticism never ceased during this period.¹⁵ Accordingly, the reac post tergum vidit, et membratim habentes unde voluptuose viverent, expulsis qui reformationem inducere laborabant, quam ob causam in sanctioris vitae propositum consensissent, docuerunt. Eliminata autem religione iterum inchoata, paulatim et miracula et peregrinationes solitae cessaverunt. Corvey accepted the reformation again in 1486, and joined the Bursfeld congregation.

The reformations also often lasted no length of time. Compare Valerius Anshelm's (physician of the town of Bern) Berner Chronik, edited by Stierlin u. Wyss, Bd. 1 (Bern, 1825). Page 99, he relates how the city clerk of Bern was sent, in 1474, to the Pope, for indulgences, item und sunderlich Gewalt, und Fryung zu erwerben, die ungeistlichen Korherren zu Interlappen ze begwaltigen und ze reformiren. formed houses of the same order found it advantageous to meet in separate congregations, in which provision was made for the maintenance of the reformation by a special supervision.¹⁶ Among these the Bursfeld Congregation of German Benedictine houses obtained the highest repute.¹⁷

In the mendicant orders, also, discipline had sunk so low that reformation was as necessary in them as in the others. Hence, in the Franciscan Order, the Observants, who had been hitherto regarded with mistrust, were brought to honor. The Council of Constance confirmed them; and they gradually received privileges above all the other Franciscans, the so-called Conventuals.¹⁸ In other mendicant houses the efforts for reform met with as many difficulties, and as much resistance, as in the monasteries of the other orders.¹⁹

Anwysung der geistlichen Korherren Sant Augustins Ordens, ihnen von Sant Lienhard von Basel zuverordnet.—Bestund nit lang, ward loser dan vor je gewesen, auch hiemit vil müh und Kostens verloren. How fruitless were the labors of the landgrave William III. to reform the Hessian monasteries, may be seen in Rommel's Gesch. v. Hessen. Th. 3, Abth. 1 (Cassel, 1827), s. 130 ff.

rit. Et tamen uterque modicum profecit in subditis. Paucos enim conventus reformare potuerunt, quibus velle adjacebat de omnibus, sed propter inobedientem materiam perficere nequiverunt. Among the mendicants there was often licentious intercourse between the male and female establishments of the same order (the Conc. Mogunt. ann. 1455; in Hartzheim, v. p. 439, had to condemn the position, quia sanctimonialis professio, si carnis tentatione et humana fragilitate victa, castitatem servare nollet, minoris culpae et facilioris veniae esset, si cum Religioso quam cum saeculari delinqueret), and also a more headstrong resistance to reform in proportion as their pride was swollen by the greatness of their privileges. Compare the reformation of the Franciscans and Clarissae in Heilbronn, which was effected by force in 1465; see C. Jäger's Mittheilungen zur schwäbischen u. fränk. Reformationsgesch. Stuttgart, 1828, Bd. i. s. 11 ff. Compare also the reformation of the Franciscan monastery at Ulm, and of the convent connected with it, which was brought about likewise by force, A.D. 1484, and not until after a struggle of fifty years; see Schmidt u. Pfister Denkwürdigkeiten der Würtemberg. u. Schwäbischen Reformationsgeschichte, Heft 2, Tübingen, 1817, s. 12 ff. With regard to the nugatory efforts for reform in Hesse, see the letter of the landgrave, William III., to Pope Alexander VI., dd. 16th February, 1493 (Beurkundete Nachricht von dem Closter-Hauss Schiffenberg, 2ter Theil. Giessen, 1755, fol. Beilagen, no. 193): Consideranti mihi jam dudum, multa praeclara monasteria in temporali dominio meo—fundata et dotata jam proh dolor diebus istis tam miserabiliter a regulari vita defecisse, quod ne vestigium ullum pristinae honestatis et sanctitatis remanserit, imo declinasse ad tam abominabilem et bestialem vitam, quod justius scurrillatum receptacula quam monasteria et domus orationum nuncuparentur: haec inquam mihi cum gemitu consideranti, et correctionem talium a Praelatis eorum requirenti Magister provincialis fratrum minorum tandem aliquo modo satisfacere temptavit, monasterium b. Francisi in oppido residentiae meae Marpurg in tribus annis quater reformans. Semper eo recedente novissima pejora prioribus: tandem meliores quique locum deserentes ad Observantes se transtulerunt solis pessimis remanentibus. Quapropter videns me delusum, S. V. praedecessori pro opportuno remedio humiliter supplicare disposui: tum subito exoritur desiderabilis rumor, advenisse scilicet Dom. Raymundum quandam cum plena potestate reformandi etiam quaecunque monasteria. Aditur, rogatur, consentit et mandat ceteris Praelatis de reformatione quorundam monasteriorum, scil. b. Francisci in Marpurg et de Gronenberg, necnon S. Dominici etiam in Marpurg et in Treysa, ac S. Augustini in Alsfeldia, et in Heyne Cisterciensis Ordinis, Maguntinensis diocesis: dicens, se ad hoc sufficiente potestate per apostolica scripta munitum. Quid plura! credulus ego et laetabundus misi continuo ad Vicarium fratrum minorum de Observantia cum commissione et mandato predicti Dom. Raymundi, petens, ut monasterium praeformatum b. Francisci in Marpurg vellet quantocius reformare. Vicarius vero cum desiderium meum intellectisset, viso mandato ait obsistere sibi adhuc, quod bullae cuidam Pauli II. praedecessoris vestri, quae Paulina seu bulla concordiae dicitur, non videretur de verbo ad verbum sufficienter derogatum. Quod audiens vehementer dolui, perseverans tamen misi anno nonagesimo lapso ad s. Apostolicam sedem, humiliiter petens indulsum D. Raymundi approbari, et suppleri defectus bulla data. Sed totius boni inimicus Diabolus per se vel suos affuisse cognoscitur, ut allegatus defectus, qui erat ex parte Paulinae quoad fratres minores, tortuosus serpentis calliditate retrorqueretur ad alia quaedam monasteria Regularissarum: sic enim sonat bulla, quod illa possint reformari non obstante Paulina.—Iterum illusus iterum Oratorem, scil. anno 92, ud Curiam misi, et relatum est mihi, quod obtainuerit signaturam. Sed Beatitudinis Vestrae praedecessore de hoc saeculo migrante, similiter et Oratore meo finiente vitam in urbe, rursus pium negotium frustratum est. Quapropter, beatissime pater, perpendat quaeso clementer B. V. quotiens et quam diu fraudatus sum a desiderio meo, et quantum perversis et impiis ex hoc factus sum in parabolam et derisum, quasi homo qui coepit aedificare et non potuit consummare: et dignetur tandem Vestra Apostolica Benignitas mihi et Oratori meo praesenti in tam pio negotio efficaciter assistere, ac per induiti Raymundi de predictis virorum monasteriis approbationem, et defectus, si qui sint, maxime derogationis Paulinae ac alias necessarias clausulas de opportuno remedio providere: ne suspicari cogar, quod ex industria hucusque illu-

AGENCY OF THE MENDICANT ORDERS.

The mendicant monks, notwithstanding their exposure to censure on the score of morality, still exercised a most varied and important influence;¹ they made use of this to support all the arrogant claims of the Papal See, from which alone they had received their unbounded privileges,² and to exalt their order more

Comp. Rommel's Gesch. v. Hessen. Th. 3, Abth. 1, s. 130 ff.; Anmerkungen, s. 71 ff. Ulric, count of Wurtemberg, pleaded earnestly with the General of the Dominicans from the year 1476, for the reformation of the convents of this Order in his dominions: a female Dominican of this date records on this head, in Sattler's Gesch. d. Herzogth. Wurtemberg, Bd. 5, Beilagen, s. 173: do ward so vil verziehens und so langt umziehn, also das man mit diser sach zwey Jahr umgieng, und vast vil botschafft mit bitten, geschriften, die wart gesendet wider und für mit vil kosten und arbeit, e es zu dem anfang kam, das vil davon zu sagen und zu schreiben wer: still the reform was set on foot; see Sattler, Bd. 4, s. 146 ff. On the other hand, in the Dominican houses of Switzerland a free and licentious course of life prevailed unchecked; see Müller's Schweizerges., in the continuation by Hottinger, Bd. 6, s. 264. Congregations of reformed houses were established in the Dominican Order also; thus there was the congregation of Aragon and the Lombard congregation; see Helyot, iii. p. 225 ss. In the Carmelite Order, John Soreth, general of the Order from 1451, was active in the cause of reform; but he was poisoned in the monastery at Nantes in 1471, by way of recompense for his zeal; see Helyot, i. p. 323 ss.

¹ Erasmus, Adagiorum Chil. 2. Cent. 8. Adag. 65: Malorum Mendicantium ubique maxima turba est. Hi sic sese per omne reipublicae corpus sparserunt, ut nihil usquam agatur sine illis. Regnant in concionibus, quod peculiare munus Episcoporum; tyrannidem occuparunt in scholis, quod huic proximum munus; per hos ministrantur ecclesiastica Sacra menta, per hos sacerdotes sumus; hi plus quam censoria severitate pronunciant de fidei professione: hic Christianus est, hic Semichristianus, hic haereticus, hic sesquihaereticus; in horum sinus populus effundit occultos vitae actus, et secretissimas animi cogitationes. Nec his contenti sunt; nulla peraguntur Principum foedera, in quibus hi non agant partes. Sine his nullum contrahitur matrimonium; in theatricis certaminibus, in publicis sortibus agonothetas agunt: adeo nihil pudet. Denique nec mori licet absque istis. Nulla est aula Principum, in quam non irrepserunt. Si quod impudens facinus destinarunt Principes, per hos exequuntur; si quid moliuntur Romani Pontifices, quod paulo sit alienius ab apostolica illa et prisca sanctimonia, horum potissimum utuntur ministeriis; veluti si quod bellum, si quis tumultus, si qua exactio, si qua condonatio parum prudens, in hisce fabulis isti primas agunt. Interim simplici popello specie sanctitatis imponitur. Sacerdotes ad hos collati, sacerdotes non sunt. Episcopi horum fiducia in utramvis aurem dormiunt. Plebs destituta pro unicis pastoribus gemino luporum genere discepitur, dum et Praesules exercent tyrannidem; nec hi tamen pastores sunt, sed alia ratione praedones.

² In order to secure the privileges of the Franciscans and Dominicans, Sixtus IV., in 1474, collected them in two bulls, which were hence called the Mare Magnum of the Franciscans and of the Dominicans. These he completed and extended by the so-called Bulla aurea, dd. 7. Kal. Aug. 1479. They are all to be found in the Bullaria.

and more. They encountered the most emphatic resistance from the University of Paris. When they wished to hold office there as teachers, they were obliged to submit to its authority,³ and all their attempts to make themselves independent were decidedly repelled,⁴ as, indeed, all the exorbitant assumptions in support of the Papal See and the mendicant orders were sternly censured and punished by the University.⁵ By means of the principles upheld by the Parliament and the University, the secular clergy in France were still in some measure protected against the encroachments of the mendicants;⁶ elsewhere, on the other hand,

they were only the more humbled; and the mendicants, since they were able to demonstrate strongly enough the incapacity of the secular clergy,⁷ openly endeavored to destroy all their efficiency.⁸ The wavering intervention of the popes was not enough suis diocesisibus, donec renunciaverint, et obtinuerint hujusmodi revocatoriam. As the mendicants refused to renounce the bull, and to promise to effect its repeal, it was determined: Idcirco ipsa Universitas ex tunc omnes juratos de dictis Mendicantium Ordinibus reputavit et declaravit perjuros et privatos a gremio et consortio ipsius, non juratos autem ressecavit a susceptione graduum quorumcunque et acquisitione temporis Parisius in quacunque Facultate. The Parliament undertook some measures of reconciliation, on the petition of the mendicants; these, however, remained fruitless, until, in February, 1457 (more Gall. 1456), the draft of a bull came to Paris, in which it was pretended that Calixtus III. had repealed the bull of his predecessor (see Bulaeus, v. p. 612). Now the mendicants condescended to a—supplicatio humillima (p. 613), and they were again received (18th February,) as members of the University, after they had sworn to the conditions (p. 616), quod amplius non utantur Bulla existente in manibus Rev. D. Episcopi Parisiensis, neque similibus, et maneat dicta Bulla in manibus praefati Episcopi sicut est; et quod unus pro omnibus juratus de Ordine Mendicantium pro sua redintegratione habeat supplicare, et habeant Mendicantes antedicti obedire Bullae revocatoriae et ratiificari [facere] per suos Generales infra annum. Item jurabunt, quod nunquam imprestatibunt similes Bullas, alioquin ex tunc, prout ex nunc, reincident in similes privationes et poenas. Soon after it was discovered that the pretended Bulla revocatoria had not been issued; for Calixtus III., in a brief of the 18th March (p. 617), required the King to give protection to the mendicants, pronounced the disputed bull of his predecessor to be genuine, and confirmed it. The Dominicans were obliged, by the command of their general, to recede from the compact, and were again excluded from the University; however, in December, 1457, they petitioned to be received again, and yielded (p. 620).

to bring this ceaseless controversy to an end.⁹ Undoubtedly the mendicants were more zealous for the Church than the rest of the clergy, but their zeal was too often enlisted only in the furtherance of ecclesiastical superstition,¹⁰ and the praise of the saints veribus ostendunt. Et hi ut plurimum nimium audaces et idiotae. Inde eorum praedicatione contemptibilis redditur, et vertitur maxime profanam in divinationem. Nam eorum primarii, ut manifeste cernitur, non aliud videntur quaerere, nisi favorem populi, libertatem vitae, quaestum bonorum exteriorum. Quae debite considerantes, omnia eorum facta videntur hypocrita delinimenta. Nimirum parochiae destruuntur, Praelati contemnuntur, nulla disciplina contradicente. Sed cur non exercetur ipsa, nisi quia quilibet illorum quasi sibi conscient non audet illorum mala facta punire? The complaints of the parochial clergy against the mendicants run as follows; see Reformatorii Constant. Decretales, tit. x. c. 12, in v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const. I. xii. p. 715: quod superiores dictorum Fratrum non eo modo, sicut deberent, sed in scriptis, imo interdum nomine non expresso, Ordinarii locorum suos terminarios, ut plurimum idiotas, et interdum minus quam presbyteri curati scientes praesentant; praesentati soli, absque socio, per parochias velut vagi transcurrunt, absolutiones suas, ultra Curatorum efficaciores, tanquam apostolica auctoritate concessas, praedicant saepius; quod in casibus eis non commissis absolvunt, pecunaria etiam pactione praecedente aut interveniente; decadentibus et testari volentibus secretus ingerunt, sibi et non Curatis legari, et apud suos Conventus sepeliri. Quibus omnibus secretus ingestus et practicatis canoniam ipsis Curatis non exhibent portionem (viz., the quarter assigned by Boniface VIII., see vol. ii. § 69, note 3), in dictorum Curatorum multiplex praejudicium et gravamen.

⁹ Sixtus IV., induced by the remonstrances of the German bishops, and especially by the contest between the secular clergy and the mendicants at Esslingen, appointed a commission to adjust the dispute: this commission concluded an arrangement between the two parties, which Sixtus IV. confirmed by the bull Vices illius (in the Extravag. Commun. lib. i. tit. 9, c. 2), to the effect—quod ipsi parochiani sacerdotes de cetero non dicant, a Mendicantibus haereses processisse: cum in veritate fides nostra sit illuminata, et Ecclesia exaltata per eosdem, et praesertim per Ordines Praedicatorum et Minorum, ut jura testantur. Quodque Fratres Mendicantes non praedicent, populos parochianos non teneri audire missam in eorum parochiis diebus festivis et dominicis; cum jure sit caustum, illis diebus parochianos teneri audire missam in eorum parochiali Ecclesia, nisi forsitan ex honesta causa ab ipsa Ecclesia se absentarent. Quodque etiam nec Fratres, nec Curati inducant aliquo modo laicos ad eligendum sepulturam apud eos, et bene caueant propter poenas, quas imponunt canones, cum sit libera. Quod etiam ipsi Mendicantes desistant praedicare, quod parochiani non sint obligati, saltem in Paschate proprio confiteri sacerdoti. Per hoc tamen ipsi Fratres Mendicantes non censeantur exclusi, quo minus secundum juris communis et privilegiorum eisdem concessionum dispositionem confessiones audire, et poenitentias injungere valeant. Quod etiam de caetero inter ipsos Fratres Mendicantes et Curatores, quoad effectum praedicandi, horas cantandi, et campanas pulsandi, servetur consuetudo antiqua, quae temporibus antiquis servata fuit in ipso oppido Eslingensi. Et casu, quo veniat aliqua occasio sive necessitas, non fiat commutatio temporis vel horae in ipsis praedicationibus fiendis, nisi de consensu partium. Quodque etiam ipsi Fratres in sermonibus eorum non detrahant Praelatis et rectoribus parochialium Ecclesiarum, nec etiam populos a suarum Ecclesiarum parochialium frequentia et accessu abstractant, sive retrahant quoquo modo. Et vice versa ipsi rectores et Praelati aliquo modo non detrahant Mendicantibus, sed illum favorem, quem possunt, eis impendant, et in omnibus et per omnia praestent, ita ut vera unitas et perfecta caritas inter eos ostendatur. Here one can recognize at least the cause of the dispute: naturally enough the contest was not decided generally and forever by such compacts and confirmations.

¹⁰ The fraternities of the Rosary proceeding from the Dominicans, the first of which was founded at Cologne in 1475 by the Dominican Jac. Sprenger, come particularly

under this denomination (Echard. Bibl. Praed. i. p. 881). The Dominicans indeed spread abroad the notion, which also Leo X. repeats after them, in his bull of indulgence, granted to the fraternity in 1520 (in Eus. Amort, De Origine, Progressu, Valore ac Fructu Indulgentiarum, i. p. 171), quod olim, prout in historiis legitur, as. Dominico quaedam Confraternitas utriusque sexus fidelium, de Rosario b. M. V. nuncupata, ad honorem angelicae salutationis instituta, et in diversis mundi partibus praedicata fuit sequentibus signis (comp. vol. ii. § 69, note 10). Sed cum ipsa Confraternitas decursu temporis fere neglecta fuisset, et in oblivionem transisset, ac anno 1475 civitas et dioecesis Coloniensis gravibus bellis premeretur, eadem Confraternitas, ut civitas ab eis bellis liberaretur, in Ecclesia domus Praedicatorum Coloniensium innovata et de novo instituta fuit. In confutation of this pretense of an earlier origin, comp. Acta SS. August, t. i. p. 428 ss. Sixtus IV. grants to this Confraternitas de Rosario b. M. V., in 1478, for certain festivals in honor of the Virgin, the first indulgence of seven years and seven quadragenae (in Amort, l. c. p. 170), and describes it as, ad honorem angelicae salutationis instituta, cuius confratres et consorores tribus diebus cuiuslibet hebdomadis orationem dominicalem quindecies, et angelicam salutationem centum et quinquaginta vicibus ad honorem ejusdem b. Mariae Virginis juxta ipsum Confraternitatis instituta dicere consueverunt, quas quidem orationes Rosarium appellant; and adds, that also—extra civitatem Coloniensem in aliis civitatibus et locis sint quam plures utriusque sexus ejusdem Confraternitatis confratres. The fraternity spread so quickly, that, even in 1481, a similar one was founded in Schleswig, the rules of which are given in (Noodt's) Beiträge zur Erläuterung der Civil-, Kirchen- u. gelehrten Historie der Herzogthümer Schleswig u. Holstein, Bd. 2 (Hamb. 1752. 4), s. 31. Innocent VIII., in 1483, granted the brethren—vivae vocis oraculo, a plenary indulgence, semel in vita, et semel in mortis articulo, which Leo X. confirmed in 1520; see Amort, l. c. p. 171.

¹¹ The Council of Basle condemned the following assertions, in 1444, quae maxime praedicabantur a Mendicantibus in Taurinensi et Astensi Dioecesibus (Patrii Summa Concill. c. 138, in Hartzheim Concill. Germ. v. p. 865): Parochianos non teneri de jure dominicis diebus et solemnibus missas in propriis parochialibus Ecclesiis audire, sed ubi pro eorum devotione maluerint, praetermissis suis parochiis; et hanc libertatem non posse eis adimi a synodalibus constitutionibus: quodque Parochiani suis Curatis illis diebus non tenentur ad oblationem faciendam, sed in voluntate dantis sit, cui velit eam dare.—Obnoxium quavis causa faciendi missas celebrari pro vivis et defunctis, non satisfacere debito suo, si per curatum sacerdotem id fieri curet, quoniam ratione curae ad id sit obligatus. Decimaru solutionem, etsi de pracepto sit, non tamen de pracepto esse, cui sit solvenda: liberum igitur esse omnibus cui velint eas solvere, vel in opera pietatis pro arbitrio impendere. Morientes in habitu et professione Ordinis Minorum ultra annum non passuros in poenis purgatorii, quoniam b. Franciscus ex divino privilegio quotannis ad purgatorium descendat, professoresque omnes sui Ordinis adducat secum ad coelum (compare above, § 112, note 7). Fratres Mendicantes, etiam non praesentatos Ordinariis, omnium confessiones posse audire; illosque, qui apud eos sint confessi, non obligari, etiam semel in anno confiteri proprio sacerdoti, nec petere confitendi veniam. Episcopos dioecesanos etiam in suis Synodis non posse sibi reservare absolutiones aliquorum criminum praeter casus in jure expressos. Thus, in 1494, the Synod of Nitra, in Hungary, passed some decrees against the impostures of the mendicants, Constitutiones Syn. Nitriensis, c. 30 (in C. Péterffy Conc. Hungariae, P. i. p. 277): Nam sicut ad nostrum pervenit auditum, non sine multa temeritatis audacia, et deceptione multiplici animarum indulgentias populo motu proprio de facto concedunt; super votis dispensant; a perjuriis, homicidiis et peccatis aliis sibi confitentes absolvunt; male ablata incerta, data sibi aliqua pecuniae quantitate, remittunt; tertiam et quartam partem de poenitentis injunctis relaxant; animas tres, vel plures parentum vel amicorum illorum, qui eleemosynas eis conferunt, de purgatorio, ut asserunt mendaciter, extrahunt, et ad gaudia Paradisi perducunt; confratribus et benefactoribus ipsorum remissionem plenariam peccatorum indulgent; et aliqui ex ipsis eos a pena et culpa, ut eorum verbis utamur, absolvunt. John Busch (see § 140, note 4) once heard a Carmelite from Brabant preach at Hanover (see Busch De Reform. Monasteriorum, iii. c. 16, in Leibnitii Scriptt. Brunsv., ii. p. 925), who, being instigated by the unreformed Franciscans of the place, taunted him as the reformed of monasteries, and at the same time made such statements as these: quoties missa per mundum celebratur, toties una anima de purgatorio liberatur, and: Mendicantes, Episcopis praesentati a suis superioribus, sunt supra Plebanos. Busch compelled him to recant both of these statements in public. How the Franciscans laud their founder is shown by the opinions which the servant, Johannes Mercator, had preached in Besançon, and which were condemned by the Sorbonne in 1486 (d'Argentré Collectio Judiciorum de Novis Erroribus I., ii. 318):

I. Sedes Luciferi erat super choros angelorum et in decimo ordine, quae erat vacua et modo mirabiliter praeparata atque adornata, reservata b. Francisco soli, quia ab ea ejec-tus fuerat Lucifer propter suam superbiam. Et in hoc seculo nullus fuit inventus habens tantam humilitatem, quantam habuit b. Franciscus.
II. B. Franciscus assimilabitur Christo in quadraginta modis seu manieribus. Quodque ipse est secundus Christus et secundus filius Dei.
III. B. Francisci conceptio fuit praenunciata ab Angelo. Natus in praesepio inter bovem et asinum.
IV. B. Franciscus stigmata suscepit successive, duabus horis semper interpositis, et in susceptione cuiuslibet cecidit in terram propter nimium dolorem, quem in suscipiendo suscipiebat, ita ut spiritum emisset, nisi Christus eum confortasset.
V. B. Franciscus in suscipiendo praedicta stigmata tantos dolores sustinuit vel quasi, quantos habuit Christus in passione.
VI. B. Franciscus incepit recipere praedicta stigmata a summo mane, et perseveravit in susceptione usque ad horam nonam, qua hora dominus noster Jesus expiravit.
VII. B. Franciscus cum clavis retortis ab intus et extra, in ipsis stigmatibus inclusis, dicta stigmata portavit per duos annos.
VIII. Christus in propria persona percutiendo sua manu stigmata praedicta infixit.
IX. B. Franciscus vulnus seu stigmata lateris sui suscepit, quando Christus latus suum vulneratum in cruce lateri ipsius b. Francisci applicuit.
X. In susceptione stigmatum praedictorum petra scissa est, ut in passione Christi, in cuius petrae scissura ipse Johannes, qui hoc praedicat, brachium suum immisit.
XI. B. Franciscus obtinuit a Deo privilegium, quod anno quolibet descendit ad locum Purgatorii in die solemnitatis sua, et animos quorumlibet Religiosorum et Religiosarum et omnium de habitu ipsius S. Francisci seu Fratrum Minorum in ipso Purgatorio existentium extrahit, et secum educit in Paradisum, quemadmodum Christus seu ejus anima descendit ad inferna, et tertia die animas patrum secum eduxit.
XII. B. Franciscus etiam obtinuit a Deo, quod Religiosi qui nou bene servant regulam suam, non possent diu remanere in hoc mundo nec in praedicta Religione; et quod murmurantes aut male loquentes de Religiosis et de Ordine praedicto graviter punirentur in hoc saeculo et in alio. Quod nulli in vita sua revelavit ipse b. Franciscus, nisi S. Leoni confessori suo, qui post ejusdem b. Francisci obitum revelavit. The Franciscans were even surpassed by the Carmelites in extravagances with regard to purgatory. They had asserted long before, that persons dying in the Carmelite scapulary would not be condemned (see vol. ii. § 69, note 12); they now added, that these persons were always fetched out of purgatory by the Virgin Mary on the next Saturday after their death. In confirmation of this they forged, in the course of the 15th century, a bull of John XXII., the so-called Bulla Sabbathina, which is first mentioned about 1496 by Johannes Palaeonydorus, a Carmelite at Mechlin; see Jo. Launoji Dissertt. de Simonis Stockii Viso, in his Opp. ii. ii. p. 406. According to this, the Holy Virgin had appeared to the Pope as a Carmelite nun, and declared to him (l. c. p. 404): Fratres professi dicti Ordinis supplicio solvantur et culpa, et die, quo ipsi saeculo recessunt, ac properato gradu accelerant Purgatorium, ego mater gratiosa descendam Sabbato post eorum obitum, et quot inveniam in Purgatorio liberabo, et eos in montem sanctum vitae aeternae reducam. At the same time was forged a confirmation of this bull by Alexander V. in 1409 (l. c. p. 423), and the fraud met with such success that the Bulla Sabbathina was actually confirmed by Clement VII., in 1530 (l. c. p. 440, 446), and by Paul V. in 1613. Amort, Hist. Indulgenciarum, i. p. 144, considers the Bulla Sabbathina and its confirmation by Alexander V. to be genuine.

to be the most faithful servants of the popes;¹² and this they were, so far as the interests of their Order fell in with those of the Pontiff; where these diverged, their obedience also came to an end.¹³

MORE INDEPENDENT ECCLESIASTICAL COMMUNITIES.

At the beginning of this period the Beghards, but particularly the Brothers of the Common Life (Fratres vitae communis, also called, Fratres bonae voluntatis, Fratres collationarii, Clerici devoti, and, in many places, Fratres Hieronymiani or Gregoriani), in the Netherlands, had to sustain a severe attack from Matthew Grabo, lector of the Dominican monastery at Gröningen; he pronounced their whole method of life unlawful and heretical. However, these Brethren were supported by the reformed canons of the Windsheim general chapter, with whom they maintained unbroken the closest intercourse. Grabo, accused before the Bishop of Utrecht, appealed to the Pope. Thus the question was brought before the Council of Constance.¹ Here the principal authorities ni Capituli Windesemensis (Accedit Chron. Montis S. Agnetis, auct. Thoma a Kempis, una cum vindiciis Kempensibus Heriberti Rosweydi Soc. Jesu pro libro De Imitatione Christi. Antverp. 1621. 8), written in 1464, lib. ii. c. 58, p. 547: Quidam de Ordine Praedicatorum Frater, Matthaeus Grabo nomine, grande volumen ediderat contra devotos Presbyteros, Clericos et Beginas, pariter in communi sine regulae alicujus professione viventes. Quem Pastori in Daventria repraesentans adhaesione expetit, et ut in ejus transiret sententiam publice contra eos sermocinando, rogavit. But the latter sent the book to the rector of the house of the Brethren at Deventer, and he to the prior of the regular canons at Nordhorn, who carried the case before the Bishop of Utrecht. When Grabo appealed to the Pope, the bishop betook himself to the council, with the proposal —ut iste audacter Frater Matthaeus Grabo digna feriretur animadversione, reprobis in exemplum, and bore witness—quod nihil unquam mali, dignum suspicione, contra morem Ecclesiae, in devotis hujus patriae sexus utriusque invenit delitescere, sed omnes et singuli vitam veram apostolicam Ecclesiae primitivae, ut veri Christiani, ad purum servarent. The purport of Grabo's work appears from the letters written by his advocate at the Council of Constance to the Pope, in v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const. iii. p. 106: cum lector (M. Grabo)—videret, plures personas sexus utriusque novae Religionis habitum assumentes, et conventicula facientes, nullum habitum approbatum profitentes, statuentesque sibi ipsis Superiores pro libitu voluntatis, et sub simulata devotione populum attrahentes, et multa contra veritatem sacrae Scripturae ac sacros Canones attentantes, et de eleemosynis Christifidelium domos sumptuosas ad modum monasteriorum regularium aedificantes, et se invicem in eis includentes cum observatione quorundam rituum minime per Ecclesiam approbatorum: coepit super hoc apud semetipsum ardenter cogitare, et an hoc stantibus regulis fidei et sacris canonibus Ecclesia dissimulare deberet; revolvensque diligentius sacrae scripturae sanctorumque Doctorum libros et sacros Canones, quasdam conclusiones, reprobantes illorum modum vivendi, extraxit, et scripturae commendavit. Quarum una principalis est, ex qua aliae deducuntur exceptis paucis: nullus potest licite et meritorie, imo nec veraciter, obedientiae, paupertatis, et castitatis universalia consilia conjunctim, extra veras Religiones manendo, adimplere. Viz. ad saeculares pertinet tantum particularia vota offerre, ad regulares autem universalia praedicta. Further, the conclusio undecima: abdicare quemquam omnia propter Christum, extra praedicas religiones manendo, seu nisi veram aliquam Religionem ingrediatur, est sibi et suis, quorum cura sibi incumbit, vitam subtrahere: quod est, homicidium tot hominum committere quot ejus curae subduntur. Haec est de mente S. Thomae Secunda Secundae Qu. 33. Ex quibus sequitur, quod nullus potest abdicationem omnium propter Christum facere extra veram Religionem manendo sine peccato mortali: quia subtraheret sibi vitam.—Ex quibus sequitur, quod dicens pertinaciter, omnia esse meritorie abjicienda propter Christum in saeculo manenti, haereticus est dicendus.—Ex quibus sequitur, quod proprietas temporalium rerum est statui saeculari essentialiter annexa. Et per consequens Dominus Papa salva auctoritate sua non potest dispensare cum saecularibus, ut omnibus in singulari careant, seu nihil in singulari habeant.—Si enim Dominus Papa posset hoc alicui concedere,—posset ei concedere propriae vitae subtractiones, etc.—Sequitur etiam, quod religiosus sine peccato mortali non potest abdicare voluntatem habendi communia (compare above, § 113, note 11 ss.):—quia sine illis vivere non posset, cum per suam professionem renunciaverit omnibus et singulis propriis singularibus.—Grabo's statements are more fully comprised in the twenty-five articles which follow. The last of these are: XXI. Excommunicati sunt omnes communem vitam ducentes extra Religionem approbatam. XXII. Quare similiter excommunicati sunt illi, qui vitam communem extra Religionem approbatam ducentibus praebent eleemosynam. Et qui tales fovent consilio et auxilio vel defensione, similiter stant et sunt in statu perpetuae damnationis. Et nisi de hujusmodi eorum excessibus magna contritione poenituerint, ad vitam aeternam non possunt pervenire, neque salvi permanere. XXIII. Omnes vitam communem ducentes extra Religionem approbatam sunt illi, a quibus Salvator noster praecipit esse abstinentum, et tanquam a falsis Prophetis attendendum. XXIV. Quilibet faciens contra jura canonica peccat mortaliter. XXV. Nullus corpore validus absque communi utilitate et necessitate potest extra veras Religiones sine peccato eleemosynas Christifidelium tollere.

² For instance, Petrus de Alliaco and Jo. Gerson, in their opinion upon Grabo's propositions, in v. d. Hardt, iii, p. 112 ss. The former remarks, on Act. iv., 32–34, quod in illa congregacione primitiva fuerunt multi uxorati et alii diversarum conditionum saeculares (yet they had all things in common), qui scilicet non erant adstricti per votum ad tria consilia evangelica castitatis, obedientiae, et paupertatis quemadmodum sunt professi Religionum per b. Basiliū, Benedictū et Augustinū ac similes introductarum. Quas iste, ponens hujusmodi conclusiones, appellat veras Religiones, tanquam extra illas non sit vera Religio, quod falsum est, imo haereticum, si sic per praecisionem intelligatur: quoniam Christiana vera est Religio etiam apud saeculares. He pronounces Grabo's Tractatus to be—haereticalis et igni tradendus. Gerson also supported this opinion, and declaims with especial force against the misuse of the word Religio, see l. c. p. 116: Propositio III. Religio Christiana potest absque voto obligante ad consilia perfecte, imo perfectissime, observari. Patet de Christo, qui non legitur vovisse consilia, qui fuit tamen suae legis perfectissimus observator. Patet insuper de Apostolis et discipulis Christianis in primitiva Ecclesia, quorum multi erant uxorati, multi possessiones habuerunt, quidam in communi, quidam in proprio.—Prop. IV. Religio Christiana non requirit ad perfectiorem sui observationem tam in praeceptis, quam in consiliis, quod superaddatur alia religio. Quales dicuntur observationes institutae per sanctos Basilium et Augustinum, etc., et quales Anshelmus vocat religiones facticias. Prop. V. Religiones hujusmodi factitiae satis improprie et abusive et forsan arroganter dicta sunt status perfectionis. Gerson decides to this effect, Corollarium III., quod tota doctrina fratris istius innititur stultae et insanae fantasiae, imo et blasphemiae.—Coroll. IV., quod fautores et defensores istius fratris sunt arcendi seu repellendi, et nisi desistere voluerint, graviter puniendi; ita tamen, quod non laxetur nimia licentia ad defensionem Begardorum et Beguttarum, si reperiantur effrenes, et discoli, et scandalosi in sacris observationibus.

Brethren were always distinguished, both by a practical religious mysticism, and by a zeal for useful employment in many ways.⁵ Many Brethren were engaged in schools or active in their behalf;⁶

Ex quibus patres, fratres et sorores de tertia regula S. Francisci nuncupati plus quam centum domos sive Congregations devotas extrahentes, sub uno provinciali Capitulo regulariter vivere, et Deo fideliter servire usque hodie comprobantur ; et ipsi patres Congregationum devotarum primi, juxta morem Ecclesiae primitivae sub regula Christi caritate pariter in communi secundum Evangelium viventes, habent adhuc domos sexus utriusque unitas numero paene quinquaginta, virorum videlicet paene viginti, et sororum triginta ; nosque jam habemus Monasteria Ordinis Canonicorum regularium sexus utriusque Capitulo generali de Windesem incorporata plus quam septuaginta, virorum videlicet sexaginta duo, et tredecim sanctimonialium.—Patres ergo devoti in diebus Domini Florentii Radewini pro sui status et devotionis conservatione in Daventria simul ad colloquium consueverant convenire ; post ejus transitum ad Congregationem Clericorum in Zwollis—ad colloquium annuale in Dei timore celebrandum omnes pariter convenerunt in Dominica Misericordias Domini post Pascha, aut in feris consequentibus, cum Ecclesia generale Capitulum in Windesem celebraret, propter loci convenientiam, et Capituli nostri generalis propinquitatem, et maxime propter Priorem nostrum in Windesem, ad quem finito colloquio cuncti Patres eorum principaliores accedere solebant, ut cuncta in ipsorum decreta colloquiis perpetue de ipsius consilio firmarentur. Simili modo Patres Congregationum Westphaliae, Saxonie, Coloniae Dominicana Jubilate in Monasteriensem civitatem ad colloquium annuale pariter convenient, Priore de Northorn, aut Priore de Bodike ibidem tunc praesente. ⁶ Several of the houses of Brethren opened schools themselves, e. g. that in Delft (Delprat, p. 92), in Herzogenbusch (p. 96), in Ghent (p. 106), in Utrecht (p. 127), in Liege (p. 142), and in Cambray (p. 145). The instruction given in these schools may have been at times in the highest degree incomplete ; see Erasmi Epist. ad Lamb. Grunium, below, note 13. Elsewhere, the Brethren were satisfied with helping the existing schools of the town, with furnishing poor scholars with lodging, food, and books, with taking them under their care, and giving them an opportunity to earn something for themselves. Thus the school at Zwoll owed its celebrity, which began under the Rector Joannes Cele († 1417 ; see with regard to him, Buschii Chron. Windesem, lib. ii. c. 68, p. 601 ss.), in great measure to the Brethren of the place (Delprat, p. 63). Thus also the Brethren supported the schools at Gouda (Delprat, p. 109), Groningen (p. 116), and Harderwyk (p. 119). But above all, the school at Deventer, as it was under the rector Alexander Hegius (from 1465–1498 ; see with regard to him, Herm. Hamelmanni Oratio de doctis Westphaliae Viris, in his Opp. Genealog. ac Hist. i. p. 94 ss. Delprat, p. 295), became almost world-renowned, and several Brethren assisted in the education of this school (Delprat, p. 54 ss.). In Herford the Brethren taught in the school of the others were employed in all kinds of trades, to earn their livelihood.⁷ At the same time, it was a principal object of the association to forward the religious education of the people,⁸ and in particular to train pious clergy and monks: it soon became a fruitful training school for the monasteries.⁹ This activity, and the reverence in which the Brethren were held by the people, kept alive the jealousy of the mendicants; and, inasmuch as the Brethren belonged to the large class of Beghards, they could not fail to find, in the equivocal usage of this name, a pretext for persecution.¹⁰ Eugene IV., indeed, took the persecuted Brethren under his protection;¹¹ but many of them nevertheless found themselves com-

Pusinnen Church; see Knefel's Gesch. des Friedrichsgymnasiums in Herford. Herford, 1817, s. 9.

⁸ Their collationes (in Dutch collatien) contributed especially to this end; these were assemblies for divine service on Sundays and festivals, in which portions of the gospels were read in the language of the people, and practically explained, and at which the preachers asked questions of the persons present. The Brethren also distributed small religious tracts among the people (Delprat, p. 213, 261). Copies of these may be seen in Delprat, p. 306 ss. Comp. Jo. Busch, Chron. Windesem, lib. i. c. 47, p. 214: Quantae in saeculo sunt personae sexus utriusque, quae amicitia his (congregationibus) conjunctae a saeculi vanitate per eas conversae, et ad meliora, sanctum videlicet propositum, et bonam voluntatem libenter Deo serviendi, ipsarum exemplo inductae et provocatae, quamvis ad omnia evangelica consilia statim arripienda propter multa impedientia nondum dare se valent, vitam attamen sanctam, a peccatis alienam, ad earum informationem student observare, quis enumerabit? This activity was naturally most offensive to the mendicants, and thus occurrences might often happen, such as the following, which Jo. Busch, De Reform. Monaster., iii. c. 17, in Leibnitii Scriptt. Brunsv., ii. p. 925 s. records: Lector quidam Ordinis Fratrum Praedicatorum in Zutphania publice praedicavit, quod laici libros teutonicales habere non deberent, et sermones non nisi ad populum in Ecclesia fieri deberent. Ego autem simplex tunc frater in Windesem, in Zutphaniam missus cum fratre pro negotio, hoc audiens et sciens, plus quam centum congregationes sororum et Beginarum in terra Trajectensi plures habere libros teutonicales, et eos quotidie legere singulariter et in refectorio, constanter contradixi. Busch betook himself, on this account, to the prior of the Dominicans. He answered at first: Laici quidam altos habent in teutonico libros, videlicet Sententiarum et similes, quos quidam Ordinis nostri transtulit in teutonicum ex latino, Valens Doctor; alii Missale etiam cum Canone habent in teutonico: ergo non valet, quod laici libros legant in teutonico. Busch answered: Hoc non approbo, quod simplices laici, viri vel foeminae, tam altos et divinos libros habent teutonicales: imo et Canonem, in teutonico apud Moniales inventum, ego combussi. Veruntamen libros morales de vitiis et virtutibus, de incarnatione, vita et passione Christi, de vita et sancta conversatione et martyrio ss. Apostolorum, Martyrum, Confessorum et Virginum; homilias quoque et sermones Sanctorum, ad emendationem vitae, morum disciplinam, inferni timorem, patriaeque coelestis amorem provocantes, habere et quotidie legere cunctis doctis et indoctis utilissimum est. Quod si istos admittere non vultis, ego dicta doctorum s. Ecclesiae, Augustini, Gregorii, Ambrosii et Hieronymi, caeterorumque orthodoxorum in scriptis vobis ostendam, quod hujusmodi habere libros omnino utile est et licitum. At last he threatened to bring him before the Bishop of Utrecht; and then the prior compelled the lector to recant in public.

On the other hand, these societies were allowed to live in common as hitherto: it was forbidden to disturb them; all right over them was taken away from the inquisitors and mendicants, ita quod ipsi inquisidores fratres et quibus alii nullam inquisitionis, visitationis, jurisdictionis, superioritatis potestatem vel officium in eosdem, eorumque domos valeant exercere, nec in ipsis excommunicationis seu alias sententias vel poenas promulgare. They were to be subject to the ordinary alone; but strolling Beghards were not to be tolerated. Power was given to the ordinary to proceed against all the persecutors of these societies with every ecclesiastical censure. In fine, this bull was not to be understood as if it confirmed the—statum praedictorum, ut ordinem religionis approbatae. Another bull, issued by Eugene IV. in favor of the Brethren, dd. 15th December, 1431, may be seen in Revius Daventria Illustris, p. 68 ss.

¹³ Erasmi Epist. ad Lambertum Grunnium (in Opp. ed. Lugd. Bat., t. iii. p. ii. p. 1822 or App. Ep. 442): Two young men of promise, in order to induce them to enter the monastic state, instead of being sent to the University, were sent—in contubernium quorundam, qui vulgo Fratres Collationarii vocantur, qui nusquam gentium non nidulantes, institutis pueris quaestum facitant. Horum illud praecipuum est studium, ut si quem puerum videant indole generosiore et alacriore, cuiusmodi fere sunt ingenia felicissima, eam plagis, minis, objurgationibus, aliisque variis artibus frangant ac dejicient, id appellant cicurare, vitaque monasticae fingant. Quo quidem nomine satis amantur a Dominicanis ac Franciscanis, quod dicant ipsorum Ordines brevi interituros, nisi penes illos aleretur seminarium. Ex illorum enim cortibus legunt suos tirones. Evidem arbitror et inter illos esse viros quosdam minime malos: sed quum optimorum auctorum inopia laborent; quum in suis tenebris suis quibusdam moribus ac ritibus degant, seque non aliis, sed sibi ipsis comparent; quum bonam diei partem cogantur precum et operarum pensis impendere; non video, quo pacto valeant liberaliter instituere pueritiam: certe res ipsa loquitur, non aliunde prodire adolescentes inelegantius doctos, aut moribus deterioribus.—Unus praceptorum talis erat, ut Florentius (one of these youths) neget, se usquam vidisse monstrum vel indoctius, vel gloriosius. Et tales non raro praeficiuntur

In Upper Germany and Switzerland these Brethren of the Common Life could find no entrance; and here the societies of the Beghards still remained addicted to mendicancy, and nurseries of heresy.¹⁴

NEW ORDERS.

The most remarkable of the orders founded at this time is that of the Minims.¹ The founder, Francis, of Paula,² a small town in Calabria, after a short residence in an unreformed Franciscan monastery, first lived a life of unusual rigor as a hermit in the neighborhood of his paternal town, and afterward, in 1457, gathered about him a society of congenial spirits. With the fame of his miraculous powers,³ his Order also, which had been confirmed pueris. Non enim eliguntur eruditorum judicio, sed arbitrio patriarchae, qui plerumque litteras nescit. Alter vero, qui semper visus est unice delectari in dolo Florentiana, quum sentiret agi de reditu in patriam, coepit privatis colloquiis sollicitare animum adolescentis, ut ipsorum accederet instituto, multa commemorans quibus pueri solent illecitari. Quod utinam esset factum! Nam aut volentem pietatis amor apud illos detinuisse, aut si res ita tulisset, licuisset in pristinam redire libertatem. Neque enim hoc hominum genus, quod habent praecipuum bonum, ac priscae religionis vestigium, votis insolubilibus adstringitur.—Ex hac hominum sodalitate novi, qui non modo terriculamentis ac blanditiis, verum etiam horrendis obtestationibus, ac prope dixerim, exorcismis et incantamentis pueros nondum egressos annum decimum quartum divites ac bene natos conati sunt obtundere, ut insciis parentibus ipsorum instituto semet addicerent.

¹⁴ Compare especially the works of Felix Hämmerlin, composed against the Beghards (see § 139, note 7): Contra Validos Mendicantes, Descriptio Lolhardorum, Glossa bullarum per Beghardos impetratarum, all written about 1438: E. g. in the Descriptio Lolhardorum (Opp. fol. C. 2, a): *Frequenter etiam accidit, ut patet, quod inter illam malam societatem fuerunt sectae et haereticorum conventicula in diebus et in terris nostris.—Et summarie quod in tota Alemannia superiore non est contra fidem catholicam haeresis introducta, nisi per vulpeculas illius sectae Beghardorum, Lolhardorum et Beghinarum malitiosissimae: absque eo quod quamplures latrones et Sodomitae sunt in eorum habitu reperti. In Switzerland, part of the Beghards maintained themselves in towns, part led the life of anchorites; see Glossa Bullarum (fol. C. 3): *Infirorum curam gerunt illi frequenter, qui in civitatibus morantur, et ad hoc opus sylvestres et anachoretae non convenient, sed in talibus pure quiescent.—In sepulturis quorumcunque se non intromittunt, qui in nemoribus degunt. Compare, ejusd. Liber de Religiosis proprietariis (fol. B. 5, a): Anachoretas nunc fallaciter se simulant Beghardi et Lolhardi in nemoribus et extra morantes, nullam regulam profitentes, et aliqui de tertia regula fratum Minorum se recognoscentes, et fallaciter scapulare sumentes.

Still these were common miracles enough; and the author himself confesses, that not all of the saint's miraculous cures were successful; see § 57, Acta SS. l. c. p. 119: Hic vero posset interrogare aliquis, cur non ii omnes exauditi sunt, qui ejus opem imploraverunt? In promptu autem responsio est, multos languere corporaliter, ut spiritualiter vivant, etc.

⁶ The first rule was confirmed by Alexander VI. in 1492. But afterward Francis took upon himself to make certain alterations, and thus four rules followed, one after the other; the second was confirmed by Alexander VI. in 1501; the third in 1502; and the fourth, and last, by Julius II., dd. v. Kal. Aug., 1506. This fourth rule falls into three divisions—the Regula fratrum, the Regula sororum, and regula Tertiariorum. In the second and third rule, besides the three monastic vows, there was added, as a fourth, the —votum vitae quadragesimalis: in the fourth rule, cap. 6, this was enjoined in the following words, ut singuli hujus Ordinis fratres a cibis carnalibus omnino abstineant, et dignos poenitentiae fructus in cibo quadragesimali taliter agant, quod ipsi earnes ac omnia sementinam originem a carnibus ipsis trahentia penitus vitent. Carnes igitur et pinguedo, ova, butyrum, caseus, et queavis lacticinia ex eisdem congesta et producta, intus et extra, omnibus et singulis, fratribus ipsis et oblatis, sint omnino et irrefragabili interdicta.

INTERNAL HISTORY OF THE CHURCH.

HISTORY OF SCHOLASTICISM.

[Cf. H. Ritter, Geschichte d. Christlichen Philosophie, 4. 8; also a sketch by him of the Scholastic Philosophy, in Raumer's Hist. Taschenbuch, 1856. F. D. Maurice, History of Mediaeval Philosophy, 8. Lond. 1856 (in the new edition of the Encycl. Metropol.)—Thought and Study in Europe, from the Foundation of Universities to the Reformation, 8. Lond. 1857.]

The time of the original productiveness of scholasticism had long since passed away. The various schools only repeated and defended what their founders had formerly taught; their highest aim was to surpass each other in skill of disputation. Nominalism maintained the advantage it had won; though suspicion of its orthodoxy continued to cling to it. In 1473 Lewis XI. did indeed forbid all nominalistic teaching;¹ but, in 1481, when he found himself obliged to restore its freedom,² its triumph was decisive. Nominalism did, indeed, still continue to assert a degree of freedom of thought, such as is apparent in the works of Gabriel Biel of Tübingen († 1495), the last of the more eminent schoolmen.³ But the great mass of the nominalists clung to a barren dialectics. Among the schoolmen of this time St. Antoninus⁴ is pre-eminent in moral philosophy, but even in this field the love of logic only too often outweighed the sense for truth and morality.⁵ In the course of this period scholasticism sunk in general

nullo modo eis resistere possint, et ob hoc eos penitus exterminare nituntur. Tertia causa est ex quadam haeresi conficta in Universitate Lovanii. Quidam enim Lovaniensis Regens (Petrus de Rivo; see the history of this controversy, I. c. p. 258) tractatum composuit in quo negabat certitudinem et praesentiam divinam de contingentibus, asserens propositiones de futuro contingent, etiam contentas in Biblia et a Christo prolatas, non esse veras. Quem tractatum his haeresibus plenam approbavit Lovaniensis Universitas, promotoremque suum Parisius misit sollicitare Facultatem theologiae, quatenus dictum tractatum approbaret. Cui cum multi dictae Facultatis Doctores, et illi maxime, qui doctrinam Nominalium exterminationem procurant, faverent; se viriliter objecerunt et opposuerunt illi qui dicuntur Nominales, nullum periculum pro defensione fidei formidantes, impedieruntque, ne theologiae Facultas dictum tractatum approbaret. Quod molestissime illi, qui dicuntur Reales, tulerunt, et usque ad xxiv. se dicto tractatu subscripserunt et illum approbaverunt.

² Bulaeus, v. p. 739; d'Argentré, I. ii. p. 302. The provost of Paris writes to the rector of the University: Le Roi m'a chargé faire declouer et defermer tous les livres des Nominaux,—et que je vous fissois savoir que chacun y estudiast qui voudroit. The nations of Germany and Picardy, according to their extant declarations, regarded this decree as a triumph of the truth. The German nation made known, quod veritatis et doctrina et via, quae diu latere non potest, publicaretur;—et clausi in compedibus seu catenis libri, ut lubet, aperirentur, a Studiosis visitentur, et a Doctoribus dogmatizentur, quicumque etiam Magistri doctrinam, quam lubet, libere doceant.

³ His most remarkable works are, an unfinished Collectorium ex Occamo, in libb. iv. Sententiarum (ed. Tubingae, 2 vol. fol. 1502, and at other times: sometimes quoted as Comm. in libb. iv. Sent., on which account these two titles have now and then been erroneously considered to belong to two different works), and Expositio Canonis Missae (ed. Tubing. 1499, and at other times). Among his free-thinking views are these: that, agreeably to the decree of Constance, he maintains the supremacy of the Church over the Pope, Expos. Can. Lect. xxiii. fol. 30, col. 1; that he advocates the decrees of Basle (Coll. lib. iii. Dist. iii. Qu. 1, Art. 2: Sunt impudentes, qui dicere ausi sunt, Basileense Concilium non fuisse legitime congregatum, et ideo constitutiones suas nullas fore, contra acceptationem eorum in concordatis Principum); that he doubts the character, which was thought to be the effect of certain sacraments (Coll. lib. iv. Dist. vi. qu. 2, art. 1, concl. 1. Characterem esse ponendum, nec ratio necessaria, nec evidens auctoritas probat, compare the whole Quaest.); that he declares absolution to be not judicialis (Coll. lib. ii. Dist. xxvii.: Non unquam sacerdos absolvit eum, qui non prius a Deo, summo sacerdote, absolutus est. Unde sacerdos absolvendo confidentem pronunciat eum absolutum, non remittit peccatum). Compare H. W. Biel, Diss. Theol. de Gabriele Biel Celeberrimo Papista Antipapista. Vitemb. 1719. 4.

estimation in the same degree that the newly awakened knowledge of antiquity increased. The struggle between the two became the more unequal, in proportion as all the men of distinguished ability attached themselves to the latter. The gloomy halls of scholasticism became more and more the resort of narrow-mindedness, ignorance, and rudeness.⁶ It made itself as ridiculous by its obscurities as it was contemptible for its vain and often audacious trifling with imaginary problems;⁷ it is depicted in the one Ecclesiae Liber. (s. loco et anno, but probably published in 1511), perhaps Ulric of Hutten : Theologia ista scholastica, quae est ingeniosa cum ad conscientias in nugs aggravandas, tum rursus ad inveniendas excusationes in peccatis multo solertissima.

⁷ Cf. Jacobus Carthusianus (or de Paradiso, see § 136, note 31), De Arte Curandi Vitia (ex MS. in v. d. Hardt, Autographa Lutheri praef. p. 48): Quid theologi nostro tempore student, nisi de potestate Dei, de providentia, de communicatione idiomatum, de natura Angelorum? Et de hujusmodi altis et raris et dubiis disputant in altis cathedris, magnis quaestionibus et libris se ostentantes. De practica autem emendationis vitae, et de modo agendi poenitentiam, de practica caritatis Dei et proximi, de humilitate servanda, ac de zelo animarum, de abusionibus deponendis et confutandis, quae sunt in Ecclesia Dei adeo magnae et multae, ut vix verus ordo vivendi secundum Christianam Religionem possit apparere. . . . Erasmus, Annot. in 1 Tim. i. 6, says, with reference to the unprofitable questions of the schoolmen: Haec si vel animi laxandi gratia, vel citra contentionem agitarentur, ferri poterant. Nunc quibusdam tota aetas in hujusmodi quaestionibus consumitur, et res usque ad clamorem, usque ad vera dissidia, usque ad convitum, nonnumquam usque ad pugnos procedit. — Quid autem nunc loquar de quaestiuculis, non solum supervacaneis, sed pene dixerim impiis, quas movemus de potestate Dei, de potestate Romani Pontificis? An Deus possit quodvis malum, etiam odium sui praecipere, et omne bonum prohibere, etiam amorem et cultum sui; an possit actu infinitum secundum omnem dimensionem producere; an potuerit hunc mundum

Epistolae Obscurorum Virorum, though perhaps with satirical exaggeration, still truly as to the main features. Thus at the time of the Reformation scholasticism was already destitute of real life; after this time it is in some countries only preserved, chiefly in the religious houses, as a mummy, and as such can no longer be the subject of history.

etiam ab aeterno meliorem facere quam fecit; an possit producere hominem, qui peccare nullo modo queat; an revelare possit alicui suum futurum peccatum, aut damnationem; num possit aliqua distincte intelligere, si ad illa non habeat distinctas relationes rationis; an possit respectum producere sine fundamento et termino; an possit naturam universalem producere et conservare sine singularibus; an possit aliquo praedicatione contineri; an potestatem creandi possit communicare creaturae; an possit ex facto facere infectum, ac per hoc ex meretrice facere virginem; an quaelibet persona divina possit quamlibet naturam assumere, quomodo Verbum humanam assumpsit;—an haec propositio: Deus est scarabeus, aut cucurbita, tam possibilis sit, quam haec: Deus est homo; an Deus assumpserit individuum humanum, an speciem; an potius conveniat Deo, non posse facere impossibile, an impossibile non posse fieri a Deo, etc.—Jam vero de Romani Pontificis potestate pene negotiosius disputatur quam de potestate Dei, dum quaerimus de duplicitate illius potestate, et an possit abrogare quod scriptis Apostolicis decretum est; an possit aliquid statuere quod pugnet cum doctrina evangelica; an possit novum articulum condere in fidei symbolo; utrum majorem habeat potestatem quam Petrus, an parem; an possit praecipere Angelis; an possit universum purgatorium quod vocant tollere; utrum simplex homo sit, an quasi Deus; an participet utramque naturam cum Christo; an clementior sit, quam fuerit Christus, cum is non legatur quenquam a purgatoriis poenis revocasse; an solus omnium non possit errare. Sexcenta id genus disputantur magnis editis voluminibus, idque a magnis theologis, praesertim professione religionis insignibus.—Et tamen hujusmodi quaestiunculis serio occupantur quorundam theologorum scholae. His aetas rerum omnium fugacissima conteritur, cum pleraque sint ejus generis, ut doctius nesciantur quam sciantur, ut ridicule querantur, temere definiantur. Breve tempus est, et arduum est negotium agere vere Christianum. Quin igitur omissis rebus supervacaneis ea potissimum spectemus, quae Christus nos scire voluit, quae proddiderunt Apostoli, quae proprie ad charitatem faciunt, de corde puro, et conscientia bona, et fide non facta, quam unam Paulus appellat finem et perfectionem totius legis. Tot jam annis cavillamus in scholis, quibus verbis sit loquendum de Christo. An haec propositio sit vera: Christus fuit ab aeterno, an recte dicatur compositus ex utraque natura, an constare, an confliatus, an commixtus, an conglutinatus, an coagmentatus, an ferruminatus, an copulatus. Nihil horum placet, tantum placet unitus, etc.—Si haec essent colloquia pomeridiana Christianorum, probarem hujusmodi sermonibus excludi fabulas ineptas. Nunc haec videntur fidei nostrae praesidia. Quaerimus ea, quae nec scire possumus, nec scire jubemur. Illa negligimus, quae sola fuerant meditanda. Sunt autem quaedam hoc ipsa perniciosa, quod obscuritate sua remorantur ac fatigant ingenium, melioribus alioqui rebus occupandum.—Et in hac theologia tam non simplici vitam omnem consumunt, qui simplicem et apostolicam profitentur. Et qui ipso etiam cognomine summam modestiam profitentur, hujusmodi philosophiae professione tollunt cristas.—Novi quemdam theologum, qui negabat annos novem sufficere ad intelligenda quae Scotus scripsit tantum in praefationem Petri Lombardi. Audivi rursus alium, qui praedicabat fieri non posse, ut quis intelligeret unam propositionem in toto Scoto, nisi metaphysicam ipsius universam teneret memoria. Hujusmodi labyrinthis Basilides, Valentinus et Marcion captabant animos simplicium. Denique fingamus haec esse frugifera, quanta hic occurrit opinionum pugna? Fingamus rursus omnia convenire, quam multa frustra quaeruntur, quam multa temere definiuntur? Et praetexunt, has argutias ad revincendos Ethnicos et haereticos esse necessarias; quum illa nusquam sint usui, nisi inter ejusdem scholae sodales. In a letter

HISTORY OF DOCTRINE AND WORSHIP.

As in all other departments of the Church, so also in the sphere of religious worship during this period, the most shameless abuses and exaggerated superstition, and ecclesiastical fraud, are displayed side by side with the frank resistance and demands of the reforming party.¹ However, the former retained its ecclesiastical authority, while the latter died away with no decided effect; chiefly because they left untouched that corruption of doctrine which was the root of the evil. Thus voices were raised to protest against the overgrowth of canonizations,² to denounce the frauds of the clergy in lying miracles and forged relics,³ and to subject the legends of the saints to criticism.⁴ Nevertheless, the written from Paris, A.D. 1499, ad Thomam Grejum, in Edit. Lugd. Epist. 85, t. iii. p. 1, p. 77 s., Erasmus jests bitterly about—nostrae tempestatis theologastros, among whom he lived, quorum cerebellis nihil putidius, lingua nihil barbarius, ingenio nihil stupidius, doctrina nihil spinosius, moribus nihil asperius, vita nihil fucatius, oratione nihil virulentius, pectori nihil nigrius.

⁴ Thus, Gobelinus Persona (see the reference to him at the head of Division IV., p. ii.), Cosmodromium Aetas vi. c. 15, in Meibomii Rerum Germ., i. p. 201 s., demonstrates number of saints, of resorts for pilgrimages,⁵ of pious frauds and most stupid fables, increased unceasingly. In particular, the miracle of the bleeding Host was renewed, that the custom of withholding the cup from the laity in the Lord's Supper,⁶ first successfully that the legend of a St. Catherine, who was supposed to have suffered at Alexandria under Maxentius, must be false. Nicolas of Cusa, and especially Laurentius Valla, proved the forgery of the donation of Constantine (see vol. ii. p. 118, § 20, note 21). James Wimpeling, on account of his statement (Lib. de Integritate, 1505), that Augustine was no monk, at least not such a one as the Augustine monks of the day, was entangled in a vehement dispute with them; however, the Pope at length commanded silence; see Auctarium Catalogi Test. Veritatis, ed. Cattopoli, 1667, p. 272 ss. Erhard's Gesch. des Wiederanfchlöhens wissenschaftlicher Bildung. Bd. 1, s. 448 ff.

⁶ See vol. ii. p. 481, § 77, note 10–12. Decretum Constantiensis Concilii contra communionem sub utraque, et contra Jacobum de Misa, in the Sessio XIII., 15th June, 1415, in v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const. iii. p. 646, and iv. p. 333: Cum in nonnullis partibus quidam temerarie asserere praesumant, populum Christianum debere Eucharistiae sacramentum sub utraque panis et vini specie suscipere, et non solum sub specie panis, sed etiam sub specie vini populum laicum passim communicent; etiam post coenam, vel alias non jejunum communicandum esse pertinaciter asserant, contra laudabilem Ecclesiae consuetudinem rationabiliter approbatam, quam tanquam sacrilegam damnabiliter reprobare conantur: hinc est, quod sacrum Constantiense Concilium adversus hunc errorem saluti fidelium providere satagens, matura plurium Doctorum tam divini quam humani juris deliberatione præhabita, declarat, decernit et definit, quod, licet Christus post coenam instituerit et suis Apostolis ministraverit sub utraque specie panis et vini hoc venerabile sacramentum, tamen hoc non obstante sacrorum canonum auctoritas, laudabilis et approbata consuetudo Ecclesiae servavit et servat, quod hujusmodi sacramentum non debet confici post coenam, neque a fidelibus recipi non jejunis, nisi in casu infirmitatis aut alterius necessitatis, a jure et ab Ecclesia concesso et admisso. Et sicut haec consuetudo ad evitandum pericula aliqua et scandala rationabiliter introducta est, sic potuit simili vel majori ratione introduci et rationabiliter observari, quibz, licet in primitiva Ecclesia recipere hoc sacramentum a fidelibus sub utraque specie, tamen postea a confidentibus sub utraque specie, et a laicis tantummodo sub specie panis suscipiatur: cum firmissime credendum sit, et nullatenus dubitandum, integrum corpus Christi et sanguinem tam sub specie panis quam sub specie vini veraciter contineri. Unde cum hujusmodi consuetudo ab Ecclesia et sanctis Patribus rationabiliter introduc- sanctioned by the Church at the Council of Constance, might be plausibly impressed upon the people. This was often evidently a work of selfish fraud. The imposture about the Holy Blood at Wilsnack, in Priegnitz, was indeed recognized and censured by a Synod at Magdeburg in 1412,⁷ and afterward constantly by some individuals;⁸ the Cardinal, Nicolas of Cusa, as Papal legate, in

1451, prohibited all bleeding Hosts.⁹ However, these frauds continued to be not only tolerated, but even encouraged by the popes,¹⁰

Leipsic and Erfurt drawn forth by them in 1444, pronounced the miracles of Wilsnack suspicious. The Dominican, John Wünschelberg, of Hamburg, in his treatise on False Signs and Wonders, in 1446, derives all the miracles of Wilsnack from the avarice of the parochial clergy. M. Henry Tacke, prebendary of Magdeburg, strove with zeal against this abuse: his efforts were vain with Frederick II., elector of Brandenburg, and the Bishops of Brandenburg and Havelberg, but were more successful with the Archbishop Frederick of Magdeburg. Then he referred the matter to Rome, and Pope Nicolas V. charged the Bishop of Lubeck to investigate the case; he wrote admonitory letters on the subject to the Bishops of the March, in 1450: compare especially the Historia Matthaei Ludeci (dean of the Cathedral Church at Havelberg) of the Discovery, Miracles, and Destruction of the pretended Sacred Blood of Wilsnack, Wittenberg, 1586. 4, a collection of early works and many documents (some of which may be found also in Ludwig Reliqu. MSS., viii. p. 286 ss. and 348 ss.), given in the Fortgesetzte Sammlung von alten u. neuen theolog. Sachen, 1748, s. 165; Lentzen's Stiftshistorie von Havelberg. Halle, 1750, 4. s. 43 ff.

⁹ Dd. Halberstadt, 5. Jul., 1451 (in Lentzen's Stiftshistorie von Havelberg, s. 64 f.): Sane multis probatissimorum virorum relatibus et visibili experientia comprobavimus, fideles ad multa loca nostrae legationi subjecta concurrere ad adorandum Christi Dei nostri pretiosum cruentum, quem in nonnullis transformatis hostiis speciem rubedinis habere arbitrantur. Attestantur autem verbis suis, quibus communiter talem rubedinem Christi cruentum nominant, se sic credere et adorare, et quia sacerdotes, qui ob pecuniarum quaestum ista non solum fieri permittunt, sed etiam ut sic credant et adorent, per miraculorum publicationem populm allicit et sollicitant. Nos igitur, qui rem tam perniciosa et nostrac fidei contraria sine Dei maxima offensa sub silentio pertransire non possumus, cum corpus Christi glorificatum sanguinem glorificatum penitus invisibilem habere catholica fides nos instruat, ad tollendam omnem occasionem, per quam simplex vulgus taliter seducitur, praesentium tenore, auctoritate, qua fungimur, statuimus et ordinamus, quod, ubicunque tales hostiae transformatae reperiuntur, per omnes provincias Alemanniae nostrae legationi subjectas, statim postquam ad notitiam sacerdotum, qui locis illis praefuerint, haec nostra ordinatio perducta fuerit, ab ulteriori publica ostensione transformatarum hostiarum penitus cesserent, et nequaquam amplius populo palam miracula publicent, aut signa plumbea ad instar transformatarum hostiarum fieri permittant, sed istas transformatas hostias potius per sacerdotem celebrantem sumi in communione praecipient, quam sacratissimam Eucharistiam in spiritualem refectionem nobis divino munere datam per specierum corruptionem desinere permittant. Omnem autem locum, in quo post monitionem ab ostensione hostiae transformatae cessatum non fucrit eo ipso quod ter ipsa prohibita ostensio continuatur, ex nunc prout extunc, et ex tunc prout ex nunc strictissimo supponimus interdicto, quoque Archiepiscopus provinciae loci illius, ubi inhibita ostensio praesumta fuerit, habita certitudine de obediente huic nostrae ordinationi hujusmodi interdictum duxerit amoendum. Volentes, quod ostensoris ipsi post nostram eis insinuatam ordinationem ab omni officio, quoque ab Archiepiscopo absoluti fuerint, suspensi existant. Pariformiter et sub eadem interdicti latae sententiae poena statuimus et mandamus, omnes tales imagines et picturas ab oculis simplicis vulgi amoveri, ad quas propter figuram visibilem in suis adorationibus vulgus ipsum specialius recurrit, et per publicum concursum in figura ipsa se salutem querere, verbo aut signo ostendit. Nevertheless, the letter of Frederick, archbishop of Magdeburg (in Lentzen, s. 65), in which he summons the clergy of Wilsnack to answer for themselves at Calbe, shows how little this prohibition was observed in that place. Equally in vain, John Capistranus preached against the evil, and the Augustine, John Dorsten, wrote against it at Erfurt, his Consultatio de Concursu ad Wilsnack (1472–1475).

¹⁰ Thus Eugene IV. granted the pilgrims to Wilsnack indulgences of several years, and enjoyed accordingly, without intermission, a widely extended credit and considerable gains. But, above all, this period was most zealous in the glorification of the Virgin Mary as the actual dispenser of all things.¹¹ A shrine dedicated to her, at Recanati in Picenum, was pronounced in the second half of the fifteenth century to be her own house, brought thither by angels; this was the origin of Loretto as a famous resort for pilgrimages.¹² The

dd. VI. Non. Jan. 1446, in Raynald. ann. 1447, no. 9, and ordered for the preservation of the bleeding Hosts, that a consecrated Host should be placed between (ibid. no. 10): and Nicolas V., dd. IV. Id. September, 1447, repeated these decrees (Ludewig Reliquiae Manuscriptorum, viii. p. 366). Even in 1500, four Cardinals granted an indulgence to this pilgrimage.

¹² The first to mention this shrine is Flavius Blondus, secretary to Eugene IV. and the succeeding popes, till Pius II., † 1463, in his Italia illustrata, in Piceno, p. 339: *Recanatum inter et Adriaticum mare, paululum a Musione recedit celeberrimum totius Italiæ, ut in aperto immunito vico, sacellum gloriose Virginis Mariae in Laureto appellatum. Quo loco preces supplicantum a Deo genitricis sua intercessione exaudiri, illud maximum certissimumque est argumentum, quod eorum, qui votis emissis exaudiiti fuerunt, ex auro, argento, cera, pannis, veste linea laneaque appensa donaria, magno luenda pretio, basilicamque omnem pene complentia, Episcopus in Dei Virginisque gloriam intacta conservat. It may be concluded from this notice, that the miraculous transportation at that time was either still entirely unknown, or else was only one of the legends of the common people, and disregarded by the educated. The first author who mentions it, and at the same time records the story of Teremanthus Praepositus, which was fastened up in the shrine, is Baptista Mantuanus (see § 139, note 7), Redemptoris mundi Matris Ecclesiae Lauretanae Historia (in his Opp. omn. Antverp. 1576. 8. t. iv. p. 216 ss.). According to this account, which still remains the most ancient document, this house was borne by the angels, in 1291, to Tersato in Dalmatia, thence it was carried in 1294 into the region of Recanati, but even there it was again twice removed. The provost Teremannus appeals to the evidence of two citizens of Recanati, one of whom asserted, quod avus avi ejus vidit, quando Angeli praedictam Ecclesiam per mare, etc. Undoubtedly the composition of this work belongs to the period between 1450 and 1480, and by it the story was first spread abroad. The fiction was first assailed by Petr. Paul. Vergerius, De Idolo Lauretano, ital. scripsit, Ludovicus ejus nepos vertit, ann. 1556, in the Primus tomus operum Vergerii adv. Papatum, Tubing. 1563. 4. p. 301. It was then defended by the Jesuits, Petr. Turrianus, Petr. Canisius, and Horat. Tursellinus, especially by the latter in the Lauretana Historia, Mogunt. 1599. 8. Baronius, also, ann. 9, no. 1, takes it under his protection, and is reprimanded for this by Is. Casaubonus Exercit. vii., while the contemporary Matthias Berneggerus, Professor at Strasburg, Hypobolimaea Divae Mariae Deiparae Camera, s. Idolum Lauretanum. Argentor. 1619. 4. triumphantly refutes all the defenders of the fiction, but with too much of dogmatical polemics. [Cf. Histoire critique et relig. de Notre Dame de Loretto. A. B. Caillau. Paris, 12. 1843.—The Holy House of Loretto; Christ. Remembrancer, April, 1854. Archbishop Kenrick of St. Louis has also written a volume on this subject.]*

Ave Maria was the prayer most favored.¹³ The immaculate conception of Mary, of which the Franciscans continued to be the champions, was more and more triumphantly vindicated against the Dominicans;¹⁴ the latter, on the other hand, sought to display their veneration for Mary by fraternities of the rosary.¹⁵ True, the decree of Basle in favor of the immaculate conception could not afterward be regarded as obligatory upon the Church;¹⁶ and

¹⁴ See a sketch of the troubles caused by it, in Wadding, Legatio Philippi III. et IV., ad Paulum P. V. et Gregorium XV., de definienda Controversia Immaculatae Conceptionis b. V. M. Lovan., 1624, fol. p. 377 ss. Among the assailants of this doctrine the Dominican Vincentius Bandellus, Professor of Divinity at Bologna, † 1506, is distinguished for the works, Lib. de Veritate Conceptionis gloriosae Virginis Mariae, 1475, and Tract de singulari Puritate et Praerogativa Conceptionis Salvatoris nostri J. Chr. 1481; compare the extracts from them in Wadding, p. 133 ss. Among its chief defenders is the above-mentioned Bernardinus de Bustis (see note 10). The first part of his Mariale consists of eight Sermones de Conceptione Mariae; then follows the Officium Immaculatae Conceptionis gloriosae V. M., which was drawn up by him and confirmed by Sixtus IV.

¹⁶ Conc. Basil. Sess. XXXVI. d. xv. Kal. Oct. 1439, and hence during the struggle between the Council and the Pope (in Mansi xxix. p. 183): Hactenus difficilis quaestio in diversis partibus et coram hac sancta Synodo super conceptione ipsius gloriosae virginis Mariae matris Dei, et exordio sanctificationis ejus facta est: quibusdam dicentibus, ipsam virginem et ejus animam per aliquod tempus aut instans temporis subjacuisse actu aliter originali culpea; aliis autem e converso dicentibus, a principio creationis suae Deum ipsam diligendo gratiam eidem contulisse, per quam a macula originali illam beatissimam personam liberans et praeservans, sublimiori sanctificationis genere redemit, cum fundaret eam altissimus ipse, et ipsam fabricaret Filius Dei Patris, ut esset mater ejus in terris. Nos vero, diligenter inspectis auctoritatibus et rationibus, quae jam a pluribus annis in publicis relationibus ex parte utriusque doctrinae coram hac sancta Synodo allegatae sunt, aliisque etiam plurimis super hac re visis, et matura consideratione pensatis, doctrinam illam disserentem, gloriosam virginem Dei genetricem Mariam even the Franciscan Pope Sixtus IV. did not venture to take a decided part against the powerful Dominicans.¹⁷ But the Universities pronounced themselves all the more emphatically in favor of the doctrine,¹⁸ and after the precedent of Paris, in 1497, even praeveniente et operante divini numinis gratia singulari numquam actualiter subjacuisse originali peccato, sed immunem semper fuisse ab omni originali et actuali culpa, sanctamque et immaculatam, tanquam piam et consonam cultui ecclesiastico, fidei catholicae, rectae rationi, et sacrae Scripturae, ab omnibus catholicis approbadam fore, tenendum et amplectendam diffinimus et declaramus, nullique de cetero licitum esse in contrarium praedicare seu docere. Renovantes praeterea institutionem de celebranda sancta ejus Conceptione, quae tam per Romanam, quam per alias Ecclesias sexto Idus Decembbris antiqua et laudabili consuetudine celebratur, statuimus et ordinamus eandem celebritatem praefata die in omnibus Ecclesiis, Monasteriis, et conventibus Christianae religionis, sub nomine Conceptionis festivis laudibus coleandam esse, cunctisque fidelibus vere poenitentibus et confessis, ea die Missarum solemnissimam centum, primis autem vel secundis vesperis totidem, sermoni vero verbi divini de ea festivitate intercessentibus centum quinquaginta dies, concessione perpetuis temporibus duratura, de injunctis sibi poenitentiis haec sancta Synodus elargitur.

¹⁷ In a bull, A.D. 1474 (Extravag. Comm. lib. iii. tit. xii. c. 1), he recommends the celebration of the Concepcion Immaculatae Virginis (which he does not venture to call the Concepio Immaculata Virginis), by conceding to all who take part in it the indulgence granted to the feast of Corpus Christi. The second bull, A.D. 1483 (I. c. c. 2), is first directed against—diversorum ordinum praedicatores (a saving expression instead of “against the Dominicans”), who, in suis sermonibus ad populum publice per diversas civitates et terras adfirmare hactenus non erubuerunt, et quotidianic praedicare non cessant, omnes illos, qui tenent aut adserunt, eandem gloriosam et immaculatam Dei genetricem absque originalis peccati macula fuisse conceptam, mortaliiter peccare, vel esse haereticos; ejusdem immaculatae conceptionis officium celebrantes, audientesque sermones illorum, qui eam sine hujusmodi macula conceptam esse affirmant, peccare graviter. Sed et praefatis praedicationibus non contenti, confectos super his suis adscriptionibus libros in publicum ediderunt (the works of Vincentius Banderlus are meant; see above, note 13), ex quorum adscriptionibus et praedicationibus non levia scandalum in mentibus fidelium exorta sunt, et majora merito exoriri formidantur in dies. All these sayings and writings were condemned and forbidden under pain of excommunication. But next, the same punishment is threatened against those—qui ausi fuerint adserere, contrarium opinionem tenentes, videlicet gloriosam virginem Mariam cum originali peccato fuisse conceptam, haeresis crimen vel peccatum incurre mortale, cum nondum sit a Rom. Ecclesia et Apostolica sede decisum. Valerius Anshelm's Berner Chronik, Bd. 3, s. 370: Wiewohl ehgenannter Babst (Sixtus IV.) hat die Empfangniss Mariä fryglaubig gebullet, so hat er dennoch sines subtilen Schottens (Duns Scotus, D. subtilis) Opinion mit grossem Ablass und Fyrtag begabt: daher die Barfüsser einen starken Vortanz den Prediern, so doch des Rosenkranzes obriste und grösste Brüderschaft inhielten, hattent angewunnen, und den mit allerhand Künsten und Wundern—gestarkt und bestät.

bound their members to it by an oath.¹⁹ The burning of four

Trithemius next records how John Verus was compelled by the Sorbonne to recant, 16th September, 1497, and (p. 570) how the University was thus induced to decree the oath, 17th September. According to the minutes in d'Argentré I., ii. p. 333 ss., this is not quite correct. Jo. Verus (see p. 337) would not at first submit to the sentence of the Sorbonne, and appealed to the Pope: for this he was condemned by the secular authorities to imprisonment: he appealed to the Parliament, and only recovered his freedom at length by recanting, 18th September, 1497. On the other hand, the theological faculty, in an assembly on the 3d March, 1496 (that is, more Gall. 1497), had already determined upon the oath (I. c. p. 333): Cum proximo saeculo quaesitio de puritate conceptionis felicissimae Dei et Domini nostri Jesu Christi genitricis Mariae solito frequentius agitari coepisset, Spiritu Sancto scilicet ejus rei veritatem aliquando propalari volente, diligentius utriusque partis libratis rationibus primum (Majores nostri) pro tempore suum prudentissime suspenderunt judicium. Demum in eam partem inclinationes, quae Virginis gloriae et puritati astipulari videbatur, ita—vanissimam temeritatem—confutaverunt,—ut contrariam quaestitionis partem, quae Virginem, dum conciperetur, speciali Dei munere ab originali macula fuisse immunem affirmat, et pietati, fidei et rectae rationi et scripturis divinis valde quadrantem decernerent. Quae sententia paucos post annos ita sacro Basileensi plenario Concilio—Spiritu Sancto inspirante placuit, ut eam tandem doctrinam—tenendam diffinierit.—Quod sanctum Synodi decretum cum omnium Ecclesiarum, tum etiam totius populi Christiani judicio, consensu ac religione comprobatum confirmatumque videamus, non possumus quorundam vanam, superbam, temerariam insanamque obstinationem non admirari,—qui hoc nostro adhuc tempore ejusmodi piam et religiosam doctrinam, universalis Synodi et Ecclesiae, quae juxta Christi promissionem errare non potest, judicio auctoritateque probatam aut oppugnare, aut in dubitationem revocare non verentur, implacabile impiissimumque bellum adversus piissimae Dei genitricis eximiam dignitatem gerentes. Quorum furori ut alacrius fortiusque occurramus atque resistamus pro nostra professione, ordine et gradu, Majorum nostrorum vestigia sequentes, universi tertio congregati post multam, gravem et maturam deliberationem in ejus piissimae doctrinae, quae benedictissimam Dei Matrem ab originali peccato Dei singulari dono fuisse praeservatam affirmat, quamque jam pridem veram credidimus et credimus, defensionem ac propugnationem speciali sacramento conjuravimus nosque devovimus. Statuentes, ut nemo deinceps sacro huic nostro Collegio adscribatur, nisi se hujus religiosae doctrinae assertorem strenuumque propugnatorem semper pro viribus futurum simili juramento profiteatur. Quod si quis ex nostris, quod absit, ad hostes Virginis transfuga, contrariae assertionis—patrocinium quacumque ratione suscipere ausus fuerit, hunc honoribus nostris omnibus privatum atque exaucitoratum a nobis et consortio nostro, velut Ethnicum et Publicanum, procul abjiciendum decernimus. Then follows a requisition to bishops and parish priests likewise to adopt this doctrine. In this and some succeeding congregations the oath was taken by one hundred and twelve doctors of divinity (p. 334). In 1499 the theological

Dominicans at Berne, in 1509, on account of certain fraudulent apparitions of saints, which they had got up to impugn this doctrine, contributed to give it a more decisive preponderance.²⁰

HISTORY OF THE RELIGIOUS EDUCATION OF THE PEOPLE.

The religious duties of the people were restricted solely to obedience to the Church: even the moral law derived its binding power from the command of the Church. Readiness to conform to the known and unknown faith and will of the Church passed current for piety. Accordingly, all independent religious culture could only appear to the hierarchy as fraught with danger, and thus very little was done to promote religious zeal and instruction. The greater number of the parochial clergy could not even preach at all:¹ the preaching clergy, chiefly mendicants, usually entertained their hearers with pitiful fables for the glorifying of their sacred relics and places,² or they made a show of useless scholastic learning,³ as may be seen in the still extant sermons of Meff-

Bebelius (see § 139, note 7), De falsa Etymologiae propriorum Nominum conficta per auctorem Legendae Aureae (see vol. ii. § 78, note 5), in the collection Commentaria epistolarum conficiendarum Henrici Bebelii, etc. Phorcae, 1510. 4. fol. cxxviii. verso : quas aniles fabulas adeo magis detestor, quo plures inveniantur, qui has referendo et populis praedicando non solum inducunt homines ad earum fidem, verum etiam in iis demorantes ea, quae vera sunt et in salutem animarum dici possunt, omittunt. Sunt enim plures et praezeros aliqui monachi, qui dum concionantur ad imperitam plebem, ut phaleratis et ampullosis verbis populum demulcent, ut famam eruditiois et disertitudinis consequantur, et ut culinam suam vel Fratrum laetus instruant, vel potissimum dum Evangelis tanquam consuetis atque rebus quotidianis pudet esse contentos, non verentur excogitare nunc somnia, nunc revelationes (ut ipsi ajunt) sanctorum Patrum, quibus in Christum, nedum sanctos, falsa et mendacia aliquando comminiscuntur, dum non credunt satis placere se, nisi exoticum aliqua atque peregrina in medium afferant, ut plebs postmodum gloriabunda jactet, se audisse a Domino Sixto vel Fratre Johannitio quod antea numquam audiverit a quoquam. Et, ut paulum digrediar, ego omnem ferme haeresim quam dicunt existimo inde maxime exortam, ut homines superbi et magnae opinionis freti eruditione et fama anhelaverint aliquid dicere, et persuadere novum et inauditum, quo cunctis seculis et nationibus suam famam insinuent. Sed ut redeam, cum Dominus Sixtulus vel Frater Lolhardus in nigra barba sic famam suam illustravit, ne existimationem suam in posterum extenuet, aut plebem in laudem suam tepidorem reddit, non dubitat dies atque noctes somniare et figmenta componere, quo semper clarorem se reddit et magis admirandum : tandem eo usque progreditur, ut fabulis, quae ipsi exempla vocant, totos dies consumat, quas ipse pro sua existimatione magnificanda satis admirabiles jam primum excogitavit : et dum totus in eloquentia volubilitateque linguae, et rerum nullibi gestarum diurnali recitatione haeret, sit, ut nihil vel parum de sacris literis proferat, parum dicat, quod sit animae salutiferum.—Illi mihi ridendum videtur, quod concionatores isti, cuiuscunq; sancti festum celebrant, concionando clamant, fulsisse illum super omnes alios sanctos virtutibus et vitae sanctimonias, vel singulari sanctitatis privilegio dotatum persuadent ; postquam ad alium venerint sanctum, itidem faciunt, semper praeresentem super omnes alios extollendo. Taceo de laudibus, quas aliquando praeter fidem tutelaribus sanctis, quos Patronos vocant, sacerdotes in dedicationibus adscribunt, ubi omnis modus laudationis exceditur, omnisque ingenii vis quasi quidam torrens effunditur, adeo, ut ea quae incerta sunt et vix vera, et ubi fides desideratur, impediunt etiam quae vere de illis dici possunt. Aut quis risum continebit, dum quidam Fratres sui Ordinis auctores et primates postergatis virginibus, confessoribus, martyribus, Apostolis et Evangelistis, Patriarchis atque Prophetis, adeo alte comantur locare, ut adhuc solium quaerant, ubi eos reponent in coelestibus : alii suum dictum a Christo magnum patrem persuadere volunt, alii suo doctori Paulum apparuisse Apostolum atque dixisse, suas illum epistolas melius omnibus aliis doctoribus esse interpretatum. Quae nisi cogar, nunquam credam, etc.

The sense of the unprofitableness of this style of preaching induced certain talented preachers, toward the end of this period, to keep directly in view the facts of real life, in order to rouse the moral energies of their hearers, by descriptions and warnings, which, being taken from experience, were calculated not only to awaken a horror of vice, but also to make it ridiculous. In this, frequently comic, style preached the Dominican, Gabriel Bartella, in Italy, about 1470,⁷ John Geiler of Kaisersberg, preacher at Strasburg, † 1510,⁸ and the two Franciscans, Olivier Maillard, † 1502,⁹ and Michael Menot († before 1519),¹⁰ in Paris. pen (Thomas à Kempis), a pupil of the Brethren of Common Life, and a canon in the monastery on the Mount of St. Agnes in Zwoll, † 1471, by his devotional works,¹¹ especially by the book De Imitatione Christi.¹² In these circles the translations of the Bible,

¹² The author of the work was at first doubtful, on account of a mistake; but afterward, when the book increased in fame (it is translated into almost all known languages; it is calculated that there have been 2000 editions of the original, and 1000 of the French translation alone), its authorship became so much the subject of rivalry, through the intervention of the interests of orders and nations, that the controversial works form a library. After the year 1415 the book was published without the author being accurately known: however, several old manuscripts and the earliest editions give this Thomas as the author: two manuscripts, that of Louvain and that of Antwerp, are written with his own hand. Moreover, an uncontrovertible witness speaks in his favor, his contemporary and a member of the same order, who certainly was personally acquainted with him, John Busch (see § 140, note 4); he expressly names him as the author in his Chron. Windesemense (see § 142, note 1), lib. ii. c. 21, written in 1464, and accordingly in Thomas's lifetime. To this also may be added the testimonies of Petrus Schottus at the beginning of an edition in 1488, and of Jo. Tritenheim, De Scriptoribus Ecclesiasticis (written in 1494), c. 707. Lastly, the whole style of the book and its numerous Germanisms declare in favor of Thomas. But in proportion as John Gerson was famous as a mystic author at that time (above, § 117, note 6), it was so much the easier to suppose him to be the author instead of the more unknown Thomas. The earliest manuscript which declares him as the author is that of Salzburg in 1463: the edition of the French translation in 1488 wavers between St. Bernard and Gerson, but that of 1493 distinctly announces Thomas to be the author. A French translation of 1573 is the first to bear the name of John Gerson as the author, in the title. However, Gerson's brother, John, prior of the Celestines, who collected his works, has not reckoned the book in question as one of them. Besides, its contents prove that the author was a monk. In several manuscripts the name Jo. Gersen, Gessen, Gesen is written, evidently a mutilation of Gerson. But after Peter Manriquez, in 1604, considered that it must be assumed that the book is earlier than Bonaventura, in whose (pretended) Collationes it is quoted; the Italian Benedictine Cajetani, in 1615, supported by the manuscript of Arona, which claims to belong to the thirteenth century, was the first to maintain that the real author is Jo. Gersen of Cabaliaca, Benedictine Abbot of St. Stephen of the citadel at Vercelli, between 1220 and 1240. The regular canons now took the side of Thomas, the Benedictines upheld their newly-discovered abbot; and thus arose a most vehement strife between the orders, upon which even the Parliament of Paris, on the petition of the Kempists, decided in 1652, that the book should be printed with the name of Thomas only. Among the champions of Thomas, Eusebius Amort, canon at Polling, in Bavaria († 1775), is especially distinguished for several thorough controversial works. The dispute is not yet ended: in favor of Gerson came forward Ant. Alex. Barbier: Dissertation sur 60 Traductions françaises de l'Imitation de J. Ch. Paris, 1812, and J. B. M. Gence, in a handsome edition of the disputed work. Paris, 1826. 8. In favor of the Abbot Gersen: Mémoire sur le véritable Auteur de l'Imitation de J. C. par G. de Gregory. Revu et publié par les soins de M. le Comte Lanjuinais, Pair de France. Paris, 1827. 12. (translated into German by J. B. Weigl. Sulzbach, 1832. 8.) Also another work en-

also, which now frequently appear in print,¹³ may have been in use. Among the great mass of the people they would find less circulation, as the hierarchy constantly opposed all translations of the Holy Scripture into the vulgar tongue.¹⁴

ECCLESIASTICAL INDULGENCES AND PENALTIES.

¹³ The French translation of the Bible, by Gujars des Moulins, canon at Aire, in the Diocese of Terouane, prepared from 1291–1294, was printed by order of Charles VIII., and hence before 1498 (du Pin Prolegomènes sur la Bible, p. 219 ss.). The Italian translation of the Venetian Benedictine, Nicolaus Malermi, was printed in 1471 and 1477. The editions of the Bible in German are more numerous. A High-German translation was printed first at Mayence in 1462, and in all fourteen times before the Reformation, at Strasburg, Augsburg, and Nuremberg; see G. W. Panzer's literar. Nachricht von den allerältesten gedruckten Deutschen Bibeln. Nürnberg, 1777. 4. His Gesch. der Nürnbergischen Ausgaben der Bibel, 1778; Beschreibung der ältesten Augspurgischen Ausgaben der Bibel, 1780. 4. A Low-Saxon translation was printed three times, at Cologne in 1470, Lubeck 1494, and Halberstadt; see J. M. Götze's Versuch der gedruckten Niedersächsischen Bibeln, v. J. 1470 bis 1621. Halle, 1775. 4.

could only effect a short respite, and afterward indulgences, and the abuses consequent thereupon multiplied so greatly² that no century surpasses the fifteenth in this respect. The jubilee and post-jubilee years³ were multiplied still more; at length, in 1470, a standing ordinance was decreed by Paul II., according to which every five-and-twentieth year was to be a year of jubilee.⁴ Besides, general indulgences were frequently granted for taking part mitur, pro pecunia plus quam animarum salute sunt concessae, in gravamen pauperum et ecclesiastici status ridiculum, et quibus ex facilitate (thus Amort, ii. p. 35, for qualitate) veniae incentivum praebetur delinquendi: idcirco haec s. Synodus omnes hujusmodi novas quaestuationes, sub cuiuscunque facti aut factae nomine ab Apostolica sede concessas, necnon omnia et singula privilegia indulgentiarum, concessionum aut gratiarum, cuiuscunque etiam sint tenoris et contiuentiae, dictis novis et etiam antiquis quaestuationibus et petitionibus, tempore jam lapsi schismatis, imo et tempore unionis, post constitutionem felicis recordationis quondam Domini Clementis V., quae incipit Abusioribus (Clementin. lib. v. t. 9, c. 2), qualitercumque concessa, revocat, irritat, cassat, et annihilat, eaque ut antea nullius vult esse roboris vel momenti. Per hanc revocationem haec Synodus antiquis quaestuationibus et petitionibus, dummodo per Presbyteros bonae famae, habiles et idoneos, sine sermone publico, sed cum literarum, petitionum suarum et indulgentiarum antiquarum vera expositione, sine commixtione falsitatis, et secundum formam dictae Clementinae fiant, aliquatenus derogare non intendit. The German nation wished that this decree should be adopted by Martin V.; see Avisamenta Nat. Germ. Art. 17, in v. d. Hardt I., xxii. p. 1011 (compare above, § 131, note 18). But Martin V. modified it as follows; see Responsio Martini, Art. 17, l. c. p. 1038 (compare § 131, note 18): Cavebit Dominus noster Papa in futurum nimiam indulgentiarum effusionem, ne vilescant; et in praeteritum concessas ab obitu Gregorii XI. citra perpetuas, item quae dicuntur de poena et culpa, sive de plena remissione, concessas locis, item omnes concessas ad instar alterius indulgentiae, revocat et annullat.

² The Council of Basle even granted several indulgences; compare the papal instruction in Raynald. 1436, no. 6; see above, § 132, note 30, and Jo. Polemar, § 132, note 45. The schoolmen managed to justify this increase of indulgences; see Gabriel Biel, Expos. Missae Lect. 57: ante tempora b. Gregorii modicus vel nullus fuit usus indulgentiarum: nunc autem crebrescit earum usus. Quod sine dubio Ecclesia habens Spiritum Christi, et ideo non errans, singula, prout expedit, temporibus suis distribuit, mota et illuminata a Spiritu Dei, qui novit tempora, quae Pater in sua posuit potestate, quorum mysteria indagare non sufficimus. Possumus tamen conjicere alias causas, cur magis modo, quam olim usus indulgentiarum crebrescit. Quoniam, ut timor transgressionis mandatorum Dei induceretur in conversos fideles, graves poenitentiae injungebantur et poenae. Item, nunc tepescente charitate, nec satisfactiones condignae injunguntur, nec modice injunctae perficiuntur; ideo valde necessarius est copiosus indulgentiarum usus.

in warlike expeditions against unbelievers, and enemies of the Papal See, or put up to sale for the maintenance of such wars.⁵ Other indulgences were conceded for other services rendered to the Church.⁶ Then, too, various ecclesiastical associations,⁷ especially the monastic Orders,⁸ were provided with rich indulgences, and not for their own members alone; for these orders, particularly the mendicants, were supplied with other indulgences for a lucrative trade with the laity.⁹ Moreover, the numerous resorts of pilgrimages were endowed with large indulgences;¹⁰ and at length indulgences were granted for certain festivals,¹¹ for certain prayers,¹² even in honor of crowned heads.¹³ That the Papal indulgence extended over purgatory also, had been long ago main-sibus plerumque causantibus admodum pauci remissionum et indulgentiarum hujusmodi participes fieri mereantur, etc.

¹² Especially for the Ave Maria; see § 145, note 12.

tained by some divines, though impugned by others.¹⁴ Now the doctrine that it availed there, per modum suffragii, was the one most generally held⁵ and was even officially ratified by Sixtus IV. in 1477. Henceforth the popes, in their bulls of indulgence,

continually issued decrees in favor of souls in purgatory, and assumed the air, in spite of that mitigating formula, of having full authority over it,¹⁷ and of being the door-keepers of heaven, and plainer: Et quod frequenter repetitum est per modum suffragii, non est intelligendum, quasi modus suffragii tollat efficaciam indulgentiarum, ita quod opus illud, pro quo dantur indulgentiae, non plus valeat animabus, quam si idem opus factum esset pro eis, nullis indulgentiis adjunctis, sicut quidam intelligere voluerunt: sic enim frustra daretur indulgentia pro animabus. Sed quod additur per modum suffragii, excludit modum judicariae potestatis, quae dicit judicialem absolutionem. Cum enim defuncti implere non possint opus, pro quo dantur indulgentiae, dum illud pro eis fit ab alio, jam opus alterius suffragatur eis, ut possint consequi indulgentias, non minus quam si ipsi per se opus illud implevissent; et ita indulgentiae proficiunt eis per modum suffragii, i. e. propter aliquod opus ab alio factum, et eis per modum suffragii applicatum.

am extra muros, in qua est scriptum apud Altare, sub quo est reconditum corpus S. Sebastiani sic: Sub hoc Altari reconditum est corpus S. Sebastiani Martyris, et in omni Missa, quae celebratur super eodem, liberatur una anima de purgatorio. 5. Capella, vocata Scala coeli, ubi decollatus fuit S. Paulus Apostolus, in qua Capella sic est scriptum: Haec est secunda Capella, quae fuit fundata in toto mundo ad honorem b. Mariae V. et vocatur Scala coeli, super quam meruit S. Bernardus videre scalam erectam usque ad coelum. In qua quicunque celebrant vel celebrari faciunt pro animabus existentibus in purgatorio, meritis ejusdem b. M. V. dictae animae cito liberantur. Haec ex publico instrumento a R. D. Raymundo mihi in indulgentia praedicanti misso in Missiva. Pontifices concedunt etiam Laicis quartis feriis per integrum annum devote visitantibus Ecclesiam S. Laurentii, quod possint etiam unam animam indulgentialiter liberare. Insuper idem R. D. Raymundus in declaratione Bullae quondam publicatae in prima sui legatione dicit, quod Calixtus P. dederit indulgentias pro animabus redimendis de purgatorio ad Hispaniam Ecclesiae Tyrasonensi. Similiter easdem indulgentias concessit P. Sixtus IV. Ecclesiae Sanctonensi in Francia sub commissione ejusdem R. D. Raymundi. Sub quo et Innocentius VIII. easdem misit indulgentias per Germaniam, quod et modernus P. Alexander VI. per eundem fecit anno sequenti immediate post Jubilaeum Romae celebratum, anno 1500, mittendo ipsum cum amplissimo Jubilao tam pro vivis quam pro defunctis nedum per totam Germaniam, sed et per totum regnum Dacie. The Papal indulgence preachers speak of the Pope's power over purgatory as quite unquestioned: thus Jo. Angelus Arcimbaldus, Commisarius apostolicus, or chief retailer of indulgences, says, in his instructions to his sub-delegates, A.D. 1514 (in Kappen's Nachlese einiger zur Erläuterung der Reformationsgesch. nützlicher Urkunden. Th. 3, s. 180): Advertant praedicatorum, ut bene informent populum super validitate et efficacia praesentium indulgentiarum, ut eo facilius ad eas promerendas invitentur, cum per verbum praedicatoris intelligent, clarum esse et omni scrupulo et dubietate carere, Sanctissimo Domino nostro Papae omnimodam et plenissimam competere facultatem, indulgentias istas plenarias pro vivis et defunctis, et omnium peccatorum et poenarum, quas quis in purgatorio deberet pati, remissionem—concedendi.—Et qui de hac potestate dubitaret, de fide Christiana dubitaret, nec Christianus esset. Accordingly, the limitation of this power of the Pope to the modus suffragii was soon held worthy of censure (see Morung's Schicksale, below, note 19), and the formula per modum suffragii was frequently left out, e. g. in the letters of indulgence prepared by Christian Baumhauer the Pope's commissary of indulgences in 1510 (see Riederer's Nachrichten zur Kirchen-Gelehrten-u. Büchergeschichte, Bd. 3, s. 413, and Kist en Royaards Archif voor kerkelyke Geschiedenis, Deel 1, p. 215): Notum facimus, quod D. N. Papa cunctis Christifidelibus,—ultra plenissimas peccatorum indulgentias sacra-tissimi Jubilaei—ac alias plures gratias et facultates, quas ad hoc dispositi pro se ac certis defunctorum animabus respective consequuntur, de plenitudine ac liberalitate potestatis apostolicae misericorditer concessit, et voluit, ut tam ipsi quam omnes et singuli eorum parentes ac benefactores cum charitate defuncti in omnibus precibus, suffragiis,—et caeteris omnibus spiritualibus bonis, quae fiunt et fieri poterunt in tota universali sacrosancta Ecclesia militante,—participes in perpetuum fiant. A Dominican nun, of the convent Kirchheim, in Swabia (see § 140, note 19), describes very graphically the means of winning indulgence for the dead, Sattler's Gesch. des Herzogth. Würtemberg. Bd. 5, Beilagen, s. 279: Es kam eyn Legat von Rom in diss Land (A.D. 1489), mit so grosser Gnad und Applos, der glych vor nye gehört wart. [Translated in the Appendix.]

other graces were connected with the Papal indulgences;²¹ some of which, as for instance the concessions with regard to property unrighteously gotten,²² were open perversions of moral right. Others, such as the permission to take milk diet in fasting times,²³

ex indulgentiis concessis praedictae Ecclesiae S. Petri Xantonensis; nec sequitur ex eadem Bulla de aliqua determinata anima, puta patris, aut matris, vel uxoris, aut alicuius alterius, quod tali modo liberetur, ut propositio dixit. Secundo, talis propositio non est simpliciter, absolute, et catholice asserenda, nec ex tenore Bullae seu virtute indulgentiarum praedictae Ecclesiae S. Petri Xantonensis concessarum, sane nec secure populo quovis modo praedicanda. It is evident from the proposition here censured how the Papal acknowledgment of the formula per modum suffragii, which was made on the very occasion of this indulgence at Sanctes (see note 16), by no means lessened the extreme claims as to its efficacy. Immediately after, in February, 1483, among other propositions of the Franciscan Johannes Angeli (see § 136, note 23), the Sorbonne censured this also (see d'Argentré I, ii. p. 305): Animae in purgatorio existentes sunt de jurisdictione Papae: et si vellet, posset totum purgatorium evacuare, with the remark: Haec propositio in se est dubia, et ad mentem asserentis per modum jurisdictionis et ordinariae potestatis de falsitate suspecta et scandalosa, et nullatenus populo publice praedicanda.

contributed at any rate still further to confuse all moral ideas. While it is manifest that this matter of indulgences, even if standing alone, could only produce the most injurious moral results, these results were also still further heightened by the base frauds which were constantly mingled with the traffic in indulgences. For sometimes forged indulgences, which even outstripped the real ones in absurdity, were received with general credulity by the common people;²⁴ sometimes the Papal indulgence-preachers overstepped their commission, and were ashamed of no method of turning their indulgences, like common wares, to the best possible account.²⁵ Thus, the Papal sale of indulgences was uni-

When Innocent VIII. granted to the subjects of the Duke of Saxony, in 1491, the usus lacticiniorum on all fast days, in return for a rate for the rebuilding the church at Freiburg, the Dominicans at Freiburg resisted, especially Georgius Frichenhusius and Johannes de Bamberg, and pronounced the dispensation surreptitious. Dr. John v. Breitenbach, professor of canon law at Leipsick, sided with them, and maintained in his Consilium (see the extracts in Seckendorf, Comm. de Lutheranismo, p. 13 s.), contribuētes sine conscientiae scrupulo butyro et lacticiis libere vesci non posse. Alexander VI. commanded silence in 1496, and renewed the concession (see Andr. Moller Chron. Friburg, P. i. p. 51; P. ii. p. 139). This was also done by Julius II., in 1512, since he assigned the contributions partly to the erection of the Torgauer bridge, partly to the building of St. Peter's Church; see the bull (Butterbrief) in Kappen's Nachlese, iii. s. 155 ff.

²⁴ Thus Nicolas V. was obliged to restrain several ecclesiastics in Spain, among whom there was even a Benedictine abbot (Raynald, 1453, no 19), who, supported by forged Papal bulls, offered for sale plenary Jubilee-indulgences, and among other things asserted that they had the power—animas parentum et amicorum pro certo pretio pecuniarum a purgatorio et inferno extrahendi. In ancient prayer-books of the end of the fifteenth, and beginning of the sixteenth century, a form of prayer to the Holy Virgin is found, with an assurance that Sixtus IV. had granted an indulgence of 11,000 years to those who recite it devoutly (see Amort, i. p. 52. Archief voor kerkelyke Geschiedenis, i. p. 243), which Amort pronounces false, though only from internal evidence. In a Dutch prayer-book of the beginning of the sixteenth century, many such prayers are given with similar indulgences; see Archief, i. p. 241 ss. E. g. There is one with an indulgence of 100,000 years, and twenty quadragenes. Joannes Major (see § 136, note 3), in Sent. iv. Dist. 20, Qu. 2: fatuæ et superstitiones sunt quaedam inscriptiones viginti milliorum annorum, ubi quis dixerit quinquies Pater noster ante talem imaginem, etc. Et deberent Praelati illas rejicere et prohibere, quia cedunt in derisum et contemptum indulgentiarum, nec continent veritatem. What was now conceived to be possible in this respect, is shown by the fact that Bernardino Corio, who wrote his Historia di Milano about 1500, records therein without offense (ed. Venet. 1565. 4. p. 629), that Boniface VIII. on the application of Galeazzo Visconte, had conceded that the Jubilee-indulgence in 1301 might be obtained in Milan also, cioè, che ciascuno nel dominio del Visconte, se anche non fosse contrito, ne confessò, fosse assoluto di ogni peccato, in questa città dimorando dieci dì continui; ma ogni giorno dovesse visitare cinque Chiese, etc. The Congregatio Indicis gave orders, in 1621, that this passage should be omitted from the editions (Muratorii Scriptt. Rer. It., iv. p. 123).

note 3), in Sent. lib. iv. Dist. 20, Qu. 2: Innumeri sunt in indulgentiis abusus, potissimum per eos, qui eas falso comminiscuntur. Deinde magnae fiunt impensae, ut habentur, et habitae ab Episcopis divulgari permittantur. Mille quoque modi a quaestuariis istis ad inventi pro habenda pecunia a plebe. Laudo factum optimi cujusdam viri et doctissimi Joannis Raulini († 1514), qui, cum in theologia Licentiatus esset, et hi quaestuarii sibi offerrent pecuniam pro suo Doctoratu ea lege, ut cum eis proficiseretur de parochia in parochiam concionando: quamvis pauper esset, id tanquam se indignum recusavit. Quales confessores admittantur in his locis publicis, Deus novit, et quam celeriter finem imponat, ut lanam ab ovibus colligant! Nam ubi solent esse casus conscientiae intricatissimi, quibus in promptu vix posset respondere consummatus theologus, asellus quispiam aegre capiens significationem proposito casus omnia ocyssime expedit. A monk, Thomas, who lived before Luther, thus describes the proceedings of the traffickers in indulgences (in Florimundi Raemundi De Ortu et Progressu Haeresium, lib. i. c. 8, ed. Colon. 1614, p. 63 ss.): utque tanto melius ac facilius deglubere eos (populos) possint, cum Parochis rem et consilia conferunt, dicentes: Domine Paroche, apportamus indulgentias plenarias. Quod si vestro mandato populus convenerit, et processiones factae fuerint, nos tertiam ejus, quod inde collegerimus, vobis dabimus, et de bonorum hominum fortunis una laeti convivabimur. Ibi Parochus concubinarius, indocitus, mercenarius et non pastor, quo ventrem suum replere et scortum alere possit, cum istis Bullarum portatoribus transigit. Qui pecunia per fas et nefas collecta convivantur, saltant, genioque indulgent. Cf. Mich. Menot, below, note 30. See, likewise, Joannis Episc. Chemensis (see § 136, note 29) Onus Ecclesiae, c. 15. Franc. Belcarius (Beaucaire), bishop of Metz († 1591), Commentarii Rerum Gallicarum, lib. xvi. no. 15, on the retailers of indulgences under Leo X.: Tanta pontificiorum ministrorum impudentia erat, ut harum (indulgentiarum) obeundarum munus palam nundinarentur inter se, et nonnunquam parum sobrii, praesertim in Germania, in diversoriis aut alias, aut alio ludi genere ad alios transferrent. Of the notorious Dominican, John Tetzel, who sold the Pope's plenary indulgence in Germany, at first as the sub-commissary of Arcimbold, afterward of Albert, elector of Mayence, from 1512, an eye-witness, Frederick Mecum or Myconius, then a Franciscan monk at Annaberg, relates as follows in his history of the Reformation, on the year 1512 (edited by E. S. Cyprian, 2te Ausg. Leipsic, 1718. 8. s. 14): Er erpredigt unzehlich viel Gelds, das er alles gen Rom schickt, in Teutschland, und sonderlich auf dem neuen Bergwerck S. Annaberg, da ich Friedrich Mecum ihn selbst zwey Jahr gehöret, ward treflich gross Geld erlangt. Unglaublich ist, was dieser ungelert und unverschämt Mönch durfft fürgeben. Er sagt, wenn einer Christo bey seiner lieben Mutter geschlaffen hätte, und legte nur Geld ins Pabsts Ablasskasten, so hätte doch der Pabst diese Gewalt im Himmel und Erden, dass ers vergeben kunt, und wenn ers vergeben, so müste es Gott auch vergeben. Item, wenn sie flugs einlegten, und Gnad und Ablass löseten, so würden alle Berge um S. Annaberg eitel gediegen Silber werden. Item, sobald nur der Groschen im Becken klüng, führe die Seel, für die man einlegt, von Mund auf gen Himmel.—Und war der Ablass so hochgeehrt, dass wann man den Commissarium in ein Stadt einfuhr, so trug man die Bulla auf einen sammet oder gülden Tuch doher, und giengen alle Priester, Mönch, der Rath, Schulmeister, Schüler, Mann, Weib, Jungfrauen und Kinder mit Fahnen und Kertzen, mit Gesang und Procession entgegen. Da lautet man alle Glocken, schlug alle Orgel, beleitet ihn in die Kirchen, richtet ein roth Creutz mitten in der Kirchen auf, do hengt man des Pabsts Panieran, etc., und in Sunma: man hätte nicht wohl Gott selbst schöner empfahen und halten können. In the year 1517, when Tetzel, as sub-commissary of the Elector, Albert of Mayence, offered for sale the indulgence for building St. Peter's, in the countries adjacent to Saxony, because the Saxon princes had forbidden the sale in their country, Myconius records, s. 20: Unglaublich ists, was der unverschämte Mönch nur fürgeben, ausreden und predigen durfft. Gab Brief und Siegel, dass auch die Sünd vergeben solten seyn, die einer noch willens wäre zu thun. Der Pabst hätte mehr Macht, denn alle Apostel, alle Engel und Heiligen, auch Maria die Jungfrau selb. Denn diese wären alle noch unter Christo, aber der Pabst wär Christo gleich. George, duke of Anhalt, says, in his Preface to the Sermons of False Prophets (Oper. f. 48, b.): Es durfite des Tezels Sub-Commissarius, auch ein Predigermönch, Bartholomäus genannt (welches ich mit meinem Ohren zu Dessau selbst in meiner Jugend gehört), unverschämmt sagen, wie er von dem heiligen rothen Ablass-Creutz, daran des Pabsts Wapen gehangen, mit seiuen Augen sehe das Blut Christi mildiglich herabfliessen, und dass solche grosse Gnade von der Zeit des Leidens Christi nicht gewesen. Er sagte auch, wie das Creutz Zeichen thät, und welche etwas dawider redeten, thät er in Bann. [The above passages translated in the Appendix.]—Luther gives a similar account of Tetzel's godless doings in his book against Hansworst, in 1541, which Sleidanus, lib. xiii. ed. Am Ende, ii. p. 208, excerpts. The words of the latter,—Is inter alia decebat, se tantam habere potestatem a Pontifice, ut etiam si quis virginem matrem vitiasset ac gravidam fecisset, condonare crimen ipse posset interventu pecuniae: deinde non modo jam commissa, verum etiam futura peccata condonabat,—have attained a degree of notoriety from the various reading virginem aut matrem, and the controversy thereupon. What sort of persons these retailers of indulgences were, is known from the personal statement of Cardinal Raymund, the Pope's legate, intrusted with the sale of the indulgences, who wrote to the German princes, in 1503 (see Bernardi Wittii, a Benedictine at Liesborn, Hist. Westphaliae, written in 1517, ed. Monast. 1778. 4. p. 610): Quanto nos magis istis pecuniis pepercimus, tanto inhonestius quidam ex nostris Commissariis eas disperserunt: in pluribus enim dioecesis, ubi non fuimus in propria, nihil penitus de tertia parte remansit propter eorum excessivas expensas atque immoderatos usus. Sunt enim plures, quorum avaritiae nec hodie possit satisfieri, etc.

How little the produce of the indulgence was always employed by the popes according to its avowed destination, see Guicciardini, ed. Venet. 1592, p. 395, more and more frequently that the very act, which was announced as the dispensation of the highest spiritual graces, was not allowed by the secular nobles,²⁷ or was regarded with suspicion,²⁸ or gave rise to the strongest remonstrances.²⁹ Now, too, men began to come forward in increasing numbers, whose zeal in the cause of religion and morality was especially directed against the system of indulgences;³⁰ although persecution was usually the reward of their labors.

²⁸ In 1466, when a Jubilee-indulgence in support of the Turkish war was to be preached, the states of the German Empire made the condition, that the money should not be handed over either to the Pope or to the Emperor, but to the States. Müller's Reichstagstheatrum, Th. 2, s. 216 ff. In 1500, Cardinal Raymund did not venture to proclaim the Jubilee year in Germany until the Imperial government at Nurenberg had concluded an agreement with him, according to which the portion assigned for the Turkish war was to be kept under four different locks. For the hierarchy measured their indulgences and penalties only by the degree in which blind submission was rendered or refused to themselves. For the submissive they managed to bring the precepts of Christianity into convenient harmony with their sinful desires; but the disobedient they persecuted with an unsparing and relentless hand, even when they were actuated by the purest zeal for religion and morality. The list of the different kinds of disobedience, which were condemned on Maundy Thursday with the severest and most solemn excommunication, continued to increase.³¹ That ban and interdict were often rashly and unright-

Besides these, Wolf, in his Lectiones Memorables, mentions also the following persons as opposers of indulgences in the beginning of the sixteenth century (the passages in point have been quoted in the later editions of Flacii Catalogus Testium Verit.); Sebastianus, doctor of divinity and canon at Erfurt (in Flacius ed. Francof. 1666, p. 827), Ludolph Castrick, pastor of St. Michael's Church in Magdeburg (Flacius, p. 833), Joh. THE INQUISITION.

In the time of the Papal schism and of the reforming councils, the power of the Inquisition seemed to be broken, together with that of the hierarchy;¹ but when the latter once more lifted up its head, the former recommenced in Spain and Germany, in new shapes, with an energy even more blood-thirsty than ever before.

In Spain² opportunity for its action was given by the new

Christians, who, descended from the Jews converted by force, since the year 1391 maintained in secret among themselves their allegiance to the religion of their fathers.³ But the Inquisition, set up on their account, received a peculiar character from the fact that Sixtus IV. granted to the two sovereigns, Ferdinand and Isabella (1478), the power to appoint and depose the inquisitors, and to confiscate the property of condemned persons to the royal exchequer. At first, two inquisitors were appointed by the sovereigns (1480); but although these two displayed a sufficiently blood-thirsty zeal,⁴ nevertheless, in order to introduce greater system and unity into the work of blood, they were soon supplanted by Thomas de Torquemada as general-inquisitor (1483).⁵ Inquisitors were at once appointed by him in all places of importance, and provided with most minute instructions.⁶ These surrounded themselves with assistants (familiares sancti Officii); all resistance, even on the side of the civic authorities, was overcome by terror.⁷ Upon countless funeral piles civil liberties were sacrificed to royal despotism, no less than reason to religious fanaticism.⁸ Even the bishops, instead of being co-judges, were obliged to submit to the new inquisition;⁹ the popes themselves could no longer curb the hydra which had quickly outgrown their power.¹⁰ From the year 1492, when all Jews who refused to be converted to Christianity were banished from their country by Torquemada's advice; from 1502, when a similar fate befell the Moors of Granada, notwithstanding all the assurances made to them in the peace of 1492, the monster of the inquisition never ceased from the work of blood.¹¹ Fear and distrust penetrated the nearest and most sacred relationships: cruelty, revenge, malice, and hypocrisy sank deeper and deeper into the character of the people, who groaned beneath this fearful yoke.¹²

241. What was first thought in Spain about the new Inquisition is evident from Sixti IV. Epist. ad Isabellam dd. 23. Febr. 1483, in Llorente, iv. p. 354: Quod autem dubitare videris, nos forsan existimare, cum in perfidos illos, qui Christianum nomen ementiti Christum blasphemant, et judaica perfidia crucifigunt, quando ad unitatem redigi nequeant, tam severe animadvertere cures, ambitione potius et bonorum temporalium cupiditate [te agi], quam zelo fidei et catholicae veritatis, vel Dei timore; certo scias, ne ullam quidem apud nos ejus rei fuisse suspicionem. Quod si non defuerint qui ad protegendum eorum scelera multa susurrarint, nihil tamen sinistri de tua vel—consortis tui illustris devotione persuaderi nobis potuit.

Gonzalez a Mendoza, Archiepiscopus Hispalensis). Licentia superiorum temporum multa in ea provincia erant depravata, Mauris Judacisque cum piis promiscue versantibus nullo non commercii genere. Prava consuetudine usque non paucos e piorum numero infici necesse fuit: plures sacra Christiana, quae suscepserant patria superstitione abdicata, fide inconstanti, nullo vetante deserebant: labes Hispani maxime est grassata: in ea urbe primum quaestonibus arcano habitis de sotibus gravissimis poenis vindicatum est. Nam majori commisso delicto, igne post diuturnum carcerem et tormento neabantur; leviore di causa ignominia inurebatur familiae perpetua; non pauci bonis publicatis aeternis tenebris vinculisque mandati. Rubra crux obliquis radiis ac decussatim in crocea veste, quam S. Benedicti (San-Benito) vocant, plerisque data insignis, a caeterisque discreta, ut essent documento, et magnitudine supplicii terrent alios. Quod usu salutare extitit, grave initio provincialibus visum est. Illa maxime: parentum scelera filiorum poenis lui; occulto accusatore reos fieri; neque cum indice compositos damnari; contra quam olim factum erat, peccata in religionem vindicari morte. Illud gravissimum, adimi per inquisitiones loquendi libere, audiendique commercium, dispersis per urbes et oppida et agros observatoribus, quod extremum in servitute credebant. Ita discrepantibus judiciis, nonnulli mortis poenam removebant, caeterum suppliciorum acerbitates omnes complectebantur: in hoc numero Fernandus Pulgarius arguto atque eleganti ingenio, cuius extat de Ferdinandi Regis rebus gestis historia: alii, quorum melior sententia fuit, qui foedare religionem, et sanctissimas caeremonias mutare conati essent, eos frui vita et communis spiritu non putabant oportere, bonis et ignominia multando videri, nulla filiorum cura. Praeclare id legibus comparatum, ut caritas liborum cautores parentes reddat. Occulto judicio tergiversationes vitari: neque nisi de convictis aperte, aut confessis poenas sumi. In multis saepe antiquos Ecclesiae mores, prout res et tempora exigunt, mutari: et majorem licentiam majori severitate coercendum videri. Successus opinionem superavit.—Ab hoc initio res in hanc auctoritatem crevit atque potestatem, qua nulla pravis hominibus toto orbe Christiano formidabilior est, reipublicae universae majori commodo; praesens remedium adversus impendentia mala, quibus aliae provinciae exigitantur, caelo datum: nam humano consilio adversus tanta pericula satis caveri non potuit.

The principal charge brought against him is known from the work of another contemporary writer, a Dominican, Nicolai Jaquerii († in Ghent, 1471) Flagellum Haereticorum Fascinariorum (ed. Francof. 1581. 8), cap. 5. The schedula, in which the ill-fated man had to record the crime fastened upon him, continebat inter caetera, quod, quando ipse fuit introductus ad dictam sectam, Diabolus asserebat, quod ipse Magister

Guilhelmus bene posset, si vellet, augmentare ejusdem Daemonis dominium, praecipiendo eidem Magistro Guilhelmo praedicare, quod hujusmodi secta non erat nisi illusio, et quod hoc praedicaret ad contentandum populum patriae, ubi tunc morabatur ipse Magister Guilhelmus. Comp. Hauber, St. 15, s. 152 ff. Malleus Malefic., P. I. Qu. 1, answers in the affirmative the question: utrum asserere maleficos esse sit a Deo catholicum, quod ejus oppositum pertinaciter defendere omnino sit haereticum. Hence it appears that there were many at that time who—publice praedicant, maleficas non esse, aut quod nullo modo valeant hominibus nocere. Hence follows, P. I. Qu. 18, modus praedicandi contra quinque argumenta Laicorum, quibus probare videntur sparsim, quod Deus non permittat tantam potestatem Diabolo et malefiscis circa hujusmodi maleficia inferenda. These reasons are: Primum sumitur ex parte Dei: Deus punire potest hominem propter peccata et punit gladio, fame et mortalitate, item diversis aliis infirmitatibus variis et innumeris, quibus humana conditio subjacet: unde quia opus ei non est adjungere alias punitiones, ideo non permittit. II. ex parte Diaboli: Si vera essent quaæ praedicantur, quod videlicet (Daemones) vim generativam impedit possunt, ut vide licet mulier non concipiatur; vel, si concipiatur, quod aborsum faciat; vel si non aborsum, quod etiam post partum natos interficiunt: utique sic perire possent totum mundum. Et iterum posset dici, quod opera Diaboli essent fortiora operibus Dei, scilicet sacramento matrimonii, quod est opus Dei. III. ex parte hominis: Videmus, si maleficium debet esse aliquid in mundo, tunc aliqui homines plus aliis maleficiantur. De quo si quaeritur, utique dicitur hoc esse propter punitionem peccatorum: sed hoc est falsum; ergo et illud, quod maleficia sint in mundo. Falsitas autem probatur ex eo, quia tunc majores peccatores amplius punirentur: hoc autem est falsum, cum minus puniantur, quam alii interdum justi. Quod etiam cernitur in pueris innocentibus, qui asseruntur maleficiari. Quarto potest addi et aliud argumentum ex parte Dei, hoc: Quod quis impedire posset, et non impedit, sed fieri permittit, utique judicatur ex sua voluntate processisse. Sed Deus cum sit summe bonus, non potest velle malum: ergo non potest permettere, ut fiat malum, quod ipse impedit potest. Item ex parte morbi: Defectus et infirmitates, qui dicuntur maleficiales, similes etiam sunt defectibus et infirmitatibus naturalibus, i.e. qui ex defectu naturae procedunt. Quod enim aliquis claudicat, excoecatur vel rationem perdit, vel etiam moritur, ex defectu naturae contingere possunt: unde non possunt secure malefiscis adscribi. Ultimo ex parte judicum et praedicatorum, qui, cum talia adversus maleficas praedicant et practicant, utique propter ingens odium a maleficiis contra eos conceptum nunquam essent securi. They who preached against the belief in witches rested principally upon Decret. Gratiani Causa xxvi. Qu. 5, c. 12, ex Conc. Anquirensi, in which the midnight journeys of witches through the air, and the possibility of their changing themselves into other shapes, were pronounced heathenish superstitions, and the clergy were required to preach against them. On this account Malleus Malef., P. ii. cap. 3, labors to prove, that these opponents only in cortice canonis laborarent, and that there certainly were magic arts of the kind mentioned. After producing several instances it proceeds: Tantummodo haec sufficient adversus illos, qui hujusmodi corporales transvectiones aut omnino negant, aut quod solummodo imaginarie et fantastice fiant, affirmare conantur. Qui utique in suo errore si relinquerentur, parum esset, imo nec advertendum, dummodo in fidei contumeliam ipsorum error non vergeret. Attento autem quod illo errore non contenti etiam alios inserere, et publicare in maleficarum augmentationem et fidei detrimentum non verentur, dum asserunt, quod omnia maleficia, quae eis juste tanquam instrumentis Daemonum vere et realiter imputantur, eis tantummodo imaginarie et illusorie, tanquam innoxii, esse imputanda, sicuti et ipsa transvectio fantastica, unde et plures impune in magnum creatoris contumeliam et gravissimum jam ipsorum augmentum remanserunt, etc. Compare P. ii. cap. 8. Two dialogues of this period are worthy of note, in which the reasons and counter-reasons in respect of belief in witches are drawn out. Ulricus Molitoris, Decretorum Doctor, and assessor of the episcopal court at Constance, wrote at the suggestion of the Archduke Sigismund of Austria: De Lamiis et Pythonicis Mulieribus.

these the secret heretics also were persecuted with greater success as wizards;¹⁷ for even the secular authorities themselves began to vie with the inquisitors in the persecution.¹⁸

HISTORY OF THE ADVERSARIES OF THE ROMAN CHURCH.

ANCIENT SUPERSTITIOUS SECTS.

The Manicheans now maintained themselves only in Bosnia. They were here predominant, until Stephen Thomas, King of Bosnia, went over to the Roman Church in 1442,¹ and began to persecute them. However, by so doing he only precipitated the Colou., 1489. The reasons against belief in witchcraft are here drawn out with surpassing force, but great caution, and the decisive denial only put in the mouth of the archduke; compare Hauber, St. 2, s. 103 ff. In the dialogue of the Franciscan, Thomas Murner, De Pythonico Contractu., Freyburgii, 1499, it is scarcely possible to discover the real opinion of the author; see Hauber, St. 2, s. 116 ff. Both dialogues are added to the edition of the Malleus Maleficarum, published at Frankfort, in 1580. 8.

² There is a letter of praise from the Pope to the King on account of this persecution, in Raynald. 1445, no. 23. Two Woivodes, Stephen, the King's father-in-law, and John, who had been outwardly converted to the Roman Church, returned to heresy and shielded the Manicheans. Against these men Nicholas V. instructed a legate, in Raynald. 1449, no. 9. The Manicheans even invited the aid of the Turks against their King, Rayn. 1450, no. 13. His son and successor, Stephen Thomassovitch, agreed to pay tribute to the Turks, and began to persecute the Manicheans afresh, and to confiscate their property, Rayn. 1460, no. 91. Cf. Pii II. John Huss of Hussinecz, master of the liberal arts, and teacher of theology at Prague, from 1402 preacher in the Bethlehem chapel,¹ and confessor to Queen Sophia, trod zealously in the footsteps of Conrad Stiekna, John Milicz, and Matthew of Janow, in the cause of morality and inward piety. By means of Wycliffe's works, which were then diffused as far as Prague, Huss was won over to the side of Augustine in theology, and to realism in philosophy.² True, he did not adopt all Wycliffe's peculiar doctrinal opinions,³ but he derived from him a deeper insight into the errors of

² Aeneae Sylvii Hist. Bohem., c. 35: Rexerunt scholam Pragensem usque in ea tempora Teutones. Id molestissimum Bohemis fuit, hominibus natura ferocibus atque indomitis. Ex quibus vir quidam genere nobilis, ex domo quam Putridi piscis vocant, apud Oxoniam Angliae civitatem literis studens, cum Johannis Wyclevi libros offendisset, quibus de realibus universalibus titulus inscribitur, magnopere illis oblectatus, exemplaria secum attulit (about the year 1402). Inter quae de civili, de jure divino, de Ecclesia, de diversis quaestionibus, contra Clerum pleraque volumina, veluti pretiosum thesaurum, patriae suae intulit. Imbutus jam ipse Wycleitarum veneno et ad nocendum paratus, tum quod erat familiae suae cognomen, putridum piscem i.e. foetidum virus in cives suos evomuit. Commodavit autem scripta, quae attulerat, his potissime, qui Teutonicorum odio tenebantur. Inter quos Johannes eminuit, obscuru loco natus, ex villa Hus, qui anserem significat, cognomen mutuatus. Hic cum esset ingenio peracri, et lingua diserta, multumque dialecticis oblectaretur, et peregrinas opiniones amaret, avide admodum Wycleitarum doctrinam arripuit, eaque Teutonicos vexare magistros coepit, sperans eo confusos Teutones scholas relicturos.

³ Thus he still teaches, in his Tract. De Corpore et Sanguine Domini, which he wrote in prison at Constance (Hist. et Monum., i. p. 47), the orthodox doctrine of transubstantiation, and asserts expressly, cap. 2, that he had always maintained this doctrine. the Church, and was strengthened in his zeal for truth and morality. Accordingly, he recommended and disseminated his works,⁴ and contracted a close friendship with the most zealous of his admirers, Jerome Faulfisch, commonly called Hieronymus Pragensis. But by so doing he incurred the enmity of the numerous German teachers at the University of Prague, who were in a body nominalists, and opponents of Wycliffe. After Huss had already won reputation as an impressive moral preacher to the people, he began, as a speaker in the synods, to inveigh against the corruption of the clergy.⁵ The accidental circumstance, that

Numquid quia quasi nihil de veris dvitiiis spiritualibus Ecclesiae curatis, sed totis curis et consiliis bonis temporalibus inbiatis? Numquid quia beneficia et officia ecclesiastica quaeritis, ut non serviatis in eis fideliter, sed ut per illa dominemini vi, et vivatis gentiliter?—Vel utrum in hoc, quia gloriamini—in frequentia clientelae, in equorum pluralitate, in aedificiis superfluis, in multa supellectile, in congregatione pecuniae, in pauperum exactione, in contemptu pauperum et humilium, in veneratione dvitium et superborum, in veridicorum despectione, in adulatorum amatione, et breviter in qualibet gloria et altitudine saeculari? Heu in hac magna injurya et offensa Christi Dei et suae regulae sol, Praelatus major, conversus est in tenebras, et luna, minor, in sanguinem. Et secundum b. Bernhardum, et alium Doctorem Gilbertum factum est in Clero abominabile monstrum super terram. Gradus summus, animus infimus; sedes prima, vita ima; lingua magniloqua, manus otiosa; sermo multus, fructus nullus; vultus gravis, actus levis; ingens auctoritas, nutans stabilitas; speculator coecus, praeco mutus, pugil mancus, praecursor lentus, medicus morbi ignarus. Et quia simile generat sibi simile, hinc est quod in quatuor temporibus multi scientiis nulli, et in moribus valde distorti ad sacros majores ordines promoventur, et fit tanta de honestatio Cleri, quod sacerdotes vicarii a suis Plebanis longe ultra concubinas in servitutem et despectum rediguntur, fit in se dedecus Clero, ut etiam in temporalibus bonis per sacerdotes furta et latrocinia multa, et mala consilia cumulerentur, sicut vos ipsi testimonium potestis perhibere. P. 38: Nunc igitur vos, sacerdotes, attendite, si non sunt inter vos consecrata vasa Deo abominabilia supra modum. Sunt namque multi ex vobis, Praelati, Canonici, Plebani, et alii Presbyteri, qui mulierculis contuntur, velut idola colunt, ardenter in desiderio et amore illarum: vexantur lascivia, et libidine turpi vinculanter multi, multi Plebani concubinari fornicanter cum talibus corporaliter, quod in multis locis animalia gradientia super terram aperte demonstrant. O sacerdos, vas immundum, noviter ante cum scorto foedatum, et adhuc adulterina voluntate illi conjunctum, aedes sic in te capere sacramentum omni decore et suavitate repletum? Quomodo non times, quod ira Dei super te descendente statim confringaris cum Oza, qui ad tactum temerarium arcae domini statim percussus et mortuus est (2 Sam. v. 6, 7). Quis potest aestimare, quantum consecrata vasa concubinaria Clericatum hujus dioecesis de honestant? Unde Dominus noster Archiepiscopus debet, quantum potest, rationabiliter etiam usque ad mortem laborare, et se exponere, ut sua illa vasa Deo consecrata a turpitudine concubinaria purgarentur, et cum ipse habeat ignem carceris et purgationis, et ministros sufficienes, debet ipse talia sua immunda vasa, quae per se purgari nolunt, igne illo carceris mandare purificari efficaciter et suffcienter. Sunt ulterius multi de vobis, qui crapula et ebrietate ultra Laicos turpiter maculantur, vadunt cum baculis ad tabernam, sicut Laici ad limina Sanctorum, et cum inde redeunt, male possunt ambulare, minus loqui, et minime tunc scire possunt, quid eorum dignitas sacerdotalis requirat. Ditiore eorum de eleemosyna frequentant ad invicem invitatos ad convivia, ubi cibus et potus in quantitate plures et majores, in substantia magis pretiosi, et in qualitate delicatores, quam apud cives et nobiles apponuntur. Ubi Christus cum sua passione est proscriptus, sed carne spumante in libidine de mulierculis et factis venereis verbis impudicis colloquia consummantur, etc. Sermo synodal, ann. 1405, p. 42, against the fornicatio Cleri, also against the excuse, quod non sit peccatum mortale simplex fornicatio (see Conc. Paris, ann. 1429, c. 2, above, § 139, note 10); afterward, p. 43, against the avaritia Cleri. E. g. Quod detestabilissimum est, religiosi possessionati, qui a vulgo vocantur divites sive pingues Domini, Monachi, ex avaro fundamento fraternitatis fabricant literas, quibus magnificant sua opera contra illud Salvatoris (Luc. xvii. 10): cum feceritis omnia, quae praecerta sunt vobis, dicite, servi inutiles sumus. Illas autem literas solum tribuunt dvitibus, facientes eos participes suorum operum, ut inclinati eorum conventibus, ventres et buccas rubentes reficerent, implerent marsupia, et praedia angmentarent. face IX. was enraged against the clergy in general, looked with favor upon these invectives,⁶ helped him but little: the number of his enemies was thus increased, and it extended even into foreign countries, when he, in connection with Jerome of Prague, at the head of the Bohemian nation, had effected an enlargement of its privileges in the University of Prague, and thereby occasioned the departure of the Germans from this University (1409).⁷ Huss now stood at the head of the theologians of Prague, and as ut otientur convenient, exinde rixas procurantes populi turbativas, filios spiritualiter suffocant, carnaliter generant,—spiritualem aedificationem, quae salvat animas, nihil curant. Sed ut augmentent censem, aut divitias, ex quibus eorum posteri luxuriantur et superbunt uberioris, optime se facere existimant, et pro eis subditos avare inducunt, ut etiam filiis praetermissis, parentibus et consanguineis pauperibus, pro ipsis abundantibus ordinent testamenta.—Et quid de Altaristis, Capellanis, et monstruosis Monachis, qui cum multa jam dicta exerceant, et choreas intrant publicas ducti patre Diabolo, etc.—Sermo de exequis mortuorum, ann. 1411, p. 81: Videat ergo defunctorum beneficiarius, quid est sibi utilius, quid est Ecclesiae commodius, aut quid Deo honorificentius, et faciat illud pro mortuis, tanquam eis salubrius. Unde opus, quod maxime purgaret militantem Ecclesiam a crimen, ac stabiliret ipsam in mandatis Domini, et accenderet in amore Dei: illud foret opus maxime juvans dormientem Ecclesiam, quia militans purgata a peccato, stabilita in mandato, et in amore Dei accensa, ut sic, maxime succurreret Ecclesiae dormienti. Ex quo videtur, quod Evangelizatio sancta, sic, ut dicitur, disponens militantem Ecclesiam multum praestat suffragium Ecclesiae dormienti. Istud autem Satan considerans, maxime nititur Evangelizationem extingue, et sophisticans tam sacerdotes, quam simplices, ducit utrosque in Charibdim: Clericos in avaritiam per venditionem triginta Missarum de Requiem, et laicos in praesumptuosam confidentiam, et emptionem simoniacam earundem. Jam enim in illis committitur taxa, sicut in vaccis, dum emuntur. Sic enim scit astutus hostis animaram fascinare homines, ut via praetermissa ad vitam securissima, incumbant super dubia. Quis enim ignorat, quin via securissima ad vitam est, vivere, ut Christus et Apostoli docuerunt? Et quis scit, quem triginta Missae a purgatorio liberarunt?

a preacher exercised an uncommon influence over the people. In order to work his overthrow, Sbynko, archbishop of Prague, procured from Alexander V. full powers to forbid preaching in private chapels, and to consign Wycliffe's works to the flames (1410).⁸ As Huss nevertheless continued to preach in the Bethlehem chapel,⁹ he was accused at Rome. However, the King and Queen, the nobility and the University, took up his cause, and obtained a reconsideration of the excommunication which had immediately ensued,¹⁰ while Huss endeavored in several writings to defend himself as well as Wycliffe.¹¹ At length the universal opposition induced also the archbishop Sbynko to revoke his accusation of heresy.¹²

cae pravitatis. Both the contending parties, Huss and the Archbishop, came to an agreement, in July, 1411, that they would submit to a court of arbitration appointed by the King (Pelzel, ii. s. 585 ff.) ; this court came to this decision among others, that the Archbishop should report to the Pope that no errors prevailed in Bohemia. Huss purged himself from all suspicion by a confession of faith which he made on the first of September (see in Pelzel, ii. Urkundenbuch, s. 144 ff.). In this he makes the following among other statements—*fiderenter, veraciter et constanter assero, quod a veritatis aemulis sinistre sedi Apostolicae sum delatus: false siquidem detulerunt et deferunt, quod docuerim populum, quod in sacramento altaris remanet substantia panis materialis. False, quod quando elevatur hostia, tunc est corpus Christi, et quando ponitur, tunc non est. False, quod sacerdos in peccato mortali non conficit. False, quod Domini a Clero auferant temporalia, quod decimas non solvant. False, quod indulgentiae nihil sunt. False, quod gladio materiali suaserim Clerum percutere. False, quod praedicaverim vel tenuerim aliquos vel aliquem errores vel errorem, vel aliquam haeresim, vel quod seduxerim a via veritatis populum quoquo modo. False, quod causa extiterim, quod quidam Magistri Teutonici expulsi de Praga fuerint, cum ipsi nolentes almae Universitatis studii Pragensis tenere fundationis privilegium, nec serenissimi Principis—Wenceslai—Regis volentes parere mandatis licitis, putantes, quod absque eorum praesentia non valeret Pragensis Universitas subsistere, nullo pellente ad propria vel quo ipsis placuit recesserunt. Fateor autem me a reverendissimi in Christo Patris Domini Sbinkonis sententia ad sedem appellasse Apostolicam, demum a processibus, qui ex informatione sinistra a s. sede Apostolica emanarunt. Sinistre etenim veritatis aemuli, honoris sui et salutis immemores sedi Apostolicae suggesterunt, quod in regno Boemiae in civitate Pragensi et Marchionatu Moraviae errores pullulasset et haereses, et multorum corda infecissent adeo, quod—necessarium foret correctionis remedium adhibere. False denique suggesterunt, quod Capella Bethleem foret locus privatus, cum ipsa sit ab ordinario Episcopo locus in beneficium ecclesiasticum confirmatus, cuius destructio honorem Dei aliquantulum in populo tolleret, animarum profectum minueret, causaret scandalum, et populum contra destructores non modice provocaret. Citatus autem personaliter ad Romanam Curiam, optabam comparere humiliter: sed quia mortis insidiae tam in regno quam extra regnum, praesertim a Teutonicis sunt mihi positae, ideo multorum fretus consilio iudicavi, quod foret Deum tentare vitam morti tradere profectu Ecclesiae non urgente. Igitur non parui personaliter, sed advocatos et procuratores constitui, volens sanctae sedi Apostolicae obedire. Quapropter, summe Christi Vicarie, humiliter vestrac Sanctitatis imploro clementiam, quatenus me a comparitione personali—benigniter absolvere dignetur, quia per Serenissimum—Wenceslaum—Regem, necnon per Reverendissimos Pates—Wenceslaum Patriarcham Antiochenum, Dominum Conradum Olomucensem Episcopum, Illustrum Principem Dom. Rudolfum Ducem Saxoniae s. Imperii Electorem, etc.—cum praefato reverendissimo in Christo Patre Domino Sbinkone sum totaliter concordatus; nam offerebam me ad respondentum omnibus et singulis objiciendis, etiam referens me ad totum auditorium, quod, si quid contra me dederetur, velle etiam ignis incendio nisi cederem emendari, etc. The Archbishop Sbynko wrote a letter to the Pope, which the King approved, in which he declared (Hist. et Monum., i. p. 111) : *Errores haereticos in Regno Bohemiae, in civitate Pragensi, et Marchionatu Moraviae nescio, nec aliquis super hac re convictus est, pro qua foret aut fuisse ecclesiastice puniendus. Ego etiam et Magister Joannes Huss, necnon caeteri Universitatis Studii Pragensis Doctores et Magistri super singulis dissensionibus atque rixis inter nos utrumque subortis—sumus plenarie concordati. Quapropter, beatissime Pater, famam praedicti Regni laudabilem ex pastorali officio conservare desiderans, ad Vestrae Sanctitatis clementiam confugio, supplicando, quatenus super Christianissimo regno S. V. piis dignetur moveri visceribus, excommunicationem et censuras exinde ortas cessare et annulare. But this letter was never sent, for Sbynko died on the 28th September, 1411.

¹⁴ Quaestio Mag. Jo. Huss, disputata ab eo, ann. 1412 (Hist. et Monum., i. p. 215), a treatise on the question: Utrum secundum legem Jesu Christi licet et expedit pro honore Dei, et salute populi, ac pro commodo regni bullas Papae de erectione crucis contra Ladislaum Regem Apuliae et suos complices Christifidelibus approbare? He treats three points in the Bulla de erectione crucis, indulgentiam omnium peccatorum, subsidia bellorum, et circa utraque ista modum. With regard to the first, p. 216: est indulgere gratis concedere,—sive remittere vindictam, quam reus deberet pro excessu sustinere.—Sic autem indulgere peccatoribus est Deo proprium.—Sacerdotes Christi habent potestatem vere poenitentes absolvere a poena et a culpa.—Sacerdos potest sacramentaliter ostendere, sibi confitentem taliter absolutum, qui ad tantum conteritur, quod statim decadens sine poena purgatori ad patriam perveniret, et hoc est sacerdotum absolvere.—P. 217: Unde sapientes Christi sacerdotes non asserunt simpliciter, quod confitens sit a peccatis solitus, sed sub conditione ista: si dolet, et nolit peccare amplius, et confidit de Dei misericordia, et vult imposterum mandata Dei observare.—Nullius Papae vel Episcopi prodest indulgentia homini, nisi de quanto prius se disposuerit apud Deum. With regard to the second: Licet saeculari brachio pugnare, et sibi subsidia ad bellandum praestare, habitis conditionibus caritatis.—Non licet Romano Pontifici, nec expedit sibi, vel cuiuscunq; Episcopo vel Clerico pro dominatione saeculari, vel mundi divitiis pugnare. Compare the example of Christ, Luc. xxii. 51.—P. 218: Quomodo ergo Romanus Pontifex non timet in multorum hominum mortem per crucis erectionem et procurationem stipendi consentire, immo praestare remissionem omnium peccatorum ex eo, quod quis Christianos quam plurimos trucidaret? Revera non cepit exemplum illud a Christo Jesu, qui invasus ab hostibus cum suo grege posillo, valens omnes uno verbo interimere, dixit patientissime, Jo. xviii. 8: si me quaeritis, sinite hos abiire. P. 219: *Litteris Papae de crucis erectione contra Christicolas quidam obedient ex ignorantia, ut Laici simplices, et omnes illi, qui in nullo putant resistendum jussioni Papae, male accipientes illud, Deut. xvii. 10-12. Ubi capiunt, quod omnis sententia Papae est tenenda, quod, inquit Doctor de Lyra, est manifeste falsum, quia sententia, inquit, nullius hominis, cujuscunque auctoritatis, tenenda est, si contineat manifestam falsitatem sive errorem.* P. 220: Videamus, si Salvator noster in casu simili ita fecit, et patebit in lege sua contrarium. Nam Luc. ix. 51 ss. dicitur: Ipse Jesus faciem suam firmavit, ut iret in Hierusalem, et misit nuncios ante conspectum suum, et euntes intraverunt civitatem Samaritanorum, ut praepararent illi, et non receperunt eum, quia facies ejus erat euntis in Hierusalem. Jacobus et Joannes dixerunt: Domine, vis, dicimus, ut ignis descendat de caelo, et consumat illos, sicut Helias fecit. Et conversus increpavit eos dicens: nescitis, cuius spiritus estis. Filius enim hominis non venit animas hominum perdere, sed salvare. Videat ergo Papa, cur personas utriusque sexus in exterminium, non dico Samaritanorum, sed Christianorum concitat sub obtentu remissionis peccatorum omnium: et non datur per eum alia causa, nisi nonsolutio pecuniae vasallatus Ladislai, et nonsusceptio ejus pro patre sanctissimo, ac rebellio et hostilis impugnatio, sicut sui nuncii et bullae protestantur. P. 221, in the Modus donationis indulgentiarum, the following points are censured, that all persons were placed under excommunication who should allow Ladislaus and his followers to find Christian burial; that all faithful men were summoned, ut ad Ladislai et sequentium rebellium exterminium se accingant; that the indulgence was also promised in return for support in money and so on. P. 228: Res corporalis quantumcunque parvi pretii non debet emi, nisi cum ista prudentia, quod emptor de vendito probabiliter sit securus. Sed Papa non potest assecurare aliquem, quod post mortem vel ante tantam indulgentiam habebit. Ideo probabiliter est tale commercium dimittendum. Papa enim subducta revelatione nescit de aliquo, nec de se ipso, si sit praedestinatus a Domino: quod si praecitus fuerit, non proderunt sibi tales indulgentiae ad beatitudinem contra ordinationem

he had stirred up the people to the highest pitch of anger against the evil,¹⁵ then nothing could appease the Papal indignation any

Domini aeternaliter ordinantis. Ideo cum Papa non potest generaliter procurare tales indulgentias sibi ipsi, est multis evidens, quod tales indulgentiae sunt suspectae: non enim obstat fidei, quod multi Papae, qui concesserunt verbaliter amplas indulgentias, sunt damni: quomodo igitur possunt defendere suas indulgentias coram Deo? P. 229: Positis indulgentiis papalibus a poena et a culpa, ut praemittitur, videtur, quod potest Papa purgatorium destruere. Probatur. Quia potest Papa quemlibet in agone contritum et confessum a poena et a culpa absolvere, et cuilibet potest dare illam gratiam post se in futurum, et non obstat aliquid, nisi forte invidia vel negligentia. Det ergo cuilibet in futurum, et dato illo nullus veniet ad purgatorium, quo dato omnes vigiliae, missae defunctorum, oblagia, largae eleemosynae, anniversaria, omnia alia suffragia, ut commemorationes perpetuae, dotationes Capellanorum, extunctiones claustrorum et altarium, pro hujusmodi hominibus forent frustra.—Sed istud consequens Clerum non modice conturbaret. Unde vel oportet eos negare habere potestatem hujusmodi ad dandum sic indulgentias, vel incidere in consequens jam indictum. Si autem dicitur, quod licet habet potestatem dare Papa sic indulgentias, non tamen debet, nisi ex causa rationabili, scilicet quando impugnatur, vel indiget pecuniis: revera orandum erit fidelibus, ut impugnetur, et indigeat pecuniis, quia tunc thesaurum Ecclesiae fidelibus aperiet ad salutem. P. 232: the words of Jeremiah apply, c. vi. 13, and c. viii. 10: a minimo usque ad maximum omnes avaritiae student, et a Propheta usque ad sacerdotem cuncti faciunt dolum. Omnes enim datores indulgentiarum, quaestores de voto, et praedicatorum erectionis crucis student mirabiliter avaritiae, omnem sollicitudinem Diaboli cautelosam apponentes, nunc praedicando, quod summa venit populis gratia, nunc quod coelum est eis apertum, nunc quod progenitores possunt per illas indulgentias redimere, nunc quod qui negligit tantam gratiam, perdit vitam aeternam, nunc literas absolutionis care vendendo, nunc peregrinationem debitam ex voto pecuniis et alia vota compensando. Huss also wrote, Contra Bullam Papae Jo. XXIII. Replica, l. c. p. 235, in which he concisely exposes ten inconvenientia in it. E. g. Praedicandum est ergo populo, ut promulgatione indulgentiarum non seducantur, quia indulgentiae nihil valent, sicut nec aliud bonum opus ad consequendam beatitudinem, nisi homo relinquat peccatum, dolens de praeterito, et cavens finaliter, diligenter et continue de futuro. Si enim de omnibus peccatis poenitentiam egerit, et mandata Dei custodierit, omnium peccatorum remissionem et poenae aeternae obtinebit.—Item praedicandum est ipsi populo, ut caveat, ne per reliquias spolietur: quia sanctorum reliquiae non sunt pro exquirendis pecuniis exponenda.—Item praedicandum est populo, ne in confessionibus permittat se simoniace spoliare per taxam, vel per injunctionem offerendi, vel missas comparandi, vel alio modo illicito.—Item praedicandum est illud Augustini, lib. 2, ad Julianum: non tollit peccata, nisi solus Christus.—Ex isto docendus est populus, ut credat, quod solus Deus habet mundare animam ab interiori macula, et quod nullus homo potest dimittere cuiquam peccata, nisi Deus prius dimiserit.—Et iterum docendus est populus, quod ad remissionem peccatorum requiritur poenitentia interior.—He also wrote Opusculum de sex Erroribus (l. c. p. 237), qui Clerum et magnam partem populi infecerunt. These errors are: 1. quod quilibet sacerdos missando creat corpus Christi, et efficitur pater et creator sui creatoris (viz., non creatur, sed in manibus sacerdotum conficitur. Creator is God alone); 2. quod credendum est in b. Virginem, vel in Papam, vel in Sanctos, cum tamen solum in Deum veraciter est credendum (credere homini, and in hominem, are two different things); 3. quod sacerdotes, cui volunt, possunt remittere peccata, et absolvere a poena et a culpa; 4. quod subditi debent suis superioribus in omnibus praeceptis, licitis sive illicitis, obedire; 5. quod omnis excommunicatio, sive justa sive injusta, ligat excommunicatum, et nocet sibi, et separat eum a communione Christifidelium, et privat eum Ecclesiae sacramentis; 6. error simoniace haeresis, qua Clerus est pro majori parte, proh dolor, maculatus.

longer. Wycliffe's works were condemned in a synod at Rome;¹⁶ Huss was laid under excommunication, and the place where he resided under interdict (1413). Huss now appealed from the Pope to Christ himself,¹⁷ composed in his defense the Tractatus de Ecclesia,¹⁸ his principal work, then retired from Prague to tened to an unchaste woman, carried through the town, and burned. Several of Huss's adherents contradicted in Church the preachers who announced the indulgence. When three men were executed on this account the disturbance increased still more (compare also on this point Stephani Prioris Dolanensis Antihussus, c. 5, in Pez, iv. ii. p. 380). The king Wenceslaus also was greatly enraged, and wrote a letter of remonstrance to the Pope (see this letter in Pelzel's Lebensgesch. des Königs Wenceslaus, Th. 2, Urkundenbuch, s. 151) against the shamelessness of the promises and the avarice of the sellers of indulgences.

opinative homo credere Bullis, quia tam Papa quam sua Curia potest falli propter ignorantiam veritatis. De illa enim verificatur, quod fallit et fallitur : fallit Papam lucrum, et fallitur propter ignorantiam. Cap. 9 : Ex his patet, quomodo Christus est fundamen-tum Ecclesiae, et quomodo Apostoli sunt fundamenta. Christus antonomastice, quia ab ipso incipit, et in ipso finitur, et per ipsum finitur constitutio Ecclesiae. Prophetae vero et Apostoli sunt fundamenta, quia ipsorum auctoritas portat infirmitatem nostram. —Solum Christus est caput,—Petrus non fuit nec est caput sanctae Ecclesiae catholicae,—fuit capitaneus inter Apostolos, et fuit fundamentum Ecclesiarum, ut in proximo dictum est de Apostolis.—Quare autem Christus Petrum post se capitaneum et pastorem constituit, fuit praeeminentia virtutum ad regendam Ecclesiam.—Tres autem erant virtutes, in quibus Petrus praecelebat, fides, humilitas et caritas.—Si jam dictis virtutum viis incedit vocatus Petri vicarius, credimus, quod sit verus ejus Vicarius, et praecipius Pontifex Ecclesiae, quam regit. Si vero vadit viis contrariis, tunc est Antichristi nunciis, contrarius Petro, et Domino Jesu Christo. Cap. 10 : Cum Christus dicit Petro, tibi dabo claves regni caelorum, i. e. potestatem ligandi solvendique peccata, in persona Petri dixit toti Ecclesiae militanti, non quod quaelibet persona illius Ecclesiae indifferenter habeat illas claves, sed quod tota illa Ecclesia secundum singulas ejus partes ad hoc habiles habeat illas claves.—Non potest homo solvi a peccato, nec remissionem peccatorum recipere, nisi Deus ipsum solverit, vel ei remissionem dederit.—Unde vesane insanient Presbyteri, qui putant vel dicunt, se ad suum votum solvere vel ligare sine absolutione vel ligatione prima Christi Jesu.—Cavere ergo debet Christi discipulus a fal-lacia Antichristi, dum sic arguitur : quocunque Vicarius Christi ligaverit super terram, erit ligatum et in coelis, sed hunc fidem Laicum, nolentem sibi dare pro absolitione pecuniam, ligat supra terram, ergo ligatur in coelis :—sed hunc incontritum volentem dare pecuniam solvit supra terram, ergo est solitus et in coelo.—Nam quicunque homo rite poenitens solitus fuerit super terram a Christi vicario in terra, etiam solvitur in coelo.—Quilibet sacerdos Christi rite ordinatus habet potestatem sufficientem quaelibet sa-cramenta sibi pertinentia conferendi, et per consequens vere contritum a peccato absolvendi.—Quomodo autem ista potestas fuit par in Apostolis, habetur Dist. 21, in Can. In novo.—Unde stultum foret credere, quod Apostoli nullum donum spirituale a Christo receperant, nisi quod fuerat a Petro ad ipsos simpliciter derivatum. Nam omnibus dixit, Matth. xviii. 18 : quaecunque solveritis super terram, etc.—Cap. 11 : Multi Sacer-dotes emungunt ex illo, Matth. xviii. 18, et ex illo Christi dicto, Matth. xxiii. 2, 3—quod debet eis quilibet subditus in omnibus obedire, et sic ipsi sacerdotes quicquid sonat eis ad libitum in Christi Evangelio, sine correspondente caritativo ministerio, pro sua gloria clamorose sibe adscribunt. Sed quod sonat in labore, in abjectionem mundialem, et in sequelam Jesu Christi, illud asperniantur, tanquam sibi contrarium, vel fingunt se id tenere, et non tenent.—Quia contra Cleri pestiferi crimina sacerdotes Christi praedicarunt, ideo orta est dissensio, ex eo quod Clerus pestem scandali inferens populo, nolens pati praedicationem suaे pesti contraria, contra Evangelium praedicantes et pestem eorum sanare volentes per verbum Domini malitiose volens praedicationem extingue-re consurrexit.—Cap. 12 : Huss next betakes himself to the refutation of a work issued against him by eight doctors of divinity at Prague, at whose head was Stephanus Paletz. They had appealed to the passage of the bull Unam sanctam : Subesse Romano Pontifici, omni humanae creaturae est de necessitate salutis. To which he answers : Je-sus Christus est Romanus Pontifex, sicut est caput universalis ac cuiuslibet particularis Ecclesiae. Accordingly, not even the Apostles had called themselves—Papas sanctissi-mos, capita universalis Ecclesiae, vel universales Pontifices, therefore also Gregory the Great had pleaded so strongly against the latter expression (see vol. i., § 117, note 31). Non sic heu quaerunt moderni Pontifices, qui sine virtutum moribus, in nudo nomine gloriantur, fingentes, quod ratione officii vel dignitatis ecclesiasticae ipsis nomen com-petit sanctitatis. Sed si hoc haberet rationem, tunc Judas debuisse vocari sanctus Apostolus. Cap. 13 : In this and the following chapters he betakes himself to the refu-tation of six statements of his opponents : I. Papa est caput s. Romanae Ecclesiae. II.

Meanwhile the Council of Constance was opened. Huss felt the less scruple about presenting himself before the council, in obedience to the summons of the Emperor Sigismund, because his orthodoxy was attested by all parties in Bohemia, even by the Papal inquisitor there;²¹ and so, provided with a letter of safe-

Collegium Cardinalium est corpus s. Romanae Ecclesiae. III. Papa est manifestus et verus successor Principis Apostolorum Petri. IV. Cardinales sunt manifesti et veri successores collegii aliorum Apostolorum Christi. V. Pro regimine Ecclesiae per universum mundum oportet semper manere hujusmodi manifestos veros successores in tali officio Principis Apostolorum Petri, et aliorum Apostolorum Christi. VI. Non possunt inventari vel dari supra terram alii tales successores, quam Papa existens caput et collegium Cardinalium exists corpus Ecclesiae Romanae. He first argues against them in general: Omnis veritas in religione Christi sequenda, et solum ipsa vel est veritas a sensu corporeo cognita, vel ab intelligentia infallibili inventa, vel per revelationem cognita, vel in divina posita Scriptura. But this is the case with not one of these six points: igitur nullus sex punctorum est veritas in religione Christi sequenda. The arguments against I. and II. amount to this, that Christ alone is the Head of the catholic Church, that popes and cardinals have not always even been praedestinati, and members of the Church. Cap. 15, against point V.: Ecclesia potest aequa bene regi a sauctis sacerdotibus, demptis illis duodecim cardinibus, sicut regebatur per trecentos annos et amplius post ascensionem Christi. Against point VI.: Christus est caput sufficientissimum.—Si non potest Deus dare alios veros successores (Apostolorum), quam sunt Papa et Cardinales; sequitur quod potentia Caesaris,—instituendo Papam et Cardinales, potentiam Dei limitaret.—Nam Caesar Constantinus post annos trecentos Papam instituit. Romanus enim Pontifex fuit consocius aliis Pontificibus usque ad donationem Caesaris, cuius auctoritate coepit capitaliter dominari.—Oportet considerare sectam Cleri duplicem, scil. Clerum Christi et Clerum Antichristi. Clerus Christi quietatur in suo capite Christo ac suis legibus. Clerus vero Antichristi vel totaliter vel preponderanter innititur legibus humanis et legibus Antichristi, et tamen palliatur esse Clerus Christi atque Ecclesiae, ut populus simulatius seducatur.—Clerus Antichristi instat attentius pro traditionibus humanis, et pro privilegiis, quae fastum vel lucrum saeculi sapiunt, defendendis, vultque gloriose, voluptuose et Christo dispariter vivere, postergans penitus imitationem in moribus Domini Jesu Christi. Sed Clerus Christi laborat assidue pro legibus Christi et ejus privilegiis, quibus bonum spirituale acquiritur ostendendum, fugitque fastum et voluptatem saeculi, quaerit conformiter Christo vivere, attendens diligentissime sequelam Domini Jesu Christi. Cap. 17: Nec dubium, quin Papae et Cardinalibus est obediendum, dum docuerint veritatem juxta legem Dei:—si autem Rabbi, i. e. Magistri vel magni, ut dicit Lyra, seu Papae vel Cardinales, praeceperint vel docuerint aliquid praeter veritatem, etiam cum tota Curia Romana, non est fideli parendum, dum cognoverit veritatem. Cap. 18 is a justification of his opposition to the Pope. Cap. 19–21: when prelates are to be obeyed. Cap. 22 and 23 are on the injustice and illegality of the censures pronounced against Huss.

¹⁹ Pelzel's Lebensgesch. des Königs Wenceslaus, Th. 2, s. 618 f.

conduct from the Emperor,²² he made his entrance into Constance on the third of November, 1414.²³ However, the prejudice already existing against him in the council as a realist, and the author of the expulsion of the Germans from Prague, was still farther increased by the tidings which arrived at the same time with him, that James of Misa, a parish priest at Prague, was again claiming the cup in the Lord's Supper for the laity. It was more generally thought that this innovation was to be ascribed to the Hussite heresy, as Huss expressed himself in favor of it.²⁴ But the more zealously the council worked for a reformation, writing, that he was accused by no man, and declared before a notary and witnesses (l. c. p. 3): Ego multis et pluribus vicibus Magistro Joanni Hus conversatus sum, secum comedendo et bibendo, et sermonibus suis saepe interfui, ac collationes plures de diversis sacrae Scripturae materiis faciendo, nunquam aliquem in ipso inveni errorem vel hacresim, sed in omnibus verbis et operibus suis ipsum semper verum et catholicum hominem reperi.

²⁴ Huss, being consulted on the point from Prague, before his imprisonment examined the question by Holy Scripture and the fathers of the Church. See Hist. et Monum., i. p. 52 ss. His conclusion was: videtur quod licet et expedit Laicis fidelibus sumere sanguinem Christi sub specie vini. Nam licet corpus et sanguis Christi sit sub utraque forma sacramentali: tamen Christus non sine ratione, nec gratis instituit utrumque modum sacramentalem suis fidelibus, sed ad magnum profectum. Nam modus manducandi sacramentalis sub forma panis est specialis modus figurandi et excitandi efficaciter ad manductionem spiritualem. Et modus sacramentalis bibendi sub forma vini est specialis modus figurandi et excitandi mentem ex institutione Christi ad gustandum suaviter effusionem Christi sanguinis, quem effudit.—Ex quo patet, quod sicut sacerdos digne sumens sub utraque specie non sine causa sumit: sic et devotus Laicus potest licite sumere, cum eadem sit ratio quoad sumptionem corporis et sanguinis utробique. Here, as elsewhere afterward, he expressed himself on this question with much greater moderation than James of Misa had done. His friends in Bohemia sent a letter to him in his prison at Gottleben, by the hands of the knight, John von Chlum, on the 31st May, 1415 (v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const., iv. p. 291): *Rogamus intime, quod motivam et finaliem intentionem vestram de communione calicis, si videbitur, praesenti chartae inferatis, amicis tempore suo monstrandam. Quia fratum adhuc aliqualis est scissio, et propter illud multi turbantur, ad vos et arbitrium vestrum juxta scripta quaedam se referentes. Huss answered them: De sacramento calicis habetis scriptum, quod scripsi in Constantia, in quo sunt motivae. Et nescio aliud dicere, nisi quod Evangelium et epistola Pauli sonant directe, et tentum fuit in primitiva Ecclesia. Si potest fieri, attentatis, ut saltem permittatur per bullam illis dari, qui ex devotione postulaverint, circumstantiis adhibitis. But after that the council had condemned the Communio sub utraque of the laity, on the 15th June, 1415 (see § 145, note 6), Huss wrote more decisively to a certain Dominus Haulikon on the 21st June, 1415 (Hist. et Monum., i. p. 80): *Noli resistere sacramento calicis Domini, quem Christus per se et per suum Apostolum instituit, quia nulla scriptura est in oppositum, sed sola consuetudo, quae, ut aestimo, tion in the constitution of the Church, in the same proportion did it appear to be penetrated with the necessity of maintaining with the greatest strictness the existing state of things, in all points which any way trenched upon doctrine, that the reforming principle might not be changed into one of destruction. On the 28th November, 1414, Huss was thrown into prison and accused of heresy. Although his cause was espoused with much zeal from Bohemia,²⁵ still he was treated with increasing severity. Without any opportunity of defending himself, an unconditional recantation was required from him;²⁶ and as he refused to accede to ex negligentia inolevit. Jam non debemus consuetudinem sequi, sed Christi exemplum et veritatem. Modo Concilium allegans consuetudinem damnavit communionem calicis quod Laicos, ut errorem, et qui practicaverit, nisi resipiscat, tanquam haereticus puniatur. Ecce malitia Christi institutionem jam ut errorem damnat. Rogo propter Deum, ut non impugnes Magistrum Jacobellam, ne fiat scissio inter fideles, de qua gaudet Diabolus. Etiam, carissime, praepara te ad passionem in mandatione et communione calicis, et sta fortiter in veritate Christi, timore illicito postposito, etc.

²⁵ Two letters from Bohemian barons to the Emperor, of January, 1415, may be seen in Hist. et Monum., i. p. 96; v. d. Hardt, Conc. Const., iv. p. 32; a third is given by Mai, Hist. et Mon., i. p. 97. There are three letters of the Bohemians to the council, Hist. et Mon., i. p. 9 ss.; v. d. Hardt, iv. p. 188, 212, 288. The Bohemians appealed to the safe-conduct, and complained that Bohemia was represented as an entirely heretical country, especially (Hist. et Mon., i. p. 10; v. d. Hardt, iv. p. 189) of the falsehoods which were current at Constance, quoniam sacramentum pretiosissimi sanguinis Domini per Bohemiam jam in vasculis non consecratis (in v. d. Hardt. in flasconibus) deportarent, quodque sutores jam confessiones audirent, et sacrosanctum corpus Dominicum aliis ministrarent. But the Episc. Luthomislensis asserted, in his reply before the council, that, according to credible information which he had received, all this was true in the main (Hist. et Mon., i. p. 10; v. d. Hardt, iv. p. 210).

²⁶ A Bohemian clergyman, named Michael de Caussis, first handed in to the Pope a series of articles of accusation against Huss (see Hist. et Mon., i. p. 7). Afterward John Gerson drew from the book De Ecclesia nineteen articles, which he pronounced—haeretic^r et ut tales judicialiter condemnandi (l. c. p. 29 s.). Huss made his first appearance before the synod on the 5th June, 1415, but he could not make himself heard in the general outcry (v. d. Hardt, iv. 306 ss.). On the seventh of June he was examined before the council, in the presence of the Emperor, on several of the articles brought against him by Michael de Caussis (l. c. p. 308 ss.; Hist. et Mon., i. p. 15 ss.). First, he was to be convicted of having taught, quod post consecrationem et pronunciationem verborum in coena Domini manet panis materialis, although he denied this in the most solemn manner. To another charge, quod pertinaciter articulos erroneos Wicleff docuisset in Bohemia et defendisset, he replied, that he certainly did not hold to be heretical all the articles of Wycliffe which were condemned by the Roman synod; for instance, not this, quod Sylvester Papa et Constantinus erraverint, Ecclesiae illas donationes conferendo; quod Papa vel Sacerdos existens in peccato mortali neque consecret neque baptizet (which last article he had, however, limited as follows, quod indigne consecret et baptizet); quod decimae sunt purae eleemosynae. Then he was asked, habueritne absolutionem a Pontifice Romano, and, liceretne ad Christum provocare, and whether he had said, se optare, ut anima sua in eodem loco, ubi anima Wicleff, esset: He denied the first question; his affirmation of the latter two caused much laughter in the council. A new charge was, that he had advised the people, ut iis, qui adversarentur suae doctrinae, gladio resisteret exemplo Mosis. Huss declared, se monuisse populum, cum

this, on the 6th of July, 1415, he suffered death by fire.²⁷ In order to satisfy the Emperor with regard to the breach of his safe-conduct, the council issued the shameless decree that no faith was to be kept with a heretic.²⁸

praedicaret dictum Apostoli de galea salutis et gladio, ut illo se accingerent omnes, et defenderent evangelicam veritatem; seque diserte dixisse propter calumnias, non gladio materiali, sed eo, qui est verbum Dei. Moreover, it was alleged against him, quod ex doctrina Hus multa scandala exorta sunt. Primum seminavit discordias inter ecclesiasticum et politicum statum, unde persecutio Cleri et Episcoporum, eorumque spoliatio consecuta est. Deinde quod scholam quoque Pragensem per discordias dissolvit. Huss denied both charges. He was then called to account for the expression, nisi sua sponte Constantiam venire voluisse, neque Bohemiae Rex neque Imperator se cogere ad id potuissent, which Huss explained by the power of the nobles, his adherents. Afterward, on the 8th of June, thirty-nine articles drawn from his works were laid before him, on which he was to explain himself (v. d. Hardt, iv. p. 314; Hist. et Mon., i. p. 19 ss.). There were twenty-six articles from his work De Ecclesia, seven from his Liber contra Stephanum Paletz, six from the Lib. contra Stanislau de Snoima. They mostly referred to the doctrine that none but the predestinate belong to the Church, and so that even a Pope might not be a member of the Church; others related to the treatment of heretics, the power of the clergy, the virtue of excommunication, and the possibility that the Church might be governed even without a Pope. Many false deductions were fathered upon him, these he set aside by referring to his own words; of his statements, he revoked not one. He was then in vain required to recant by the council, and by the Emperor (v. d. Hardt, iv. p. 325). He even refused a milder form of recantation proposed to him by the cardinal Bishop of Ostia (l. c. p. 329). Unshaken constancy is displayed in his letters written at this time, in which he gives an account of his trial. Hist. et Mon., i. p. 84 ss.

²⁸ At first Sigismund wished to keep his safe-conduct unbroken, and to set Huss at liberty (v. d. Hardt, iv. p. 26), but afterward he allowed himself to be persuaded that it was necessary to the freedom of the council to proceed against a heretic without hin-

Jerome of Prague had, indeed, left Constance on account of the impending danger, but he was arrested at Hirschau in the Upper Palatinate, and brought back to Constance. Shaken by the severity of his imprisonment, he consented to recant in September, 1415; but as the accusations against him were nevertheless continued, he took courage, revoked his recantation, and was burned to death on the 30th of May, 1416.²⁹

HISTORY OF THE HUSSITES TILL THE RATIFICATION OF THE COMPACT OF IGLAU (1436).

James of Misa,¹ commonly called Jacobellus, priest of the

derance (l. c. p. 32). Ferdinand, king of Aragon, also impressed upon the Emperor that he ought not to rescue a heretic from the punishment of death, because of his safe-conduct, quoniam non est frangere fidem in eo, qui Deo fidem frangit (see the letter, dd. 18. Apr., 1415, in Schelhorn's Ergötzlichkeiten aus der Kirchenhistoric u. Literatur, Bd. 1, s. 217 ff.). The decree of the council, dd. Sess. Gen. XIX., d. 23. Sept., 1415, is in v. d. Hardt, iv. p. 521): Praesens sancta Synodus ex quovis salvo conductu, per Imperatorem, Reges et alias saeculi Principes haereticis, vel de haeresi diffamatis, putantes eosdem sic a suis erroribus revocare, quoconque vinculo se astrinxerint, concesso, nullum fidei catholicae, vel jurisdictionis ecclesiasticae praejudicium generari, vel impedimentum praestari posse seu debere, declarat, quominus salvo dicto conductu non obstante liceat judicii competenti ecclesiastico de hujusmodi personarum erroribus inquirere, et alias contra eas debite procedere, easdemque punire, quantum justitia suadebit, si suos pertinaciter recusaverint revocare errores, etiamsi de salvo conductu confisi ad locum venerint judicii, alias non venturi. Besides this there was the special decree, De salvo conductu Hussonis, which v. d. Hardt, l. c., is the first to make known: Quia nonnulli nimis intelligentes, aut sinistrai intentionis, vel forsitan solentes plus sapere, quam oportet, nedum Regiae Majestati, sed etiam sacro, ut fertur, Concilio linguis maledictis detrahunt, publice et occulte dicentes vel innuentes, quod salvus conductus, per invictissimum Principem Dominum Sigismundum Romanorum et Hungariae, etc., Regem quondam Johanni Huss haeresiarchae damnatae memoriae datus, fuit contra justitiam aut honestatem indebitate violatus: cum tamen dictus Johannes Huss fidem orthodoxam pertinaciter impugnans, se ab omni conductu et privilegio reddiderit alienum, nec aliqua sibi fides aut promissio de jure naturali, divino vel humano fuerit in praejudicium catholicae fidei observanda: idcirco dicta sancta Synodus praesentium tenore declarat, dictum invictissimum Principem circa praedictum quondam Johannem Huss non obstante memorato salvo conductu ex juris debito fecisse quod licuit, et quod decnit Regiam Majestatem: statuens et ordinans omnibus et singulis Christifidelibus,—quod nullus deinceps sacro Concilio aut Regiae Majestati de gestis circa praedictum quondam Johannem Huss detrahatur, sive quomodolibet obloquatur. Qui vero contrarium fecerit, tanquam fautor haereticæ pravitatis et reus criminis laesæ Majestatis irremissibiliter puniatur.

church of St. Michael at Prague, at the instigation of Peter of Dresden,² began, toward the end of the year 1414, to administer the cup in the Lord's Supper to the laity, as necessary to salvation. In so doing he met with great favor, and from the time that Huss had declared his opinion at Constance, not indeed of the unconditional necessity, but still of the fitness of this reform,³ he found Huss's numerous adherents so decidedly on his side, that henceforth the claim for the cup in the Lord's Supper was one of the chief peculiarities of the Hussites.⁴ In the controversy which

soon arose upon this subject, Jacobellus evidently maintained the ascendancy.⁵ The Council of Constance, indeed, on the 15th

tanto amplius invalescebat et augmentabatur in populo fideli ac devoto sexus utriusque ad tantum, quod infra duos annos non solum in duabus aut tribus Ecclesiis Presbyteri Magistro Johanni Hus [adhaerentes], pro tunc Wiglelistae per partem sibi adversam, quae Machometica appellabatur, nuncupati, libertatem praedicandi, et sic ut praemittitur, populum communicandi habebant; sed fere omnibus parochialibus in Praga Ecclesiis, imo et Monasteriis certis, Archiepiscopo et Praelatis ipsos excommunicantibus, et interdictum per totum Pragam ponentibus, occupatis populum magnum ad se attraxerunt. Ita quod non solum in Praga, sed etiam regni Boemiae, et Marchionatus Moraviae civitatibus, castris, oppidis et villis populus communis cetervatim cum magna devotione ac reverentia ad sacratissimam utriusque speciei communionem frequentabat. P. 130: Non solum usum rationis habentes, sed et parvuli seu infantes post baptismum, propter baptismi ipsius confirmationem, temporis successu sacramento divinissimae Eucharistiae sub utraque specie communicabantur, Mag. Jacobello—hanc cum sibi aliquibus adhaerentibus Magistris et sacerdotibus promulgante et practis, re inchoante communionem. Propter quam quidem infantium communionem schisma grave inter Magistros et sacerdotes, ^{*}veritati Dei et Mag. Johanni Hus adhaerentes, in Praga et in regno Boemiae exortum. Nam quidam ex eis infantium communionem fore erroneam et ad baptismi confirmationem non necessariam asserebant: alii e contrario propter dictum b. Dionysii ac aliorum primitiae Ecclesiae doctorum hanc sententiam et communionem ipsam catholicam et salutiferam adstruebant.—Nihilominus praefata sacri corporis et sanguinis Domini sub utraque specie—communio tam ad adultos quam ad parvulos et infantes, adversariis ipsius ac acnulis eam ratione et modis diversis suffocare et annullare satagentibus, non tamen prevalentibus, de die in diem magis ac magis crescebat et augmentabatur et invalescebat, impugnantibus per temporum successus notabiliter divina virtute coram ipsa ruentibus, et succumbentibus veritati, et damnna inexplicabilia rerum et corporum luentibus.

⁵ Jacobellus first wrote the Demonstratio per Testimonia Scripturae, Patrum atque Doctorum, communicationem calicis in plebe Christiana esse necessariam (in v. d. Hardt, 'Cone. Const., iii. p. 805). On the other side, Mauritus de Praga (professor of divinity in Prague, then at Constance), Responsio ad Demonstrationem, etc. (l. c. p. 826.) Besides, Anonymi theologi, in Conc. Const. praesentis, Epist. Elenchica ad Jac. de Misa contra communionem plebis sub utraque specie (l. c. p. 338). Andreae Brodae (professor of divinity at Prague), Dist. Acad. contra Communicationem plebis sub utraque specie (l. c. p. 392). Against this work Jacobellus wrote Vindiciae contra Andr. Brodam pro communicatione plebis sub utraque specie (l. c. p. 416). Jacobellus here teaches, p. 428: fideles de communitate Christianorum,—dum commodose, tempore et loco opportunis possunt habere, hoc divinissimum sacramentum utriusque speciei debent suscipere ad salutem.—Dum vero—non possunt habere a sacerdotibus,—et aliunde essent boni et justi,—non eo ipso, quod non possunt, nec docentur sumere hoc divinissimum sacramentum utriusque speciei, sunt de damnandis. The point of view from which his opponents in part started is clear from Anonymi theologi Tract. contra Jac. de Misa (l. c. p. 658), where we find, p. 693: Primitiva Ecclesia est ritus, consuetudo, observatio Ecclesiae fidelium circa fidem tempore Apostolorum, et aliorum LXXII. discipulorum, et sequacium ipsorum usque ad Sylvestrum Papam. Sed Ecclesia moderna dicitur ritus, consuetudo et observatio Ecclesiae circa fidem, incipiens a Silvestro Papa usque ad hodiernum diem: capiendo autem modernum magis propinque, tunc est quod duravit per ducentos. Per centum autem annos dicitur Ecclesia moderna, saltim referendo tale tempus ad observationem fidelium circa fidem. Pro quo sciendum, quod omnia fiebant simpliciori modo et grossiori in primitiva Ecclesia, quam fiunt in moderna Ecclesia. Quia baptismus fiebat simplici aqua, nunc autem fit in benedicta. Sic etiam divina officia et multa alia fiebant simpliciori modo: sed in moderna Ecclesia omnia digniori modo fiunt. Sic etiam in primitiva communicatio apud Corinthios fiebat sub duplice specie: in moderna omnia sunt reducta ad meliorem formam, ad unam speciem. Quia

June, 1415, sanctioned the Church's usage, and pronounced its opponents heretics.⁶ But this decree, the execution of Huss which followed close upon it on the 6th July, and the contempt which the council showed for Bohemia as infested with heresy, roused the most violent ferment in this country. Jacobellus defended the Communio sub utraque against the decree of the council,⁷ Huss was honored as a martyr,⁸ a meeting of Bohemian and Moravian nobles heaped the bitterest reproaches upon the council in a letter,⁹ and joined in a league of six years for the protection of multa Apostoli et alii sequaces omiserunt, quae moderna Ecclesia implevit: quia dicitur in Actis Apostolorum: crescentia Ecclesia crescit et Spiritus Sancti operatio. Et in Decretalibus c. Cum Marthae (Decr. Greg., iii. 41, 6), dicitur: Multa servat Ecclesia, quae per Apostolos fuerunt omissa, etc.

¹⁶ He had caused a letter to be written to his brother Sigismund, as is shown by the answer he gave to the ambassadors of Wenceslaus (in Pelzel, Th. 2, Urkundenbuch, s. 169 f.), qualiter nesciat in regno suo aliquos erroneous homines. To the adherents of the and undecided to be able to maintain the peace of the state between the two parties. Accordingly, when the Hussites were assailed by the zealous Catholics, especially by the clergy, bands of them, under the guidance of two noblemen, Nicolas of Hussinecz and John Ziska, gathered together in self-defense. Among the thousands who, upon Mount Tabor, at first only celebrated the Lord's Supper,¹⁷ but afterward founded the City of Tabor, the chalice on the 25th February, 1419, he granted three churches in Prague for their worship, on condition that they created no disturbance. Pelzel, Th. 2, s. 680; Urkundenbuch, s. 171.

¹⁷ Brzezyna mentions this in two passages, Ludewig Reliq., vi. p. 142, and, more in detail, p. 186. In the last passage we find: Factum est anno Dom. 1419, quod Presbyteri cum eorum vicariis prope castrum Bechinense durius sic (sub utraque specie) communicantibus insultabant, eosdem armata manu de Ecclesiis eorum expellentes, tanquam erroneos et haereticos. Qua de re Presbyteri cum sibi juncto populo montem magnum magna planicie exornatum ascendunt, et in ejus summitate tentorium de lineis pannis ad modum capellae expandunt. In quo agentes divina, populum ibidem confluentem, sine ullius communionis impedimento, venerabilis Eucharistiae sacramento devotissime reficiunt. Qua peracta et depositis lineis pannis ad propria redeunt, et monti nomen Tabor imponunt (Tabor is Bohemian for tent: but, probably, there was united with this signification a reference to the Mount of the Transfiguration), ad quem venientes Taboritae sunt nuncupati. Haec cum ad aures adjacentium civitatum, oppidorum et villarum devenirent, fratres Presbyteri circumcirent vicini, conducta certae festivitatis die, populum eis junctum cum venerabili corporis Christi sacramento ad Tabor sonoris vocibus deducunt pro veritatis ibidem, ut dicebant, confirmatione, ac fratrum sororumque ibidem existentium confirmatione ac consolatione. Quibus taliter venientibus occurrint de Tabor cum venerabili altaris sacramento fratres ac sorores pro alacri venientium susceptione. Venientes illi itaque in montem totam diem non in lasciviis, sed in his quae salutem animarum concernunt expendebant. Presbyteri nempe eorum terno functi sunt ibidem officio: doctiores namque ac eloquentiores a summo mane populo per normas diviso, seorsum viris, ac seorsum mulieribus et pueris verbum Dei, et praesertim ea, quae superbiam, avaritiam fastumque Cleri concernebant, sine omni formidine populo alternatim praedicabant, aliis pro tunc continue ad auricularem confessionem considentibus: et tertii peractis divinis populum a diescente usque ad meridiem utraque specie, corporis scilicet et sanguinis Domini Christi, communicabant. Ita quod in die Mariae Magdalena (the 22d July) XLII. millia cum aliquot et XX., virorum, mulierum et parvolorum taliter communicantium fuerunt a Presbyteris computati. Quibus omnibus taliter, ut praemittitur, expeditis vadunt pro corporis refectione ad loca ibidem in monte multipliciter praeparata, et simul in caritate fraterna convivantes, non ad libidinem aut ebrietatem, non ad levitatem et dissolutionem, sed ad majorem et fortiorum Dei servitutem. Ibi omnes sese fratres et sorores appellantes, ditior cum paupere victualia, quae erant praeparata, dividebant. Ibi nihil, quo ineibriari posset, permissum fuerat propinari. Ibi etiam nulla chorea, nullus taxillorum et globorum, aut alterius levitatis ludus, non dico seniorum, sed et parvolorum, habebat indulgentiae locum. Ibi denique nullae contentiones, nulla furta, nullae sonantum fistulae, aut cythararum melodiae, prout hactenus in Ecclesiarum dedicationibus fieri solebat, potuit reperiri: sed omnium, more Apostolorum, fuit unum cor et una voluntas, nihil aliud tractantes, nisi quae forent de animarum salute ac de Cleri ad pristinum, primitivae scil. Ecclesiae, statum reductione. Peracta itaque, ut dictum est, modica corporis refectione, surgunt cum populo Presbyteri ad agendum Deo gratiarum actiones, cum venerabili Eucharistia Tabor montem processionabiliter circumeunt, virginibus sacramentum praecedentibus, et viris ac mulieribus in suis turmis sequentibus, vociferantes et psallentes in canticis, prout

most violent fanaticism was enkindled with the sense of their power. Under the guidance of Ziska a band of Taborites marched upon Prague, and avenged the injuries which had there befallen their chalice, in a sanguinary manner, upon the council of the New-city (30th July, 1419).¹⁸ When Wenceslaus soon after died (16th August), as the people would not submit to the hated Sigismund, complete anarchy ensued, which was still further increased by the important difference in doctrine which now arose between the Hussites of Prague and the Taborites.

The Hussites of Prague (Calixtines, Utraquists) did not advance beyond Huss and Jacobellus in their doctrine, which they drew up in four articles, 1421.¹⁹ On the other hand, ever since videbatur expedire. Hac processione finita, vale sibi mutuo facientes cum suis Presbyteris—veniunt unde exiverunt. Factum est autem, cum supra dicta in longiores partes vulgarentur, coepit numerus venientium de die in diem notabiliter augmentari. Nam non solum jam de Pyska, etc.—, sed de Praga, etc.—, necnon de multis locis Moraviae pedestres et equestres in Tabor confluebant.—Quapropter—Rex Wenceslaus cum quibusdam inimicis veritatis cooperunt graviter ferre, timentes ne tanta populi multitudo Regem et Archiepiscopum, prout famabatur, pro defensa legis Dei eligerent, et eorum bona velut adversariorum per potentiam, cui resistere non valerent, invaderent ac depopularent (compare p. 143: Quamobrem Rex Boemiae Venceslaus multum est turbatus, se de regali solio dejici timens et expavescens, Nicolaumque de Hus in locum sui substitui suspicando). Quidam ea de causa ex nobilibus districtius subditis suis sub poena colli et bonorum perditione praecipiunt, ne per amplius ad montem Tabor audeant concurrere. Sed hujusmodi mandatum rustici cum suis mulieribus modicum aut nihil advertentes, potius dimissis omnibus, quae possegerant, ad Tabor montem in certis festivitatibus venire nullatenus negligebant, allecti et attracti, prout ferrum attrahit magnes.

rumcunque doctorum a fidelibus sunt tenenda,—nisi quae in canone Bibliae explicite continentur, quia omnes libri talium sunt astutiae Antichristi et abjiciendi, destruendi aut comburendi. II. Omnis homo in eo, quod studet in artibus liberalibus, aut gradus in eisdem accipit, est vanus et gentilis, et peccat contra Evangelium, D. N. J. C. III. Nulla decreta ss. Patrum aut seniorum instituta, nullus aliquis ritus, aut traditio humana invenia sunt tenenda: sed omnia talia sunt abolenda et destruenda, velut Anti-christi traditiones, cum Christus et ejus Apostoli ea fieri nullibi in novo Testamento expresserunt. IV. Ex praedictis concludebant sequentia, quod nullum chrisma, aut sacrum oleum, aut aqua baptismalis sunt consecranda vel sanctificanda. Similiter calix nullus, corporale, ornatus et de aliis rebus in Ecclesia fieri consuetis sunt exorcissanda, benedicenda aut sanctificanda. Similiter nullae horae canonicae sunt dicendae. Nec ritus Missae in ornatu et signis ac ordine dudum ab Ecclesia constituto, nec cantus ecclesiasticus sunt tenendi, sed potius tanquam humanae traditiones et legis Dei impeditiva abjecienda et destruenda. V. Infantes non debent cum exorcismis et solitis in baptimate compatribus in aqua ad hoc benedicta et consecrata baptisari. Sed possunt in quacunque unda recenti, et ubi libuerit, baptisari. VI. Omnes libri missales aut cantuales, similiter et viatici et libri hymnorum, et omnis ornatus seu vestes missales, aut alia spiritualia pro peragendis divinis indumenta, monstrantiae et calices, aut cinguli argentei vel aurei, et omnis vestis polymita, et conspersa, aut quovis modo depicta: haec omnia sunt destruenda vel comburenda, magisque licet rusticis in dictis sacris vestibus incedere, et cappas et manicas ex eis facere, quam Presbyteris in eis peragere divina. VII. Confessiones auriculares non sunt curandae aut observandae, nec ad eas peccatores etiam criminales obligantur, sed soli Deo sufficit mente tenuis confiteri. VIII. Jejunia quadragesimalia, quatuor temporum, in vigiliis, caeteraque humanitus aut consuetudine introducta non sunt a fidelibus observanda, sed pro velle sui beneplaciti unusquisque his diebus comedat, quicquid habet, aut quod sibi apparabit. IX. Dominico die excepto nulla alia festivitas est ex aliquo debito celebranda a fidelibus. X. Omnis Presbyter cum platta et in ornatu vel superpellicio divina peragens, aut Missam ritu consueto celebrans, est sicut illa meretrix, de qua scribitur in Apocalypsi, a fidelibus contemnenda. Sed Missa est ad instar Christi et Apostolorum cum barbis et sine platta in communi ueste et sine altari, in quoconque loco contigerit, celebranda. Et sacramentum Eucharistiae alta voce propter adstantes est conficiendum, et ipsum non est elevandum, nec in crastinum est conservandum. XI. Sacerdotes evangelici domos eis ratione eleemosynae pro perpetuo a Laicis concessas aut deputatas non possunt licite inhabitare, nec possunt habere bona temporalia, jure civili ab eisdem subtracto penitus et ablato, nec a taliter habentibus accipienda sunt sacramenta, quamvis jus sic habendi eis esse illicitum notorie recognoscant. XII. Post mortem corporalem animarum fidelium non est credendus locus purgationis aut tenendus, stultumque et inane est pro fidelibus defunctis exorare, aut alia pietatis opera exercere. XIII. Invocationes aut postulationes nostrae, tam mentales, quam vocales, ad sanctos, qui sunt in caelesti patria, pro aliquibus suffragiis sapient haeresin aut idolatriam. XIV. Nulla imago nec aliqua similitudo eorum, quae sunt in coelo et terra, sub poena idolatriae est habenda, sed quaelibet talis est tanquam idolum destruenda et comburenda. Quia scriptum est Exodi xx.: non facies tibi sculptile nec omnem similitudinem. In the larger explanations Brzezyna adds, that they supported their rejection of all usages not contained in the Bible upon Apoc. xxii. 18: si quis apposuerit ad haec, apponet Deus super illum plagas scriptas in libro isto: and upon the words of Christ against the Scribes and Pharisees, Matth. xv. 6: irritum fecistis mandatum Dei propter traditiones vestras. After the party of Prague had published their four articles (see note 19), the Taboritarum et omnis advenarum communitas, on the 5th August, 1421, sent them twelve articles as the groundwork of a further union with the adherents of Prague, Brzezyna, p. 185: II. Quod articuli, ad quos Capitanei, consules et communitas consenserunt (those given above), quia jam dudum sunt per praedicatorum proclamati, teneantur et observentur sub poenis promulgatis. III. Quod manifesti peccatores—non tolerentur absque poena. IV. Quod potationes tabernales—non fiant. V.

Quod vestes superbæ non portent. VI. Quod in artificiis et foro provideatur, ne fiant illusiones, spolia, usuræ, juramenta, inutilitates et vanitates, doli, etc. VII. Quod jura paganica et teutonica, quæ non concordant cum lege Dei, tollantur, et jure divino ut regatur, judicetur, et totum disponatur. VIII. Quod sacerdotes ex parte servent se secundum ordinem divinum et imitationem prophetamic et apostolicam. IX. Ut magistri subjiciantur regulariter juri divino, sicut et alii fideles Christiani, et suas proscriptiones ut ad voluntatem Dei regulent et in praetorio reponant, ut examinentur juxta legem Dei. X. Ut omnes census sacerdotum ad bonum commune convertant, et usurarios destruant. XI. Ut adversarios veritatis Dei ex se ejicient, et profugos et bannitos ne suscipiant. XII. Ut Monasteria haeretica destruant et corrumpant, Ecclesiæ non necessarias, et altaria, imagines patenter et occulte servatas, ornatus superbos, et calices aureos et argenteos, et omnem antichristianam plantationem idololatricam, et simoniacam pravitatem, quæ ex Deo, patre coelesti, non est.

among the Taborites, or Picards, as their enemies usually called them, only a few could at this time be won over to the doctrine that bread and wine in the Lord's Supper were mere signs, and these were stigmatized by the rest with the heretical name of Picards, and banished from Tabor. Several of them also, wandering from place to place, fell into the error of the sect of the Free Spirit, and were called Adamites, but these were soon exterminated by Ziska (1421).²⁴ However, their name was transferred, by the hatred of their adversaries, to the Taborites in general.

Immediately after the death of Wenceslaus the Taborites began to burn churches and monasteries, and to maltreat priests and monks.²⁵ Sigismund could entertain no hopes of winning them; but by certain concessions he might easily have induced the Calixtines to acknowledge him as King. But as he threatened all Hussites, by causing a crusade to be preached at once by a Papal legate against the heretical Bohemians,²⁶ they all united against him: not only did they defend themselves with success against three armies of crusaders, but they even invaded the adjacent German territory.²⁷ On these occasions the Taborites distinguished themselves by warlike courage; at first under Ziska's command,²⁸ after his death, in 1424, divided into two bodies, one of which had the great Procopius for its leader, the other, under the name of the Orphans, elected a council of war, in which the younger Procopius occupied the first place.

After the unsuccessful issue of the third crusade (1431), the enemies of the Hussites acknowledged that nothing could be effected against them by force; and the Council of Basle, persuaded by Julius Cesarini, the same legate who had accompanied the last crusade, immediately undertook negotiations with the Hussites.²⁹ With the Hussite ambassadors, indeed, who after some delay appeared at Basle in January, 1433, there was only an unsuccessful disputation before the council.³⁰ However, an embassy from the council, which was sent after them, concluded com-

pactata with the Calixtines at Prague on the 30th November, 1433, by which the four articles of Prague, though subject to certain very important limitations, were conceded to them.³¹ The Taborites, who were in the highest degree dissatisfied with this arrangement, were entirely defeated by the Calixtines at Böh-

mischbrod on the 30th May, 1434,³² and so weakened that they were compelled to keep themselves quiet. The Calixtines, who were now predominant, after the compactata had been solemnly ratified at Iglaeu, acknowledged Sigismund as their King, on the guarantee of certain conditions (1436).³³

³³ The Bohemians were fully aware that the compactata required still further guarantees; accordingly, at a meeting in Brünn, 1435, they demanded of the Emperor (see Responsio Concilii Bas. facta Ambasioribus Imp., in Mansi xxix. p. 413), quod sua Serenitas personaliter cum eis in perceptione communionis sub utraque specie conveniret, ac Cappellanos haberet, qui sic populo ministrarent; et quod nullus esset in consilio ejusdem et negotiis dicti regni, qui sic non communicaret; et quod religiosi monachi et moniales sine consensu Archiepiscopi et Domini communis loci non admittantur; et quod ipsi habeant sibi eligere Archiepiscopum; requisitions with which the council was naturally much dissatisfied. However, Sigismund promised the Bohemians in a patent, dd. Albae Regali, 6. Jan., 1436 (in Leibnitii Mantissa, ii. p. 141): 1. Beneficia non conferantur per extraneos in Regno Bohemiae ac Marchionatu. 2. Personae etiam saeculares et spirituales extra Regnum vel Marchionatum nec citabuntur nec judicabuntur. 3. Communicantes sub una specie in saepe tactis Regno et Marchionatu, ne confusa sequatur permixtio, contra proprias illorum voluntates et libertates non sustinebunt, sed duntaxat in locis, in quibus communio duplicitis speciei temporibus retroactis non servabatur, sustinebuntur. 4. Et ut materia occasioque litium auferatur, loca omnia et singula Ecclesiarum—signabuntur, in quibus—communio duplicitis speciei in praxi servabatur, ut in futurum perpetuo in eisdem servaretur. 5. Sed et hoc volumus ut per Dominos Bohemos,—Pragam et civitates alias una cum Clero, Archiepiscopus Pragensis una cum aliis Episcopis titularibus eligantur, qui alias dicuntur Suffraganei. Qui quidem electi per nostram dispositionem debitam—confirmabuntur, et in Episcopos consecrabuntur absque quavis pro confirmatione, Pallii exhibitione, aut etiam Notariis persolutione. 6. Scholares Dioecesis Pragensis utrique, tam sub una quam sub utraque communicantes specie, habilitate et idoneitate ipsorum praesupposita, ad sacros ordines promoveantur et ordinentur. He promises to observe this engagement—in verbo Caesareo, and at the same time to use all means with the Pope and council, ut praefati articuli suum effectum realiter sortiantur. Aeneas Sylvius, Hist. Bohem., c. 52, speaks of still further concessions made by the Emperor: Caeterum inter Bohemos et Imperatorem aliae pacationes (besides the compactata of Prague) intervenere, quibus Ecclesiarum praedia occupatoribus jure pignorum relicta sunt, donec certa pecunia reluerentur. Religiosis utriusque sexus, quibus adempta Monasteria essent, exilibus quoque spes redditus interdicta; Rokyzanae Pragensis Ecclesiae praesulatus promissus, de disponendo Ecclesiarum Bohemicarum regimine summo Pontifici facultas ablata. An anonymous contemporary writer, in Cochlæus, lib. viii. p. 300, also mentions the concession here spoken of with regard to the spoliation of Church property, from which also it appears that the Emperor had written other letters about these concessions. The council and its legates took no notice of them. The legates, at the request of the Bohemians, added several articles of explanation to the compactata, in order to remove all ambiguity from them; see Leibnitii Mantissa, ii. p. 146, 148, and at length, dd. Iglaiae, d. 5. July, 1436, an Executoria super Compactatis (Cochlæus, p. 289; Leibnit., ii. p. 150). At the same time and place the Bohemian envoys accepted the compactata, and solemnly gave in their obedience to the council; see the triumphant account of the legates to the council on the same day in Mansi xxix. p. 612. Sigismund went to Prague in August. With reference to the concession of the cup to the laity the Council of Basle, Sess. XXX. d. x. Cal. Jan. 1437, composed a decree (in Mansi xxix. p. 158) to the effect, quod fideles Laici

HISTORY OF THE HUSSITES TO THE END OF THIS PERIOD.

Since both of the conflicting parties had concluded this compact, in the hope of thus preparing the way for the sole supremacy of their own doctrine and usages, no real peace could be established thereby. While the Calixtines were vainly endeavoring at the council to carry through fresh demands,¹ Sigismund forgot his concessions, restored as far as possible the ancient ecclesiastical institutions, and obliged the chief of the Calixtines, John Rokyczana, whom he had already confirmed as Archbishop of Prague,² to take measures for his own safety.³ Thus upon Sigismund's sive Clerici communicantes, et non conficientes, non adstringuntur ex pracepto Domini ad suscipiendum sub utraque specie—sacrum Eucharistiae Sacramentum. Sed Ecclesia—ordinare habet, quomodo ipsis non confidentibus ministretur, prout pro reverentia ipsius Sacramenti et salute fidelium viderit expedire.—Laudabilis quoque consuetudo communicandi laicum populum sub una specie—pro lege habenda est, nec licitum est eam reprobare, aut sine auctoritate Ecclesiae ipsam immutare.

¹ Cochlaei Hist. Hussitarum, lib. viii. p. 310. The Bohemian envoys desired, I. Quatenus pro tollendis litibus, jurgiis et dissensionibus in populo nostro ex diversitate communionis indubitanter—sequentibus—dignemini—Regno nostro—dare—uniformem—sub utraque specie sacrae Eucharistiae communionem. In support of this they appealed to the passage at the end of the compactata: et omnia alia fient, quae pro observatione dictae pacis et unitatis necessaria fuerint et opportuna. II. Quatenus—providere dignatur sacrum Concilium Bohemis de bono et legitimo pastore Archiepiscopo et aliis Episcopis. The synod pronounced this demand equitable, but distinctly refused the proposal that Rokyczana should be made Archbishop: de quo non est rationabile, ut ad illam dignitatem promoveatur, cum ad impediendum, perturbandum et disrumpendum pacem et unitatem post firmata compactata fuerit multipliciter machinatus, etc. Likewise, the, III., demand of libertas communicandi parvulos sacra Eucharistia, was refused, and also, IV., the prayer of the Bohemians, permitti suis, ad minus Evangelia, Epistolas et Symbolum in vulgari lingua in Missis et Ecclesiis coram populo ad excitandam devotionem libertari, legi et decantari, because this was—contra compactata, and against the promise of the Bohemians, se conformare ritibus Ecclesiae. V. On the other hand, the petition for a—reformatio et suae Universitatis Pragensis et totius Ecclesiae in capite et in membris—was answered with promises of support.

death (December, 1437) the parties were again in a violent ferment. The Emperor Albert was elected by the Catholics, and resisted by the Calixtines. After his death, in October, 1439, at length they agreed to allow the kingdom to be ruled by two governors, one Catholic and one Calixtine, until his son Ladislaus was of age (1441). After George Podiebrad had become a Calixtine, in 1444, and in 1450 the sole governor, the Calixtines obtained a decided ascendancy. Nevertheless their efforts to restore the peace of the Church remained without success, since they strove to extend the compactata, which on the Catholic side were no longer held valid.⁴ The Calixtines had already in view a union with the Greek Church,⁵ but the fall of Constantinople brought the negotiations to a close. After the short reign of the young and zealous Catholic Ladislaus (1453–1457),⁶ George of Podiebrad was elected King. In order to preserve peace without and quiet within, he allowed himself to be crowned by Catholic bishops, and promised obedience to the Church and Pope.⁷ How-

Nova jam facies urbis, novus populus, verus rediisse religionis cultus apparebat. Quibus ex rebus liquet, Imperatorem, quae foedera cum haereticis percussit, necessitate magis admisisse, quam voluntate; voluisse illum paternam haereditatem quoquo modo intrare, sensimque regni possessione accepta more majorum, subter veram Christi religionem provinciam reducere.—Rochezanam hortari Romanae Ecclesiae se subjiceret; sic posse pontificatum sibi committi; superbienti, et aliena de fide sapienti ascensum desperandum esse, qui vel consecratus Episcopus ejici deberet. Non latuit Rochezanam Sigismundi sermo: qui ex amicis commonitus clam aufugit.

⁴ The party of Prague drew up new articles on the 11th June, 1441 (Cochlaeus, lib. ix. p. 335): I. Ut compactata cum Ecclesia sancta ab omnibus efficaciter teneantur; III. Ut nullus audeat praedicare, quod tantum sumitur sub una specie, quantum sub utraque, cum hoc sit contra communicantes sub utraque specie; IV. Ut nullus audeat porrigerre sub una specie publice vel occulte. Thereupon a great synod was assembled at Kuttenberg, on the 4th October, 1441. Obedience was promised to Rokyczana as Archbishop designate, and a confession drawn up in twenty-two articles; see Theobald, Th. 2, cap. 11, s. 86. In these, seven sacraments and the doctrine of transubstantiation were recognized. On the other hand, Art. XVI. runs, that the Lord's Supper should not be received in one kind; and that it is not contrary to the Christian faith, at the desire of the parents, to administer it to little children also. And Art. XXI.: Because priests are men, marriage is not forbidden them in the Divine Scripture, but according to the teaching of St. Paul they may marry; still it were better if they lived, according to St. Paul's wish, in entire chastity. In the year 1444, the cardinal legate, Carvalj, was at Prague, with whom Rokyczana had a vehement dispute with regard to the Lord's Supper. (Theobald, Th. 2, cap. 15, s. 142). Meanwhile, the Bohemians exerted themselves, with Eugene IV. and Nicolas V., to obtain the confirmation of Rokyczana as archbishop, and even sent an embassy to Rome for this purpose in 1447 (Theobald, cap.

16, s. 150), and in 1448 Carvajal made his appearance again in Prague (Theobald, cap. 17, s. 156). The Bohemians desired of him in a letter, in which they recounted the history of their previous negotiations (in Cochlæus, lib. x. p. 349 ss.), ut quae pro honore et utilitate hujus regni incliti et nostris juxta Compactatorum tenorem facienda sunt, finem debitum effectualiter sortiantur; Magistrum quoque Joaunem de Rokyczana—dignetur Paternitas vestra Rev. in Archiepiscopum Pragensem ad nostrum et totius regni singulare solatium consecrare. Carvajal answered this petition evasively, and demanded in turn restitution of the Church property which had been despoiled (l. c. 353). In the year 1451 Aeneas Sylvius was in Bohemia as ambassador for the Emperor, and had a conversation with George Podiebrad, which he records, Epist. ad Jo. de Caraval Card. (Aeneae Sylv., Epist. 130.) George complained that the compactata were not observed on the Catholic side: si qui ex nostris apud vos moriuntur, cum asinis sepulturam accipiunt. Aeneas answered: Cur violari foedus conquerimini, quod priores rupistis? Neque enim sufficit vobis sub duplice specie communicare, nisi et sub una sola communicantes damnetis.—Vobis induita est sub utraque specie communicatio, jussi tamen sacerdotes vestri sunt,—commonere—omnes,—sub qualibet totum—esse Christum: nihil faciunt. Prohibiti sunt infantibus atque dementibus eucharistiam porrigeare: porrigit tamen. Neminem communicare sub duplice specie debent [compellere]: compellunt, sepulturam negantes, ni communicent.—Debet universalis Ecclesiae ritum tenere: postponunt, divinis officiis vulgaris carminis commissentes.—Cum ergo abutamini privilegio,—prævaricantes mandata Concilii, haud jure Legatum (the Cardinal Carvajal) accusatis, compactata firmare nolentem: quia privilegium amisistis male utentes. Aeneas specifies three points of dispute: Mihi tribus ex rebus concordia pendere videtur, ex compactatis, ex bonis ecclesiasticis quae occupantur, ex Archiepiscopi constitutione, quae nec parva sunt, nec leviter componenda. Nam compactata, postquam violata sunt, rursus innovare magnum est: qui bona Ecclesiarum occupant, invite restituent: in Archiepiscopo vos ipsi vim facitis, qui Rochezanam petitis neque alium vultis, quem, nisi me fallat opinio, nunquam sedes Apostolica ad id fastigii promovet. Soon afterward, still in the year 1451, the celebrated Franciscan, Jo. de Capistrano, was commissioned by Nicolas V. to preach against the Bohemians, and furnished with full power (Cochlæus, l. x. p. 368), omnes personas, quae sub utraque specie comunicarunt, ac alias erroribus, haeresi et superstitione involuti a ritu et unitate s. Rom. Ecclesiae recesserunt, if they were converted, to absolve and reappoint them, etc.

ever, a strict observance of the compactata, such as George intended when he took this oath, was not possible in the violent strife of parties. The Calixtines were held by the Catholics to be heretics, whom the King in this oath had sworn to exterminate. The Calixtines, on the other hand, never gave up their wish to drive the opposite party from Bohemia.⁸ Pius II., at first holding back on other accounts,⁹ in 1462 declared the compactata invalid;¹⁰

Romana—Ecclesia—tenet, fideliter observabo, ipsamque catholicam—fidem protegere—volo toto posse, populumque mihi subiectum secundum prudentiam a Deo datam ab omnibus erroribus, sectis et haeresibus, et ab aliis articulis s. ⁸ Breslau was most stubborn in opposition to the new king. These transactions are described at length by Peter Eschenloer, recorder of the city of Breslau at the time, in his, Gesch. der Stadt Breslau, 1440–1479, edited by Kunisch, 2 Bde. Breslau, 1827 and '28. 8. In a somewhat passionate letter which the people of Breslau transmitted, in 1459, to the Papal legate, who was striving for a reconciliation, is the following passage, Eschenloer, Bd. 1, s. 131: "Seine Heiligkeit sehe wohl zu, dass sie nit betrogen werde, als one allen Zweifel geschehn wird, durch des Königs Gelübd und Aide. Seine Heiligk. hat ufgenomen seine Aide, dass er die Ketzerei wolde lassen und tilgen: wie aber dagegen er hat geschworen seinen Sectern, dass er sie wolle beschirmen, ire Secte halten und meren, muss er nit einem Teile meineidig werden?—Wenn der schnöde Erzketzer Rokyczan also frei itzunder ist, und grösdere Macht hat, denn je vormals. Er bezwinget itzo das Volk zu beider Gestalt sich zu berichten, die das nit tun wollen, werden gepeinigt, gefangen u. s. w. S. 132: Und die sich unter einer Gestalt lassen berichten, sind von inen als Ketzer verworfen und verschmehet, und so dieselben sterben, werden sie begraben, da man die Uebeltäter pfleget zu richten, und uf dem Felde." The legate's answer is extraordinarily mild, s. 139: "diser König hat nicht geschworen, die Ketzerei zu furdern, sondern mit einfältigen Worten hat er gesprochen, dass er sie in irer Gewohnheit wolle lassen; und das ist nicht alleine nicht Sünde, sondern auch weislich getan.—Ir wisset wol, ob in Behem vil Ketzer sein, ob sie mechtig sein, ob sie durch Fride und one Blutvergiessen zu vertreiben sein. Und so ir die Warheit sagen wolt, ir werdet in euer Weisheit selber raten, dass man sie nicht mit Ernst, sondern mit Sanftmütigkeit nicht sol überhaupt, sondern langsam mälig in bequemer Weise bekeren. Und ob der König in solcher Geduld und Enthaltung etliche aus inen libet, nicht durch Ketzerei willen, sondern dass er sein Freund oder Diner ist, ob er darum sei ein Ketzer zu heissen oder Libhaber der Ketzer? Diss sol von euch ferne sein, wan mit offbaren Sündern asse und trunke Jesus, nicht dass er die Sünder libete, sondern die Personen und die Selen. S. 142: Auch dass in Behem vil Ketzer sind, darumbe sollet ir euch von inen nicht teilen, sondern sie leiden und dulden, als da saget S. Augustinus, sprechende: Du guter Mensch leide der Bösen, weil Christus Judam duldet," etc. [Translated in the Appendix.] Here may be seen how a crafty Roman, according to circumstances, could also profess Christian principles toward heretics.

George strove in vain, by protecting the Catholics strictly in accordance with the compactata, to keep them upon his side.¹¹ Paul II. at length proceeded to excommunicate and dethrone him (December, 1465);¹² and then issued repeated summons for a ratification of the compactata. But Pius II. answered them as follows (l. c. p. 580 ss.): Quae vos compactata vocatis, Oratores insignes, Apostolica Sedes neque novit unquam neque accepit.—Non consuevit haec sancta Sedes—in his, quae articulos fidei concernunt, pacta facere; sed catholicam fidem—omnibus libere praedicare.—De his, quae vos compactata vocatis, nullae Basilicenses (esto, quod Basileae aliquando, et tunc praesertim, generale Concilium fuisset) litterae unquam apparuerunt, sed nec hodie apparent: soli compactatorum amatores copiam quandam, seu ut ipsi dicunt transsumptum quoddam cuiusdam, qui se Constantiensem Episcopum nominat, ostendere possunt, quod quantum in tam gravi re fidem faciat, quantum illi credendum sit, etiam nobis tacentibus quilibet intelligit. But even if they desired to claim the validity of the compactata, these had not been observed by the Bohemians themselves. Animadvertisse, communionem sub utraque specie his Bohemis demum concedi, qui in aliis omnibus sese Romanae Ecclesiae conformaverint.—At—notum est, Bohemos hactenus in nullo Sedem Apostolicam recognovisse, quimodo ab illius obedientia semper declinasse, illius mandata sprevisse, novos ritus, novas haereses introduxisse.—Sed et illud notorium est, neque vos negabitis, imo in hoc sacro Consistorio publice asseruistis, in Bohemia ab omnibus, qui compactata colunt, hoc palam praedicari, communionem sub utraque specie de necessitate salutis esse, qua de re vos ea tanquam talia a nobis et Apostolica Sede confirmari petitis: cum tamen in compactatis dicatur, articulum de necessitate salutis in Concilio discriendum esse: qui et ibidem discussus est, decretum quoque est, de necessitate salutis non esse sub duplice specie communicari (see § 151, note 33). The Bohemian priests did not teach according to the directions of the compactata, sub qualibet specie totum Christum contineri, but on the contrary, communionem utriusque speciei de necessitate salutis esse. Then, it was determined in the compactata—Concilium concessurum communionem utriusque speciei, si Bohemi in desiderio sic communicandi perseveraverint, et hoc eorum ambasatores indicaverint Concilio: but this had not been done. Runnt itaque ex omni parte compactata vestra, quae neque vos servastis unquam, neque, etiamsi servata fuissent, communicandi sub utraque specie Bohemis licentiam praestant, praesertim his, pro quibus nunc illud petitis, qui tunc, tempore compactatorum, aut nati non fuerunt, aut saltem talem usum communicandi minime habere potuerunt. Cf. Pii II. Commentarii a Jo. Gobelino compositi, lib. vii. p. 188. The German translation of the Pope's answer in Eschenloer, Bd. 1, s. 181, made from the copy which the Pope sent to Breslau, is quite different in style. King George immediately called together his estates, and complained of the Pope's proceeding (Cochlaeus, lib. xii. p. 427): Miramur quod Papa facit. Fortassis iterum hoc regnum, quod vix per compactata unitum est, et ad tranquillum statum pervenit, disjungere vult. In order to refute the charge that he had not kept his coronation oath, he had it read aloud: juravimus haereticam pravitatem velle abjecere, et omnes haereses de Regno nostro delere.—Sed quod Papa velit communionem et nostra compactata haeresim facere, numquam fuit de intentione nostra.

crusade against him.¹³ Nevertheless the writings published by George in defense¹⁴ made more impression than the Papal censures; even the German Universities declaimed against the proposed crusade,¹⁵ and accordingly it made insignificant progress. However, Matthias, king of Hungary, consented to receive the kingdom of Bohemia as a gift from the Pope, and took possession of Silesia, Moravia, and Lusatia. In Bohemia itself, George maintained his right; and after his death (1471) the Polish prince Wladislaus was chosen to be his successor. Matthias, as well as the Pope, strove in vain to supplant him,¹⁶ and in 1490 he even succeeded Matthias in Hungary. Although Wladislaus was himself a Catholic, and at first, in his weakness, yielded to Catholic insinuations, nevertheless the Calixtines were still so powerful, that the compactata remained in full force.¹⁷ Wladislaus died in 1516.

Under Sigismund the Taborites, though weakened, enjoyed unbroken freedom.¹⁸ Rokyczana made vain attempts to unite them with the Calixtines.¹⁹ Aeneas Sylvius found them in 1451 still quite unchanged in their peculiarities;²⁰ but after George

Bohem., c. 52: Taboritae, qui superioribus cladibus superfuerant in oppido conservati, ea lege in gratiam recepti, ut quinquennio toto suis moribus viverent, religionis cultum mutare non cogerentur, jura civitatis haberent. Afterward, indeed, Sigismund declared, quinquennium hanc expectaturum se, correptum prope diem sceleratae civitatis insaniam: however death prevented him.

¹⁹ There was a colloquy of the two parties at Kuttenberg, 4th July, 1443, in which Rokyczana, as chief of the Calixtines, and Nicolas Biscupecz, as chief of the Taborites, conferred with each other. Theobald, Th. 2, cap. 14, s. 123. Here the Taborites gave in a confession in fifteen articles, in which they insisted on the supreme authority of Holy Writ, and on the use of it in the mother tongue. They pronounced the doctrine of justification by faith alone to be the most important, the confession of which should be the condition of membership in the Church; they acknowledged two sacraments, Baptism and the Lord's Supper, and rejected images and purgatory. Art. XII.: "Das Sacrament des Altars ist ein schlecht unverwandelt Brot, wie auch Wein, so ein Zeichen des Leibs und Bluts Christi, der im Himmel ist, welches ihm der Glaube zueignet, ohne welchen Glauben keiner rem sacramenti, d. i. die geistliche und himlische Ding, den Leib und das Blut Christi, empfangen kann." Accordingly the sacrifice of the mass and the adoration of the host were rejected. In the colloquy there was a discussion upon transubstantiation, and the communion of young children, both of which the Taborites denied. A second conference at Prague, in 1444, remained as unsuccessful as the former (Theobald, Th. 2, cap. 15, s. 131). Compare the letter of Nic. Biscupecz to one of the elders of the Taborite community at Muglitz in Moravia. Theobald, l. c. Memorials of this controversy, still extant, are Jo. Rokyczanae Tract. de VII. Alii sella carebant, alii freno, alii calcaribus. Alteri crus occreatum fuit, alteri nudum: huic oculus defuit, illi manus.—Incedendi nullus ordo, loquendi nulla modestia, barbaro et rusticano ritu nos exceperunt. Obtulerunt tamen xenia, pisces, vinum, cerevisiam. Sic oppidum ingressi, locum vidimus. Quem nisi haereticorum arcem aut asylum vocem, nescio quo appellem nomine. Nam quaecunque deteguntur inter Christianos impietatis ac blasphemiarum monstra, hue configunt, tutamentumque habent, ubi tot sunt haereses quot capita, et libertas est quae velis credere. In the following picture of the doctrines and customs of the Taborites, the statements printed in Italics are false (compare note 19): Romanam Ecclesiam nolunt habere primatum, aut proprii Clerum habere quicquam. Imagines Christi Sanctorumque delent. Ignem purgatorium inficiantur. Nihil Sanctorum preces jam cum Christo regnantium prodesse mortalibus asseverant. Podiebrad conquered Tabor, in 1453,²¹ the Taborites vanish from history as a distinct party. However, during the strife of parties in the Church, their religious doctrines, in a purified form, appealing to and seizing upon a more profound experience, had found acceptance even among the Calixtines; and so, about the year 1450, a new party first made its appearance in Prague,²² favored cas abjiciunt. Eucharistiam sub specie panis et vini et parvulis et dementibus praebent. Confidentes nihil praeter orationem dominicam et verba consecrationis dicunt, neque vestimenta mutant, neque ornatus assumunt aliquos: quidam vero eousque disipiunt, ut non verum Christi corpus in sacramento altaris, sed representationem quandam esse contendant, errantis Berengarii, non conversi, sequaces. Ex sacramentis Ecclesiae baptismum, eucharistiam, matrimonium ordinemque recipiunt: de poenitentia parum sentiunt, de confirmatione et extrema unctione nihil. Monachorum religionibus infestissimi sunt, inventionesque diabolicas asserunt esse. Baptisma simplicis undae volunt. Nullam aquam benedicunt. Cimiteria non habent consecrata: cadavera mortuorum in campis, et ut digna sunt cum bestiis sepeliuntur: vanumque censem orare pro mortuis. Ecclesiarum consecrations derident, et in omnibus locis passim conficiunt sacramentum. Nulla major his cura est quam sermonis audiendi. Si quis negligens est, domique torpet, aut negotio ludo vacat, dum sermo est, virgis caeditur, et intrare ut verbum Dei audiat compellitur. Est illis domus quaedam lignea similis horreo ruris: hanc tempulum appellant. Hic populo praedican, hic legem per omnes dies exponunt, hic altare unicum habent, neque consecratum, neque consecrandum, ex quo sacramentum plebibus exhibent. Sacerdotes neque coronas ferunt, neque barbas tendunt: his Taboritae frumento, cerevisia, lardo, leguminibus, lignis et omni suppellectili necessaria publice domum complent, et addunt in singula capita singulis mensibus sexagenam (a penny tax), ex qua pisces, carnes recentes, et si velint vinum emant.—Fratres se invicem appellabant, et quod uni defuit, alter subministravit: nunc sibi quisque vivit, et aliis quidem esurit, alius autem ebrios est.—Reversi ad ingenium avaritiae jam omnes student, et quia rapere ut olim nequeunt,—lucris inhiant mercatura, sordidosque sequuntur quaestus. Sunt in civitates ad quatuor millia virorum, qui possent educere gladium: sed artifices facti lana ac tela ex magna parte victum quaerentes inutiles bello creduntur. In the same year, Aeneas was again at Tabor, and there held a conference with several clergy, among others with a certain Nicolas, quem dicunt Episcopum, at which were also present—scholares et cives plurimi latinnm edocti sermonem. Nam perfidum genus illud hominum hoc solum boni habet, quia litteras amat.

This party was soon greatly increased, chiefly by the accession of many of the Taborites;²⁴ it also spread far and wide in Moravia;²⁵ and at length, in 1457, under the names of Brethren of the Law of Christ, Brethren, Brethren in Unity, separated entirely from the Church.²⁶ When, upon George's accession to the throne, he and Rokyczana endeavored in every way to obtain the Papal recognition, the one as king, the other as archbishop; they thought themselves obliged to display their orthodoxy by intolerance toward the Brethren. Rokyczana first persuaded the King to banish them to the distant region of Liticz in Leutomischl in the Riesengebirge (1461). However, as the new community, instead of vanishing in obscurity, continued to spread, a most severe persecution was every where commenced against them, which obliged the Brethren, as long as George reigned, to hide themselves in deserts and caves (hence their name Jamnicii, bur-towers).²⁷ Nevertheless, at this time, their Church constitution was formed, by the election of the first elders, in a solemn assembly at Lhola, 1467.²⁸ Under the reign of King Wladislaus more peaceful days began for them, although the Calixtines often sought, by both kind and severe measures, to draw them over to themselves.²⁹ A few nobles joined them, under whose protection they were able to build houses of prayer. Their confessions of faith, sent in to King Wladislaus in 1504 and afterward, give evidence as to their doctrinal views.³⁰

²⁵ The beginning of their community in this country was at Cremza or Cromerzig. Many of them were driven by persecution to escape to Bohemia; see Lochner, s. 25.

Sed cum videremus, tum vos ministros, tum populum his flagitiis et sceleribus contaminari, neque puram a vobis et integrum usurpari religionem; coacti sumus salutis nostrae causa a coetu vestro discedere, ne vel tanta sclera et facinora vobiscum perpetrantes, vel saltem in iis conniventes, aeternas tandem poenas una vobiscum sustineremus.—Nos sine intermissione his temporibus turpissime a sacrificulis infamamur, qui negant nos habere veram fidem de sacramento corporis Christi, et hac ratione magnum acerbumque imperitae multitudinis odium in nos concitant. Sed scias tu, et universi, nos ita credere, quemadmodum Christus dixit, Apostoli scripserunt, et primitiva Ecclesia docuit. Quod vero contrarium excogitatum, aut additum, aut ad alium usum, quam Christus voluit, accommodatum est, hoc ex animo aversamur.

With regard to the pretended apostolical succession of these bishops, see the true state of the case, vol. ii. § 90, note 29. However, it is strange that Camerarius makes no mention of the above circumstance, although he speaks of Stephen, p. 116.

ISOLATED EFFORTS FOR REFORM.

A recognition of the decline of the Church was universally diffused and encouraged by the Councils of Constance and Basle, although of course it existed in very different degrees in different individuals. The incapacity and moral corruption of the clergy were most generally felt and complained of. Rome was always ready to renew the rules of discipline so often before repeated; but so soon as the reform of the curia itself was demanded, or any alterations of institutions advantageous to its avarice, it offered a stubborn resistance, with persecutions. Indignant at the excess of the evil, individual men of loftier spirit arose, like the prophets of the Old Testament, full of warning and zeal: they found also the same fate with these. The Carmelite, Thomas Conecte, came forward in Flanders as a preacher of morality with great success:¹ he was burned to death at Rome in 1432.² An-

Supper, they repeatedly state their doctrine to this effect: quando Presbyter rite ordinatus verba testimonii Christi expresserit, continuo panis est corpus Christi verum, naturale, ex castissima virgine sumptum, similiter vinum sanguis est naturalis corporis ejus. Nevertheless they controvert (Excusatio in the Fascic., p. 182 ss.) transubstantiation and the adoration of the eucharist. They maintain that the body of Christ—est in Sacramento per aliam existentiam quam in dextris Dei. P. 184, cum suo substanciali assumpto corpore, quocum sedet nunc ad dexteram Dei, non potest multiplicari:—et non potest corporaliter sumi a fidelibus animabus, sed solum spiritualiter.—Quamvis Christus non est hic cum corpore naturali:—est tamen spiritualiter, potenter, benedicte, in veritate. In like manner, p. 171 and 177, they declare themselves against the worship of saints, and, p. 177, against purgatory. The true purgatory is in this world, in quo se purgant ad immortalia corpora. With regard to the abrogation of several customs they say, p. 180: Ideo multas constitutiones et consuetudines, ordinationes et inventiones non continemus, quia in errorem sunt et eversionem fidei et aequitatis,—et quoniam hae constitutiones sunt causae idolatriae, et spci erroneae, et vanae superstitionis, et occultationem mortalis peccati. Malis autem sacerdotibus sunt causa ad eorum indignitatem et ad seductionem a justitia, et ad avaritiam et sacrarum rerum quaestum: populo autem sunt ad latrociniis onusque, ut plura impendant in vestes, aedificia et splendorem, —quod in pauperes et egenos expendere debent. Ideo non observamus in multis rebus, quia multa impedimenta faciunt verbo justitiae, orationi, rebus sanctis circa legis Dei sensum, propter quae lex Dei venit in contemptum: et ita humanas constitutiones, ordinationesque tam diligenter custodiunt, sicut mandatum Dei vel et diligentius.

² The account in Enguerrand de Monstrelet, liv. ii. chap. 127, t. vi. p. 62, is unsatisfactory: it is only clear that his severe sermons against the clergy worked his ruin. According to Bertrand d'Argentré, Histoire de Bretagne (Paris, 1618. fol.), p. 788, he had said, qu'il se faisoit des abominations à Rome, que l'Eglise avoit bien besoin de reformation, et qu'il ne falloit pas craindre les excommunications du Pape faisant le service de Dieu. Il accordoit aux religieux de manger de la chair, et disoit que à l'exemple drew, the Dominican, archbishop of Carniola,³ and cardinal, was painfully undeceived, when imperial ambassador at Rome, with regard to the papal holiness, in which he had honorably believed: insulted and persecuted by Sixtus IV., to whom with true simplicity he thought himself bound to administer an evangelical rebuke, he desired to convene at Basle a new council against the corruption which cried aloud to heaven (1482): he died in prison at Basle (1484).⁴ Jerome Savonarola, Dominican monk at Florde la nation Grecque le mariage ne devoit pas estre defendu aux Prestres, ny à ceux des siens, qui ne pouvoient se contenir. Baptista Mantuanus, in his De Vita Beata, at the end, declares this member of his own order, whom he calls Thomas Gallus, to be a martyr: dum bene beateque viveret, a quibusdam invidis apud summum Pontificem capitis accersitur, et post carcerem, post tormenta, post cruciatus tandem, quum nihil damnable reperissent gravius investigantes, quod jure non potuerunt, injuria perfidere fortiter accinguntur, et comburendem scelerato rogo commiserunt.—Hujus flamas non Scavolae rogo, sed Laurentii posse comparari non dubito: dicant qui velint, obstrepant, clamitent et insaniant: ille summo vivit Olympo.

N. Iesu Christi,—fidei catholicae reformationem, morum correctionem, scelerum, vitiorum extirpationem, et pacem universalem in populo Christiano procurandam—indiximus. On the 21st July he added an appeal against Pope Sixtus IV. (p. 368): facturus sermonem ad te, o Francise de Savona, Ordinis fratrum Minorum, qui cathedram sanctam male ascendisti, maleque nomine Sixtus IV. jam annis XI. occupasti, Apostoli Pauli ad Elimam habitis verbis recte potero exordiri (Act. xiii. 10): o plene omni dolo et omni fallacia, fili Diaboli, inimice omnis justitiae, non desinis subvertere vias Domini rectas: dolo namque et fallacia non intrans per ostium, sed per Simoniam quasi fur per fenestram proh dolor ingressus es in regimen Ecclesiae sanctae Romanae. Inde facientem desideria Diaboli filium te esse veritas ipsa declarat, cum dicit: vos ex patre Diabolo estis, et desideria patris vestri vultis facere.—Quotiens, o Sixte, intimae compassionis affectu argui injusticias tuas, et non mihi auscultasti! quotiens sclera reprehendi tua, et me despexit! quotiens preevaricationes tuas tibi objeci, et me subsannasti!

ence, still more like those typical men of the Old Testament, began to assail the moral as well as the political state of his country, not only with warnings, but also with prophecy; thus, however, he only fell a more easy victim to Roman hatred (1498).⁵

Nonne licuit mihi secundum formam Evangelii dicere tibi secreta: cur benedicis et male-dicis pro pecunia? cur beneficia vendis? cur gratias spirituales pecuniae aestimatione taxas?—Et cum sollicitudo tua omnium Ecclesiarum esse debeat, ut quid apud, et quasi coram te peccantes non arguis? Cur toleras Sodomitas, sacrilegos, simoniacos, homicidas, officiis et professionibus suis non satisfacientes,—justitiam vendentes, doctrinam malam docentes, virgines stuprantes, sorores incestantes, sub coelibatu pueros procreantes, moniales violantes,—foeneratores, Ecclesias quas deservire nequeunt locantes sub usura,—aliisque vitiis et maleficiis atque dehonestationibus superfluentes?—Inde fit, quod Clerus despicitur,—suscitataque passim inter curiosos Laicos errorum materiae, vel haeresium opinione—ubique gloriantur,—quod in omnibus castris Cleri non vel vix sit, qui cum eis ad singulare certamen disputationis—descendere ausit, vel saltem incidentem dubitationem pro Laici satisfactione decidere, enucleare, quod taceo haereticum astutum et relatarantem ratione et auctoritate concludere norit. Sicque cum majori scandalo Cleri fit, quod Laici fere plus sapient, magis honeste, religiose, justeque se gerunt quam Clerici, qui omnia facta sua quasi pro lege habentes, etiam errores suos per legem Jesu Christi conantur defendere.—Tu vero, Sixte, quando his pastorali sollicitudine obviias? ubi est labor tuus, ubi vigilantia tua, ubi districtio tua?—Cumque hujusmodi, o Sixte, a me pluries tibi cum dolore cordis secrete inter me et te dicta non acceperas,—habui ultra adhibere testes, dixique ea in coetu Cardinalium Ecclesiae, te ad emendationem exhortans. Tu vero, quasi incurabili vulnere, quod omnem medicinam absorbet, sauciatus,—non acceperisti admonitionem meam in cor tuum, ut resipisceres, sed magis magisque irretitus raptabas in animam meam, spiransque minarum et caedis tota die concinnabas dolos, quibus me caperes, tandemque injuste captum et judicatum me libere dimisisti. Igitur ne gravius indies magis magisque Ecclesia per tuas insolentias damnificetur,—jam ultimum superest, ut dicam Ecclesiae. Henricus Institoris first took the field against him, as inquisitor in Upper Germany. In his refutation this remarkable passage is to be found (l. c. p. 413): Clamat mundus pro Concilio: sed quomodo congregabitur, ubi dispersi sunt lapides sanctuarii ejus, et obscuratum est aurum, mutatus est color optimus? Cujusmodi reformatio? Dic, ubi obedientia Principum, ubi zelus fidei? Et quia ista deficiunt, queso, ex Concilio cuiusmodi reformatio proveniet? —Ecclesiam per Concilium reformare non poterit omnis humana facultas: sed alium modum altissimum procurabit, nobis quidem pro nunc incognitum, licet heu prae foribus existat, ut ad pristinum statum Ecclesia redeat.

bigendi occasio praeriperetur: quod evenit, si prophetiae lumen citra velamen humanae ratiocinationis effulgeat. Etenim adventitio lumine divino partim collustrabatur,—sed duce ratione in eam inclinabat partem, in quam divina quoque visa inducebant.—Consentaneum quippe videbatur, suam ut Ecclesiam Deus eodem perpendiculo, quo semper usus fuerat, metiretur, et obliquos ejus parietes revocaret ad lineam, monitis primum, deinde flagellis pro scelerum varietate diversis. Pontifices summo astu et dolo, necnon simoniaca persidia supremum aucupari sacerdotium dicebantur palam, sic ut nec quisquam id fere revocaret in dubium. Mox adeptos solium scortis et cinaedis eos auroque coacervando vacare, fama publica circumferebat, atque ad eorum exemplum qui suberant Cardinales et Episcopi sese instituere. Nullus in eis vel modicus Dei cultus, iis eadem vivendi ratio, nullaque religio. Quin etiam ferebatur, eorum aliquos Deum non colere, et in fidei nostrae contentum et contumeliam pleraque spargere. Sed et plures eorum, qui religiosae addicti vitae, ab institutis se laxioribus secreverant, et traditas regulas profitebantur, unde et sibi cognomen usurpaverunt, ad hypocrisin dilabebantur. Proinde fervorem illum Christianis debitum non modo in universum tepusse judicabant hi, qui Deum in spiritu et veritate colunt, sed torpuisse penitus et friguisse. Ad haec Principes tyrannicam vim publice exercebant, et qui vexabantur, nibilominus rapinis, stupris, sacrilegiis, concussionibus, aduluationibus inserviebant, ut illud sacrum repeti posset, non esse videlicet, qui faceret bonum usque ad unum. Tantis itaque de causis, propter propheticum etiam spiritum, quo afflabatur, nonnihil de imminentia clade pronuntiare coepit, quanquam sacrarum literarum involucris tegebant arcana, ut impuros homines a perceptione mysteriorum arceret,—simul ne visis adhuc ambiguis deluderetur. Hanc ob causam saepissime Deo preces fundere, et jejunii corpus macerare, et flagellis atterrere, et alios ad id officii cohortari studuit: quo tandem haec divinae clementiae munere extra dubitationem lucideque innotescerent sibi, quae prius ambigue et subobscure monstrabantur. Oranti igitur ipsi et divinas laudes in Ecclesia persolventi, dum—is praesertim versiculos caneretur: Bonus es tu, et in bonitate tua doce me justificationes tuas: fugatae a sensu et intellectu omnes tenebrae sunt, et suborta lux, quae dubitationem omnem de futuris quae praeveriderat eventis expulit. Mihi enim hoc privatum narravit. —Proinde coepit confidentius praedicere futuras clades, et eis veluti quibusdam administrulis collabentem et tanquam intermortuum pessimis moribus Christianum orbem instaurandum. Next, in 1489, he was transferred to Florence, and here he immediately began with warning and prophetic sermons upon the Apocalypse (p. 114): praedicabat, renovandam sive reformatam Ecclesiam, sed caedendam prius et purgandam flagello gravi, ni poenitentiae partes susciperentur. At first his prophecies were laughed at, but soon some of them were fulfilled: adduxerat autem jam in eum nonnihil populi fidem et praedicta nonnullis mors Innocentii VIII. Pontificis, et praeviis ab eo praedictusque Caroli ejus nominis VIII. Gallorum Regis in Italiam adventus, qui jam accelerare ferebatur ad expugnandum Apuliae regnum, et pari voce asseverata Mediceae familiae calamitas et ejus potissimum capitum Laurentii. Is cum eo tempore in republica Florentina princeps esset, sic ut fere omnia ad ejus mutum agerentur, quamquam sub specie civilis instituti, audissetque Hieronymum apertius in tyrannicos usus inveniri, eum ut sibi conciliaret multis tentavit; but all in vain. Probably because of the splendor and luxury of the Medici. With regard to his style of preaching, see p. 116: dicendi gratia—copiose abundavit:—quippe cum ipsa linguae celeritas, rerum allatarum sublimitas, magnitudo, et verborum sententiarumque elegancia prodigio par essent. Pronuntiabat voce libera et acuta, non fervido solum sed ardenti vultu, gestuque venustissimo. Ita vero illabebatur in auditorum aures, immo vero in praecordia, ut attentos eos extra se pene raperet. Et cum vox ipsa nec legentis prorsus esset, nec claimantis, nisi cum effulmine ret in crimina, in ea tamen sentiebatur utrumque, neutrum discernebatur. The Preache del Rev. Padre Fra Geronimo da Ferrara per tutto l'anno in Vinegia, 1540. 8, are examples of his style of preaching. There are characteristic extracts from them in Riederer's Nachrichten, Bd. 4, s. 335 ff. His influence grew chiefly when his prophecies of the invasion of Italy by Charles VIII., and of the change of the Florentine constitution,

in 1494, were fulfilled (the historian Comines, who came to Florence with Charles VIII., and visited Savonarola, says, in his Mémoires, liv. viii. chap. 3 : Il avoit tousjours presché en grande faveur du Roy, et sa parole avoit gardé les Florentins de tourner contre nous : car jamais prescheur n'eut tant de credit en cité. Il avoit tousjours assuré la venue du Roy,—disant qu'il estoit envoyé de Dieu, pour chastier les Tyrans d'Italie, et que rien ne pouvoit resister, ne se defendre contre luy.—Aussi disoit publiquement l'avoir par revelation, et preschoit, que l'estat de l'Eglise seroit reformé, à l'espée (i.e. par l'épée); but, at the same time, his confidence increased. Picus, p. 115 : Eo ipso tempore quo Carolus VIII. Rex Francorum Florentiae morabatur, divina visa coepit confidentissime patefacere.—Multa de imminente clade, multa de reformatione Ecclesiae praedicere, multa de Pontificum et Regum vita dicere, multa de iis, quae passurus erat ob praedicatam veritatem praeuntiare divino jussu palam exorsus est. However, he was not satisfied with Charles's behavior in Italy (he sent word to him through Comines ; see his Mémoires, l. c. pour ne s'estre bien aquitté de la reformation de l'Eglise, comme il devoit, et pour avoir souffert, que ses gens pillassent et derobassent ainsi le peuple,—que Dieu avoit donné une sentence contre luy, et en bref auroit un coup de foët) : all further expectations from him for the future were vain ; for this prince was obliged to leave Italy again as early as 1495, and the prophecy that he would return remained unfulfilled ; see Mémoires de Comines, liv. viii. chap. 26 : il a toujours presché publiquement, que le Roy retourneroit derechef en Italie, pour accomplir cette commission, que Dieu luy avoit donnée, qui estoit de reformer l'Eglise par l'espée, et chasser les Tyrans d'Italie, et que au cas qu'il ne fit, Dieu le puniroit cruellement. On the other hand, numerous enemies now rose up against him. His political influence over the new government gave him the authority of a party-chief : the friends of the Medici, who were now again increasing, were naturally his enemies. Besides this, Picus says, p. 118 : Inter omnes vero persequatores Hieronymi hi acerrimi inventi sunt, qui moribus pessimis, et potissimum Ecclesiae praesides, quorum vita foedissima universum orbem foetore repleverat, Florentini-que illi cives, qui usurariae pravitati obstinate operam navabant, et vitiiorum coeno impensis volutabantur. Illorum libidinem avaritiamque, illorum luxus simoniacasque labes insectabatur, publice privatimque monere solitus, a Babylone (Romam intelligens) fugiendum esse, quoniam—malignus daemon—ipsam flagitorum omnium sentinam cloacamque effecisset. Monachorum, Monacharumque, et pene Religiosorum omnium contumelias ob id in se conflaverat, quod tepiditatem eorum (ita enim appellabat) et abusus quam plurimos coarguebat, suorumque Praedicatorum fratrum calumnias et insidias expertus est, quoniam congregationem fratrum Etruscum ab ea, quae Cisalpinam incolit Galliam, segregaverat Pontificis Maximi auctoritate, atque illam divino jussu constituerat.—Optabat autem, ut eam vivendi normam tenerent sodales, qua a divo Dominico servata est. So early as 1495 he was summoned before the Pope, but he pleaded in excuse sickness and the danger which threatened him from his enemies : the authorities of Florence also interested themselves for him ; see extracts from their letters in Vie de Scipion de Ricci par de Potter. Bruxelles, 1825, t. ii. p. 468 ss. At length, in 1497, Alexander VI. issued a Breve to the Dominican Monastery at Florence, in Burchardii Diar. in Ecard, ii. p. 2151 : Sane Hieronymum quandam Savonarolam de Ferraria Ordinis Praedicatorum novitate pravi dogmatis delectatum accepimus, et in eam mentis insaniam Italicarum rerum commutatione deductum, ut se missum a Deo et cum Deo loqui sine ulla canonica attestatione fateatur in populo contra canonicas sanctiones.—Christum praeterea Jesum crucifixum et Deum mentiri, si ipse mentiatur, horrendum certe et execrabile adjurationis genus ; extra salutis statum eum esse, qui vanis illius assertionibus non credat ; alia deinceps illum non minus inepta facere, dicere et scribere, quae si praetereantur impune, nihil est quod non ausura falsorum Religiosorum temeritas sit, et in corpus Ecclesiae, quod verendum est, vitia sub virtutum specie subintrarent.—Credebamus,—jam advenisse diem, quo de ipso meliora concipere deberemus, ac dolorem, quem nunc usque ex effreni arrogantia et scandalosa separatione a Patribus suis Lombardiae perpessi fueramus, quae subdola calliditate, sicut post cognovimus, perversorum quorundam Fratrum impetrata est, sua humili adhaerentia in laetitiam commutaremus: sed quod dolenter referimus, spe nostra frustrati sumus. Nam licet per literas nostras ipsum in virtute sanctae obedientiae monuerimus, ut ad nos veniret, veritatem ab eo et ab ore suo intellecturos; tamen non solum venire et nobis obedire recusavit, verum etiam in dies ipse acerbiorum magis doloris nobis causam subministravit, impudenter fidelium oculis legenda ingerens, quae solo alias auditu temere profuderat imbibenda. Accordingly, the Pope commissions the vicar-general of the Lombard Dominican congregation to examine the guilt of Savonarola, and pass sentence upon him; for the time being, he suspends him from preaching, and orders the reunion of the Tuscan with the Lombard congregation. In his answer to the Pope, dd. 19th September, 1497 (in Eccard, ii. p. 2153; more complete in Paulus Beiträge, s. 289), Savonarola defends himself from these charges. Against the accusation—me novitate pravi dogmatis delectatum, he appeals to his oft-repeated assertion—me et omnia mea sanctae Romanae Ecclesiae submittere.—Si quis autem dicat, quod praedicarem futura, nondum est falsum dogma, quia hoc semper fuit in Ecclesia Domini Dei.—Secundo quia in litteris praedictis dicitur, me in eam mentis insaniam Italicarum rerum commutatione deductum, hoc etiam manifeste falsum est, et ab omnibus scitur, quia praeterierunt quinque anni, quibus haec praedixi, vel plures etiam quam decem anni jam sunt. Further, he defends the separation of the Tuscan from the Lombard congregation as not effected by underhand means; he maintains that the vicar-general of the latter, on account of the enmity between the two congregations, would be a—judex summopere suspectus—in his own cause; he seeks to show that the Papal command to reunite the Tuscan with the Lombard creation was obtained by underhand means; and declares at last: ego paratus sum in omnibus emendare me ipsum, ubique erro, et publice coram populo universo omnia errata mea revocare. Dignetur Sanctitas Vestra mihi significare, quid ex omnibus, quae scripsi vel dixi, sit revocandum, et ego id libertissime faciam, nam et hac vice et semper, sicut saepius dixi ac etiam scripsi, me ipsum et omnia mea dicta et scripta subjicio correctioni sanctae Romanae Ecclesiae et Sanctitati Vestrae. To this the Pope made a more gracious answer, dd. 16th October, 1497 (in Eccard, ii. p. 2152), and summoned him before his own judgment-seat; but he repeated the prohibition against his preaching before sentence was passed. Savonarola obeyed this prohibition only for a time; but when he began to preach again, papal satellites, monks, and his political enemies, roused themselves for a decisive blow. Excommunication followed: Jo. Poggiius, Secretarius Camerae Apostolicae, wrote a Refutatorium errorum Fratris Hier. Savonarolae: Jo. Fr. Picus, on the other hand, wrote an Apologia pro Hieron. Savonarolae viri prophetae Innocentia (in Goldasti Monarchia, ii. p. 1635 ss.). As the whole of Florence was threatened with ecclesiastical penalties, Jerome was obliged to discontinue his preaching; on the other hand, the brethren of his order preached for him—other monks against him. At length a Franciscan challenged a Dominican to the ordeal of fire; the points of dispute settled in writing were (Jo. Burchard in Eccard, ii. p. 2088): Conclusiones rationibus ac signis supernaturalibus probabantur. Ecclesia Dei indiget renovatione. Flagellabitur, renovabitur. Florentia quoque post flagella renovabitur et prosperabitur. Infideles convertentur ad Christum. Haec autem omnia erunt temporibus nostris. Excommunicatio nuper lata contra Rev. Patrem Hieron. Savonarolam nulla est: non servans eam non peccat. Instead of the trial by fire it ended in a monastic brawl: each party afterward threw the blame of the failure upon the other. However, soon after the people took the Dominican monastery by storm, and Savonarola, together with several of the brethren of his Order, was seized and put to the rack. Two Roman envoys had him put to the rack again, and at length, on the 23d May, 1498, together with two brethren of the order, he was hung and burned. According to the assertion of his enemies, on the rack he acknowledged himself to be a deceiver (see Burchard in Eccard, ii. p. 2095): his friends bear witness to his constancy (Picus in Batesius, p. 130 ss.), and assert that double minutes of the trial, real and falsified, are extant, Jac. Quetif ad Jo. Franc. Pici vitam Savon. ad cap. xvii. and Theoph. Spizelii Infelix Literatus, p. 665. Opinions with regard to Savonarola have always been much divided; through the influence of the Dominicans a favorable opinion with regard to him afterward prevailed in he consented to a recantation (1498).⁶ All these men still looked for redress from new laws and institutions: deeper views had been already taken by the Carthusian, James of Erfurt, when he protested against the mass of superstitious opinions and customs,⁷ and by the Master of the Sorbonne, John Laillier, when, in 1484 and the following years, he recognized the corrupting influence of the hierarchical despotism;⁸ for religion had lost its real power the Catholic Church; so that even Dan. Papebrochius (Acta SS. Maji, t. v. p. 234) was uncertain whether he should acknowledge him as beatus. In the Dominican convent at Florence his cell was changed into a chapel (see Vie de Scipion de Ricci par de Potter, t. ii. p. 467). Compare, on this subject, J. F. Buddei Retractatio Dissertationis de Artibus tyrannicis Hier. Savonarolae, in his Parerga Historico-Theologica, p. 321 ss. Among the works of Savonarola, besides his sermons, the following are the most distinguished: Triumphus Crucis Florent., 1497. 4, an apology for Christianity. De Simplicitate Christianae Vitae, libb. iv. 1496. Expositio Orationis Dominicæ. *Grundzüge der Theologie des Hier. ⁶ His opinions, condemned by the Sorbonne, are in d'Argentré, Collectio Judiciorum de Novis Erroribus, I. ii. p. 340: Il vaudroit mieux couper la gorge à son enfant, que de le mettre en Religion non reformée.—Quiconques oöït la Messe d'un Prestre tenant une femme en sa maison, peche mortellement.—Minus malum est homicidium, quam peccatum carnis.—Se ton Curé, ou aucun Prestre, tiennent femmes en leurs maisons, vous devez aller en leur maison et par force tirer la femme, ou autrement, confusiblement hors de sa maison.—Le Chant de Musique, que on chante à nostre Dame, n'est que de paillardise et provocation de paillardise.—See the positions against indulgences, above, § 147, note 30.—Horae b. Mariae non debent dici Saecularibus.—Sancti non sunt rogandi.—Il y a aucuns, qui dient aucunes Oraison de la Vierge Marie, à fin que à l'heure de la mort ils puissent veoir la Vierge Marie (compare vol. ii. § 79, note 9). Tu verras le Diable, non pas la Vierge Marie.—Il vaudroit mieux à une femme marié rompre son mariage, que de rompre son jeûne.

⁸ He had asserted, in a public disputation, 1484 (d'Argentré I., ii. p. 308): *Petrus non habuit a Christo potestatem supra alios Apostolos, neque primatum. Omnes hierarchisantes aequaliter potestatem acceperunt a Christo ita, quod Curati sunt aequales in potestate, regimine et jurisdictione. Summus Pontifex non potest remittere viatoribus totam poenam eis debitam ratione peccatorum suorum virtute indulgentiarum, etiamsi justa et rationaliter dentur. Abbes, Priores, et alii Praefati Religiosorum non absolvunt suos Religiosos in virtute clavium, sed ex sola consuetudine. Confessio non est de jure divino. Si vultis, quod ego loquar de summo Pontifice, ego vastabo totum. Simplices sacerdotes sunt inutiles. Confessi Religiosis mendicantibus, praesentatis et acceptatis secundum formam Decretalis Dudum, etc., non sunt absoluti et tenentur eadem peccata consiteri Curato. Summus Pontifex Johannes XXII. non potuit condemnare de Poliaco, nec facere Decretalem Vas electionis (above, § 112, note 3). Quod de-*

just by being perverted into an external law. But in Germany, on the one hand, the national character more inclining to an inward religion, on the other, the interest awakened by the Hussites,⁹ worked such an effect, that already many persons of deeper creta et decretales summorum Pontificum non sunt nisi truphae. Ecclesia Romana non est caput aliarum Ecclesiarum. Unus hierarcha erat major altero in bonis temporalibus, vel forsitan in virtutibus, et non in potestate hierarchisandi. There is extant a new catalogue, of the year 1486, of the erroneous doctrines which Laillier had preached to the people (l. c. p. 308 ss., compare p. 311 ss.): I. Vous devez garder les Commandemens de Dieu et des Apostres : et au regard du commandement de tous ses Evesques et autres Seigneurs d'Eglise, tout autant que de paille, ils ont destruit l'Eglise par leurs vaverferies. II. Aucuns ont presché de ung Saint, qui est au lieu d'où Lucifer trebucheau (see Johannes Mercator, above, § 141, note 11). Tels prescheurs gastent tout, et depuis qu'ils ont esté instituez, jamais l'Eglise de Dieu ne prosperera. Ils feront tant, que quand la matière sera bien discutée, on trouvera que celuy, qu'ils reputent Saint, n'est pas au lieu où étoit Lucifer, mais est au lieu, où actuellement est Lucifer : et ainsi que Pluto, dieu infernal, tient Proserpine entre ses bras, ainsi Lucifer tient cette ame. III. Les Saints riches et pecunieux sont maintenant canonisez, et les pauvres delaissez. Par quoi je ne suis pas tenu de croire tels estre Saints. La raison : si le Pape reçoit certaine somme de ducats, on monte sur vingt echaffaux à Rome pour le canoniser, etc.—Depuis le temps de St. Silvestre nul des Confesseurs a esté justement canonisé. IV. Se ung Prestre estoit marié clandestinement, et venoit à moy à confesse, je ne luy enjoindrois point de penitence. V. Les Prestres de l'Eglise Orientale ne pechent point en soy mariant, et croy, que ainsy ne ferions nous en l'Eglise Occidentale, se nous nous marions. VI. En ung conseil depuis quatre cents ans fut interdit aux Prestres soy marier de ung Pape ou d'un Papillon. Je ne scay s'il le povoit faire. VII. Je donneray deux blancs à celuy, qui me produyra aucun passage de l'escriture, par lequel soyons obligez a jeanser le Caresme. VIII. A b. Sylvestro citra Ecclesia Romana non est amplius Ecclesia Christi, sed Caesaris et pecuniarum. (Laillier remarks upon this in his recantation, p. 312 : Et ay dit ces paroles en recitant l'opinion d'un grand Docteur, comme Wiclef, que croyois, ainsi que ay affermé par serment, estre Catholique, et n'avoir esté reprobé par l'Eglise). IX. On n'est point plus tenu de croire aux Legendes des Saints, que aux Cronicques de France. Besides, the Sorbonne took notice of the position : Simplex Sacerdos potest ita bene consecrare Chrisma et sacros Ordines conferre, sicut Papa, vel Episcopus : et omnes sacerdotes sunt aequalis potestatis, tam Ordinis quam jurisdictionis, tantamque auctoritatem habet Thomas apud Indos, quantam Petrus apud Romanos. The Bishop of Paris compelled him to revoke the propositions of 1486 in the same year (l. c. p. 310 ss.), and then absolved him. The theological faculty, which had not been called in to the examination, pronounced the recantation incomplete, and the absolution precipitate, and appealed to the Pope (p. 313 ss.), who then ordered a fresh inquiry (p. 318 ss.).

⁹ Cf. Epist. Juliani Card., § 132, note 6. Also the zealous opponents of indulgences, § 147, note 30. That Hussite missionaries were spread far and wide in Germany, is evident from the trial of John of Wesel (note 14). He was accused of holding intercourse with a certain Nicolaus de Bohemia vel Polonia, to whom also he was said to have dedicated a Tractatus super Modo Obligationis Legum Humanarum : he himself confessed, se cum eodem Nicolao fuisse conversatum de medicinis, et de communione sub utraque specie in Moguntia et Wesalia : addidit, quod istum Nicolaum viciisset ex Evangelio. Nicolaus Rus in particular, a priest and master of divinity at Rostock, about 1510, received his first impulse from wandering Bohemian brothers ; he wrote (see Flacii Catal. Test. Verit. ed. Francof. 1666, p. 840, and Chytrai Saxonii) in the Low German language, De triplici Funiculo, an explanation of the Creed, Ten Commandments, and Lord's Prayer, in which he made many statements against the Pope—the following propositions among others : indulgentias esse meram deceptionem piorum, et quaestum : veras in-insight recognized the source of the evil in the corruption of doctrine, and began to go back to Holy Writ as the purest fountain.¹⁰ Such instances, stimulated by the Hussites, made their appearance especially in Franconia.¹¹ But the great number of editions of German translations of the Bible indicates a more universal and newly awakened need.¹² Next to the Bible, the works of St. Augustine, highly honored, but in fact much neglected in the Church, gave the principal nutriment to men of this turn of mind. By these means three men in particular were guided along the way, in which they became the forerunners of the Great Reformation of the sixteenth century. John of Wesel,¹³ as Doctor of Divinity at Erfurt, afterward as preacher at Worms, assailed the errors upon which the hierarchy was built, and pointed back to the Holy Scriptures as the source of faith; but he was obliged to recant at Mayence, in 1479,¹⁴ and to close his life in dulgentias contingere a solo Deo gratis propter Christum omnibus vere poenitentibus: Papam non eam potestatem habere, quam ei multi tribuant, nec audiendum, nisi recta praecipiat: Sanctorum ossa non esse adoranda, Sanctos non esse invocandos: Spirituales debere dare censem, et subesse Magistratibus. Besides, reprehendit traditiones humanas, varios abusus et superstitiones. Imprimis vero gravissime insectatus est Spiritualium turpissimam vitam et officii neglectionem: dicit eos Antichristi ministros esse. He was banished with his adherents. At first he remained at Wismar, afterward he returned to Rostock, and at length fled to Livonia.

¹⁰ Thus Jo. Trithemius writes to the theologian at Paris, Carolus Bovillus, A.D. 1505 (see Trithemii Opp. Hist. ed. Marqu. Freherus. Francof. 1601. fol. P. ii. p. 476): Nunquam mihi placuit quorundam curiositas, qui humana commiscent divinis, et sacram Scripturam, quae et pura et sibi sufficiens est et nobis, gentilium loquacitate commaculant. Contra quos b. Hieronymus in epistola loquitur ad Damasum Papam: De Scripturis disputantem non decet Aristotelis argumenta conquirere, etc.—Scriptura enim Dei manifesta est, testimonium Dei lucidum est, sapientiam praestans parvulis. Non egent litterae divinae plicis, non involueris, non replicis, quia haec non sapientiam praestant parvulis, sed eorum animos in confuso relinquunt, et per omnem vitam mentes hominum aberrare compellunt.

¹¹ Frederick I., elector of Brandenburg, as early as 1415 appointed a preacher for the foundation of St. Gumbert, at Onolzbach, with instructions to teach the word of God principally according to Holy Scripture, and to abstain as far as possible from the ceremonies of the Roman Church; see Jäck, Materialien zur Geschichte und Statistik Bamberg's. Th. 2 (Bamberg, 1809), s. 111.—On his journey to Constance, Huss met with a very favorable reception at Nuremberg; see his letter to the Bohemians in Theobald's Hussitenkrieg. Nürnberg, 1621, Th. 1, s. 40 f.—The Council of Bamberg afterward made every man take an oath against the Hussite heresy; see this oath in Jos. Heller's Reformationsgeschichte des ehem. Bisthums Bamberg. Bamberg, 1825, s. 11. Several similar occurrences of the fifteenth century may be seen in Heller's work quoted above.

Praef. p. xvii.): tractatus, manu Wesaliensis conscriptus ad Bohemiamque mittendus, quem tuus ille magister, Joannes quippe, quasi fidei regulas isti Nicolao Bohemorum nuntio tradiderat, discipulum captivitati, magistrum vero inquisitioni tradidit. However, the frantic Dominican, many years afterward, without any particular sources of intelligence, may have drawn this conclusion from the acts extant. But in fact these decide the contrary, for they lay too little stress upon that intercourse. They are: Paradoxa D. Jo. de Wesalia, damnata per Magistros nostros haereticæ pravitatis Inquisitores de Ord. Praedic., M. N. Gerhardum Elten de Colonia et M. N. Jacobum Sprenger, anno 1479, Moguntiae, and Examen magistrale ac theologicale D. Jo. de Wes. (minutes of the proceedings against him), in Orthuini Gratii Fascic. Rerum Expeditandarum et Fugiendarum, fol. 163 (ed. Brownii, p. 325), and in d'Argentré I., ii. p. 291 ss. His works are the best means of ascertaining his theological views: Disputatio adv. Indulgentias, in Walchii Monumenta Medii Aevi, fasc. i. p. 111 ss., and, De Auctoritate, Officio et Potestate Pastorum Ecclesiasticorum, in Walch, vol. ii. fasc. ii. p. 115 ss. (Beyond doubt this work belongs to this John of Wesel, for he was examined upon certain propositions from this work: it is the Tractatus de Potestate Ecclesiastica, quoted in the Examen die Lunae III., but not addressed to a Bohemian as Walch thinks, l. c. Praef. p. xix.). The first work he begins as follows, p. 114: *ante omnia protestor, nihil velle—asserere, quod veritati fidei, quae in scripturis sacris continetur, quovis modo sit contrarium. Si vero opinio, vel assertio mea fuerit contraria alicui etiam sanctorum Doctorum, volo salvam esse ejus honorificentiam et sanctitatem, quia ajo cum b. Augustino ad Hieronymum: alios ita lego, ut quantilibet sanctitate doctrinare polleant, non ideo verum putem, quia ipsi ita senserunt, sed quia etiam per alios auctores, vel canonicas, vel probabiles rationes, quod a vero non aberrent, persuadere potuerunt. (Thus he insisted, upon his trial, XVII., that he did not believe, quod sacra Scriptura sit eodem spiritu exposita per SS. Patres et doctores, quo creditur primo tradita et revelata: and, die Martis, he declared plainly—quod nihil sit credendum, quod non habeatur in Canone Bibliae.) His fundamental positions with regard to forgiveness of sins and indulgences are as follows: Omni delinquenti contra legem Dei Deus ipse legislator ex justitia indicit poenam, quam non remittit, quantumcumque per misericordiam remittat culpam (especially p. 135 ss. God's forgiveness of sin is only the remission of the—reatus poenae aeternae, but not of the reatus poenae temporalis). Sacerdotes Christi, quibus datae sunt claves regni coelorum, ministri sunt Dei in remittendis culpis. Poenam, quam pro peccato Deus indixit delinquenti, non potest homo remittere illi. Aliquem, quemcumque sacerdotem, etiam summum Pontificem, indulgentias dare, quibus sit homo ab omni poena a Deo indicta solitus, non est in sacro canone scriptum. Ab omni poena, quam homo vel jus positivum infligit pro peccato, potest summus Pontifex absolvere. Ostenditur, quia ipse est ab Ecclesia constitutus juris positivi institutor, in quantum ad aedificationem Ecclesiae facit, non ad destructionem. Quod poenae per hominem vel jus positivum indictae pro peccato respondeant Dei inductioni poenae, ita quod illa soluta satisfactum sit Deo, non est certum, nec creditum, nisi cui Deus revelavit. Opinioni doctorum de thesauro Ecclesiae, congregato ex merito Christi et operibus supererogationis Sanctorum, commisso summo Pontifici ad distribuendum, quamquam sit valde pia, salubres tamen debiles objectiones.—Opera Sanctorum in via existentium secundum esse suum transitoria sunt; et dum cessant Sancti operari, ipsa nullum esse habent secundum se: Dei autem misericordia, addita operantibus iis gratia gratumfaciente, aut est meritum, aut causat meritum. Sunt ergo opera non aliter, quam secundum (gratiam) meritum. (Accordingly he confessed upon his trial that he had said to monks, XXII.: Religio non salvat vos, sed gratia Dei: he believed, nevertheless, religionem viam esse ad salutem.)—Distribuere autem illa merita nemo potest, nisi Deus principaliiter. Si autem homo ministerialiter haec potuerit distribuere, hoc non erit, nisi per vinum pactum.—Tale autem pactum esse factum cum ministris per Jesum, in evangelicis scripturis non habetur. Quare non est habitum. On remission of sins, p. 126. Remissio peccatorum est gratiae, gratum facientis hominem Deo, donatio sive infusio.—Solus Deus donat gratiam et infundit—absque praecedente merito—his, qui quantum in eis est se parant ad recipiendum eam. P. 128: *Poenitentia est dolor de commissis pec- catis. Et haec est dispositio congrua ad remissionem peccatorum. P. 131: Est ex superius dictis notum, nullos sacerdotes facere remissionem peccatorum principaliter et effective, nisi per divinam assistentiam, quae est gratia donata. Quare remissio Sacerdotum est quoddam ministerium sacramentale, exhibitum peccatori poenitenti. Et non est aliud, quam datus sacramenti poenitentiae, cuius effectus est remissio peccatorum. He declares, esse divini honoris, ut ipse solus creet et donet gratiam ex sua mera liberalitate, and accordingly he would have Lombard's definition of a sacrament, est invisibilis gratiae visibilis forma, sic quod ipsius imaginem gerat et causa existat, reduced again to St. Augustin's: est invisibilis gratiae visibilis forma. P. 143 ss. in the passages Matt. xvi. 19, xviii. 18, quodcunque ligaveritis, etc., the claves jurisdictionis were by no means delivered to the Church, but only the right to shut out incorrigible sinners. P. 146: Jurisdictio, quae est in Ecclesia, secundum quam principes dominantur subditis, et leges indicunt eis, est a gentilitate sumpta et Christi verbo vetita (Matt. xx. 26). Jurisdictio itaque, quae nunc est in Ecclesia, est ab hominibus instituta, ut sentit b. Hieronymus in epistola ad Evarandrum et in expositione epistolae ad Titum (see vol. I, § 30, note 1). Ex his sequitur, quod pueriliter sentiunt, qui dicunt, indulgentias dari ex vi clavium jurisdictionis. P. 152: Tales remissiones, vocatae indulgentiae, sunt piae fraudes fidelium, ut dixerunt multi presbyteri, et signanter quidem Cantor Parisiensis; they are fraudes, quia fideles peregrinantur ad sancta loca, afferunt eleemosynas ad pias causas—opinione, quod liberentur per ea ab omnibus poenis,—et in hac opinione decipiuntur.—Et quia contingit, fideles talia facere opera in caritate Dei, erunt ipsa opera meritoria vitae aeternae et augmentatoria gradus gloriae, ideoque sunt piae et utiles. Afterward, p. 153 ss., on the infallibility of the Church. Quia in Ecclesia universalis continetur Ecclesia Christi fundata super petram,—et haec Ecclesia Christi est sancta et immaculata,—ideoque in ea non est error;—haec erit vera locutio: Ecclesia universalis non errat. But at the same time the proposition is likewise true, Ecclesia universalis errat.—Sic et hodie vere dicitur: Ecclesia est peccatrix, est adultera. An argument which reasoned from that holy Church to the whole, would be illogical, quia ex particularibus procedit.—From the passages quoted above it is manifest, that John did not ascribe a divine institution to the hierarchy: its duties and rights he unfolds at length in his Tract. de Potestate Ecclesiastica, in Walchii Monim. Medii Aevi II., ii. p. 118. The principle laid down at the very beginning of the Tractatus is of importance to the understanding of several apparently contradictory statements maintained by him at his trial, ferendam esse quorumcunque magnatum tyrannidem, et imperiis temere non esse reclamandum, quatenus ratio Evangelii per tolerantiam afflictionum non periclitetur. Thus the statement which occurs in his Paradoxa receives explanation: Qui potestati resistit, Dei ordinationi resistit; sic scilicet, quod velit potestatem non esse. Thus he denies on the one hand, in the Examen XIV., quod Apostoli habuerunt auctoritatem a Christo condendi canones, aut instituendi alias leges (cf. De Potest. Eccl., in Walch I., ii. p. 133: Qua nunc audacia—Apostolorum successores—mandant observandum, non quod Christus in literis sacris, sed quod ipsi ex sese vel quaestus gratia huc impulsi, aut imperitandi libidine affecti, praecipiunt: Si ne ipsis quidem Apostolis licuit extra praecepta Dei quicquam docere, cum dicat Dominus: docentes eos servare, quaecunque praecepi vobis!), and declares accordingly, XXIV., nullum esse peccatum mortale, nisi quod Canon Bibliæ dicit esse mortale. Likewise XXVIII. Si vicarius significat aliquem, qui in absentia principalis habet facere opera principalis, tunc Christus non habet vicarium in terris. Nevertheless he affirmed the propositions, XI., Romanam Ecclesiam esse caput omnium aliarum Ecclesiarum; XII., quod Romanus Pontifex sit Christi vicarius, et necessarium esse unum caput Ecclesiae, XVI., differentiam esse inter Episcopum et sacerdotem, and admitted, XV., that the laws of the hierarchy were binding, to wit—quod transgredientes legem humanam sic assumptam, peccent mortaliter. Accordingly he declared also, XXI., when questioned with regard to the obligation of the—continentia Clericorum, and the—septem horae canonicae: quod, quia suscepunt, etiam ad mandatum Ecclesiae teneantur. However, he could only regard all this as of human institution, and preached accordingly (see Paradoxa): Christus nunquam instituit aliquod jejunium, nec prohibuit quemcunque cibum quocunque die, sicut carnes.

Christus nullum festum paecepit celebrare. Item nullam orationem docuit, nisi dominicam, neque mandavit sacerdotibus canere vel legere septem horas canonicas. Si quis confiteatur, injungitur illi ardua poenitentia, ut peregrinetur Romam, vel ad alia remota loca, strictum jejunium, quod dicat multas orationes. Quod Christus non fecit, sed solum dixit: vade, noli amplius peccare. Sic gravata est Christianitas per humanas leges et constitutiones. But he did not recommend a disobedience that would cause offense, De Potest. Eccl., in Walch II., ii. p. 144: Si offendio proximi timeatur per hanc inobedientiam, profecto quatenus obtemperare licebit imperantibus non periclitante veritate, nefas fuerit non obedire: non quia hoc paeceptum ab homine proficiscitur, sed quia expostulat caritas. His opinion as to the virtue of ecclesiastical usages follows, as a matter of course: see, Examen die Martis: Interrogatus, quid sentiat de consecratione et benedictione altarium, calicis, ornamentorum, cereorum, palmarum, herbarum, aquae benedictae, et aliarum rerum inanimatarum, etc., credit, quod nihil virtutis spiritualis et efficaciae habeant ad effugandum daemones, et pro remissione venialium peccatorum. Credit etiam, quod aqua benedicta non habeat majorem efficaciam, quam alia aqua non benedicta, etc. His doctrine of sin and grace was peculiar. It was essentially Augustinian; the following statements occur in the Paradoxa: Deus ab aeterno condidit librum, in quem scripsit omnes suos electos: quicunque autem in eo non est scriptus, nunquam inscribetur in ipsum in aeternum, et qui in eo scriptus est, nunquam ex eo delebitur.—Sola Dei gratia salvantur electi. Et quem Deus vult salvare, donando sibi gratiam, si omnes sacerdotes vellent illum damnare, aut excommunicare, adhuc salvaretur ille. Et quem Deus vult damnare, si omnes—vellent hunc salvare, adhuc iste damnaretur. And accordingly he declared likewise in the Examen die Martis, quod Deus potest conferre gratiam habenti usum rationis absque omni motu liberi arbitrii. Opinatur, quod b. Paulus in sua conversione nihil fecit suo libero arbitrio pro sua conversione.—Sola Dei gratia salvantur electi. When, on the other hand, on Monday, he admitted it as his opinion, nullum esse peccatum originale in parvulis jam conceptis in utero materno, this may have been on the general ground that only a person—habens usum rationis, was capable of sin, as in like manner of grace. Among the peculiar opinions of John, the following are still to be noticed, Examen die Lunae, VII., quod sacra scriptura non dicat, quod Spiritus Sanctus procedat a filio, aut ab utroque. VIII., falsum esse in symbolo Athanasiano hunc versum: nam sicut anima rationalis et caro unus est homo, ita Deus et homo unus est Christus. XIX., quod corpus Christi possit esse sub specie panis, manente substantia panis. The opinion of John Wessel upon this John of Wesel is given in his Epist. ad Ludolphum de Veno (Opp. ed. Groning. 1614, p. 920 s.). Audisti periculum venerabilis illius viri, Mag. Jo. de Wesalia, cuius tametsi, ut crebro ex me audisti, exorbitantes illae et populo scandalosae absurditates displicent, eruditio tamen et peracre ingenium ejusmodi est, ut virum illum nequeam non amare, aut casibus ejus non condolere. O quantum profuisset illi, nostro more, ut saepe inter nos Parisiis recensui, ante tum Realium tum Formalium exercitatum studia transegisse, et ita demum non incautum, non inopinum, sed velut ex arce et specula futuros insultus providisse.—Saepe ego veritus in eo inconsideratam et temerariam ejus locutionem, quae licet scholasticae subtilitatis, et fortassis nonnunquam aliquid catholicae veritatis haberet, ea tamen in vulgus indoctum, et non capacem plebem proferri cum gravi simplicium scandalo prorsus odiosum. Such offensive statements in his sermons to the people, as Wesel speaks of, are found e. g. in the Paradoxa; Si S. Petrus instituisset jejunium, forte ideo fecisset, ut eo melius pisces suos vendidisset. Sacrum oleum est sicut aliud oleum, quod comedis domi in offa. Ich verachte den Bapst, die Kirche und Concilia, und lobe Christum. At his trial he was accused, no. XX., of having preached at Wiesbaden, quod videns venerabile sacramentum Eucharistiae videat Diabolum; however he did not believe it. The proceedings against him were all the more cruel, since he was already an infirm old man (Examen die Lunae, XX.: prae senio et debilitate vix celebrare poterat), and had been long ill. The opinion of the author of this account, who was himself present during the trial, given at the end of his report, is in the highest degree remarkable: Magister Jo. de Wesalia longo tempore gravi morbo laboravit, nihilominus inquirebatur ab eo satis fervide. Quaedam negavit se dixisse, quaedam ut praetate et languore potuit conabatur interpretari, et ipse per sese etiam allegabat suam diuturnam infirmitatem. Dempo solo articulo de processione Spiritus Sancti, in aliis videtur non ita gravi censura fuisse castigandus, si induciae datae fuissent, si consultores ei fuissent adhibiti, si non omnes uno solo dempto fuissent de via Realium. Et nisi forsitan impetus quidam irrepisset in Religiosos triumphandi de Saeculari, et praesertim de eo, qui illorum Thomam peculiariter non coluerat, forsitan poterat cum eo mitius—benigniusque actum—fuisse. Deum testor, qui omnia novit, hunc processum, qui cum eo servatus fuit usque ad revocationem et librorum suorum exustionem, vehementissime dispicuisse Mag. Engelino de Brunsvico, maximo Theologo, et Mag. Johanni Keisersbergio, duobus utique viris (both preachers at the time in Strasburg) cum doctis, tum integris. Praecipue Mag. Engelino visum fuit nimis praeceperanter cum tanto viro actum esse. Immo non verebatur asserere, multos articulos ejus et majorem partem posse sustineri. Nec obticuit de similitate Thomistarum contra Modernos, et de gaudio triumphandi Religiosorum contra Saeculares. Quis nisi ipse Diabolus seminavit illam zizaniam inter philosophos et inter theologos, ut tanta sit dissensio—inter eos, qui Thomam, qui Scotum, qui Marsilium imitantur, adeo ut, si universalia quisquam realia negaverit, existimetur in Spiritum Sanctum peccavisse?—Unde haec caecitas mentis, nisi a Diabolo? qui, ne utiliora, ne honestiora, ne moribus, virtutibus et saluti animarum conducentia discamus, phantasias nostras illudit, et trahit ad res minus salutares, et ad gelidas harum intentionum speculations, quibus neque ad Deum devoti reddimur, neque ad proximi dilectionem inflammamur. Et ideo minus aedificamus in Ecclesia Dei, neque fervor Christianorum videtur augeri, sed indies diminui.

With regard to the source of the doctrines of faith, Epist. Apologet. in Walch, ii. 1, p. 10: Sola scriptura canonica fidem indubiam et irrefragabilem habet auctoritatem. Antiquorum Patrum scripta tantum habent auctoritatem, quantum canonicae veritati sunt conformia. Haec fideli sunt amplectenda, quia canonica veritate student approbare quae dicunt. Modernorum vero doctorum, maxime Ordinum Mendicantium, scripta, pro opinionibus innixa nec fundamentum habent solidum, nec veritate illustrant intellectum, sed variis argumentorum implicationibus ipsam nudam et simplicem veritatem obnubilantia, vanitati magis deserviunt quam veritati. (Cf. Dialogus in Walch, iv. p. 77 ss.) Four errors in reference to the evangelical law, Dialog. p. 83: Primus fuit illorum, qui cum lege evangelica, quam Christus suis sequacibus sub modicis praeceptis et paucis sacramentis liberam dereliquerit, onerosam etiam servitutem legis Mosaicae necessariam fore ad salutem contendebant. P. 84: Secundum genus errorum est illorum, qui perfectionem Christianae vitae ita in sola fide constituerunt, et opera fidei sibi nec. ssaria non crediderunt, ita ut credentes in Christo et bonum fidei habentes, omnia sibi alia licere arbitrati sint. P. 91: Tertium genus errorum est illorum, qui utrumque actum tam interioris volitionis quam exterioris operationis ad Christianae vitae perfectionem necessarium credunt: sed, quod naturales vires liberi arbitrii, sive naturalis facultas humanae naturae absque auxilio divinae gratiae ad hoc sufficiat, impie dogmatisare non erubescunt. Haec fuit haeresis Pelagiana, quae, quamvis ab Ecclesia sit condemnata,—in quorundam tamen cordibus quaedam reliquiae ex ea serpere reperiuntur.—P. 99: Hinc in exterioribus observantiis et caeremoniis rigor intolerabilis exhibetur, et circa deficientes fratres benignitas caritatis negligitur. Motus appetitus sui infatigabiliter exequuntur, traditiones hominum magno amore amplectuntur, sed potiora legis praeterire reperiuntur. P. 109: Quartum genus erroris est illorum, qui—in hoc desipiunt, quod ad perfectiora opera legis evangelicae facienda libertatem spiritus secundum Interiorem motum fidei non sufficere contendunt, sed ad hoc obligationem voti necessario requiri, impie dogmatisare non erubescunt; ita ut libertatem evangelicam in servitatem obligatoriam redigentes a pharisaea superstitione non multum distare reperiantur. Hic est error nostri temporis, qui cum Pelagiana haeresi in multis convenire cognoscitur. P. 112: He designates St. Thomas, in this respect, as princeps erroris. P. 114 ss.: He proves that—voluntas voventis non firmatur in bono ex voto. P. 115: Religiosi possunt a bono virtutis deficere, et facinorosissimi fieri. Quod non est necesse per rationes probabiles adstruere, quia multorum vita nefandissima hoc declarat manifeste, ita ut vulgo dicatur: quod Monachus audet praesumere, hoc Sathanas erubesceret excogitare. P. 122: Aeterna beatitudinis praemium non est aliud, quam summi amoris exercitium. P. 124: Crea voluntas largitate divinae bonitatis repletur, et ejus amore inflammata, ad reciprocum amorem assurgit. Unde sicut in ea continua et sine fine duratura erit tanta divinae bonitatis influentia, sic continua et aeterna erit ejus creatae voluntatis ad Deum cum pleno amoris refluxus. P. 139: Anima rationalis eodem modo reducitur in Deum, quomodo exit a Deo. Sed per libertatem divinae voluntatis exit a Deo, ergo per libertatem sua voluntatis debet reduci in Denum. (Cf. Epist. Apolog. in Walch, II. 1, p. 19: Qua de causa Apostolus in omni scriptura et doctrina sua ita laborat ab evangelica libertate mosaicam servitatem excludere? Huc utique, ut omnibus patenter claresceret, neminem posse legem evangelicam nisi per libertatem Spiritus meritorie observare. Nec mirum, quia lex evangelica est lex amoris. Amare autem nemo potest, nisi per voluntatis libertatem.) P. 142: Praecepta evangelica—non ad humanae voluntatis libertatem onerandam, sed ad ipsam libertatem dirigendam ordinantur.—Sunt enim haec praecepta lumen divinae caritatis tenebris humanae ignorantiae coelitus infusum, quo divinae voluntatis beneplacitum, quae est regula omnis creatae voluntatis, manifestatur, et ad ejus conformitatem creatae voluntas dirigitur. To the question, Quare ergo Ecclesia votum fieri ordinavit, et cum tanta solemnitate fieri decrevit, si nihil boni supernaturalis in voluntate voventis efficit? an answer is given p. 164: Ecclesia mater est fidelium: in matribus autem plus solet abundare affectus, quam vigore intellectus. Et ideo in quibusdam actibus Ecclesiac magis attendendus est affectus pietatis, quam lumen discretionis. Unde fit, ut quamvis Ecclesia militans aliquando erret in effectu, eo quod Ecclesia militans fallitur et fallit; non tamen errat in affectu, quia quicquid circa Ecclesiae filios ordinat ad profectum eorum, procul dubio materno affectu disponere laborat. P. 167: Votum religionis propter infirmos et instabiles Ecclesia ordinavit, qui ad perfectam legis evangelicae observantiam sub communi institutione Christianae religionis aliter induci non poterant, ut per exteriorem obligationem sub jugo evangelicae libertatis vivere assuescerent, qui absque obligatione ad hoc non poterant edomari. Cum igitur haec ita se habeant, valde est a veritate alienum, quod quidam Religiosorum ad tam superstitionem elationem religiones extollunt, quod in suam contumeliam status eas perfectionis dicere non erubescant. P. 177: Divina ordinatio et constitutio est sufficientissima ad summam et perfectissimam legis evangelicae observationem, et non indiget nova institutione vel ordinatione. Et ideo positivae constitutiones Ecclesiae, ordinationi divinae superadditae, non sunt, nisi quaedam exteriores honestac observantiae, ordinatae vel propter maiorem reverentiam in suscipiendis vel tractandis sacramentis, ut jejuno stomacho sacramentum eucharistiae percipere,—et similia, quae nihil faciunt ad sacramenti veritatem, sed ad honorem et dignitatem. P. 180: Quod illa necessitas coactionis sit per se causa boni productiva, vel quod sit per se bonum meritorium, quemadmodum Thomistae affirmant, omnino negamus, immo falsum esse, et haeresi Pelagianae vicinum esse dicimus.—Positiva constitutio Ecclesiae—non potest se extendere ad interiorem motum voluntatis, in quo est principium merendi, sed solum ad substantiam actus exterioris, qui potest fieri absque auxilio gratiae secundum facultatem voluntatis. Dicere ergo, quod votum sit able to teach similar doctrines unmolested; and the still more deeply penetrating John Wessel¹⁷ (Lux mundi, Magister contradictionum), after having discharged many different academic offices at Cologne, Louvain, Paris, and Heidelberg, was allowed to end his life in peace at Groningen, his native place († 1489), although he professed a doctrine which Luther afterward acknowledged to be entirely identical with his own.¹⁸

causa productiva meriti,—non est aliud dicere, quam quod exteriore actu voluntatis absque auxilio gratiae potest aeterna beatitudo mereri.—Haec fuit insania Pelagii haereticorum, etc.—P. 199: Vita sacerdotalis, secundum eminentiam status sacerdotalis et dignitatem Ordinis regulata, est vere et simpliciter apostolica, et summa perfectio religionis Christianae. P. 207: Ex sacramentorum primaria institutione, et ex divina ordinatione licet omnibus sacerdotibus omnia sacramenta dispensare.—Quod ergo nunc temporis Episcopis licet conferre aliqua, quae non licent sacerdotibus,—hoc est vel propter Ecclesiae consuetudinem vel constitutionem. Multa enim Ordini sacerdotali per consuetudinem vel constitutionem Ecclesiae sunt ablata, quae divina constitutione ei sunt collata.

Several of his treatises were sent from Holland to Luther, and first published under the title Farrago Wesseli (probably, Witteb. 1521), 4, since 1522 several times at Wittenberg, Basle and Marburg, as Farrago Rerum Theologicarum uberrima, doctiss. Viro Wesselo Groningensi auctore (compare Ullmann s. 461 ff.). In Luther's preface, prefixed to the later editions, is the passage: Prodiit en Wesselus (quem Basilium dicunt) Phrisius Groningen. vir admirabilis ingenii, rari et magni spiritus, quem et ipsum appareat esse vere Theodidactum, quales prophetavit fore Christianos Jesaias, neque enim ex hominibus accepisse judicari potest, sicut nec ego. Hic si mihi antea fuisset lectus, poterat hostibus meis videri Lutherus omnia ex Wesselo hausisse, adeo spiritus utriusque concordat. The complete edition, M. Wesseli Gansfortii Opera, quae inveniri potuerunt omnia (ed. Petrus Pappus a Tratzberg), Groning. 1614. 4, comprises, besides the Farrago, five treatises and a collection of letters. For Wessel's theology see Ullmann, s. 187 ff. His doctrine of justification, De magnitudine passionis, c. 45 (Opp. p. 550): Arbitramur hominem justificari per fidem Jesu Christi absque operibus (Rom. iii. 28), et fides sine operibus emortua est (Jac. ii. 27): diversum dicunt Apostolus Paulus et Jacobus, verum non adversum. Communis utrique sententia est, justum ex fide vivere, fide inquam, per dilctionem operante. Cap. 46, p. 553: Qui per opera sua justificari putat, non novit, quid sit justus. Justus est, qui unicuique quod suum est tribuit. Sed quis homo unquam absolvit, ut Deo esset qualis esse debet, omni homini sit qualis esse debet? Nescit quod sit suum debitum, nescit etiam quanta sit futurorum honorum exspectatio, quam nullis operibus aequare potest: *neque solum hac ignorantia errat, sed et sacrilegii (reus est), gloriam justificationis non Deo, sed sibi tribuens. Hence it is manifest that, with all the differences of opinion as do faciat et patiatur; non sua opera, non se operantem extollit, sed extensus totus et propensus in eum quem amat, a quo credit, cupit, sperat, confidit, justificatur, nihil sibi ipsi tribuit, qui scit nihil habere ex se. Cap. 47, p. 554: Praecepit igitur lex perfectio nem, sed nihil adduxit ad perfectum. Sed quid? Num Evangelium duxit ad perfectum? Utique. Quem igitur? Omnem credentem, quoniam omni credenti Christus finis legis est ad justitiam, et fructus, quoniam ipse est, qui dat potestatem filios Dei fieri his qui credunt in nomine ejus. Credendo verbo adhaerent Verbo. Verbum Deus est. Credendo igitur Deo adhaerent: et adhaerere Deo bonum est, quia qui adhaeret Deo, unus cum eo spiritus fit, cum justo justus, cum sancto sanctus.—Quae sit vera communio Sanctorum? Opp. p. 809: Vera essentiali unitate communicant Sancti omnes, quotquot una tida, una spe, una charitate Christo cohaerent, sub quibuscunque Praelatis, quantumlibet ambitione contendentibus, aut dissentientibus, aut errantibus, etiam haereticis Praelatis degant.—Et haec est illa sanctorum communio, de qua in Symbolo: credo Sanctorum communionem.—Constat, quod valde possibile, Graecum vera pietate affectum omnia credere in Constantinopoli sub suo Patriarcha schismatico quae Latinus Romae credit: quid illi nocet suorum haeretica pravitas? Unitas ergo Ecclesiae sub uno Papa tantum accidentalis est, adeo ut non sit necessaria, licet conferens multum in Sanctorum communione. On Church authority, and its position relative to Scripture, De Potestate Ecclesiastica, Opp. p. 753: Pastor gregem Domini pascere positus est. Verum quia grex pascendus rationis et liberi arbitrii est, non prorsus in potestate pastoris traditus est, ut nihil ab eo exigatur, nisi pastori obediens. Debet enim ovis ipse dinosse quibus pascatur, quibus inficiatur, et quomodo cunque, oblatam etiam a pastore ipso, vitare pestiferam infectionem. Et in hoc si sequatur pastorem, non excusat. Debet ergo populus pastores ad pascua sequi. Quando vero non pascit, pastor non est: neque tunc, velut in officioso, grex ei parere tenetur. P. 769: Nemo magis Ecclesiam destruit, quam corruptus Clerus. Destruentibus Ecclesiam omnes Christiani tenentur resistere, usque etiam ad ultimos, puta rusticos juxta illud 2 Thess. iii. 6. Sancta quippe rusticitas quantum Ecclesiam Dei aedificat vitae merito, tantum nocet, si destruentibus eam non resistit. P. 759: Propter Deum Evangelio credimus, et propter Evangelium Ecclesiae et Papae, non Evangelio propter Ecclesiam. Unde quod Augustinus (contra Epist. Manichaei, c. 6: ego vero Evangelio non crederem, nisi me catholicae Ecclesiae commoveret auctoritas) de Evangelio et Ecclesia dicit, originis de credendo verbum est, non comparationis aut preferentiae. Dixit enim Apostolis Dominus Jesus: Praedicate omni creaturae, docentes eos servare quaecunque praecepi vobis (Matth. xxviii. 19, 20). Non igitur audiendi, nisi quantum missi: non missi, nisi cum Evangelio: non evangelisantes, nisi secundum Evangelium. Sed quia verisimilius est, unum aliquem penes Evangelium toti multitudini contradicentem errare, quam totam doctorum virorum Ecclesiam, ideo debet, quicunque ille fuerit, semper suspectum se habere, et formidare de errore. Verum quia scit, non impossibile, multos Doctores errare, debet semper adparentem Evangelii veritatem primo amplecti. Debet igitur sedulo diligenter inquirere veritatem et intelligentiam Evangelii. Debet tertio rationes contradictorium diligenter attendere, et illi parti, quam vicinorem Evangelio invenerit, firmiter adhaerere.—Ex illo verbo Domini Jesu: super cathedram Mosis sederunt scribae et Pharisei: omnia ergo, quae dixerint vobis servare, servate et facite (Matth. xxiii. 2, 3), multi Praelatorum Ecclesiae trahunt erroneam et falsam intelligentiam. Putant enim ex hoc verbo datam eis authenticam potestatem, ut obligare possint auditorem ad servandum et faciendum quae dicunt.—Oportet tam Praelatorum quam Doctorum praecepta sic servare et facere, quemadmodum Paulus (1 Thess. v. 21, see p. 756) monuit, hoc est, quam diu in cathedra Mosis sedentes secundum Mosen dicunt. Et si quid extra vel contra, non magnopere ligat fideles contra legem perfectae libertatis. Dei enim servi sumus, non Papae: cui utique serviremus, si ad omniam ejus qualiacunque obligaremur. Dictum est autem: Domum Deum tuum adorabis, et illi soli servies (Matth. iv. 10). P. 748: Papa tenetur credere et obligatur cum omnibus obligatis fidelibus. Et quando credit sicut obligatur, tunc fideles obligantur credere quod ipse credit: non quia ipse credit, sed quia credit quod credere debet.

Et si aliis melius eo crediderit, quod credere debet, ipse Papa debet cum illo credere quoconque, etiam laico et muliere.—Unde concluditur, quod licet verisimiliter praesumendum sit, summum Pontificem et Praelatos tanto rectius ad veritatem Evangelii incedere, quanto ceteris aliis altius in sublime dignitatis eleveti sunt, et ita, ceteris paribus, potius illis, quam alicui subditorum credendum; non tamen simpliciter subditos obligatos ad credendum illis. Hoc nempe adeo irrationabile est et blasphemiae plenum, ut etiam quacunque haeresi pestilentius inveniatur. Potest nempe Praelatus errare.—Summorum enim Pontificum plerique pestilenter erraverunt, ut novissimis diebus nostris in Constantia, celebri Concilio claruit, Benedictus, Bonifacius, et Johannes XXIII. quam graviter fidem lacerarint. Et nostris postremis diebus Pius II. et Sixtus IV., quorum alter patentibus bullis regna terrarum sibi vindicavit, alter turpissimas dispensationes, non solum de praestito in causa civili juramento, sed etiam de praestando—emisit in abusu potestatis Apostolicae; quicquid F. Petrus vel Comes Hieronymus insolenter aut avare gesserunt, ipse postea cum resciret ratificavit, etiam bullis plumbatis. De sacramento poenitentiae, p. 779: Contra communem opinionem de monarchia Romani Pontificis est, quod impossibile homini est fines orbis terrae nosse, qui nullo unquam cosmographo omnes comprehensi sunt. Quomodo igitur judicabit, quos nosse non poterit? Quomodo judicabit fidem, quorum lingua ignorat? Unitatem igitur Ecclesiae sibi Spiritus Sanctus fovendam, vivificantam, conservandam retinuit et augendam, non Romano Pontifici, saepe non curanti, reliquit. On the Lord's Supper, De sacram. Eucharistiae, c. 24, p. 696 s.: Ubiunque nomen ejus benedictum,—vere illic ipse est non solum divinitate praesens et benevolentia, sed etiam corporaliter praesens.—Non hic dico, datum cuilibet homini Christiano, ut possit, cum velit, sacramentaliter per Eucharistiam habere praesentem: hoc enim solis datum est sacerdotibus. Sed hoc dico, vere praesentem commemoranti nomen ejus, vere praesentem Dominum Jesum non sola deitate sua, sed et carne sua et sanguine, et humanitate tota. Quis enim dubitabit, corporaliter saepe praesentem Dominum Jesum suis fidelibus in eorum agoniibus, non propter hoc dimisso in coelestibus consessu ad dexteram Patris? Quis dubitabit, ita posse hoc simul tempore fieri extra Eucharistiam, sicut in Eucharistia? Cap. 28, p. 703: Sic participare corpori et sanguini, hoc manducare est magis, quam si decies millies Eucharistiam ad altare de manu sacerdotis arido corde, frigida voluntate, licet etiam in statu salutis, capiamus. Cap. 8, p. 673: Corpus autem et sanguis Domini Jesu quantumlibet sancta sint, corpora tamen sunt, non spiritus. Unde si corporaliter tantum sumantur, non solum non spiritualiter reficiant manducantem, sed occident.—Unde Dominus (Jo. vi. 63): Spiritus est, qui vivificat, caro non prodest quidquam, h. e. parum est de carne quantumlibet sancta, sed operis magnitudo, et ineffabilis dilectio, et charitas offerentis per Spiritum Sanctum, illa est quae vivificat. Cap. 10. p. 678: Valde notandum verbum Domini (Jo. vi. 53): nisi manducaveritis, non habebitis vitam in vobis. Habent autem vitam veram, qui credunt in eum. Ergo qui credunt in eum, hi sunt, qui manducant carnem ejus.—Manducabat ergo Paulus primus Eremita etiam temporibus illis, quibus mortalem nullum, ne dicam sacerdotem communicantem, videbat. Sed manducabat, quia credebat; et quod credebat, crebro commemorabat, etc. On penance, De Sacram. poenitentiae, p. 789: Dicunt communiter, ad integratatem Sacramenti poenitentiae tria concurrere, contritionem, confessionem, satisfactionem. Sed hi, si intelligerent vim verbi in Psalmo (li. 18): Cor contritum et humiliatum Deus non despicies, non tam importune instarent. Quid enim est cor contritum, nisi cor ad minima comminutae et contractae duritiae obduratae mentis humiliatum cor?—Si ergo, qui cor durum conterit et abjicit, cor pium et spontaneum Deo non despiciendum offert, profecto jam humiliato corde justus, et jam Deo satisfactum in remissionem peccatorum. Non ergo prima contritio, neque postrema satisfactio ad Sacramentum poenitentiae vivificantis et justificantis ex morte ad vitam necessariae sunt, licet sine vera contritione, etc., sicut nec sine vera humilitate vita Spiritus vel reddit, vel conservatur. Participatio sacramentorum est opus gratiae, non justitiae.—Poenitentia, si sacramentum est, contritione non eget, quia contritio justitiae opus est, et ita contritus ante sacramentum justus.—Infusae jam gratiae opus est contritio, detestatio videlicet peccati, opus merae justitiae: non ergo pars sacramenti poenitentiae, quia sacramentum poenitentiae praecedit, et operatur justificationem. P. 791: Neque dolor, neque tristitia, neque contritio in oculis Dei accepta sunt magis, quam amor, ex quo procedunt. P. 777: Nullus confitetur, nisi memor. Nullus memor, nisi justificatus ad vitam.—Patet ergo, quod antequam quis confiteatur peccatum suum, jam a reatu suae preevaricationis, quo aeterna sibi supplicia debebantur, per gratiam internae compunctionis absolvitur. P. 795: Confessio sacramentalis ex forma sua non est judicialis, ita ut, si non adsit judicium—confessoris, non sit actus confitentis et absolventis vere verum sacramentum. Sufficit enim ad veritatem efficacis sacramenti, ut confitens vere et fideliter dicat, confessor post acceptam illius confessionem absque judiciali discussione absolvat. Quia sicut poenitentis confessione lavat poenitentem Deus, et non peccator; ita sacerdotis absolutione dimittit Deus, et non confessor. Hi ministerium exhibent, sed mysterium operatur Deus.—De confitente et confessione solum judicat Deus, nihil de confessis peccatis. Quomodo enim judicare creditur confessa, qui confitenti promisit omnia retroacta per solam confessionem condonare? Stulte ergo faciunt, qui post confessionem non solum judicant, sed etiam post absolutionem terrores fiunt, flagris feriunt, virgis percutiunt. P. 796: Valde irrationaliter de Sacramento confessionis loquuntur, qui adjunctam satisfactionem adserunt essentiali-alem partem poenitentiae. Primo, quia detractant sacramentali sufficientiae, qui non putant, Principis donationem sufficere ad remissionem. Secundo, falsificant verbum absolutionis, quia, cum dicunt absolvo, postea ligant, et innodatum dimittunt. Sed quod omnium gravius est, universum sacramentum periclitant, quia protrahunt usque in peractam totaliter poenitentiam injunctam. Unde si fragilis ille iterum tempore medio labatur durante sacramento propter obicem positum in parte sacramenti, totum sacramentum facit nullum fuisse. Quae enim essentialiter unum constituent, unius nullitate omnia fiunt nulla. Ou indulgence, Epist. ad Jac. Hoeck de indulgentiis, p. 878: A pueru ridiculum et indignum semper mihi visum credere, aliquem hominem suo decreto posse facere, quo bonum in oculis Dei ut quatuor, fieret bonum ut octo.—Num tibi leves aut fuitiles causae videntur, quibus ab hac nova indulgentiarum adsertione Patres ante Albertum ac Thomam, ut ipsi scripto testantur, discesserunt, asserentes, nihil esse nisi piam fraudem, ac dolum non malum, quo plebs officioso errore trahatur ad pietatem? De Sacram. poenitentiae, p. 773: Pari passu auctoritatis seu potestatis clavium ambulant indulgentiae et excommunicatio, neque plus potest Papa in reconciliandis Deo animabus, quam possit alienandis. Sed in excommunicandis nihil potest, nisi per forum ecclesiasticum foris ad oculum separare, et destituere etiam corpora mortuorum ecclesiastica sepulta: similiter in indulgentiis a vinculo Canonum et censuris liberare. Deo autem praeter simplicem usum aut abusum fidei, spei et charitatis nihil est quod conciliare aut alienare posset. Non enim reconciliatus Deo per gratiam sacramentalem et caritatem plus ei reconciliatur arbitrio aut aestimatione Papae, aut excommunicatione Papae magis alienatur a Deo. Non enim licet excommunicare, si magis alienaret a Deo. Non enim licet ei facere magis peccatores, etc. Fidelis et prudens in domo Domini sui servus nihil facit praeter et extra voluntatem Domini sui: et quidquid facit in domo Domini sui, Dominus ratum et firmum habet.—Nec ad hoc eum Ordinis dignitas authenticat, sed charitas per Spiritum Sanctum diffusa in corde.—Immo nec sexus femineus obstat, quin si fidellis et prudens charitatem habeat diffusam in corde suo, possit et ipse conformiter sentire, judicare, favere, diffinire divino iudicio. On purgatory, De purgatorio, p. 829: Purgatorium ignis est, qui interioris hominis sordes etiam carne soluti comitantes purgat potius, quam torquet.—Has maculas intellectualis disciplinae ignis secundum Apostolum (1 Cor. iii. 11 ss.) probat,—et lignum, foenum, stipulam exurit, donec super unicum, verum, solum et solidum fundamentum, Jesum Christum, nihil remanet superaedificatum, nisi argentum, aurum, lapides pretiosi. P. 834: Sunt igitur (defuncti) in tali statu, quem si sciremus gauderemus. In statu igitur non misero, non sub virga lictoris, aut in igne praeparato Diabolo et angelis ejus, sed sub disciplina Patris instituentis, et eorum quotidiano profectu gaudentis. P. 846. Thesis 33: Quod Christi Evangelium est solum, verum, praecipuum purgatorium, licet etiam alia minus principaliter possint rationabiliter tolerari. 34. Quod idem ergo verum purgatorium est

REFORMATORY INFLUENCE OF THE REVIVAL OF LETTERS.

Fresh aids, entirely wanting to the schoolmen, for a scientific examination of ecclesiastical matters, were furnished by the unsealing of ancient lore.¹ Already, in the fourteenth century, Dante and Petrarch drew attention in Italy to the old Roman poets; and Boccaccio had awakened an interest for the Greeks also. But Latin literature was first established on firmer and more comprehensive ground by John of Ravenna, teacher of Latin at Padua and Florence († before 1420); Greek literature by Emanuel Chrysoloras, who labored in this cause at Florence and Pavia, † 1415. The decline of the Grecian empire, and the final fall of Constantinople, induced many learned Greeks to seek refuge in Italy (from 1420 to 1430: George of Trapezium, † 1484; John Argyropylus, † 1486; Theodore Gaza, † 1478. At the time of the Council of Florence in 1438: Bessarion, † 1472; George Gemistius Pletho, who returned to Greece in 1441. After the conquest of Constantinople, in 1453: Emanuel Moschopylus, Constantine Lascaris, Demetrius Chalkondylas). In contrast with their one-sided partiality for Hellenism, a feeling of patriotism was constantly awakened in Italy, to vindicate with due honor Roman antiquity also: thus there soon arose numerous learned Italians, distinguished in Grecian and Roman literature (Gasparinus, † 1431; John Aurispa, † 1459; Guarinus, † 1460; Leonardo Bruno Aretinus, † 1444; Poggius, † 1459; Francia Philephus, † 1481; Laurentius Valla, † 1456; Nicholas Perottus, † 1480; Christopher Laudinus, † 1504; Philip Beroaldus the elder, † 1504; Hermolaus Barbarus, † 1493; Angelo Politianus, † 1494). Many Italian princes made the encouragement of ancient literature a matter of hon-

when he saw a picture of Dr. John Zacharias, decorated with a rose in acknowledgment of his services in the condemnation of Huss, he exclaimed: "O wehe, ich wollte nicht gern die Rosen mit denen Ehren tragen." or (especially the Medici at Florence, Cosmo from 1429 to 1464, and Lorenzo from 1469 to 1492; Alphonso V., king of Aragon and Naples, from 1442 to 1458; Pope Nicolas V., from 1447 to 1455), and thus even in the fifteenth century learning was widely extended and highly esteemed in Italy.

Especially was the cultivation of the taste, to be obtained from the ancient writers, universally valued, without considering that, on the one hand, the servile admiration and imitation of antiquity, in which the newly-awakened love for it found its expression among the humanists, necessarily endangered their attachment to the Church; while, on the other hand, fresh impulses and facilities for making hazardous investigations into Church doctrines and opinions would be furnished by the scientific knowledge of ancient learning. The Italian humanists anxiously avoided every thing which looked as though their learning had any points of contact with theology. Laurentius Valla, teacher at Naples and Rome (1456), was the only one² who showed, in a few cases, the dangerous influence which researches into antiquity might exercise upon Church opinions. The new Platonists, who took their rise from the Platonic Academy³ founded by Cosmo de Medici, with the help of Gemistius Pletho, at Florence in 1440, adopted in Neoplatonism a philosophical syncretism, exposed to the most manifold superstitions, which for the most part coincided with the Church system.⁴ Nevertheless, by reason of its independent prin-

² With regard to him, see Tiraboschi, Storia della Litteratura Italiana VI., ii. p. 301 ss. Heeren, Th. 2, s. 243 ff. How he was pronounced a heretic by the clergy on account of certain philosophical works, in which he defended Epicureanism and maintained offensive doctrines with regard to free will, he records himself in his Apologia pro se et contra calumniatores ad Eugenium P. IV. Then, he denied the genuineness of the correspondence between Christ and Abgarus, and declared the commonly received account of the origin of the Apostles' creed to be false. Most remarkable is his work, De ementita Constantini Donatione Declamatio ad Papam.—Opera. Basil., 1543. fol.

⁴ Tennemann's Gesch. der Philosophie. Bd. 9, s. 138 ff. The men most distinguished in this line were Marsilius Ficinus, teacher in the Platonic Academy at Florence, († 1499; see J. G. Schelhorn, De Vita, Moribus et Scriptis Mars. Fic., in his Amoenitatt. Liter., i. p. 37), and Joannes Picus, count of Mirandula († 1494; his life, by his nephew, Jo. Franc. Picus, is prefixed to the works of both. Basil. 1573 and 1601. 2 Bde. fol. Meiners Lebensbeschreibungen, Bd. 2, s. 3 ff.). Jo. Picus was the first to introduce the Jewish Cabbala also into this syncretism. He says of the Cabballistic writings, Apologia, Opp. i. p. 82: Hos ego libros non mediocri impensa mihi cum comparasse, summa diligentia, indefessis laboribus cum perlegisset, vidi in illis (testis est Deus) religionem non tam Mosaicam, quam Christianam; ibi Trinitatis mysterium, ibi verbi incarnatio, ibi Messiae divinitas, ibi de peccato originali, de illius per Christum ex-

ple, and its internal vitality, it was by no means unlikely to cause danger to the Church.⁵ In opposition to this Platonism, the genuine Aristotelian system also recovered some adherents,⁶ and led them into a dangerous skeptical tendency.⁷ This skepticism, supported partly by some isolated attempts at historical criticism, partly by disregard for every thing which did not belong to the piatione, de coelesti Hierusalem, de casu Daemonum, de ordinibus Angelorum, de purgatoriis, de inferorum poenis eadem legi, quae apud Paulum et Dionysium, apud Hieronymum et Augustinum quotidie legimus. In his vero, quae spectant ad philosophiam, Pythagoram prorsus audias et Platonem, quorum decreta ita sunt fidei Christianae affinia, ut Augustinus noster immensas Deo gratias agat, quod ad ejus manus pervenerint libri Platonicorum.

⁵ This was especially displayed in the 900 theses which John Picus, when twenty-four years old, in 1486, sent out to the whole world, to be discussed in Rome. He himself records the impression which this step made in Rome, Apologia, Opp. i. p. 76: Aliqui philosophiam et literas omnino carpere, illud etiam (ut viderentur scioli) quandoque addentes, ejectum Adam de Paradiso, quod per scientiam boni et mali aequalem se Diis facere voluit: exterminandos pari exemplo de Christi curia, qui volunt sapere plus quam oportet.—Ex his autem, qui sapientiam, i. e. theologiae studium, profitebantur, quidam fuere, qui conviciis forte levioribus non contenti, non jam audacem me, non temerarium, non gloriosum, sed magum, sed impium, sed novum in Christi Ecclesia haeresiarcham praedicarent. The following thirteen Theses were designated as objectionable. Opp. i. p. 42: I. Christus non veraciter, et quantum ad realem praesentiam descendit ad inferos, ut ponit Thomas et communis via, sed solum quoad effectum. II. Peccato mortali finiti temporis non debetur pena infinita secundum tempus, sed finita tantum. III. Nec crux Christi, nec ulla imago adoranda est adoratione latriae, etiam eo modo, quo ponit Thomas. IV. Non assentior communi sententiae theologorum dicentium, posse Deum quamlibet naturam suppositare, sed de rationali tantum hoc concedo. V. Nulla est scientia, quae nos magis certificet de divinitate Christi, quam Magia et Cabala. VI. Si teneatur communis via de possibiliate suppositionis in respectu ad quamcunque creaturam, dico, quod sine conversione panis in corpus Christi, vel panei tatis annihilatione potest fieri, ut in altari sit corpus Christi secundum veritatem sacramenti Eucharistiae: quod sit dictum loquendo de possibili, non de sic esse. VII. Rationabilius est credere Origenem esse salvum, quam credere ipsum esse damnatum. VIII. Dico probabiliter, et nisi esset communis modus dicendi theologorum in oppositum, firmiter assererem: assero tamen hoc dictum in se esse probabile, et est quod, sicūt nullus opinatur aliquid ita esse praecise, quia vult sic opinari, ita nullus credit aliquid esse verum praecise, quia vult credere id esse verum. IX. Qui dixerit, accidens existeret non posse, nisi inexistent, Eucharistiae poterit sacramentum tenere, etiam tenen-do, panis substantiam non remanere, ut tenet communis via. X. Illa verba, “Hoc est corpus, etc.,” quae in consecratione dicuntur, materialiter tenentur, non significative. XI. Miracula Christi non ratione rei factae, sed ratione modi faciendi suaे divinitatis argumentum certissimum sunt. XII. Magis impropre dicitur de Deo, quod sit intellectus vel intelligens, quam de anima rationali, quod sit Angelus. XIII. Nihil intelligit actu et distincte anima, nisi se ipsam.

province of philology, was shared by many of the Italian humanists, and worked among them an unbelief which not unfrequently infringed upon the most generally admitted truths of religion,⁸

but nevertheless concealed itself beneath an outward adherence to the Church. Only scholasticism, though in fact a main support of the Church, might be assailed without disguise, and held up to ridicule for its barbarism⁹ and its reverence of a perverted without analogous cases. Erasmi Responsio Nervosa ad Albertum Pium, Principem Carpensem, in v. d. Hardt. Hist. lit. Reform. I. p. 173: Qui divina derideant, facilius invenies in Italia apud tui ordinis homines, atque adeo in illa laudatissima Roma, quam apud nos. Idem, lib. xxvi. ep. 34. ad Augustinum Eugubinum (Opp. ed. Cleric. III., ii. p. 1382): At ego Romae his auribus audivi quosdam abominandis blasphemias debacchantes in Christum, et in illius Apostolos, idque multis mecum audientibus, et quidem impune. Ibidem multos novi, qui commemorabant, se dicta horrenda audisse a quibusdam sacerdotibus aulae Pontificiae ministris, idque in ipsa Missa, tam clare, ut ea vox ad multorum aures pervenerit. Id. ad Guolfgangum Fabricium Capitonem (l. c. III., i. p. 189): Omnia mihi pollicentur, rem (bonarum literarum) felicissime successuram: unus adhuc scrupulus habet animum meum, ne sub obtentu priscae literaturae renascentis caput erigere cometur Paganismus, ut sunt et inter Christianos, qui titulo pene duntaxat Christum agnoscent, caeterum intus gentilitatem spirant: aut ne renascentibus Hebraeorum literis Judaismus meditetur per occasionem reviviscere, qua peste nihil adversius, nihilque infensius inveniri potest doctrinae Christi. Sic enim fert natura rerum humanarum, ut nullius unquam boni tanta fuerit felicitas, quin hujus praetextu mali quipiam simul conaretur irrepere. ⁹ Hermolaus Barbarus, Ep. ad Jo. Picum Mirandulae (in Angeli Politiani Epist. lib. ix. Ep. 3), speaks the general opinion of the humanists on this head: Neque enim inter auctores latinae linguae numero Germanos istos et Teutonas (i. e. barbarians), qui ne viventes quidem vivebant, nedum ut exstincti vivant, aut si vivunt, vivunt in poenam et contumeliam. Appellantur enim vulgo sordidi, rudes, inulti, barbari. Quis malit sic esse, quam prorsus non esse? Atenim utile aliquid dixerunt, valuere ingenio, doctrina, bonarum rerum copia: non nego penitus, quod et possum negare: sed sermo nitidus et elegans, saltem purus et castus, qualis vel in auctoribus Christianis graecis latiniisque perspicitur, laudem et memoriam sempiternam scriptoribus conciliat, nisi quis pictorem, et excusorem, et statuarium, et caeteros opifices laudari posse judicet hoc solo, quod magni constet et preciosa sit materia, circa quam versentur. Picus in his reply endeavors to defend the schoolmen (l. c. Ep. 4): Perdiderim, ego inquam, apud Thomam, Joannem Scotum, apud Albertum, apud Averroem meliores annos, tantas vigilias, quibus potuerim in bonis literis fortasse nonnihil esse? He tries to prove, non defuisse illis sapientiam, si defuit eloquentia, quam cum sapientia non conjunxisse, tantum fortasse abest culpa, ut conjunxisse sit nefas. Hermolaus replies to this (l. c. Ep. 5): Illud sane plurimum me delectat, quod sub specie defensionis exitialiter jugulas quos defendis: primum quod hostes eloquentiae tueri se nisi per eloquentes viros non possunt, quasi mancipia, quasi bruta, deinde quod, si te patrono, te vindice, te advocate non elabuntur, neque collectari, neque tergiversari praeterea poterunt. Proinde ab amicis, quos habeo Patavii, certior factus sum, apologiam tuam, quae Scytharum et Teutonum est inscribi coepit,—molestissimam accidisse majori eorum parti quos defendis, aliis aliter factum tuum interpretantibus.—Ad quae si qui sunt ex illis paulo minus asini, volebam dicere ἀμοντοι, auriculas tantum movent: caeteri diffugiunt, respuant, detestantur. Quorum e numero unus aliquis a Gymnasio Patavino (nihil configo, Pice, ridiculam omnino, sed veram historiam denaro) audaculus et insolens, cuiusmodi fere sunt, qui literas humaniores et odio et ludibrio habent, Picus, inquit iste, quisquis est, grammaticus opinor, parvo pedi calceos magnos circumdedit.—Ecquis est, inquit, tam stolidus,—qui patronum hunc egregium cum altero, quisquis est, nefario grammatisca colludere non intelligat? etc.

Aristotle. Paul Cortesius, an apostolic secretary, was the first to endeavor to clothe the Catholic doctrinal system in an ancient Roman garb:¹⁰ but by so doing he only furnished a proof, that servile imitation of the ancients might lead to insipidity as well as encourage a concealed infidelity.¹¹

The study of antiquity assumed a very different attitude with regard to theology in Germany, as soon as it penetrated thither. It found its first reception in the schools of the Brethren of the Common Life.¹² As with them every thing was valued principally in proportion to its influence upon religion, so they recognized from the first the advantage of the new study to religious knowledge. This view, fully corresponding with the deep religious sense of the German people, continued to be maintained by most of the German humanists.¹³ Following the example of the first of their

Lemgov. 1711. 4. p. 321) relates: cum Thomas a Kempis—suscepisset curam scholae Daventriensis, ecce in ea erant discipuli Rodolphus Agricola, Mauritius Comes Spiegelbergicus, Rodolphus Langius, Antonius Liber Susatensis, Ludovicus Dringenbergius Paderbornensis, Alexander Hegius et similes. Illos praceptor, postquam audiret reflorescere studia in Italia,—plerisque hortatur ut se in Italiam reciperent, imo fuit suasor ditionibus tribus, ut Comiti Mauritio et utrique Rodolpho. These persons, then, were the first to introduce from Italy into Germany the humanist culture. Undoubtedly the place assigned to Thomas a Kempis in this statement is entirely untrue (Delprat over de Broederschap van G. Groote, p. 280), however the general import of this tradition is unquestionably true. Compare Meiners, Bd. 2, s. 308 ff.

number, Rudolph Agricola at Heidelberg, † 1485,¹⁴ they did not allow themselves, like the Italians, to be led away into indifference by their closer insight into the corruptions of the Church: but faithful and fearless they gave utterance to their improved knowledge, in order to introduce the required reform. The art of printing, discovered at Mayence in the year 1440,¹⁵ rendered efficient assistance to the new cultivation of literature in general, and particularly to the interchange of thoughts on this subject. Thus, John Reuchlin, from 1502 judge of the Swabian league, 1520 Professor at Ingolstadt, † 1521,¹⁶ though blinded in many respects by his Neoplatonism,¹⁷ draws attention to the lack of Scriptural knowledge in his time, and the means of amendment,¹⁸ and cens-

Goswin relates, se familiaribus item et apertis eorum sermonibus saepius interfuisse, in quibus deplorarent Ecclesiae tenebras, reprehenderent profanationem in Missis, et coelibatum: etiam de justitia fidei disputarent, quid sit, quod Paulus toties inquit, homines fide justos esse, non operibus; illos aperte rejecisse Monachorum opinionem, quae contrarium fingeret; item sensisse de humanis traditionibus, errare eos, qui affingunt illis opinionem cultus, et non posse violari judicant.

²¹ The Colloquia Familiaria belong to the period after the commencement of the reformation, and to the state of mind of Erasmus as influenced thereby. He states himself the aim of the Enchiridion, Ep. ad Jo. Coletum (Opp. III., i. p. 95): Enchiridion non ad ostentationem ingenii aut eloquentiae conscripsi, verum ad hoc solum, ut mederer errori vulgo religionem constituentium in ceremoniis, et observationibus pene plusquam Judaiacis rerum corporalium; ea quae ad pietatem pertinent mire negligentium. How he effected his purpose may appear from the following example. The fourth canon for the Christian life which he laid down in his Enchiridion is (Opp. t. v. p. 25): Ut totius vitae tuae Christum velut unicum scopum praefigas, ad quem unum omnia studia, omnes conatus, omne otium ac negotium conferas. Christum vero esse puta non vocem inanem, sed nihil aliud, quam caritatem, simplicitatem, patientiam, puritatem, breviter quidquid ille docuit. Diabolum nihil alind intellige, quam quidquid ab illis avocat. Thereupon he says, among other things: Sunt qui certos Divos certis quibusdam colunt ceremoniis. Alius Christophorus singulis salutat diebus, sed non nisi conspecta ejus imagine: quo tandem spectans? Nempe huc, quod sibi persuaserit, sese eo die a mala morte tutum fore. Alius Rochum quendam adorat: sed cur? Quod illum credit pestem a corpore depellere. Alius Barbarae, aut Georgio certas preculas admiratur, ne in manus hostium veniat. Hic jejunat Apolloniae, ne doleant dentes. Ille visit divi Job simulacra, ut scabie caret. Nonnulli de lucro certam portionem pauperibus nuncupant, ne merces naufragio intercidant. Hieroni cereolus accenditur, ut res quae perit recipiat. In summa, ad hunc modum, quot res sunt quas vel timemus vel cupimus, totidem iis Divos praefecimus, qui et ipsi diversis nationibus diversi sunt, ut id apud Gallos valeat Paulus, quod apud nostrates Hieron, neque passim id valeat Jacobus aut Joannes, quod illo

atque illo loco. Quae quidem pietas, nisi a respectu commodorum atque incommodorum corporalium ad Christum referatur, a Deo Christiana non est, ut non ita multum absit a superstitione eorum, qui quondam Herculi decimam bonorum partem vovebant, ut disteserent, aut Aesculapio gallum, ut a morbo revalescerent, aut qui Neptuno taurum caedebant, ut feliciter navigarent. Nomina quidem commutata sunt, sed finis utrisque communis. In the Encomium Moriae, Folly says, e. g. (Opp. t. iv. p. 443): Illud hominum genus hand dubie totum est nostrae farinae, qui miraculis ac prodigiosis gaudent mendaciis, vel audiendis vel narrandis.—Atque haec quidem non modo ad levandum horarum taedium mire conducunt, verum etiam ad quaestum pertinent, praecipue Sacrificis et Concionatoribus. His rursum adfines sunt ii, qui sibi stultam quidem, sed tamen jucundam persuasionem induerunt, futurum, ut, si ligneum aut pictum aliquem Polyphemum Christophorum adspexerint, eo die non sint perituri.—Nam quid dicam de iis, qui sibi fictis scelerum condonationibus suavissime blandiuntur, ac Purgatorii spatia veluti clepsydris metiuntur, saecula, annos, menses, dies, horas tanquam e tabula mathematica citra ullum errorem dimetientes. Aut de iis, qui magicis quibusdam notulis ac preculis, quas pius aliquis impostor, vel animi causa, vel ad quaestum excogitavit, freti nihil sibi non pollicentur, opes, honores, voluptates,—denique proximum Christo apud Supéros consessum, quem tamen nolint nisi admodum sero contingere, h. e. cum hujus vitae voluptates invitox eos ac mordicus retinentes tamen deseruerint, tum succedant illae Coelitum deliciae. Hic mihi puta negotiator aliquis, aut miles, aut judex abjecto ex tot rapinis unico nummulo vita Lernam semel expurgatam putat, totque perjuria, tot libidines, tot ebrietates, tot rixas, tot caedes, tot imposturas, tot perfidias, tot prodiciones existimat velut ex pacto redimi, et ita redimi, ut jam liceat ad novum sceleatum orbem de integro reverti. Quid autem stultius iis, imo quid felicius, qui septem illis sacrorum Psalmorum versiculis quotidie recitatis plus quam sumمام felicitatem sibi promittunt? Atque hos magicos versiculos Daemon quispiam, facetus quidem ille, sed futilis magis quam callidus, divo Bernardo creditur indicasse, sed arte circumventus miser. Et haec tam stulta, ut me ipsam propemodum pudeat, tamen approbantur, idque non a vulgo modo, verum etiam a religionis professoribus. Quid jam, nonne eodem fere pertinet, cum singulae regiones suum aliquem peculiarem vindicant Divum, cumque in singulos singula quaedam partiuntur, singulis suos quosdam culturae ritus attribuant, ut hic in dentium cruciatu succurrat, ille parturientibus dexter adsit, alius rem furto sublatam restituat, hic in naufragio prosper adfulgeat, ille gregem tucatur: atque item de cacteris. Nam omnia percensere longissimum fuerit. Sunt qui singuli pluribus in rebus valeant, praecipue Deipara Virgo, cui vulgus hominum plus prope tribuit, quam Filio. Verum ab his Divis quid tandem petunt homines nisi quod ad stultitiam attinet? Agedum inter tot anathemata, quibus templorum quorundam parietes omnes, ac testudinem ipsam refertam conspicitis, vidistisne unquam qui stultitiam effugerit, qui vel pilo sit factus sapientior? Alius enatavit incolumis. Alius ab hoste perfossus vixit.—Alius a marito deprehensus elusit. Nullus pro depulsa stultitia gratias egit. Adeo suavis quaedam res est nihil sapere, ut omnia potius deprecentur mortales, quam Moriam. Sed quid ego hoc superstitionum pelagus ingredior?—Usque adeo omnis omnium Christianorum vita istiusmodi delirationibus undique scatet: quas ipsas tamen Sacrifici non gravatim et admittunt et alunt, non ignari, quantum hinc lucelli soleat accrescere. Inter haec, si quis odiosus sapiens exoriatur, succinatque id, quod res est, non male peribis, si bene vixeris; peccata redimes, si nummulo addideris odinn malefactorum, tum lacrymas, vigilias, precatiores, jejunia, ac totam vitae rationem commutaris; Divus hic tibi favebit, si vitam illius aemulaberis: haec, inquam, atque id genus alia, si sapiens ille obganniat, vide a quanta felicitate repente mortalium animos, in quem tumultum retraxerit? P. 450: Sic sculptus est hominis animus, ut longe magis fucis, quam veris capiatur.—Si quis sit Divus fabulosior et poëticus, quod si exemplum requiris, flinge hujus generis Georgium, aut Christophorum, aut Barbaram; videbitis hunc longe religiosius coli, quam Petrum, aut Paulum, aut ipsum etiam Christum. P. 463: Porro Theologos silentio transire fortasse praestiterit, καὶ ταύτην καμαρίναν οὐ κινεῖν, nec hanc anagyrim tangere, utpote genus hominum mire superciliosum atque irritabile, ne forte turmatim sexcentis conclusionibus adoriantur, et ad palinodiam adigant, quod si recusem, protinus haereticam clamitent. Nam illico solent hoc terrere fulmine, si cui sunt parum propiti. Sane quamquam non alii sunt, qui minus libenter agnoscant meam in se beneficentiam, tamen hi quoque non mediocribus nominibus obstricti sunt, dum felices sua philautia, perinde quasi ipsi tertium incolant coelum, ita reliquos mortaleis omneis ut humi reptantes pecudes e sublimi despiciunt, ac prope commiserantur, dum tanto magistralium definitionum, conclusionum, corollariorum, propositionum explicitarum et implicitarum agmine septi sunt, tot exuberant κρησφυγέτοις, ut nec Vulcaniis vinculis sic possint irretiri, quin elabantur distinctionibus, quibus nodos omneis adeo facile secant, ut non Tenedia bipennis melius: tot nuper excogitatis vocabulis, ac prodigiosis vocibus scatent.—In quibus omnibus tantum est eruditionis, tantum difficultatis, ut existimem ipsis Apostolis alio spiritu opus fore, si cogantur hisce de rebus cum hoc novo Theologorum genere conserere manus. Paulus fidem praestare potuit: at idem cum ait: fides est substantia rerum sperandarum, argumentum non apparentium, parum magistraliter definivit. Idem ut caritatem optime praestitit, ita parum dialectice vel dividit, vel finit in priore ad Cor. epistola c. xiii. etc. With regard to the unprofitable questions of the schoolmen, compare his Annot. in 1 Tim. i. 6, above, § 144, note 7. P. 481: Principum quidem institutum summi Pontifices, Cardinales, et Episcopi jam pridem gnaviter aemulantur, ac prope superant. Porro si quis perpendat, quid linea vestis admoneat, niveo candore insignis, nempe vitam undique inculpatam; quid sibi velit mitra bicornis,—puta Novi pariter et Veteris Instrumenti absolutam scientiam; —haec, inquam, atque id genus multa si quis perpendat, nonne tristem ac sollicitam vitam egerit? At nunc belle faciunt, cum sese pascunt, caeterum ovium curam aut ipsi Christo mandant, aut in Fratres, quos vocant, ac vicarios rejiciunt. Neque vel nominis sui recordantur, quid sonet Episcopi vocabulum, nempe laborem, curam, sollicitudinem. Verum in irretiendis pecuniis plane Episcopos agunt, οὐδὲ ἀλαοσκοπήν.—Jam summi Pontifices, qui Christi vices gerunt, si conentur ejusdem vitam aemulari, nempe paupertatem, labores, doctrinam, crucem, vitae contemptum, si vel Papae i.e. patris nomen, vel Sanctissimi cognomen cogitent: quid erit in terris afflictius? aut quis eum locum omnibus emat facultatibus; emptum gladio, veneno omniq[ue] vi tueatur? Quantum his abstulerit commoditatum, si semel incessiverit sapientia? Sapientia dixi? imo vel mica salis illius, cuius meminit Christus.—At nunc fere, si quid laboris est, id Petro et Paulo relinquitur, quibus abunde satis est otii. Porro si quid splendoris aut voluptatis, id sibi sumunt. Atque ita fit mea quidem opera, ut nullum paene hominum genus vivat mollitus, minusque sollicitum, ut qui abunde Christo satisfactum existiment, si mystico ac paene scenico ornatu, ceremoniis, Beatitudinum, Reverentiarum, Sanctitatum titulis, et benedictionibus ac maledictionibus Episcopos agent. Priscum et obsoletum, nec horum omnino temporum, miracula edere: docere populm, laboriosum: sacras interpretari litteras, scholasticum: orare, otiosum: lacrymas fundere, miserum ac muliebre: egere, sordidum:vinci, turpe parumque dignum eo, qui vir Reges etiam summos ad pedum beatorum admittit oscula: denique mori, inamabile: tolli in crucem, infame. Restant sola haec arma ac benedictiones dulces, quarum meminit Paulus (Rom. xvi. 18), atque harum quidem sunt sane quam benigni, interdictiones, suspensiones, aggravationes, anathematizationes, ultrices picturae, ac fulmen illud terrificum, quo solo nutu mortalium animas vel ultra tartara mitunt. Quod ipsum tamen sanctissimi in Christo patres, et Christi vicarii in nullos torquent acrius, quam in eos, qui instigante Diabolo patrimonia Petri minuere atque arrodere conantur. Cujus cum haec vox sit in Evangelio: reliquimus omnia, et sequuti sumus te, tamen hujus patrimonium appellant agros, oppida, vectigalia, portitoria, ditiones. Pro quibus dum zelo Christi accensi, ferro ignique dimicant, non absque plurimo Christiani sanguinis dispendio, tum demum Ecclesiam Christi sponsum sese credunt apostolice defendere, fortiter profligatis, ut vocant, hostibus. vero ulli sint hostes Ecclesiae perniciosiores, quam impii Pontifices, qui et silentio Christum sinunt abolescere, et quaestuariis legibus alligant, et coactis interpretationibus adulterant, et pestilente vita jugulant. P. 485: Jam vero vulgus Sacerdotum, nefas esse dicens, a Praesulum suorum sanctimonia degenerare, euge, quam militariter pro jure decimarum ensibus, jaculis, saxis, omnique armorum vi belligerantur: quam hic oculati, si quid ex veterum litteris possint elicere, quo plebeculam territent, et plus quam decimas deberi convincant. At interim non venit in mentem, quam multa passim legantur de officio, quod illi vicissim praestare populo debeant. Nec saltem admonet eos vertex rarus, Sacerdotem omnibus hujus mundi cupiditatibus liberum esse oportere, neque quidquam nisi coelestia meditari. Sed homines suaves se suo officio probe perfunctos ajunt, si preculas illas suas utcumque permurmurarent, quas me Hercule demiror si quis Deus vel andiat, vel intelligat, cum ipsi fere nec audiant, nec intelligent, tum cum eas ore perstreput.

²² To this number belong, besides his works upon the New Testament, his editions of Cyprian and Jerome, and his translations from the works of Origen, Athanasius, and Chrysostom; especially also the Ratio verae theologiae, Ecclesiastes s. de ratione concionandi, and commentaries on many of the Psalms, collected in his works, ed. Clerici T. v. We may first take his excellent remarks on the development of dogmas and institutions in the Christian Church, as an indication of the degree of his theological perception, Annot. ad Matth. xi. 30, jugum meum suave: Quemadmodum apud Judeos legem per se molestam aggravabant hominum constitutiones, ita cavendum est etiam atque etiam, ne Christi legem, per se blandam ac levem, gravem et asperam reddant humanarum constitutionum ac dogmatum accessiones. Quae sic primum obrepunt, ut vel tanquam pusilla negligantur, vel pietatis specie commendata libenter amplectantur etiam homines probi magis quam providi. Semel recepta paulatim gliscunt augescuntque, donec in immensus aucta jam nolentes premant et obruant, seu consuetudinis, cuius violenta tyrannis est, praesidio, seu Principium auctoritate, quod temere receptum est in suum emolumumentum abutentium, mordicusque retinentium. Quam pura, quam simplex fides a Christo nobis tradita, quam huic simile symbolum, sive ab Apostolis ipsis, sive a viris apostolicis proditum! Huic deinde multum adjunxit Ecclesia, dissidiis Haereticorum dissecta vexataque: quorum etsi quaedam sunt, quae citra fidei dispendium poterant omitti, tamen pleraque videbantur etiamnum ad rem pertinere. Tot jam erant symbola, quot homines, nihil melius bonae fidei signum, quam cum in contractibus res multis ac verbosis syngraphis agitur, quae cum ad excludendas captiones adhibeantur, quo circumspectius scriptae sunt, hoc plus captionum solent fere gignere. Postremo res eo paulatim deducta est, ut Scholasticorum aliquot placita, quos articulos vocant, aut homunculorum quorundam nova quaedam ad fastum comminissentur vel opiniones, vel somnia propemodum aequentur articulis fidei apostolicae. Atque in his nec scholae diversae, nec ejusdem scholae mystae inter se consentiunt: neque apud ipsos perpetua sunt, sed pro tempore mutantur. Et tamen ita primum irrepserunt, ut in scholis tantum haberentur probabiles opiniones. Mox scholae parietes egressae in libros, et in publicas adeo conciones eruperunt. Ac saepenumero fit, ut quod semel utcunque prodidit definendi temeritas, confirmet et augeat tuendī pertinacia. Sunt autem pleraque hujus generis, ut impium sit homini de his definire. Qualia fere sunt, quae de ratione essentiae divinae, deque distinctione Personarum philosophamur.—His proxima sunt, quae de ratione mysteriorum, velut e coelo petita, pronunciamus: cum magis ad pietatem faciat ex his excerpere, quae ad vitae sanctimoniam conducant. Verum haec pronunciandi temeritas a Veteribus orta nunc longius progressa est, quam ut ferri posset. Then he comes to the onus humanarum constitutionum, to the number of the superior clergy, qui religionis imagine personati, ventris agunt negotium, to the mass of church laws concerning clothing, fasts, festivals, vows, marriage, confession, which serve for the oppression of the people and the enrichment of the clergy. In templis vix vacat Evangelium interpretari. Concionis bona pars ad Commissariorum (retailers of indulgences) arbitrium consumenda est. Noununquam et sacrosanta Christi doctrina

aut supprimenda, aut ad illorum rem detorquenda. Ad haec qui modeste pii sunt, taciti secum ingemiscunt. Qui populi malis aluntur, et quorum interest Christi gregem—quam maxime servum esse et obnoxium, adeo non reclamant, ut modis omnibus exagerent. Accedunt iis, qui vel ambient praemium aliquod obsequii, vel timent poenam libertatis. Ita dum nemo succurrit, res paulatim eo prolabitur, ut pene nihil jam pudeat.—Nec ulla superest mendeti spes, nisi si Christus ipse vertat, aut certe excitet Pontificum ac Principum animos ad ea quae verae sunt pietatis: aut Theologi et Concionatores, non seditionis clamoribus, sed sobrie placideque quae Christo digna sunt, magno consensu doceant et inculcent.—Tumultus ubique vitandus: et praestat ferre Principes impios, quam novatis rebus gravius malum accersere (on this principle Erasmus afterward passed judgment upon the reformation of Luther). Ann. ad 1 Cor. vii. 39, he inquires: an liceat ut matrimonia quaedam dirimantur, non temere, sed gravibus de causis, neque per quoslibet, sed per Ecclesiae praefectos, aut judices legitimos, et ita dirimantur, ut liberum sit utriusque cui velit jungi, aut alteri certe, qui divortio non dederit causam. Scio quaedam esse ejus generis, ut nefas sit cen dubia vocare in disputationem.—Quaedam ita recepta sunt auctoritate Ecclesiae, ut pro re nata possint mutari. He supports this last statement with the following examples, while seeking to prove the lawfulness of divorce from the practice of Christian antiquity, and from Holy Writ: In Actis Apostolorum solenni celebrique Concilio decretum ac promulgatum est, ut qui ex Paganismo cooptarentur in Christianos, abstinerent ab idolothytis, a suffocato animante, a sanguine, et a stupro.—Et tamen quod ibi decretum est, adeo est antiquatum, ut nunc judaizare crederetur, qui abhorreret a gallina suffocata, aut fartis sanguine distentis.—Paulus vetat Episcopum fieri qui neophytus sit, aut percussor, aut violentus. At hodie Romanus Pontifex vel heri baptizatum, vel piratam publicum admittet ad honorem episcopalem, si videatur, nihil deterritus Paulina constitutione. In synaxi transsubstantiationem sero definit Ecclesia: diu satis erat credere, sive sub pane consecrato, sive quocunque modo adesse verum corpus Christi: ubi rem proprius contemplata est, ubi exactius expendit, certius praescrispsit. Non erant haereticci, qui olim credidissent Spiritum Sanctum a Patre duntaxat procedere, et haud scio, an maxima pars Christianorum primitus ita crediderit: expensa re definiit Ecclesia, quod hodie sequimur. Idem videatur accidisse in conceptione b. Virginis, si tamen hoc Ecclesia sic definiit, ut haereticus sit habendus qui dubitet.—Nemo priscorum andebat clare pronuntiare, Spiritum Sanctum esse Patri Filioque homousion ne tum quidem, quum quaestio de Filio tanta contentione per universum orbem agitaretur.—Nunc audemus profiteri. Afterward also he discusses whether marriage is a sacrament? Jam vero quod de sacramento afferunt, cuiusmodi sit, videamus, per quod volunt omne matrimonium semel contractum esse indissolubile. Neque enim hic Augustinus, qui tria bona ponit in matrimonio, quum tertium sacramentum vocat, sentit unum e septem sacramentis: quod ipsum subnotare videtur Petrus Lombardus Dist. xxxi. imo haud scio, an hoc sacramentum septimum veteribus fuerit cognitum. Primum quod Dionysius enumerans nominatim singula, et singulorum vires, ritus ac ceremonias explicans, de conjugio nullam facit mentionem.—Deinde quum tot voluminibus tractatum sit de matrimonio vel a Graecis vel a Latinis nullus est locus unde liqueat, illos conjugium inter septem sacramenta commemorare.—Verum cur haec recenseo, quum Durandus (see above, § 116, note 1) fateatur, matrimonium a recentioribus Theologis denique numerari coepit inter ea, quae proprie dicuntur Ecclesiae sacramenta? Porro quod Paulum sequuti veteres matrimonium aliquoties vocant sacramentum, id sentiunt, opinor, in copula viri et uxoris, quoniam est arctissima amicitia, repraesentari typum quendam et imaginem Christi, sponsam Ecclesiam sibi copulantis. ²³ Thomas Morus, aus den Quellen bearbeitet von D. G. Th. Rudhart. Nürnberg, 1829. 8. [Cf. Walter, Sir Thos. More. Lond., 1830. Sir James Mackintosh, Life of More. Edinb. Rev., xiv.; Westminster, xi.; Foreign Review, v.; North American, viii.] De optimo Reipublicae Statu deque nova insula Utopia. In the description of this ideal state there is a section, De Religionibus Utopiensium, lib. 11 (ed. Glasguae, 1750. 8. p. 227): Religiones sunt non per insulam modo, verum singulas etiam urbes variae, aliis solem, lunam aliis, aliis aliud errantium siderum Dei vice venerantibus. Sunt, quibus homo quispiam, cuius olim aut virtus aut gloria enuit, non pro Deo tantum, sed pro summo etiam Deo suspicitur. At multo maxima pars, eademque longe prudentior nihil horum, sed unum quoddam numen putant, incognitum, aeternum, immensum,—per mundum hunc universum virtute, non mole, diffusum: hunc parentem vocant, origines, auctus, progressus, vices, finesque rerum omnium huic acceptos uni referunt, nec divinos honores alii praeterea ulli applicant. Quin caeteris quoque omnibus, quanquam diversa credentibus, hoc tamen cum istis convenit, quod esse quidem unum censem summum, cui et universitatis opificium et providentia debeatur, eumque communiter omnes patria lingua Mithram appellant.—Caeterum paulatim omnes ab ea superstitionum varietate desiscunt, atque in unam illam coalescent religionem, quae reliquas ratione videtur antecellere.—At posteaquam acceperunt a nobis Christi nomen, doctrinam, mores, miracula, —non credas quam pronis in eam sectam affectibus etiam ipsi concesserint.—Haud pauci nostrani in religionem coierunt, lymphaque sacra sunt abluti. Verum quoniam in nobis—nemo—sacerdos erat, caeteris iniciati ea tamen sacramenta desiderant, quae apud nos non nisi sacerdotes conferunt: intelligent tamen optantque ita ut nihil vehementius. Quin hoc quoque sedulo jam inter se disputant, an sine christiani Pontificis missu quisquam et suo numero delectus sacerdotii consequatur characterem: et electuri sane videbantur, verum quum ego discederem, nondum elegerant. Quin hi quoque, religioni christiana qui non assentiant, neminem tamen absterrent, nullum oppugnant imbutum, nisi quod unus e nostro coetu me praesente coercitus est. Is quum recens ablutus, nobis contra suadentibus, de Christi cultu publice majore studio quam prudenter dissereret, usque adeo coepit incalescere, ut jam non nostra modo sacra caeteris anteferret, sed reliqua protinus universa damnaret, profana ipsa, cultores impios ac sacrilegos, aeterno plectendos igni vociferaretur. Talia diu concessionem comprehendunt, ac reum non spretae religionis, sed excitati in populo tumultus, agunt, peraguntque, damnatum exilio muletant. Siquidem hoc inter antiquissima instituta numerant, ne sua cuiquam religio fraudi sit. Utopus enim jam inde ab initio—in primis sanxit, uti, quam cuique religionem libeat sequi liceat; ut vero alios quoque in suam traducat, hactenus nisi possit, uti placide ac modeste suam rationibus adstruat, non ut acerbe caeteras destruat.—Haec Utopus instituit non respectu pacis modo,—sed quod arbitratus est, uti sic decerneretur, ipsis etiam religionis interesse, de qua nihil est ausus temere definire, velut incertum habens, an varium ac multiplicem expetens cultum Deus aliud inspireret alii. Certe vi ac minis exigere, ut quod tu verum credis idem omniibus videatur, hoc vero et insolens et ineptum censuit. Tum si maxime una vera sit, caeterae omnes vaniae, facile tamen praevidit (modo cum ratione ac modestia res agatur) futurum denique, ut ipsa per se veri vis emergat aliquando atque emineat: sin armis et tumultu certetur, ut sunt pessimi quique maxime pervicaces, optimam et sanctissimam religionem ob vanissimas inter se superstitiones, ut segetes inter spinas ac frutices, obrutum iri. Itaque hanc totam rem in medio posuit, et quid credendum putaret, liberum cuique reliquit: nisi quod sancte aut severe vetuit, ne quis usque adeo ab humanae naturae dignitate degeneret, ut animas quoque interire cum corpore, aut mundum temere ferri sublata providentia putet. Atque ideo post hanc vitam supplicia vitiis decreta, virtuti praemia constituta credunt: contra sentientem ne in hominum quidem ducunt numero, ut qui sublimem animae suae naturam ad pecunii corpusculi vilitatem dejecerit: tantum abest, ut inter cives ponant, quorum instituta moresque (si per metum liceat) omnes floccifactorus sit.—Quamobrem sic animato nullus communicatur honos, nullus magistratus committitur, nulli publico muneri praeficitur:—caeterum nullo afficiunt suppicio, quod persuasum habeant, nulli hoc in manu esse ut quicquid libet sentiat.—Verum, ne pro sua disputet sententia, prohibent, atque id duntaxat apud vulgus: nam alioquin apud sacerdotes gravesque viros seorsum non sinunt modo, sed hortantur quoque, confisi fore, ut ea tandem vesania rationi cedat.—Gratum Deo cultum putant naturae contemplationem, laudemque ab ea. Sunt tamen, hique haud sane pauci, qui religione ducti literas negligunt, nulli rerum cognitioni student, neque otio prorsus ulli vacant, negotiis tantum bonisque caeteris officiis statuunt futuram post fata felicitatem promerri. Itaque alii aegrotis inserviunt, alii vias reficiunt,—nec in publicum modo, sed privatim quoque ministros ac plus quam servos agunt: nam quicquid usquam operis est asperum, difficile, sordidum,—hoc illi sibi totum libentes hilaresque desumunt; cacteris otium procurant, ipsi perpetuo in opere ac labore versantur: nec imputant tamen, nec aliorum sugillant vitam, nec suam efferunt. Hi quo magis sese servos exhibent, eo maiore apud omnes in honore sunt. Eorum tamen haereses duae sunt: altera coelium, qui non Venere modo in totum abstinent, sed carnium cuu quoque;—altera laboris haud minus appetens, conjugium praefert, ut cuius nec aspernantur solatium, et opus naturae debere se et patriae liberos putant. Nullam voluptatem refugiunt, quae nihil eos ab labore demoretur; carnes quadrupedum vel eo nomine diligunt, quod tali cibo se validiores ad opus quodque censemant. Hos Utopiani prudentiores, at illos sanctiores reputant: quos, quod coelitatum anteferunt matrimonio, aspernam vitam placidae anteponunt, si rationibus niterentur, irrident, nunc vero, quum se fateantur religione duci, suspiciunt ac reverentur.—Sua lingua Buthrescas (i.e. βούθρησκον) vocant, quod verbum latine Religiosos licet interpretari. Sacerdotes habent eximia sanctitate, eoque admodum paucos.—Unus reliquis praeficitur. Eliguntur a populo, idque caeterorum ritu magistratum, occultis, ad studia vitanda, suffragiis: electi a suo collegio consecrantur. Hi rebus divinis praesunt, religiones curant, ac morum veluti censure sunt.—Caeterum ut hortari atque admonere illorum est, ita coercere atque in facinorosos animadvertere Principis atque aliorum est magistratum, nisi quod sacris interdicunt quos improbe malos comperiunt. Nec ullum fere supplicium est quod horreant magis: nam et summa percelluntur infamia, et occulto religionis metu lacerantur, ne corporibus quidem diu futuris in tuto: quippe ni properam poenitentiam sacerdotibus approbent, comprehensi impietatis poenam senatu persolvunt. Pueritia juvenusque ab illis eruditur, nec prior litterarum cura, quam morum ac virtutis habetur.—Sacerdotibus (ni foeminae sint: nam neque ille sexus excluditur, sed rarius, et non nisi vidua natuque grandis eligitur) uxores sunt popularium selectissimae. Neque enim ulli apud Utopienses magistrati major habetur honos; usque adeo, ut, si quid etiam flagitiū admiserint, nulli publico judicio subsint. Deo tantum ac sibi relinquentur.—Religio quoniam non est ibi apud omnes eadem, et universae tamen ejus formae, quanquam variae ac multiplices, in divinae naturae cultum, velut in unum finem diversa via commigrant; idcirco nihil in templis visitur auditurve, quod non quadrare ad cunctas in commune videatur. Si quod proprium sit cujusquam sectae sacram, id intra domesticos quisque parietes curat. Publica tali peragunt ordine, qui nulli prorsus ex privatis deroget: itaque nulla Deorum effigies in templo conspicitur, quo liberum cuique sit, qua forma Deum velit e sua religione concipere: nullum peculiare Dei nomen invocant, sed Mithrae duntaxat, quo vocabulo cuncti in unam divinae majestatis naturam, quaecunque sit illa, conspirant: nullae concipiuntur preces, quas non pronunciare quivis inoffensa sua secta possit. All this can not be the merry pleasantry of a cheerful spirit, as Rudhardt thinks, s. 156. The Utopians were not supposed to be perfect men, but their institutions, according to the author's intention, were to be as excellent as is possible among imperfect men. Those principles of the author which are earnestly meant can be easily recognized throughout the work, as also their application to the existing state of affairs. The Utopia concludes: facile confiteor permulta esse in Utopiensium republica, quae in nostris civitatibus optarim verius quam sperarim.

of the traditional state of the Church, should be distrustful and indignant about the humanists, from whom they had to endure so much ridicule and the Church so many complaints. This dislike had already manifested itself in various but usually awkward ways,²⁴ when Reuchlin's dispute with John Pfefferkorn and the

tionem linguarum, ac politioris literaturae. Haec, inquiunt, horrenda dictu nascuntur ex poëtica, nam hoc vocabulo traducunt quicquid est elegantioris doctrinae, hoc est quicquid ipsi non didicerunt. Hujusmodi naenias non pudet etiam in sacris concionibus deblaterare, qui se paecones evangelicae doctrinae haberi postulant. Abutuntur et Romani Pontificis et Romanae sedis nomine, videlicet apud nullos, ut par est, non sacro-sancto. His technis, his cuniculis adoriri parant efflorescentes optimas literas, ac puriorum illam theologiam, suos fontes respicientem. Nihil non tentatum est, nullum calumniae genus non excogitatum in eos, quorum opera vident haec studia gliscere: inter quos me quoque numerant, etc. John Butzbach, prior in the monastery of Laach, in 1509, gives a representation of how it fared with the more educated monks in the monasteries; see Gieseler's *Symbolae ad Hist. ²⁵ On the history of this struggle, see v. d. Hardt, Hist. Liter. Reformat. p. ii. Vita Jo. Reuchlini descr. a J. H. Majo, p. 250 ss. Meiner's Lebensbeschreibung berühmter Männer, Bd. 1, s. 97 ff. Erhard's Gesch. des Wiederaufblühens wissenschaftl. Bildung, Bd. 2, s. 292 ff. Mayerhoff's Reuchlin, s. 114 ff. John Pfefferkorn, converted from Judaism in 1506, a favorite protégé of the Dominicans at Cologne, after writing several invitations to the Jews to be converted, in a pamphlet of 1509, roused the people to demand from the authorities that the Jews should be hunted out of the country, all their books burned except Holy Scriptures, and their children educated in Christianity. With the help of the Dominicans he soon obtained an imperial mandate, according to which all the writings of the Jews against Christianity were to be destroyed. Then the Emperor commissioned the Elector of Mayence, in 1510, to collect opinions from several men acquainted with the subject, especially from Reuchlin, whether all the Jewish books except the Holy Scriptures ought to be annihilated (see the Emperor's letter in the Augenspiegel, v. d. Hardt, ii. p. 17). Reuchlin, in his Opinion (printed in the Augenspiegel, l. c. p. 20 ff.), decided that only the vituperative writings against Christianity deserved to be destroyed, but not the other works which the Jews possessed besides the Bible. Against this opinion Pfefferkorn, into whose hands it had fallen in some way now unknown, published a reproachful pamphlet called Handspiegel, 1511, to which Reuchlin immediately responded in a violent reply, called the Augenspiegel (printed l. c. p. 16 ss.). In this reply the Dominicans of Cologne, who had the lead of the theological faculty of the place, discovered heresies. Reuchlin first tried to appease them by letters (Epistolae Reuchlini, lib. ii. p. 115 ss., in Majus, p. 318 ss.); but instead of the suppression of his Augenspiegel, and the revocation of several of its assertions, which they required of him, he published an explanation of these assertions in German (Ain klare Verstantnus in Tütsch uff Doctor Johansens Reuchlings Rathschlag von den Juden Büchern, vormals auch zu Latin im Augenspiegel ussgegangen 1512). The Cologne party immediately issued in reply the work, Articuli sive propositiones de judaico favore nimis suspectae, ex libello theutonico Domini Jo. Reuchlin, Legum Doctoris (cui Speculum ocularis titulus inscriptus est) extractae, cum annotationibus et improbationibus venerabilis ac zelosi viri, Magistri nostri Arnoldi de Tungeri, Artium et sacrae Theologiae Professoris profundissimi (there are extracts from these in Majus, p. 345 ss.). Reuchlin answered them again with vehemence in his Defensio contra Calumniatores suos Colonienses, Tubingae, 1513 (printed in v. d. Hardt, ii. p. 53 ss.), addressed to the Cologne; went to Mayence in the character of inquisitor to pass sentence upon Reuchlin (1513).²⁶ The decision of the Bishop of Spires, as papal commissary, was given indeed entirely in Reuchlin's favor (1514).²⁷ But the Dominicans appealed afresh, and summoned to their aid the whole of their unbounded influence at Rome.²⁸ Leo X. could no more venture to decide against these formidable supporters of his throne²⁹ than to abandon his favorites the humanists: thus no sentence at all was given.³⁰ The courage of the humanists increased so much the more. A flood of biting satires streamed forth against their spiritless antagonists; among which the Epistolae Obscurorum Virorum take the foremost place.³¹ But the chivalrous Ulrich of Hutten,³² in his in-

Emperor, at the same time he summoned his numerous friends and patrons to his assistance, and a numerous league of the humanists and their defenders was formed against the Cologne party; see Meiners, ibid. s. 143 ff. The latter, however, now commenced inquisitorial proceedings.

²⁷ The judgment is in v. d. Hardt, ii. p. 114.

³⁰ See the minutes of the proceedings at Rome, in v. d. Hardt, ii. p. 117 ss.

³¹ The first book appeared under the title: Epistolae Obscurorum Virorum ad venerabilem virum Magistrum Ortuinum Gratium Daventriensem, Coloniae Agrippinae bonas literas docente, varis et locis et temporibus missae (in Wolfgang. Angst. Hagenau 1516). 4. The second: Epist. Obsc. Vir. ad Mag. Ort. Grat. non illae quidem veteres et prius visae, sed et novae et illis prioribus elegantia, argutiis, lepore ac venustate longe superiores (Basel by Froben. 1517). 4. The third book was added considerably later. The latest edition is by D. E. Münch, Leipzig, 1827, and, recognita et praefatione a Dno. H. W. Rotermundo aucta, Hannoverae, 1827. 8. These letters were addressed to Ortuinus, for he was considered the real author of Pfefferkorn's works. Even the partisans of ignorance conceded (ed. of Münch, s. 194): Pfefferkorn quidem compositus materiam, sed Mag. Ortuinus postea latinisavit. Erasmus and Reuchlin, though at first suspected, had no share at all in the authorship. The veil which is thrown over the origin of these letters will, perhaps, never be quite removed. The latest inquiries of importance upon the point are by Chr. Gottfr. Müller, Rector of the Fürstenschule at Misnia, in a Latin Programme of 1801; Mohnicke in Ersch und Gruber's Encyclopädie, Th. 4, s. 105, dignation at the injuries which the Germans had to endure from Rome, went so far as to deride even the Papacy itself.³³ Soon after this controversy disappeared, like an insignificant skirmish, in the grand battle of the Lutheran Reformation,³⁴ in which most in the article on Wolfgang Angst; and E. Münch, in the introduction to his edition, s. 28 ff. The chief authors were probably Crotus Rubianus and Ulrich of Hutten; but which of them conceived the first idea, whether or not it was probably due to the learned printer Angst, and whether Hutten contributed to the first part, on these points there is a diversity of opinion. Many of the humanists seem to have been employed at the Ebernburg upon the second part; see E. Münch's Franz v. Sickingens Thaten, Bd. 1, s. 348. How excellently the tone of the clergy of the day was imitated may be seen from Erasmi Epist. ad Mart. Lipsium dd. 5th September, 1528 (Opp. III. ii. p. 1110): Ubi primum exissent Epistolae obscurorum Virorum, miro Monachorum applausu exceptae sunt apud Britannos a Franciscanis ac Dominicanis, qui sibi persuadebant, eas in Reuchlini contumeliam et Monachorum favorem serio proditas: quumque quidam egregie doctus, sed nasutissimus, fingeret se nonnihil offendit stylo, consolati sunt hominē. Ne spectaris, inquit, o bone, orationis cutem, sed sententiarum vim. Nec hodie deprehendissent, ni quidam addita epistola lectorem admonuisset, rem non esse seriam. Post in Brabantia Prior quidam Dominicanus et Magister noster, volens innocescere patribus, coēmit acervum eorum libellorum, ut dono mitteret Ordinis proceribus, nihil dubitans, quin in Ordinis honorem fuissent scriptae. Quis fungus possit esse stupidor? At isti sunt, ut sibi videntur, Atlantes Ecclesiae nutantis, ex his designantur cognitores de dogmatibus ecclesiasticis, etc. [Sir William Hamilton, in an able article in the Edinburgh Review, vol. liii., republished in his Discussions, pp. 202–238, contends for the combined claims of Hutten, Crotus, and Buschius.]

³⁴ See Luther's letter to Reuchlin, 14th December, 1518 (in de Wette's edition, Th. 1, s. 196 f.): Dominus tecum, vir fortissime. Gratulor misericordiae Dei, quae in te est, vir et eruditissime et humanissime, qua tandem prevaluisti obstruere os loquentium iniqua. Fuisti tu sane organum consilii divini, sicut tibi ipsi incognitum, ita omnibus purae theologiae studiosis exspectatissimum: adeo longe alia fiebant a Deo, et alia videbantur geri per vos. Eram ego unus eorum, qui tecum esse cupiebant, sed nulla dabatur occasio: eram tamen oratione et voto tibi semper praesentissimus. Sed quod tunc negatum est socio, nunc cumulatissime tributum est successori. Invadunt dentes istius Behemoth me, si quo modo sarcire queant ignominiam, quam retulerunt ex te. Occurrō et ego ipsis longe quidem minoribus ingenii et eruditionis viribus, quam tu occurristi et prostravisti, sed non minore animi fiducia.—Fracta sunt in tua firmitate non parum quidēm cornua horum taurorum. Hoc enim in te egit Dominus, ut tyrannus sophistarum aliquando et tardius et mitius diseret veris theologiae studiis resistere, ac respirare inciperet Germania, scripturarum doctrina tot heu annorum centenariis non tam oppres-

of the humanists united with Luther. The Dominicans of Cologne were compelled by Francis of Sickingen, in 1519, to submit to the decision of Spires.³⁵

It was an especial advantage to theology that a way was prepared by the humanists for the better understanding of the Holy Scriptures. Laurentius Valla commenced this work by his Annotations;³⁶ but Erasmus was the first to give more comprehensive assistance in the interpretation of the New Testament by his edition of the original Greek text, his notes, and his paraphrases.³⁷ Together with these, the works of Jacobus Faber Stapulensis,³⁸ and the Complutensian Polyglott,³⁹ deserve to be mentioned as important means of advancing the more profound study of holy writ.

Thus the most important means for effecting a reformation of the Church were matured by learned investigation. But from learning alone the reformation could never have originated. For scientific knowledge can never raise the popular mind to conviction of the truth, nor can the interest in such researches be vital and universal; whereas, nothing but conviction and enthusiasm

Non erant haec initia danda pulcherrimorum studiorum per hominem parvae gratiae: sed sicut Christum (sit venia comparationi) omnium maximum montem Deus contrivit usque in pulverem mortis, verum ex hoc pulvere postea excreverunt tot magni montes: ita et tu parum attulisses fructus, nisi mortificatus in pulvrem fuisses redactus, unde nunc tot surgunt proceres literarum sacrarum. Et exaudita est oratio gementis Ecclesiae: salvum me fac, Domine, quoniam defecit sanctus, diminiuti sunt fideles de filiis hominum, quoniam exaltati fuerunt ad altitudines Dei vilissimi filiorum hominum.

Basil. 1516 (there were new editions, as well as of the New Testament); Paraphrases in Epistolas, edited singly after 1517, and collected with the Paraphr. in Ev. Matthaei ac Joannis, 1522. He left no paraphrases on the Gospels of Mark and Luke, the Acts of the Apostles, and the Apocalypse.

could burst the bands with which habit had chained men down to antiquity and tradition, or bestow the courage to risk all for the truth when once acknowledged. But when the reformation was commenced upon the only possible basis, that of the religious and moral convictions, which required no demonstrations but only illustration and application to the question at issue; then enlightened learning came as a guide, to protect it from error and superstition.

SIXTH CHAPTER.

EXTENSION OF CHRISTENDOM.

The degeneracy of Christianity was completed by the cruelty with which conversions to it were effected. Ferdinand and Isabella, in 1492, allowed the Jews in Spain only the choice between baptism and banishment.¹ A large number of those who remained steadfast to their faith found refuge in Portugal; but Emmanuel the Great, in 1496, imposed upon them the same choice; at the same time he took their children from them, and made slaves of all who delayed.² Granada, the last Moorish city in Spain, upon its surrender in the year 1492, had stipulated for the preservation of its ancestral laws and religion. But after the pretended discovery of secret conspiracies, the same cruel law was decreed against them also (1498), and in 1501 the remnant of the obstinate Mussulmans were obliged to leave the country or submit to slavery.³ Thus the peninsula of the Pyrenees increased the ill-fated herds of the new Christians who were given over as a prey to the Inquisition. A no less revolting method of conversion ensued upon the numerous discoveries made in this century, those of the Portuguese upon the west coast of Africa, and the discovery of America by the Spaniards. When the aborigines of America were forced at the same time into slavery and Christianity, only the Dominicans, elsewhere accustomed to offer bloody sacrifices to their Christianity, protested earnestly against this cruelty. But millions perished before the labors of Bartholomew de las Casas had reached their equivocal result, in inducing Charles V. to grant freedom to the Indians, together with the permission of the negro slave trade.⁴

EFFORTS FOR UNION OF THE ORIENTAL CHURCHES WITH THE ROMAN.

Deep-rooted as was the antipathy of the Greeks to the Latins,¹ yet the continual approach of destruction from the Turks compelled the Grecian Emperor, John VII., Palaeologus, from the year 1430, to try again every means of gaining assistance from the Latins by a union of the Churches. The controversy between the Pope and the synod of Basle delayed the arrangement. The Emperor at length threw himself into the arms of the Pope, and in 1438 came in person, with a great body of bishops, into Italy. At the synod, which was opened at Ferrara but removed to Florence in February, 1439,² for a long time all seemed likely to be lost in an endless controversy; but necessity made the Greeks yielding, and on the 6th July, 1439, they signed the form of union prescribed by the Pope.³ On the other hand, they now

² With regard to this Council see two collections of the acts, one in Greek and one in Latin; the latter, by Horace Justinian, is in the collection of councils, in that of Labbeus et Cossart, t. xiii., of Harduin. t. viii. In the cause of the Greeks was written Vera Historia Unionis non Verae inter Graecos et Latinos, sive Concilii Florentini exactissima narratio graece scripta per Sylvestrum Sguropulum (a mistake for Syropulum) magnum Ecclesiarcham, qui Concilio interfuit. Transtulit in sermonem latinum Rob. Creyghton. Hagae Com. 1660 fol. Violent against author and editor, but not without many just remarks on single points, especially on the inaccuracy of the Latin translation, is Leonis Allatii in Rob. Creyghtoni Apparatum, Versionem et Notas ad Hist. Conc. Florentini, scriptam a Sylv. Syropulo Exercitationum Pars prior. Romae, 1665. 4. which was followed by no pars posterior.

tionibus, ideo abstinuerunt a dicendo, quod Spiritus Sanctus ex Patre procedat et Filio. Latini vero affirmarunt, non se hac mente dicere, Spiritum Sanctum ex Patre Filioque procedere, ut excludant Patrem, quin sit fons ac principium totius deitatis, Filii scilicet ac Spiritus Sancti; aut quod id, quod Spiritus Sanctus procedit ex Filio, Filius a Patre non habeat; sive quod duo ponant esse principia, seu duas spirationes: sed unum tantum asserant esse principium, unicamque spirationem Spiritus Sancti, prout lactenus asseruerunt. Et cum ex his omnibus unus et idem eliciatur veritatis sensus, tandem in infra scriptam sanctam et Deo amabilem eodem sensu eademque mente unionem unanimiter concordarunt et consenserunt.

In nomine igitur s. Trinitatis, Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti, hoc sacro universalis approbante Florentino Concilio diffinimus, ut haec fidei veritas ab omnibus Christianis credatur et suscipiatur, sicque omnes profiteantur, quod Spiritus Sanctus ex Patre et Filio aeternaliter est, et essentialiam suam, suumque esse subsistens habet ex Patre simul et Filio, et ex utroque aeternaliter tamquam ab uno principio et unica spiratione procedit; declarantes, quod id, quod sancti doctores et patres dicunt, ex Patre per Filium procedere Spiritum Sanctum, ad hanc intelligentiam tendit; ut per hoc significetur, Filium quoque esse secundum Graecos quidem causam, secundum Latinos vero principium subsistentiae Spiritus Sancti, sicut et Patrem. Et quoniam omnia, quae Patris sunt, Pater ipse unigenito Filio suo gignendo dedit, praeter esse Patrem, hoc ipsum quod Spiritus Sanctus procedit ex Filio, ipse Filius a Patre aeternaliter habet, a quo etiam aeternaliter genitus est. Diffinimus insuper, explicationem verborum illorum Filioque veritatis declarandae gratia, et imminente tunc necessitate, licite ac rationabiliter symbolo fuisse appositam. Item, in azymo sive fermentato pane triticeo corpus Christi veraciter confici; sacerdotesque in altero ipsum Domini corpus confidere debere unumquemque scilicet juxta sue Ecclesiae, sive occidentalis, sive orientalis, consuetudinem. Item, si vere poenitentes in Dei caritate decesserint, antequam dignis poenitentiae fructibus de commissis satisfecerint et omissis, eorum animas poenis purgatoriis post mortem purgari; et ut a poenis hujusmodi releventur, prodesse eis fidelium vivorum suffragia, missarum scilicet sacrificia, orationes, et eleemosynas, et alia pietatis officia, quae a fidelibus pro aliis fidelibus fieri consueverunt secundum Ecclesiae instituta: illorumque animas, qui post baptismum susceptum nullam omnino peccati maculam incurrerunt, illas etiam, quae post contractam peccati maculam vel in suis corporibus, vel eisdem exutae corporibus, prout superius dictum est, sunt purgatae, in caelum mox recipi, et intueri clare ipsum Deum trinum et unum, sicuti est, pro meritorum tamen diversitate alium alio perfectius: illorum autem animas, qui in actuali mortali peccato, vel solo originali deceidunt, mox in infernum descendere, poenis tamen disparibus puniendas. Item diffinimus, sanctam Apostolicam sedem, et Romanum Pontificem in universum orbem tenere primatum, et ipsum Pontificem Romanum successorem esse b. Petri principis Apostolorum, et verum Christi vicarium, totiusque Ecclesiae caput et omnium Christianorum patrem ac doctorem existere; et ipsi in b. Petro pascendi, regendi ac gubernandi universalem Ecclesiam a Domino nostro Jesu Christo plenam potestatem traditam esse, quemadmodum et in gestis oecumenicorum Conciliorum et in sacris Canonibus continetur (καθ' ὅν τρόπον καὶ ἐν τοῖς πρακτικοῖς τῶν οἰκουμενικῶν συνόδων, καὶ ἐν τοῖς ἱεροῖς κανόσι διαλαμβάνεται. In Latin editions the passage reads, quemadmodum etiam in gestis, etc., as though this were only an allusion in confirmation: the genuine text, which Launo Opp. V., 1, p. 308, gives from the Historiarum lib. III. Decad. X. of Flavius Blondus, secretary to Eugene IV., and from the Greek text, also refers to the rules for the Papal supremacy). Renovantes insuper ordinem traditum in canonibus ceterorum venerabilium Patriarcharum, ut Patriarcha Constantinopolitanus secundus sit post sanctissimum Romanum Pontificem, tertius vero Alexandrinus, quartus autem Antiochenus, et quintus Hierosolymitanus, salvis videlicet privilegiis omnibus et juribus eorum. The way in which the Emperor and his party regarded this union is manifested by the description which a Greek deacon of the court gave of it upon his return to the English ambassadors who met him, Syropulus, p. 307: οὐτε ἡμεῖς προσῆλθομεν τῇ δόξῃ τῶν Λατίνων, οὐθὲ ol eral indignation caused many of the bishops to revoke their subscription. The great majority of the Greeks who were already living under the Turkish dominion, pronounced decisively against any Latinizing tendencies.⁴ The ill-fated Emperor sought, as far as he could, to maintain the union inviolate, in the vain hope of thereby supporting his tottering throne. But it served rather to hasten than to ward off the impending destruction.

After the Act of Union with the Greeks there followed⁵, at Florλατίνοι τῇ τῶν Γραικῶν. ἀλλ' ἰθεωρήθησαν καθ' ἑαυτὰς αἱ δόξαι παρ' ἐκατέρου μέρους καὶ εὑρέθησαν σύμφωνοι, καὶ ὡς μία καὶ ἡ αὐτὴ ὑνεφάνη δόξα. διὸ καὶ ἐτάχθη ἵνα κατέχῃ ἕκατερον μέρος τὴν δόξαν, ἥν κατεῖχε μέχρι τοῦ νῦν, καὶ ὑπάρχωμεν καὶ ἡνωμένοι. Thus all was to remain unchanged in the Greek Church and only the unity be recognized. Of the Decretum unionis there were five original copies prepared and signed: ten were afterward shown in different places, nine of which certainly were only copies; see Mémoire sur les Exemplaires Originaux du Décret d'Union de l'église Grecque avec l'église Latine, in the Mémoires de l'Academie des Inscriptions, t. 43, p. 287 ss.

* When the Patriarch of Constantinople, Metrophanes, tried to introduce latinizing bishops even into Asia Minor, the then patriarchs of Alexandria, Antioch, and Jerusalem issued a synodal letter in 1443 (in Allatius De Ecclesiae Occid. et Orient. Perpetua Consensione, p. 939 ss.), in which they express themselves most strongly against the συναθροισθείσαν ἐν Φλωρεντίᾳ μιαρὰν σύνοδον, and against Μητρόφονος (instead of Μητροφάνης) Πατριάρχης, in favor of the deposition of all the latinizing clergy, and threatening them with excommunication in case of resistance, and also commissioning the Metropolitan of Caesarea in Cappadocia, as ἔξαρχον πάσης ἀνατολῆς, to execute this decree in his diocese. At the same time they addressed a deprecatory letter to the Emperor, l. c. p. 942 ss., in which they said of the Florentine synod, ὅτι ἐν Φλωρεντίᾳ σύνοδος οὐκ ἐγένετο κατὰ τὰς συμβιβάσεις, ἀς εἰχον πρὸς Ρωμαίους (i.e. the Greeks) οἱ Λατίνοι ἐνόρκως διὰ γραμμάτων, κανονικὴ καὶ ἀβίαστος καὶ ἐλευθέρα—ἀλλὰ ρᾴδιουργείας μηρίας ἐπινόησαντες οἱ Ἰταλοὶ τὰς μὲν συμβιβάσεις ἡβέτησαν, ἐπαρέβησαν δὲ τὸν ἐγγράφους αὐτῶν ὄρκους, ἔβιασαν δὲ τὴν ἀλήθειαν, καὶ τέλος τυραννικῷ τρόπῳ τὰ ἀδέσματα αὐτῶν πάλιν ἐκύρωσαν δῦγματα, καὶ εἴτι ἀνἄλλο παρὰ κανόνας ἐκράτησαν. τὸ χεῖρον δὲ μᾶλλον καὶ ἀσεβεῖς, ὅτι μετὰ τῶν ἀλλων καὶ τὴν ἐν τῷ κοινῷ τῆς πίστεως συμβόλῳ προσθήκην οὐ παραπήσαντο, ἀλλὰ καὶ ἐγγράφως παρέδωκαν, φεῦ, παρὰ πάσιν ὄμολογεισθαι. Then they protested to the Emperor; πρὸς τὴν σὴν βασιλείαν γνωρίζουμεν τάδε· ὅτι εἰ μὲν προσέδραμεν, ὡς τοῦ ἡμετέρου γένους παντελῶς ἐξησθενηκότος, καὶ διὰ τοῦτο καταναγκαζόμενος παντοιωτρόπως, ὅπως λήψῃ βοήθειαν, καὶ τίνα ἵστην ἀλλην οἰκονομίαν νενόηκας, εἴτε τῆς καὶ πρὸς τὰ τῶν Λατίνων ἐνέπεσας, καὶ τὴν προσθήκην ἐδέξω κατὰ ἀνάγκην εἰθ' οὗτως ἀποτρεψάμενος νῦν τὰ ἐκείνων τερατολογήματά τε καὶ ἀπεβήματα, καὶ τὴν ὑγαίνουσαν ἐν τῷ θείῳ συμβόλῳ παράδοσιν κατὰ τὰς θείας πάσας γραφὰς ὄμολογεῖς ἀδιστάκτως τε στέργεις, καὶ πείθη, ὡς οἱ πρὸ σοῦ ἀπαντες εὐσεβεῖς αὐτοκράτορες βασιλεῖς, ἡδη καὶ ἡμεῖς οὐ μόνον τὸ προσφιλέστερον μηνημόσυνον τῆς βασιλείας ἐπιτελεῖν ἔχομεν, ἀλλὰ καὶ διηνεκῆ καὶ δέναον ἱκεσίαν πρὸς θεὸν ἐκπληροῦν μέλλομεν τοῦ σοῦ κράτους ἐνεκα, καὶ ὑπὲρ ψυχῆς μάλιστα, δι' ὧν ἐξιλεόμενοι καθ' ἕκαστην τὸ θεῖον συγκοινώσαι τέ σοι, καὶ τὰ ἀμπλακήματα ἐν γνώσει καὶ ἀγνοίᾳ πραχθέντα. Οὕτω μὲν οὖν ἔσται σοὶ ἔλεος τῶν πλημμελημάτων, οὗτως δὲ ἀφεσις τῶν ἀγνοημάτων, εἰ μὲν τὰς θείας οὐκ ἀθετεῖς παραδόσεις· Εἰ δὲ πειριμένεις, καὶ ἀνέχῃ τὰ τῶν ἐτεροδόξων, ὥσπερ ἀλλότρια δυτα πάσης κανονικῆς παραδόσεως καὶ συνοδικῆς, οὐ μόνον ἐκκόρφουμεν τὸ τοῦ σοῦ κράτους μηνημόσυνον, ἀλλὰ τὰ τοῦ βάρους προσθήσομεν ἐπιτίμα, ἵνα μὴ τὴν τοῦ Χριστοῦ ἐκκλησίᾳ διαφέρῃ ἡ λύμη τοῦ ἀλλοτρίου καὶ βλαβεροῦ δύγματος—“Αν δὲ τῷ τυραννικῷ τρόπῳ παρανόμως βιάζῃ καὶ πειθανολογεῖς τὴν ἐλευθερον καὶ ἀδούλωτον Χριστοῦ ἐκκλησίαν, γίνωσκε οὗτως, ὅτι—οὐκ ἀνεξόμεθα σιωπᾶν ἐφεξῆς, ἀλλὰ κατὰ τὴν ἐντολὴν ἀφόβως ἐλέγχαι καὶ ἐπιτιμῆσαι μελλομεν τοῦτον.

ence, the empty show of a renewed union with the Armenians (1440), the inefficacy of which it was easy to foresee.⁵ Then appeared at the council, which in 1442 was removed to the Lateran, a succession of ambassadors from all the other Oriental churches, in order to obtain reconciliation with the Church of Rome by papal decrees.⁶ This frivolous scene was evidently intended to win back the public opinion of the Western world in favor of the Pope, by making it seem as if there was a general union of all Christendom under the papal obedience, and thus to overawe and bring to submission the steadfast adherents of the Council of Basle.

Decree of William III., Duke of Saxony.

Also, to this day many foreign tribunals are resorted to by the inhabitants of our land, which is a dishonor, great loss, and notable injury to this country. Henceforth take notice, we have decreed and determined, that hereafter no inhabitant of our country, dominion, and territory, shall summon or sue another before any foreign tribunal, ecclesiastical or secular, in any cause, whatsoever it may be. If the case be ecclesiastical and belongs justly to an ecclesiastical tribunal, the plaintiff shall bring it before an ecclesiastical tribunal in our country, where it belongs, and rest satisfied with the decision there given. The case also when taken in hand shall be carried through, and there shall be no appeal to a foreign court. But if the case be secular, it shall be brought and pleaded before the secular tribunals and courts, where the defendant is settled, and to which the case belongs. Before the same court the plaintiff shall pursue his pleading, as is fitting, to the end, and rest satisfied with the decision, and appeal to no foreign court. But if any inhabitant, whosoever he be, of our land, dominion, and territory, does not rest satisfied with the decision of his case before the ecclesiastical or secular tribunal of our land, in which it has been heard, but shall appeal therefrom, or otherwise plead before a foreign court and not our own; from that hour he shall be held as an outlaw, and shall never enter our country again, but be banished for life, and any one may maintain claims upon him and his property without hindrance, as an outlaw from us and our country. Also if he send messengers, with letters or otherwise, no one shall receive his letters or take any notice of them, and proceedings shall be taken against the messenger as against the outlaw himself without mercy. Also, since we and our subjects for many years to this day, have been inconvenienced in many ways, and troubled beyond measure by the ecclesiastical judges in many cases, which they will take under their own jurisdiction, refusing none, either spiritual or temporal, in which the aforesaid judges too often regard neither God nor justice; hence, as might be expected, in course of time, unbelief is greatly increased among the people, and thereby neglect and dishonor has accrued to God and the holy Church; accordingly it is to the glory of God, and the honor of His holy Church to counteract so great an evil: so we will do our diligence with princes and prelates who hold jurisdiction in our lands and dominions, to charge and entreat them to reform their ecclesiastical courts, and neither to commence nor try any action before them, which is not ecclesiastical: and if a case be secular to have nothing to do with it. Also we ought and do strictly charge and command all persons in our lands, lordship, and dominion, that no man, whosoever he may be, shall summon, sue, or denounce another on a secular charge, before an ecclesiastical court. But whosoever does not observe this charge, and summons another man before the ecclesiastical courts in a secular cause, and disobeys this our ordinance, shall entirely lose the cause, for which he pleaded, for his disobedience, and besides shall pay a fresh tax by way of penance to the lord under whom he lives. So also orders shall be given to all parochial clergy, that they neither receive nor publish any paper from the ecclesiastical judges on secular matters; but if any parish priest refuse to obey, none of the profits nor revenue of his parish shall accrue to him, till such time as he return to obedience.

Reformation of Frederick III.

It is clear as day that with fair and crafty words the clergy have deprived us of our rightful patrimony: they blinded the eyes of our forefathers, and persuaded them to purchase the kingdom of heaven with their ancestral estates. If ye priests give to the poor and the chosen children of God their paternal inheritance, which ye owe them in the sight of God, so might God perhaps grant you such grace that you would know yourselves. But so long as ye bestow it upon your beloved harlots and profligates, instead of upon the children of God as ye are bound to do, be ye sure of this, God will reward you according to your merits; for ye have exasperated and overburdened the whole community in the Empire. The time is at hand when your possessions will be seized upon and divided, as the possessions of an enemy. As ye have oppressed the community, it shall rise up against you; so that ye shall not know where to find an abiding place.

Statement of a Dominican Nun at Kircheim in Swabia.

There came a legate from Rome into this land (in the year 1489) with such ample grace and indulgence, that the like was never heard of before. Then our mother prioress bought the indulgence for us all in common; and five briefs of indulgence were granted to us, which were kept; they cost me ten florins, but we gave it willingly for the praise of God, and that we might help the souls in purgatory. The indulgence was from our dear Lady's day of nativity till Michaelmas; so long we kept the jubilee year, and every sister during this time might release as many souls as she would or could; at every journey to Rome one soul might be released; also if she went round the seven churches, and at every church said a whole vigil, for each vigil in each church she released one soul; this she might do as often as she wished, and for as many souls as she wished; and if she performed the procession and the prayer, she might rest sure in Christian faith, that the soul was released from purgatory, though it had not departed this life in the grace of God. Accordingly, our father instructor, our confessor, taught us, that a sister who would rescue seven souls, when she began to go to the seven churches should bear in mind some other souls, that if the one either did not require or were incapable of profiting by her prayer, she might have the others in remembrance. Thus she should ever act, and though a sister might take what souls she pleased, still her father and mother stood first in the Bull, and next her nearest friends, and those for whom we are bound to pray for our Order's sake, the founders and benefactors of the Order, many of whom were delivered. For a portion of the money which we gave from the community was applied in general for the souls of those who had benefited it. Some sisters delivered two hundred souls, some one hundred, some fifty, and afterward might deliver more. Also, we prayed much for ourselves, as our father confessor directed, that we might receive the plenary absolution for all our sins and corruptions; whatever they might be, he could remove them from us this time, etc.

Account of Tetzel's proceedings by Frederick Myconius.

He gained by his preaching in Germany an immense sum of money, all of which he sent to Rome; and especially at the new mining works at St. Annaberg, where I, Frederick Mecum, heard him for two years, a large sum was collected. It is incredible what this ignorant and impudent monk gave out. He said that if a Christian had slept with his dear mother, and only placed a sum of money in the Pope's indulgence chest, the Pope had power in heaven and earth to forgive the sin, and if he forgave it, God must do so also. Item—if they contributed readily, and bought grace and indulgence, all the hills of St. Annaberg would become pure massive silver. Item—so soon as the coin rang in the chest, the soul for whom the money was paid, would go straightway to heaven.—The indulgence was so highly prized, that when the commissary entered a city, the Bull was borne on a satin or gold-embroidered cushion, and all the priests and monks, the town council, schoolmaster, scholars, men, women, maidens, and children, went out to meet it with banners and tapers, with songs and procession. Then all the bells were rung, all the organs played; he was conducted into the Church, a red cross was erected in the midst of the Church, and the Pope's banner displayed; in short, God himself could not have been welcomed and entertained with greater honor.

It is incredible what this ignorant monk gave out in speaking and preaching. He gave sealed letters stating that even the sins which a man might wish to do hereafter were forgiven. The Pope had more power than all the apostles, all the angels and saints, even than the Virgin Mary herself. For these were all subject to Christ, but the Pope was equal to Christ. After his ascension into heaven, Christ had nothing more to do with the government of the Church till the last day, but had intrusted all to the Pope as His vicar and vicegerent.

Tetzel's sub-commissary, also a preaching-friar, Bartholomew by name (as I have heard myself with my own ears during my youth at Dessau), dared to say without shame, that he had seen with his own eyes the blood of Christ flow gently down from the holy red cross of indulgence, on which the Pope's banner hung, and that so great grace had not been granted since the time of Christ's passion. He also said that the cross worked miracles, and he excommunicated every man who gainsaid this.

Letter of the men of Breslau to the Pope's Legate in 1459.

Let his Holiness look well to it, that he be not betrayed, as will undoubtedly happen, by the King's oath and vow. His Holiness has accepted his vow to renounce and exterminate heresy; but as, on the other hand, he has sworn to his sects that he will protect them, and maintain and increase their party, must he not perjure himself with one side or the other? As the base arch-heretic Rokyczana is still free, and has greater power than ever, he now compels the people to receive the sacrament in both kinds; whosoever will not do so, is punished, imprisoned, etc., s. 132: And those who receive in one kind only, are reproached and reviled by him as heretics, and when they die they are buried with the malefactors in unconsecrated ground.

The Legate's Answer.

The king has not sworn to promote heresy, but he has only given his simple word that he will tolerate its usages; this is not only no sin, but is wisely done. Ye know well, whether there are many heretics in Bohemia, whether they are powerful, whether they can be expelled peaceably and without bloodshed. So if ye would speak the truth, ye would advise in your own wisdom, that they should not be treated with rigor, but with gentleness, nor be converted in the mass, but gradually as may be expedient. And if the king in his toleration and forbearance entertains affection for any of them, it is not for his heresy's sake, but because he is his friend or servant; ought he therefore to be called a heretic or a friend of heretics? This be far from your thoughts; since Jesus ate and drank with open sinners, not that he loved sinners as such, but men and the souls of men. S. 142: Also as there are many heretics in Bohemia, ye shall not separate yourselves from them, but endure and tolerate them, as St. Augustin saith, Thou good man bear with the wicked, because Christ bore with Judas, etc.

When this appeal (see note 14) was published through the whole kingdom, and in many parts of Germany by George, it was rather approved than censured. The Pope's efforts met with no praise, no thanks, no assent. But all that George undertook or sanctioned was praised and approved by every one. S. 17. The Dukes of Misnia and Brandenburg with their bishops sympathized with this cause, and did not approve the Pope's proceedings. In their lands and states, curses and reproaches against the Pope were heard, for that the Pope would rouse the Bohemians to war, when they wished to live in peace, whereas in former times, when all Christendom was against them, their warlike armies had been continually victorious, and destroyed countries and their inhabitants. Accordingly these states had inquired of the doctors in the universities of Leipsic and Erfurt, whether it were right to wage war with the Bohemians who would gladly live in peace, whether peace might be made with heretics, whether they ought to be murdered, and brought by force to the true faith. There was at this time an especially great teacher of the order of the Carthusians at Frankfort on the Oder, held in high esteem for his learning and sanctity by all men, he wrote much on the subject. Moreover, in the universities abovementioned there was much discussion and writing among the masters on this question. The conclusion of all was, that the Pope's holiness ought not to deal so harshly with the Bohemian people, if they were willing to abide in peace; but mildly and with paternal desire and instruction to appoint conferences for them, as George desired, and send legates.
